An interesting feature at the Union Gun Club shoot last Sunday was the contest for the A. M. Shields blue rock silver cup. The race was at 50 targets. The first 25 were shot at from the 16 yard mark. In shooting the second 25 blue rocks a distance handicap was imposed as follows: shooters breaking 25, 24 and 23 targets, shot from the 20 yard mark; 22, 21 and 20 breaks, at 18 yards; 19, 18 and 17 breaks, 16 yards; under 17 breaks, 14 yards. After shooting both sections of 25 blue rocks the number of targets missed by each shooter were shot from the various handicap pegs. H. A. Hoyt was the winner of the cup, he scored 21 breaks in the first 25 birds and 21 in the second 25, shooting from the 18 yard mark.

The cup was originally won by C. C. Nauman, who subsequently donated the trophy for another race.

Dr. Hutton of the College City Gun Club has rapidly advanced to the front ranks of the club's expert shots. The Doctor, who is a very clever field shot, has only recently taken to blue rock shooting. At the first club shoot this season he attended he could do no better than smash 6 out of 25 birds. His rapid progress in trap shooting and natural skill with a shotgun is aptly illustrated by the following incident which transpired at a recent shoot in the North Berkeley hills. The Doctor had scored 46 breaks and needed just one more bird to win the race and first money. Calmly stepping to the score, before shooting, he paused a moment, then turning and facing his companions he remarked, somewhat in a spirit of badinage but still with a deal of confidence: "Well! I'm a wonder. You fellows say, I look like a hack going down hill with both doors open, when I stand up here to shoot. Well! I am a wonder and I'll prove it to you when I get this last bird!" He quickly turned to the bulkhead, adjusted his gun, called "pull" and caught the target on a dead center, one of the neatest shots of the day.

At the recent Northwest tournament the high average, 93½ per cent, was made by W. F. Sheard, of Tacoma. A. J. Winters, of Portland, made the largest individual run of breaks during the shoot. The Multnomah medal was won by Mr. Wright, of Butte.

At the Multnomah Rod and Gun Club Tournament which followed the Northwest shoot, the club championship cup was won by Frank Howe, of Portland.

The Vallejo Gun Club holds weekly blue rock shoots. Last Sunday the total breaks, in shooting at 75 targets, were as follows: Frank Dunphy 55, Clyde Drake 53, D. F. Beveridge 47, C. L. Winchell 30. In shooting at 50 targets the following members each scored: T. M. Doyle 29, J. Lynn 20, J. E. Fifield 13.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

The Imperial Gun Club of San Francisco, through its representatives, have leased for hunting purposes, for a term of ten years, the lands bordering on each side of the Elkhorn Slough. It is the intention of the club to establish a modern, up-to-date game preserve. Much of the slough lands will be planted to such grasses as the owners may decide. A fresh water lake of about five acres in extent will be constructed at a suitable place and the same will be fed from never failing springs. Game keepers will be engaged to look after the preserves and poaching will be strictly prohibited. Every effort will be made to encourage duck and other wild game to resort to the preserves as a popular feeding ground and to this end it is estimated that between $1000 and $1500 will be expended annually for provender for the birds.

At a point near Elkhorn switch in the Southern Pacific track, about half way between this city and Capitola, the club will construct a large and commodious club house, fully equipped for the comfort and convenience of the members and their guests. It will be divided into kitchen, dining-rooms, lounging rooms and bed-rooms and will be a model of its kind.

The railroad company has agreed to stop the south bound evening train and the Sunday excursion trains at the club house, and thus settle the transportation question in a manner that will be satisfactory to all concerned.

The club members will indulge in hunting only two days in the week, Wednesdays and Saturdays. As the conditions of the Elkhorn slough district are favorable for the propagation of ducks and other game birds it is safe to predict that in the course of a year or two the Imperial Gun Club of San Francisco will have one of the best stocked preserves in Central California.—Watsonville Register.

The deer season will open on August 1st, next Friday. The oft reiterated warning to hunters and other individuals who go forth with loaded rifles, to be careful when they shoot, it seems is not an unnecessary one. According to a dispatch from Roseburg, Or., the casualty list has been started in good shape. While hunting near Olalla, Lefe Parazoo mistook Alfred Neal for a deer and shot him in the right shoulder, the bullet coming out just above the lung without breaking any bones. The boys started out together on the hunt, but separated with the understanding that they were to meet at a neighboring camp some distance from their own.

Neal had not gone far when he started a deer and was trying to head it off. Parazoo had also discovered the deer, and as he saw Neal moving through the brush he mistook him for the creature and fired at a distance of about 150 yards with a repeating rifle. Neal was brought to Roseburg, and there is a possibility that he will recover.

There are a few condors still left in Southern California. This bird is not only a rare one, but is of some utility in the economy of nature by its destruction of rabbits and squirrels. There has been, however, an incessant warfare waged against the bird by hunters, ranchers and other vandals. Nests have been robbed and in various localities where a pair was in the habit of frequenting, they were harried until driven away or shot. The latest piece of voluntary persecution of the condor family is noted by the Los Angeles Express, which states in a dispatch from Santa Maria that: "Hiram Wells, a rancher living far back in the mountains, captured a young condor. The little bird is unable to fly, but is rapidly taking on size. The wings measure about three feet from tip to tip, and the bird itself resembles a large turkey. A good sized rabbit or four or five squirrels are required to make a meal for the youngster, who, upon the approach of anyone, excepting its owner, shows fight at once. On finding the bird in its nest, Wells had a struggle with the old bird, but succeeded in warding it off."

Possibly it is misdeemeanor, punishable by fine, etc., in some of the southern counties, to let harmless and instructive wild things pursue the even tenor of their way.

Fish Lines.

Angling for striped bass this season promises to afford plenty of sport for the salt water devotees. Reports from many localities indicate that the fish will be plentiful. Most of the fish caught are of rather small size, ranging from one to five pounds. Eight and ten pound fish are not by any means rare and bass also are hooked running up to sixteen pounds.

Off the west shore of Belvidere island, between the "fish wharf" and the "rocks" several nice conditioned fish were taken last Saturday afternoon and Sunday forenoon. Dr. Clyde Payne landed a ten pounder, Geo. Bradford's fish scaled sixteen pounds, Mr. Pindexter hooked two bass, weighing eight and twelve pounds respectively, Mr. Hawkins, Sr., captured an eleven pound bass. Ellis Parish made a notable catch—a three ounce rock fish on a No. 5 Wilson spoon. All the above mentioned bass were taken with a No. 5 trolling spoon.

Lake Merritt continues to attract the attention of bass fishermen. Numerous local sportsmen resorting daily to the lake and generally with a satisfactory degree of success. Among those recently "clam casting" in this water, may be mentioned Jas. Watt, who has been nearly high hook in numbers and weights, C. B. Hollywood, A. Cunningham, Jas. S. Turner, Will Turner, J. A. Pariser and A. M. Cumming. "Parson" Jackson has done quite a little prospecting off Bay Farm island, in San Leandro bay, the "canal" and also in the estuary.

The Anglers' Club members and other fishermen who fish in San Antonio slough have caught a number of bass also.

Striped bass are in plentiful evidence in Petaluma creek near the railroad bridge at Black Point. Numerous good sized fish have been taken there during the past week. The fish are caught trolling from boats and also by set lines fastened to the bridge. These devices are frequently carried away and hooks broken or straightened by big fish. Jack Bradshaw, D. Fagothey, Oscar Fleischman and "Trot" Allen were at the Kennel club house at Black Point this week; they landed a number of good sized fish.

Larkspur creek is still reported to be a good bass fishing ground. The fish caught recently in Castro creek and adjacent waters, near San Pablo, have usually been small ones.

Salt water anglers, and particularly striped bass fishermen, will be enabled now to procure spoons and other tackle at the Tiburon grocery and supply store now conducted by Harry Kelly (formerly Hawkin's store). This will be regarded as quite a convenience by many fishermen who resort to the various fishing grounds in the vicinity of Tiburon.

Game Warden Henry Abels, of Santa Barbara county, recently placed 15,000 rainbow trout in the headwaters of the Tepusquet and Sisquoc streams. The little fish were shipped from the Sissons hatchery and reached their destination in prime condition. These streams a few years ago were full of fish, but the ruthless burning of forests and brush denuded the mountain sides of all vegetation, so that the winter storms brought down an unusual amount of mud, killing all the fish. Most of this section of the county is included in the Pine mountain and Zaca lake forest reserves, in charge of Col. B. F. Crawshaw, and patrolled by government rangers. Disasters by fire and the ruination of springs and streams will, in the future, be avoided, it is believed. Last year 25,000 fish were placed in the streams and since then they have made phenomenal growth and give every promise that in a few years they will be plentiful and well grown.

Fish Commissioner James H. Boyd is also expecting another consignment of trout for the streams in the San Bernardino mountains. The Commissioner says that trout do not thrive at an altitude of less than 4000 feet, but above that height they grow to perfection. The expected consignment will be placed in Bear creek at a point 6000 feet above sea level. The game wardens are on the trail of the men who used dynamite in Deep creek and have sent word to the valley that the prospects for their capture are good.

Surrounded by the pleasing and well known picturesque beauties of the Russian river valley, the guests of Camp Vacation spend the splendid days in boating, bathing and fishing. Black bass fishing at this resort has recently become a most striking feature. The small mouthed black bass being more plentiful than for several years past and are in fine condition. The sheet of still water which the Russian river offers for aquatic sports is the largest in the State. A sandy beach shelving into a shallow makes wading a favorite amusement with the little ones. But Camp Vacation presents other attractions. Its plan of management is unique. Well furnished tents with floors are used for living and meals that have already won a reputation are served in a large, cool dining-room. The camp is, briefly, a hotel under canvas.

Every day two trains run direct to the grounds by the California Northwestern Railway. Terms are reasonable.

Fare from San Francisco for the round trip $2.50. Take boat at Tiburon ferry.

Sydney and Cyril McGraw, two San Jose youths, aged respectively 17 and 14 years, made a fine catch of salmon in Monterey bay on the 18th inst. They put out into the ocean from Pacific Grove to a spot about six miles off Point Pinos lighthouse. After cruising around for about two hours without getting a fish, the boat was put about for the Grove. The prow of the small craft had hardly been pointed on the homeward journey when a salmon struck Master Sydney's hook. Gently working him in as fast as a "first salmon" would permit, it soon became apparent that it was no ordinary fish at the end of the line. Finally getting to close quarters, Boatman Sprague struck him with the gaff and attempted to haul him into the boat, but the weight of the fish, combined with the fight it was putting up, was too much for the gaff; it straightened out and the salmon dropped into the sea, running out the full length of the line, 200 feet. Playing him again he was gradually brought up close enough for Sprague to gaff him the second time, and again the gaff straightened out and the fish started for his "happy home." Five times was this repeated until the fish, weak from loss of blood and the tremendous exertions it had made for freedom was tired out and hauled into the boat.

Master Cyril's turn came immediately, and he soon was in the midst of the liveliest scrimmage of his young life. After working some time and putting up the gamest kind of a fight salmon No. 2 was "aboard ship" alongside his companion. He proved to be a big one too, but not quite equal to the first one caught. Inside half an hour these youngsters had caught four salmon, which weighed as follows: No. 1, 41 pounds; No. 2, 37 pounds; No. 3, 31½ pounds; No. 4, 28½ pounds. One hundred and thirty-eight pounds of salmon for a morning's fish is a record that any of the oldest fishermen might be proud of.

During the recent trip of T. Rothschild to Verdi, one day, the 14th inst., accompanied by C. W. Coburn, he visited Pyramid lake. They caught 16 large trout and had to desist when they were cleaned out of tackle.

Salt water fishing at Redondo beach and vicinity must be first class at present. The Los Angeles Express gives an idea of conditions as follows: Such of the fishing contingent as care for surf are reasonably certain to arrange for a supply of clam bait for tomorrow. Conditions for this class of fishing could hardly be more favorable if there is anything in the popular theory of tides and a full moon. Last season the heavy runs of surf fish were coincident with the full and new moon, tides at those times being higher than at the quarters. The excellent surf fishing of the Saturday following July 4th occurred in conjunction with the new moon. Whether the rule will hold good to-day, or be reversed, depends largely on the condition of the weather, but this all the week has been warm and sufficiently regular to be favorable.

Quite a delegation will go to San Pedro in response to a rumor of croakers running, the rumor not being any too well founded. It is time for this class of fishing, however, though nobody has been able to confirm it as yet. There should be some halibut and yellowfin doing business under the cannery this week as the outfit has been working with sardines during the first part of the week.

There is plenty of bait at Ocean Park, and a few yellowfins and other fish are biting. Quite a number will go there.

Will Stearns expects to give the sharks one more good run at Potencia, and thereafter will confine his operations to regular fishing.

Trolling outside has been productive of a few barracuda, but the fishing is not what it should be this time of the year. Bass are biting about as usual. The yellowtail seem to be mostly on the other side of the channel.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Phil Wand's English Setter bitch Flora W. was served by S. Christenson's Joe Cummings' Boy on June 28th, 30th and July 1st.

Stockdale Kennels have shipped the two Pointers Cuba Jr (Cuba of Kenwood-Florida) and Petronella (Young Jingo-Florida) to Mr. Thomas Richards, Stewart, Minn. These dogs and their performances are very familiar to Coast sportsmen and others and need not here be further commented on. They will be run through the circuit of interstate trials, and possibly in Canada this fall. Manager Dodge writes that he has great confidence in the ability of Mr. Richards to land the dogs as winners and hopes to hear of a victory once in awhile, although he does not expect such good fortune as prevailed last season.

In referring to the other dogs at Bakersfield, he states, "We have sold quite a number of puppies and broken dogs, in fact all we care to dispose of at present. I must say that I had more answers to our advertisement in your paper than from any other. It pays to advertise in a good paper."

"Three puppies and one old dog went to parties in Fresno, one to Truckee, one to Mr. Clinton E. Worden, San Francisco, and Bow's Son to Mr. J. Downey Harvey."

"We have part of three litters left, so we will have something to pick from for the 1904 Derby. One litter is by Cuba's Zep-Jingosbagpipe, whelped November 1, 1901, the next is by Champion Cuba of Kenwood out of Petronella, whelped January 22, 1902; the third litter is by Cuba Jr out of Fly (Bang III-Manitoba Belle). Mr. Fred Stone of Fresno has one of this litter."

"All of our dogs are in fine shape, we have not lost a pup from either of the above litters up to date and if distemper gives me the go by I will be happy. I am off for a two weeks trip to the mountains, some of the party started this A. M., hence my hurry."

We wish our genial correspondent a merry time and pleasant outing.

Some High Bred Jerseys.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—I have sold to Mr. Joseph Mailliard of San George, California, a fine head of as high bred and good individual Jersey cattle as there are in the State. The herd represents some of the famous and fashionable families, and Mr. Mailliard has the material from which to breed one of the best herds on the Coast, which I feel sure he will do. The herd includes eight cows and heifers and two bulls. The bull at the head of the herd is Brown Bessie's Golden Gate, one of the grandest bred bulls in America. At the World's Fair in Chicago the two Jersey cows, Brown Bessie and Merry Maiden were the leaders in all the Jersey tests and showed themselves to be among the very best butter cows ever born. This bull was sired by a son of Brown Bessie, and his dam, which had a butter test of over twenty pounds a week, was a half sister to Merry Maiden. He thus combines the blood of the two champions and is otherwise choicely bred, having in his pedigree very many highly tested cows. He belongs to the great Combination family.

The cows include such animals as Carmencita, the second prize cow at the recent State Fair and a member of the first prize herd. Pedro's Poppy, by a richly inbred Pedro Bull, while her dam was by the unbeaten show bull Major Appel Pogis; her grandam being by Ida's Rioter of St. Lambert, next dam by Stoke Pogis 5th. Where can this breeding be equaled?

Another cow, Lady Zettie, was the sweepstake cow and first prize cow at the California State Fair when the cattle were judged by Major Alvord of Washington, D. C. Two other young cows in the herd were purchased in Wisconsin and were sired by Recorder, a famous son of the champion, Brown Bessie.

Another young cow was sired by Brown Bessie's Son 12th, a grandson of Brown Bessie purchased from Hood Farm, Massachusetts, the dam of the young cow being by an inbred Alphi-Comassie bull.

One of the heifers was sired by a son of old Pedro, one of the great bulls of the world, and her dam was by another famous son of Pedro, the champion Pedro's Rural Marjoram. This is one of the richest bred Pedro heifers in the West.

Another cow of notable breeding is Oregon Beauty; she was sired by a Son of Exile of St. Lambert, the champion butter sire of the world, while her dam was sired by a son of Stoke Pogis 5th, another bull of great celebrity.

The remainder of the herd is of the same breeding as the foregoing and are of equal excellence. I have been breeding this herd up and culling from it for fifteen years, and the animals sold to Mr. Mailliard were the products of all these years of care, attention and expense. I feel that in his hands they will be given an excellent chance, and that from these cows and the bull at their head he will breed some champions which will be a credit to his breeding and will in his practical hands demonstrate the superiority of the Jersey cow for practical dairy work. Sacramento, July 18, 1902.

Something Besides Corn.

A noted hog-breeder says: "The need of something besides corn, something to build up frame and muscle, is quite generally recognized by up-to-date breeders and feeders. What that something is to be is the question. Oats, shorts, bran, etc., are good flesh-formers, but are rather expensive if fed intensively; and most of us are feeding for profit. The only feed that is rich enough in protein, and at the same time cheap enough to be largely used in pork production is grass. So important do I deem this auxiliary ration that if I could not have pasture I would raise very few swine. The value of grass for the brood sow and the growing pig is not alone in its nutritive elements, but largely in its promotion of health and giving tone to the system, enabling the animal to give a better account of the corn it consumes. If all the hogs in the country could have the advantage of a run on grass, and plenty of pure water, the danger from swine plague would be reduced to a minimum. But on many farms no arrangement is made for hog pasture, and this is especially true on farms occupied by renters, and on such farms a very large amount of pork is produced.

JOTTINGS.

THE JUDGES AT CLEVELAND made a decision in the 2:07 trot last week that has since caused a great deal of talk. The New York Telegraph says that by this decision the judges proved themselves "incompetent" and also intimates that it was done to save a big better the money he had put up on the race. There were but three starters in the race—The Monk, Lord Derby and Dolly Dillon. The Monk was a big favorite, selling at $50 to $10 for the field. In the first heat Dolly Dillon, having the pole, went out in front and led at the quarter, with Geers at her wheel with The Monk. Lord Derby was trailing several lengths back and his driver, Spear, made no effort to close the gap. Dolly Dillon and The Monk had a very hot contest through the stretch, but Dolly broke at the draw gate and The Monk won in 2:07½. The judges did not like the way Spear had driven Lord Derby, and put up George Saunders to drive the horse in the next heat. When they got away The Monk was leading and was two lengths in front of Lord Derby at the quarter, with Dolly Dillon trailing this time. A royal battle took place in the stretch again, this time Lord Derby and The Monk being the contestants. The horses had gone rather slow to the half, the official time being 1:06, but the third quarter was in 30 seconds flat and the last in 1:01½, Lord Derby breaking ten feet from the wire and finishing but a neck ahead of The Monk, but the judges gave it to Lord Derby. In the third heat The Monk had it all his own way, as Lord Derby broke at the first turn and Dolly Dillon did not seem to be able to beat The Monk. Driver Spear was then fined $250 and the money paid to Geo. Saunders. All bets were declared off. In the betting The Monk was a big favorite and as he won and there was no question but his driver, Ed Geers, had tried for every heat, the decision declaring the bet off was a most extraordinary one, the only explanation being that those who had placed the money on Lord Derby had to be protected. It was remarked by several that if Spear was rightfully fined for trailing in the first heat, Millard Sanders should have been fined for "trailing" in the second heat.

While the strictures of the New York paper may be a little severe, the fact remains that many decisions in regard to declaring all bets off are often made too hastily and result in aiding the accomplishment of the very job that it was intended to prevent. I remember a case in this state a few years ago where a driver who was "laying up" with hardly any pretensions of concealment, was derricked and another reinsman substituted. The race was easily won by the horse with the new driver, and had the bets been permitted to stand the derricked man and his partners in the scheme would have lost heavily as they had played another horse, but the judges declared all bets off and fined the offending driver, which highly pleased him as he saved several hundred dollars by this course. Had the bets been allowed to stand the crowd that had put up the job would have lost very heavily as the public had backed the best horse very liberally.

Prompt decisions are necessary to the successful conduct of any race meeting, but the running horse people can give the harness associations many points in regard to decisions and rulings to punish fraud. It seems to have become the custom at harness meetings to make all announcements as regards to fines, etc., in a loud and ostentatious manner from the judges' stand. If every ruling were absolutely correct and never changed this might not be a bad scheme, but to make a loud announcement and then quietly change it on the following day, leaves a very bad impression on the minds of the public as to the judicial ability of the judges. The running associations act very differently in this matter. Their decisions are never bawled from the stand and seldom made without a thorough investigation of all the facts and then rendered so as to reach the guilty parties. If a jockey pulls a horse he is given a hearing and upon conviction ruled off or set down for a term, the punishment being made to fit the crime as near as possible. There is very little punishment in fining a trotting horse driver $100 or $200 for laying up a heat on which he may have won from $1000 to $2000, but it would hit him pretty hard were he to be required to keep out of the sulky for a few weeks or during the remainder of the season. There are quite a number of little things which the running track handle in better shape than do the harness associations and this is one of them.

An incident of last year's campaign on the Grand Circuit was related to me recently that fully bears out the claim I have just made. A driver who owned a very fast trotter that had the habit of stopping after one fast heat was pulled out of his sulky and fined at one of the principal meetings. He protested rather energetically, but was cowed into silence by a threat to rule him off for life if he talked any more. Some of the turf papers spoke in defense of the driver, and thereupon received letters from one of the judges in which the ruling was justified and the claim made that the driver got off very lucky. It afterwards came out that a few weeks after the incident, one of the judges went to the driver and returned the amount of his fine, saying they had ascertained from an investigation and subsequent races of the horse that the driver was doubtless blameless in the matter, and an apology was made with the request that the matter be permitted to drop. If absolute fairness had been the rule in this case, the return of the money and the apology would have been made as publicly as was the original fine and ruling.

The owners and trainers of trotters and pacers that will campaign in California this year should take a tip from an item that is going the rounds to the effect that several of the Eastern owners are adding much to the appearance of things by providing the attaches of their stables with light and clean over-suits and caps to wear on the track while they are attending to horses competing in races. These suits are very inexpensive, but give the men wearing them a neat appearance and are an attractive feature. Just why it is necessary for men who rub horses to go out on the track during a race about half-clad, is one of those unexplainable things in horse history. The contrast is very great, too great in fact, when a driver comes out in a spick and span suit, with a bright new sulky and harness, attended by two or three swipes attired in dirty overalls and undershirts with half sleeves. There is no reason why a neat light suit should not be worn by the caretakers as well as the driver. These suits should be for this climate of the very thinnest washable material and every man should wear a clean cap. The suits need not be worn except during the time when the horses are racing, but it would be still better if they were worn during the entire day and especially while the stalls are being visited by ladies and gentleman before and after the races. It would add much to the picturesqueness of race tracks, which are generally anything but delightful to look upon,

In this connection it might not be out of place to suggest to district associations that they make a little stronger effort than usual this year to have the fair grounds clean and neat. More water should be used for sprinkling and the grand stand and other buildings kept in such a condition that the dust is not so prevalent and disagreeable. Does anyone suppose for a minute that the big running tracks would be so popular were the lawns to be permitted to become dry and dusty and the grand stands to have that dirty tumble-down appearance that prevails to such an extent on trotting tracks? One of the best mottoes an association can adopt is "Clean racing and clean grounds."

Aegon for Sale.

One of the best individuals and one of the best bred sons of Nutwood is Aegon 2:18½ at three years of age, and although never advertised for public service, the sire of eight with records from 2:11½ to 2:29½. Aegon was owned by the late Judge Hubbard of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who would not sell the horse at any price although once offered $35,000, and yet would not give the horse anything but the most limited opportunities in the stud. At the Judge's death recently the horse by the terms of his will became the property of Attorney C. E. Wheeler of Cedar Rapids, who is not in the horse business and desires to sell him.

Aegon is by Nutwood 600, greatest of all sires and whose fame is known wherever the American trotter is owned. The dam of Aegon is Alpha 2:23½, dam of three in the list, by Alcantara, the leading sire of 2:15 performers in the world and own brother to Alcyone, sire of McKinney.

The grandam of Aegon is that famous mare Jessie Pepper, dam of two and grandam of ten with standard records, and who has three producing sons. She is by Mambrino Chief 11. The next dam is by the thoroughbred horse Sidi Hamet and the next dam by imp. Diomed. Aegon's pedigree cannot be excelled, and he is himself a fast trotter by the record and a demonstrated sire of trotters, whose sire was a fast trotter and the greatest of all sires, and whose dam was a fast trotter and a demonstrated great producer of trotters. Aegon would make a very valuable addition to our list of California sires and as he is a solid mahogany bay, sixteen hands high and weighs 1200 pounds, with high style and action and sound and vigorous, he would be able to command a large patronage in this State if in the hands of the right party. Read his pedigree in our advertising columns and write to C. E. Wheeler, Cedar Rapids, for price and particulars.

McKinney 2:11 1-4 Leaves California To-day.

On the express train which leaves the Oakland mole for the East at 9:30 this morning will be a car containing the champion sire, McKinney 2:11½, in charge of his new owner, Mr. H. B. Gentry, of Bloomington, Indiana, who has paid $25,000 to Mr. Chas. A. Durfee for the privilege of owning the champion fifteen year old trotting sire of the world. The departure of McKinney from California is a great loss to the breeding interests of this State, greater than will be realized at first, but one that will be fully appreciated in years to come, when the reputation of the great son of Alcyone continues to increase and his list of 2:15 performers is larger than that of any other stallion, as we are certain it will soon be.

Mr. Durfee purchased McKinney when he was a two year old in Kentucky and brought him direct to California. He trained and raced him successfully and then retired him to the stud, where his success was immediate, and now at the age of fifteen years McKinney is the sire of five in the 2:10 list and twenty in the 2:15 list, a position never attained by any horse at that age and by very few at any age.

Mr. Gentry, his new owner, is a man of means, and has the ambition to own the best breeding farm in America. He has at present eighteen royally bred mares that he has purchased during the past few years, and believing McKinney to be the leading sire of the country opened negotiations with Mr. Durfee with the result that he became the owner of the horse yesterday on the payment of $25,000 cash in hand to Mr. Durfee.

The loss to the breeding interests of California would be greater were it not for the fact that McKinney has always been a very vigorous and prepotent sire, and he leaves a very numerous progeny of high class horses in this State. Headed by that great race horse Zombro 2:11, whose first representative to start in a race took a record of 2:13½, the sons of McKinney that will be in service on this coast next year will undoubtedly get a very large patronage, and we are glad to be able to state that among them are a very large proportion of handsome, large and grandly bred young horses that will undoubtedly add fame in the years to come to the name of their already illustrious sire.

Charley Herr Not Turned Out.

A dispatch from Lexington under date of July 20th, says: Charley Herr 2:07, and his dairyman owner and trainer, "Uncle Davy" Cahill, are back from the Grand Circuit races. The great horse went lame at the Detroit meeting, and he, with the three others of the Cahill string, were shipped back to Lexington. Mr. Cahill has no intention of turning out the son of Alfred G. and sending him to the stud to see the race track no more. He thinks that he will yet get his $25,000 favorite to a race, and expresses himself as being not so much worried about the future of his horse as outsiders seem to be. Charley Herr has been shown on the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association track since his return here, and jogged very decidedly lame. The trouble is in the off fore leg, which was affected last season. It is different, however, as the former affection was in the pastern, while the present trouble is in the tendon.

In speaking of the matter, Mr. Cahill said: "There were all sorts of statements about my driving my horse a quarter in 0:29 at Detroit, and that breaking him down. It is my personal opinion that Charley struck himself in the stall, and that from this came his lameness. I do not suppose I worked Charley a quarter faster than 0:33, even if that good, while I was at Detroit. He first showed me that he was lame at the end of a mile in 2:30, and when I stepped him a second heat in 2:21 the trouble was very pronounced."

Sister Colette, the three year old sister to Charley Herr, in the Cahill string, has shown unexpected form since coming to Lexington again. Before leaving, the best mile that she had been was in 2:27. The first workout after she returned to Lexington was a mile in 2:21½, last quarter in 0:35, and now Mr. Cahill for the first time thinks that he has a Futurity possibility in the filly.

Amateur racing has now reached such a stage of perfection and is so distinctly sportsman-like and typical of the best elements of sportmanship that the race for the challenge trophy or one of similar conditions is bound to become an event of equal importance with the classics of the harness world. The sport has attracted to it the most powerful element connected with racing the light harness horse, an element that has the time, the money and the inclination to indulge in the sport on an extensive scale—Kentucky Stock Farm.

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonade and be refreshed.

Notes and News.

Pleasanton races filled well.

Stockton's entries closed yesterday.

Ventura's meeting opens Monday next.

Sacramento and Marysville entries close to-day.

Bakersfield entries close next Tuesday, August 5th.

You Bet 2:07. That's the fifth 2:10 performer for McKinney 2:11½.

If Sir Albert S. 2:08½ is all right he will start at Buffalo next week.

Mr. A. G. Gurnett of 308 Pine street, has a number of well bred horses for sale at reasonable prices.

Russell Hardin 2:18½, the sire of Hallie Hardin 2:13½, is being raced in New England by trainer White.

At least one large offer—$8500—has been made for Dolly Bidwell 2:08½ since her brilliant race at Readville.

The attendance at the Grand Circuit meetings thus far this year has shown an increase over that of last year.

Mart Demarest offered Dave McClary $3000 for the yearling colt by Bingen out of Mary Fern, but could not buy.

Two running races for purses of $150 each will be made up overnight at the Pleasanton meeting. Entrance will be free.

An average of 32 nominators made the third payment in the five early closing stakes for the coming Brighton Beach meeting.

The fastest six-heat race ever paced was won by Dan R. at the Columbus meeting last Wednesday. The fastest heat was 2:05½ and the slowest 2:06½.

The Calaveras Agricultural Association will hold its district fair from October 7th to 11th, or immediately after the fair at Sonora, which follows the Stockton fair.

Maud S., Nancy Hanks and Dan Patch are the three unbeaten Grand Circuit performers to date, and it is a strange fact that in all their races each lost but one heat.

Onward has more descendants in the 2:10 list than any other horse. This year already two have been added to the number—Carthage Girl 2:09½ and Elderone 2:09½.

This is the season when every wise horseman puts a bottle of Vita Oil in his trunk as he starts out on the campaign. It takes the soreness out of a horse in short order.

Scott Hudson broke a record at Cleveland. He won all four races on the card last Friday and was given an ovation by the ten thousand people present at the close of the day's sport.

The Golden Gate District Fair Association has opened a $500 purse for the 2:18 class trotters, to come off during the meeting at Pleasanton. Entries close August 9th, Saturday next.

One week from Monday next the California main circuit of district fairs will open at Vallejo with an excellent racing program. The track there is in first class order and some fast time may be expected.

Zombowette, the three year old daughter of Zombro out of a Silver Bow mare, worked a half in 1:07½ one day last week for Walter Maben at the Los Angeles track. She is entered in the Occident Stake.

The two heats by Anzella in 2:08½ at Cleveland are the fastest two heats by a trotter thus far this year. In the 2:07 trot at the same meeting two heats were trotted in 2:07½ and 2:07½, but they were won by different horses.

Four straight races for The Roman to date and all in straight heats, with his record now at 2:10½, is a pretty good showing for the son of McKinney and Wanda. He will be in the 2:10 list before the Grand Circuit is ended.

There are a lot of wonderfully good green pacers out this year. When Direct Hal paced in 2:06½, six of his field were able to get inside the flag, and when Greenline won a heat in 2:07½ not one of the fourteen starters was distanced.

The black pacer Sharkey in the Griffith string at Napa is working well for Burt Webster. Were it not for a throat affection this pacer would be in the free for all division as a half in one minute is within his reach at any time when he is feeling well.

J. M. Lipson, who brought out Zolock the year that son of McKinney took a record of 2:10½, has another good green one this year in Eagletta, a daughter of the fast pacer Ketchum 2:16½, and a mare by McKinney. They say Eagletta can brush with the horses that have two minute speed.

It is said that Frank Herdic, "the only," and Boralma's driver Tom Marsh, recently bet $500 a side on the coming matches between Boralma and Lord Derby and Boralma and The Abbot, Herdic backing his opinion that Boralma would lose both races.

Miss Gomett, a good looking filly by Seymour Wilkes, has paced a mile in 2:20 for Hans Frellson at the Napa track lately. She is owned by F. Gomett of this city, who also owns the Nutwood Wilkes mare Verona 2:26½, full sister to Central Girl 2:22½.

Prince Direct, formerly Freddie C., is not doing very well on the Grand Circuit thus far. He has been outside the money in the majority of his starts and while he has met some very fast horses has not paced up to the form shown by him in California last year.

That was a pretty good race The Roman won at Cleveland last Saturday. The time for a field of twelve was very good and as the son of McKinney and Wanda trotted the last heat the fastest, his gameness will not be called in question any more by the doubters.

The trainers over East are all finding fault with the weather and every meeting is broken into by a rainstorm. Pity we couldn't have some of it over here to soften up the tracks and make the footing better for the sore-footed and lame horses that are getting so numerous.

I Direct worked a mile in 2:10 flat at San Jose last Wednesday and King Cadenza completed a mile in 2:13½. Mr. H. H. Dunlap, who is training both these fast pacers, left with them for Vallejo on Friday of this week, where they are entered for the meeting which opens Monday, August 11th.

The trotter Black Bart 2:17½, that was purchased by "Major" Griffin last winter and shipped East, has gone wrong and is now running out, according to Spirit of the West, published at Des Moines, Iowa. Black Bart had a badly bowed tendon before he left California and it was not expected he would stand hard training this year.

Major Delmar, who won so cleverly at Detroit when he was selling for $5 in pools of $115, was not raced last year, owing to the death of his breeder and owner, William E. Spier. Starting out of his class—his record being 2:15 and the event for 2:13 horses—he won impressively and cut his record to 2:11 flat. He sold for $2900 at the Spier dispersal last November.

A new feature of the Chicago horse market last week developed in the arrival of a number of buyers from Northern Wisconsin and Michigan with orders to buy farm mares. They selected mares of the plainer sort weighing up to 1500 pounds and freely paid up to $150 per head. Another fresh lot of Northern buyers of loggers arrived, one of them wanting the best and paying up to $265 for his selections.

Prince L. by Escort is being trained at the Red Bluff track, and worked three heats the other day in 2:23, 2:22½ and 2:21. As the day was one of the hottest of the year this showing was a good one. Prince L. may be seen on the circuit this year, although his owner has several offers for the horse from parties who desire to use him as a road horse, as he is very stylish and has excellent road manners.

A handsome matched team of standard bred bay mares, perfectly sound and gentle, is offered for sale in our advertising columns. These mares will weigh 1100 pounds each and stand 16.1 in height. As a very reasonable price is asked for them, they should not go long unsold. Good gentle teams are in demand at the present time and there is a chance for a dealer to double his money on this pair inside of thirty days.

Among the many fast ones owned by members of the New York Driving Club are Little Boy 2:01½, Robert J. 2:01½, Coney 2:02, The Abbot 2:03½, Free Bond 2:04½, Mazette 2:04½, Bessie Bonehill 2:05½, Direct 2:05½, Hetty G. 2:05½, Klatawah 2:05½, Lord Derby 2:06½, Chain Shot 2:06½, Giles Noyes 2:05½, Shadow Chimes 2:05, The Monk 2:07, Frazier 2:07½, Hontas Crooke 2:07½, Lucille 2:07, and Fred S. Wedgewood 2:06.

Secretary Campbell writes us from Oakley Park, Cincinnati, that Welch & Jones, proprietors of that celebrated track, have just completed arrangements with Mr. Geo. H. Ketcham, of Toledo, for another brush at the world's record with the only Cresceus, at the Grand Circuit meeting at Oakley Park, on Wednesday, October 1st this year, or the next fair day should Wednesday be unpropitious for this great event.

Sam Hoy of Winters purchased a new bike when in the city last week and will ride in it when he starts his McKinney mare Rita H. on the circuit this year. The new bike was made by the McMurray Company and is their new special model for 1902. It was sold through the local agents, the Kenney Bicycle Company of 531 Valencia street. It only weighs 34 pounds, and is very handsome, being painted in pure white enamel with gilt trimmings.

Mart Demarest, of New York, trainer and driver, last Friday purchased from Daniel Mahaney, Superintendent of the horse department at Maplewood Farm, owned by Frank Jones, Portsmouth, the trotting mare Eleata for James Hanley, of Providence, R. I. The price paid for Eleata is private. Mr. Mahaney was offered $25,000 for her last season by Mark Hanna's son Eleata will probably make her first start at Readville at the Breeders meeting in September in the 2:07 class for the stake of $20,000. She was the winner of the M. & M. Stake, also the Charter Oak Stake last season, closing the season with a record of 2:08½.

Mr. Dewitt B. Lowe, formerly of Salt Lake, Utah, but recently of Nome, Alaska, has purchased from Mr. S. Elmore, of Astoria, the mare Antella by Altamont; also a two year old colt by McKinney. The mare and colt have been at Mr. A. G. Gurnett's Sulphur Spring Farm for some time. Mr. Lowe was interested in horses when residing at Salt Lake and since his return from Nome to California has renewed his interest in the American trotter.

Walter Palmer, who brought out and raced the fast pacer Little Boy 2:01½, met with a very serious accident at Ottawa, Illinois, on the 22d of July. He was driving Dot Code in the 2:24 trot, and when finishing third in a field of ten, the horse fell within a hundred feet of the wire. Palmer was thrown clear over the horse and struck on his head and shoulders. Among other severe injuries he received a fracture of the left leg and his head was very badly bruised. The horse did not wear hopples.

The British transport service, which for so many months conducted an active trade at Port Chalmette, near New Orleans, is to reopen its camp there for the shipment of horses, mules and cattle to South Africa. It is found that the American animals are the hardest for the veldt work, and that the British Government will need a great number, under its agreement to restock the farms of the burghers who suffered in the recent war. Officers are now on the way, and the camp will be reopened immediately upon their arrival.

Elderone, the bay gelding which was the most prominent factor against Direct Hal in the Chamber of Commerce Stake race and made the latter step in 2:06½ to win the first heat, was used by his owner, W. A. Simms, of Dayton, O., as a farm horse. In the spring of 1901 he helped to plow a thirty-acre cornfield. It was not known that he had speed until one day, while pulling a market wagon, he became frightened at a train of cars. Simms used the "gad" on him and the horse struck a 30-second clip with the heavy wagon. He was put in training last July and improved so rapidly that he was entered as a sure thing in the C. and C. Elderone cost Mr. Simms $50, and the boy who sold him made $20 on the deal.

John V. Andrews of Red Bluff, Cal., had the misfortune to lose his mare Queen L. last month. He had intended breeding her to McKinney and shipped her from Red Bluff but she contracted pink eye on reaching Oakland and died there in spite of all that could be done for her. She was the dam of Prince L. 2:29½, that has worked miles in 2:14, and the dam of two others that are very promising trotters. Queen L. was by William L., full brother to Guy Wilkes and sire of the famous Axtell 2:12. Her dam was Antar by Almont 33. Mr. Andrews has purchased from the Fair estate the bay filly Miss Bessie by Gossiper, dam by Anteeo, a full sister to the fast mare Lady Fair, owned by the Meek estate. The price is private but we understand well up in the hundreds.

A letter from Geo. T. Beckers from Portland, Or., states that he has bred 95 mares this year to his good stallion Zombro 2:11, counting the mares bred at Los Angeles and Portland. Mr. Beckers states that he has purchased the game little trotter Tee Dee Cee 2:36 by Zombro from Mr. T. D. Condon. This colt stepped a mile last year with six weeks' work in 2:21½, last half in 1:08, and if he stays sound will beat 2:15 next year. Beckers recently purchased the mare Lady Star 2:27 by Lemont for Mr. L. B. Royce, of Tacoma, Wash., who had her bred to Zombro. She is said to look enough like old Almont 33 to be his daughter instead of his granddaughter. Mr. F. B. Allard, of Louisville, Washington, recently purchased the mare Pedril by Lemont, dam Katie D. by Dead Shot, second dam by Post's Hambletonian, to breed to Zombro.

Twinkle, the mare that paced to a record of 2:06½ in the second heat of the 2:13 class at Cleveland last week, won the fourth and last heat in 2:08½ and beat a field of fifteen fast pacers, is a lineal descendant of Sidney and also of Venus, the dam of those two California sires of speed, Cupid and Sidney Dillon. Twinkle is out of a mare that belongs to the famous Hal family, and her sire is the California bred stallion Mercury 2:21, that was bred by the late G. Valensin at Pleasanton. Mercury's sire was Sidney, and his dam the mare Juno by Buccaneer that also produced Idah 2:30. Juno's dam was Venus, who besides producing Adonis 2:11½, Cupid 2:18 and Lea 2:18½, has also achieved fame through her sons Cupid and Sidney Dillon, the first named of which is the sire of Venus II. 2:11½, Lottie Parks 2:16½ and Psyche 2:16½, while the other has sired Dolly Dillon 2:07, Captivity 2:26½ and the pacer B. S. Dillon that recently worked a mile for Millard Sanders better than 2:10.

Cresceus 2:02½, is to make a record breaking tour this season. His owner, George Ketcham, of Toledo, Ohio, is making extraordinary efforts to produce the two-minute trotter, and is authority for the statement that Cresceus will accomplish the feat this summer. The campaign will not be an extended one, and the champion's list of engagements will be limited to not more than half a dozen. Cresceus' harness and appointments in the past have been regal, but Mr. Ketcham has evolved original ideas which will, he thinks, materially increase the speed of the great trotter. He has ordered the lightest and finest trotting harness ever made. The buckles and other mountings are made of aluminum gold bronze, which will be the lightest material that these goods can be produced of; still they have the strength of steel with the appearance of gold. The saddle of the harness is a perfect oval, and made as smooth as the finest plate glass, and yet its strength is so great that it would hold secure the wildest horse that could be harnessed. The lines are extraordinary in their quality and are made of the finest imported English russet rein leather; they are so soft to the touch that they feel like the finest kid glove. The bridle has a unique rein, which combines the effect of an over and side check rein.

Pleasanton Entries.

The Golden Gate District Fair Association, whose meeting will be held at Pleasanton, opening August 26th and closing August 30th, has filled six harness races, three of which are for trotters and three for pacers. A purse of $500 has been opened for trotters of the 2:18 class, to close August 9th. There will also be two purses for members of the Golden Gate Driving Club of this city and a race for local horses owned in the vicinity of Pleasanton. Two purses of $150 each will be given each day for the runners, entries to close overnight.

The pavilion exhibit promises to be very large and room at the pavilion is already at a premium. The livestock display will also be one of the best ever made in the district, and several herds of full blooded cattle will be shown as well as many high class draft and carriage horses. The entire population of Pleasanton is at work to make the fair a success in every particular and the attendance is sure to be very large as special reduced rates are to be given from all points on the railroad.

Shoeing for Knuckling.

Undoubtedly there is no defect in the gait of the horse more noticeable to the public eye, embarrassing and disgusting to the part of the driver, than the one common among some classes of horses and known as knuckling, referred to by some as hind stumbling, writes a shoer in the Horseshoers' Journal. While the pacer may be prone to speed-cut, cross-fire or grab, knuckling is not in his line of traveling, simply because he is not constructed on those lines, but we find the horse with pasterns of the perpendicular order, accompanied by weakened hocks, assisted by an unbalanced and badly shod hoof, in the very front ranks of the knucklers.

My convictions are that in a case of acute hock weakness (of the knuckling order) too great a stress has been brought to bear upon the extensor tendon by heel elevation, shortening and lowering the toe, thereby impeding the stride and causing the foot to land before it has reached its proper center of gravity. Furthermore, having a tendency of prohibiting the flexor tendon from performing its work in its capacity and as a natural consequence other tendons and ligaments of the hock and foot structure must be brought more or less in sympathy with the former. With the foot and hock structure in this handicapped and unbalanced condition knuckling is one of the defects that must be expected to follow.

In shoeing to relieve knuckling the hoof should be dressed in a manner to reduce the elevation by reducing the heels from either side with the rasp or knife, leaving the foot if possible in a level condition. The shoe to be adjusted should be made of equal weight and thickness from toe to heel, the weight to be governed by the service required. With side calks of equal length extending forward from end of branches on either side from 1½ to 2½ inches, as the case may demand, with the toe calk placed in a position that will give an equal distance from the front ends of the side calks to the two corresponding ends of the calk, the three calks should be of equal height, providing the necessary toe elevation can be obtained in the dressing of the hoof. If not, the same effect will be realized by reducing the height of the two side calks in proportion. The shoe should be fitted prominent at the toe, with the branches extending well back of the heels.

I have obtained better results from the above method of shoeing for knuckling than any other, as it leaves the foot in a position that has a tendency to render the ends of the pastern bones, that form the hock joint, into a more natural position, and the various tendons in unison to perform their function in a fashion that moves the foot with the regularity of nature's original intention.

Is the Old System Doomed?

There is a belief among the followers of the Grand Circuit that this year will practically seal the fate of the old style three in five heat system. No one subject was more fully discussed during the initial meeting of the circuit and the popularity of the two in three system as compared with the other was freely commented on. The public and horsemen have both declared in favor of the shorter program. The one thing necessary to make the shorter system of racing a success is for all the circuit managers to agree upon a uniform system of racing. Trainers do not like to prepare their horses for a race of five, six or seven heats one week and on the next race on the shorter plan, and take a chance of meeting horses prepared especially for the shorter races. Probably the greatest victory for the two in three plan would be to have the futurities raced on this system. Once trainers get into the habit of preparing for this style of races they would not go back. One stumbling block to the shorter system of racing has been the manager, who has been afraid that the volume of money bet would be less. There can be no better authority on this question than the privilege men, and they unanimously declare that more money is bet on the shorter races—the speculators bet heavier and with more confidence when they know the drivers will not be able to lay up three or four heats and kill the good horses. Discussions as to the shortening of races are generally confined to the winter months and forgotten once the bell taps, but this summer there are many owners of horses and track managers carefully observing and discussing the racing system. Owners are getting tired of having good horses spoiled by the strenuous preparation needed for a five or seven-heat race, and are commencing to investigate the merits of shorter races. Of course when they do this there is but one result—they are converted to the shorter system. And soon it will not be three in five with a few two in three, but two in three with a few dashes—and after that, what?—Chicago Horseman.

Fligo Was by Prompter.

STOCKTON (Cal.), July 28, 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—In the last "BREEDER" a Visalia man asks if Prompter sired a horse called Fligo. Yes; Fligo was bred by the late Frank P. Lowell, and was by Prompter, from Old Spec by Speculation. Yours,

L. B. HICKS.

We have second hand speed carts and sulkies at right prices. Call in time—they are bargains. Sulkies converted on short notice. Sulky and cart wheels made to order. Coast agents for McMurray. Large stock on hand. Kenney Manufacturing Co., 531 Valencia street.

News From the North.

[North Pacific Rural Spirit.]

Bonner N. B. 2:12½ in a workout over a slow track, the middle half in 1:02.

A. M. King, of Portland, has bought the pacing gelding Col. Ott and will use him on the road.

Capt. Smith left last week with his horses, Mary L. and Buford, for Seattle, where he will get them accustomed to the sea air.

E. M. Lazarus has bought and shipped from California the three year old runner Bob Crawford by Oscar, son of Wildidle, out of Miss Hooker by Joe Hooker.

D. B. Stewart, of Spokane, left for his home last week, taking with him some mares that were mated with Zombro. Alteno was in the bunch. She will not be raced this year unless she gets over her lameness.

Little Myrtha Whips is a great favorite with everyone who sees her perform. She is one of the sweetest gaited animals on the Irvington track, and Senator Helman is just beginning to move her up. She worked a couple of heats all alone (except the Senator went along to keep her company) in 2:19 and 2:18.

George Misner, acting as agent, bought last week from John Pender for $2000 the promising trotting fillies Bessie Jones and Lady Jones, two and three years old respectively, sired by Capt. Jones. Bessie's dam is Ada Rock (dam of Atlas 2:15½) by Rockwood. Lady Jones is out of a mare by Director. These fillies are well entered throughout the circuit and are the most promising trotters, age considered, in this country. Bessie Jones is just broken and can trot quarters in 40 seconds, while Lady Jones steps the distance in 32 seconds very handily. Besides their speed and good way of going, they are both very large and handsome fillies, and the price sold for is a very reasonable one, quality considered.

Last Friday was one of the fast workout days, and all the horses did their work very creditably and there was a lot of speed unbottled. Harry Marvin, Louis Z., Nellie Coover, Prince Tom and Altacora lined up for a fast mile in the third workout heat. Bonner N. B. also started several lengths back. The race was a pretty one from start to finish. Altacora led the procession to the half, when Bonner N. B. let out one of his phenomenal bursts of speed and went to the front, but the little mare passed him before reaching the wire, as he had trotted at a killing gait the first end of the mile. There were several watches on the bunch, and this is the way they finished: Altacora first in 2:16½, Bonner N. B. second in 2:12½, the first half being trotted in 1:05; Prince Tom third in 2:19, Nellie Coover fourth in 2:22, Harry Marvin fifth in 2:24, Louis Z. sixth in 2:25.

Drawing Closer Together.

The present signs all indicate that the controlling spirits in the harness and thoroughbred horse interests are drawing closer together in their mutual welfare. Aside from political plans, to influence more favorable legislation, facts are at hand to substantiate this state. For instance, the Brighton Beach race track, one of the finest racing plants in the world, owned, officered and controlled by patrons of the running turf, is turned over to the harness horse devotees for their annual six days' meeting; and, by the way, these meetings under the present management are doing more to popularize this class of sport with the public who pay money at the gate by introducing shorter races and trying expensive experiments than those of any other association up to the present time. The new race track at Buffalo, N. Y., the improvements of which, it is said, are to be the finest in the country, is promoted by experienced officials in running horse circles, with one exception, this exception being a Chicago capitalist who dearly loves a trotting or pacing race, but whom a running race fails to interest. The use of this plant has been offered to the Buffalo Trotting Association for its annual meeting, and there is no doubt that the city will be a Grand Circuit member in 1902 under the most favorable circumstances. At Kansas City, Mo., the trotting horse enthusiasts have decided to build an up-to-date mile track, with improvements second to none, and the use of this plant will be offered to the thoroughbred horse owners for an annual thirty days' spring meeting. If the Kansas City plans are carried out as outlined by one of the chief promoters, the new track will be of great value to the city as well as profitable to the stockholders. A thirty-day running meeting in the spring, a six-day harness meeting in July, an old fashioned fair in the fall and the Saturday afternoon and holiday matinees of the Kansas City Driving Club ought to make it a busy and popular place.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

THE MAIN CIRCUIT of district fair and race meetings in California will open at Vallejo on Monday, August 11th, one week from Monday next. The Ventura meeting opens on the 6th, and while it has a most excellent program of racing, the horses competing are nearly all from the southern part of the State and few trained on the tracks in this vicinity will be seen there. At Vallejo, however, there will be a gathering from all sections and there is great interest manifested already as to the probable outcome of several of the important events. In the 2:30 trot a field of eleven green horses have been named, several of which are almost unknown quantities to the talent. The McKinney horses, Ben Liebes and Coronado, entered in this race have shown well in their work at San Jose, as has the Chas. Derby mare Babiola. The big stallion Donnybrook by Don L., a full brother to Joe Shelby, is owned in Vallejo and is credited with miles around 2:20, while the Gossiper mare Lady Fair owned by the Meek estate is said to have shown "inside-the-money" speed. There are big fields in the 2:25 and 2:20 pacing events and there will be a big struggle in both for first money. The 2:24 and 2:19 trotting purses are nomination events, and horses were to be named yesterday. It is probable that every nominator will name a horse and if so there will be twelve starters in one race and ten in the other. From present appearances the racing at Vallejo should be first-class. There are several local races on the week's program all of which are exciting much interest and two events for members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club. There will be two or more running events each day, entries to close over-night. Altogether an excellent week's sport will be furnished at Vallejo during the week beginning August 11th.

MARYSVILLE'S FAIR will be worth attending this year and the excellent program of harness races advertised should draw a large number of entries. The purses compare very favorably with those offered by larger associations, there being five of $500 each, three of $400 each and several at smaller amounts for district horses. Marysville has a good track and it is but a short haul from there to Woodland, where the next meeting on the circuit is held. Every accommodation will be afforded the horsemen who enter at Marysville, which is a good race town and a good betting town. The entrants are five per cent and the purses are divided into four moneys.

WESTCHESTER RACING ASSOCIATION, announces a long list of rich stakes with added money for its autumn meeting this year and for the spring meetings of 1903, 1904 and 1905. The added money has been materially increased in these stakes not only for the autumn events but for 1904 and 1905, the added money for the Belmont of 1905 having been raised to $10,000 which will make it a very rich stake. Owners should look carefully over this list of stakes and note the date of closing, August 15th, which falls on Friday. Entry blanks can be had at this office and all entries should be addressed to H. G. Crickmore, Clerk of the Course, 571 Fifth Avenue, New York.

RALPH TOZER, of this city, who is filling the position of secretary of the Butte, Montana, meeting, with credit to himself and satisfaction to everybody concerned, is spoken of as follows by the Butte Inter-Mountain of last Saturday: "Ralph Tozer, the present secretary of the Butte meeting, is certainly one of the most popular and well-liked men of the present day among horsemen and the racing contingent. Mr. Tozer is a bright and unassuming gentleman and his good work in the handicaps and in general here is to be highly complimented upon. Mr. Tozer is also credited with being the best posted man of pedigree on the Western turf."

SIX BIG PURSES advertised by the California State Agricultural Society close to-day as follows: $1200 for 2:30 trotters, $1000 for 2:20 trotters, $1000 for 2:15 trotters, $1200 for 2:25 pacers, $1000 for 2:18 pacers and $1000 for 2:13 pacers. There is also a purse of $500 for three year old pacers and a special race for amateurs for trophies of the value of $1000. All these purses should have a big entry list, as they are worth racing for. Nominations are to be made to-day, and horses need not be named until September 1st, on which date they must be eligible.

GOVERNOR GAGE has appointed Mr. H. T. Fogarty as a director of Kern County Agricultural District No. 15, vice S. N. Reed, deceased. Mr. Fogarty is one of the active, progressive citizens of Kern county and will make a valuable acquisition to the board of directors of this association, which will give a fair and race meeting during the second week in October, this year, that promises to be one of the best ever held in that part of the State.

THE TUOLUMNE COUNTY Trotting Association will hold a fair and race meeting this year at Sonoma. $3000 will be offered in purses and the association has become a member of the National Trotting Association. The officers are T. F. McGovern, President; N. F. Pickle, Vice-President; J. A. West, Treasurer, and E. J. Landers, Secretary. The dates chosen for the meeting are October 2, 3 and 4, 1902.

More Horses for Japan.

An important deal in trotting bred horses was made at East Aurora last week, when the Village Farm sold twelve head of youngsters to representatives of the Japanese Government to be shipped to that far-off country. This is the second purchase that country has made from the Hamlins, buying fifteen head some eight months ago. The horses are used for breeding purposes in an endeavor to improve the equine class in that country. The government representatives were Messrs. Y. Kishmolotz, S. Sato and J. Nishimbula, and they made painstaking selections, appearing to know considerable about horses, but being also guided by the opinions of Acting Superintendent Fisher and Assistant French of the Village Farm. The dozen head they bought were: Noel, four year old stallion by Perfectus-Snowdrop; Alice Neilson, two year old mare by King Lancelot-Ormaid; The Damsel, five year old mare by Athanio-June Bug; Sunbeam, three year old filly by Dare Devil-Rhoda Chimes; Purity, three year old filly by Perfectus-Aurelia; Lena Chimes, three year old filly by Chimes-Lena King; The Ambassador, two year old colt by The Beau Ideal-Geraldine; The Lancer, two year old colt by King Lancelot-Ormaid; Carnival, yearling colt by Rex Americus-Bright Eyes; King Ali, yearling colt by Rex Americus-Rhoda Chimes; Prince Tudor, yearling colt by Rex Americus-Lavender; The Guard, yearling colt by Rex Americus-Chiming Bells. The price paid for the bunch could not be learned, but it is surely a big figure. Secretary W. R. Jones said that the horses would be shipped to Japan by way of San Francisco, leaving soon.

Reports of promising horses going wrong, either from sickness, lameness or some other cause, are coming thick and fast. Those in the hands of the best of trainers and cared for by the most faithful of grooms are often among the unfortunate ones.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

Answers to Correspondents.

W. G. D., San Jose—In the next issue of your paper will you kindly give (1) the breeding of Kingward 12562 and (2) of Kentucky Prince Jr. 3139? Also (3) the registered number of Petigru 2:24 (reduced this year to 2:19) and (4) the breeding of Lemonade 2:27.

Answer—1. Kingward 12562 is by Onward 1411, dam Dunlora, dam of Kingward 2:25 and W. J. Lewis 2:30, by King Rene 1278; second dam Alma, dam of King of Belair 2:24 and Olmedo Wilkes 2:26, by Almont 33; third dam Itaska by imp. Hooton, fourth dam Bet Travers by John Richards, fifth dam Vixen by Vampire, see page 399, Volume II, American Thoroughbred Stud Book.

2. Kentucky Prince Jr. 3139 was sired by Kentucky Prince 2470, dam Patchenie by Mambrino Patchen 58, second dam not traced.

3. Petigru's registered number is 31,055; he is by Kingward, dam Lemonade 2:27, dam of Bessie Wilton 2:09, Lady Wilton 2:11, Lemoree 2:18 and Petigru 2:19.

4. Lemonade 2:27, dam of four with records below 2:20 as above, is by Kentucky Prince Jr. 3139, dam Susie Melbourne (dam of Satisfaction 2:22 and Lemonade 2:27) by Melbourne Jr., son of imp. The Knight of St. George; second dam Kate, dam of Talavera 2:30 (sire of McVera 2:10 and four others) by Alhoit, son of Abdallah 15; third dam by Brignoli 77, fourth dam by Pilot Jr. 12, fifth dam by Ole Bull, son of Old Pilot.

JOE DYSON, Ventura, Cal.—Commuter is a black horse, foaled 1898. He is by Tremont, dam West Anna by Duke of Kent, second dam Mary Bet Chaney by Concord, third dam Spiteful by Edgecomb, fourth dam Fannie Moore by imp. Bonnie Scotland, fifth dam Adele by imp. Albion, etc. He won one race as a two year old and one as a three year old. His two year old win was in Canada. His three year old win was at Butte, Montana, July 31, 1901. The race was at five furlongs, and he beat Limb of the Law, Phil Branson, Maggie K., Scotch Belle, Grace W., Louise Chapman, Christmas Gift and Donna Bella. Commuter carried 107 and the time was 1:04.

S. L. W., Bonanza, Or.—Alpheus 8847, or Alpheus Wilkes, record 2:27, is a bay horse, foaled 1880, by Mambrino Wilkes 6083, dam Rose by Major Mono, son of Pacific; grandam Jenny, a mare taken from Oregon to California, pedigree untraced. Alpheus was bred by Joseph Warren, Linden, California, passed to Irwin Ayers, Oakland, Cal., and thence to other parties. During the season of 1892, he was in the stud at Salinas, in this State, under the charge of William Choat, Agent. We do not know his present owner.

Thos. O'Brien, Bakersfield—There is no record of May Morgan, a brown mare by McKinney, having a record. If she has one it is not reported in the Year Book.

R. M. B., Woodland—Kitty H. is a brown mare foaled 1881, owned by J. W. Clark, of Lexington, Ky., and by King Ernest or imp. Macaroon. She will be found registered on page 503, Vol. VII, American Stud Book.

J. H. N., Pleasanton—Please answer the following question in your query column:

A owns two horses which we will call Bay and Black. Bay was trained for, entered, started and went one heat over an association track in a regular advertised 2:40 class, did not win and was withdrawn. Black was entered and raced in races over association tracks, won heats and got a record. A retires both horses from track and uses them for driving in his buggy in his business, the bay for a year and the black for four years. At a race meeting advertised, National Association rules to govern, a purse is advertised for buggy horses owned in the district—no time limit. A claims he has a right to start either horse in the last named purse for buggy horses. B says no. Which is right in both cases. A at all time resided within the district called for in the buggy race.

Answer—This question cannot be answered unless the advertised conditions of the race are furnished. Every race is governed by the advertised, printed or written conditions, or by the rules of the parent association of which the association giving the meeting is a member. "Buggy horses owned in the district" are supposed to be horses regularly used as such. If horses that have been trained and raced are to be barred, the conditions should so state, otherwise the fact that a horse was once used on the track would not bar him, provided he was eligible under the other conditions of the race.

H. DE B. S., San Francisco—Fred Lowe, registered as St. Clair 656, was sired by the pacing horse St. Clair 16,675, a horse of unknown breeding brought across the plains in 1849. Fred Lowe sired two in the list, and his daughters produced four with standard records. His dam was a mare called Lady Ross, whose pedigree is untraced. We do not know the breeding of Major.

The Abbot to Start for Boston Cup.

Since the first victory of Harry Devereux's stallion, John A. McKerron 2:10, for the Boston Challenge Cup, that race has been more talked about and more interest manifested in it than in any other event ever known in amateur turf history.

But it was after he won the cup the second time that prominent members of other driving clubs in the National League of Driving Clubs began to talk of some horse that could take the measure of Mr. Devereux's stallion in the next race, that interest began to grow widespread.

The fight made by Mr. Devereux before the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association to have McKerron's time declared no record and the action of the Board in twice reversing its verdict, attracted the attention of professional horsemen, and they have, since that time, evinced almost as much interest in the cup race as the amateurs themselves.

The next contest for the trophy will occur the first week in September, and to win it is of far more moment to gentlemen drivers than would be the winning of a $10,000 stake.

The recent formation of the New York Driving Club and its admission to the National League introduced a new and dangerous competitor for the cup. It brought in as eligible candidates for the honor such high class ones as Fred Gerken's The Monk, E. E. Smathers' Lord Derby, Claus Bohling's Kingmond and C. K. G. Billing's candidate, presumably Lucille, although the latter was eligible, as President of the Chicago club, before the New York club was formed.

In case two horses belonging to members of the same club are allowed to start, then both The Monk and Lord Derby can carry the colors of New York, and Mr. Billings enter as a representative of the Chicago club. With such great ones to go after the Cleveland stallion it is no wonder that excitement has been running high in amateur circles and speculation rife as to the result of the contest.

Such universal interest was never before manifested in an amateur race, nor was ever such a class of horses started in such a contest. So, when the news was flashed over the wires that The Monk, Lord Derby and The Abbot were to meet in a wagon race at Cleveland, driven by owners or amateurs, unusual interest was aroused, as the race, outside of the interest such a contest would beget at any time, had a peculiar significance as bearing on the probable outcome of the amateur event of the season for the Boston Cup. Unfortunately, the big special race was prevented by rain.

But right on the heels of that comes the most startling report that has ever stirred amateur circles. It is no more or less than that John J. Scannell's ex-world champion and present champion trotting gelding, The Abbot, will start in the race for the cup.

It is affirmed that the recently organized driving club at Buffalo has been, or will be, admitted to the league, and that Mr. Scannell has become a member of the Buffalo club. It is a well known fact that there is great local pride in The Abbot among Buffalo horsemen, as well as the pride the Hamlins, who bred him, have in him.

Mr. Scannell and A. E. Perrin, of Buffalo, have been seen together very frequently of late, and that, contrary to the usual custom of both gentlemen, who have heretofore taken a deep and active interest in New York amateur driving affairs, neither of them has evinced the slightest interest in the New York club.

Erosmont, the handsome stallion whose picture appears on this page, is owned by a lady who desires to sell or lease him. He is by Eros, the sire of Dione 2:07½ and Wanda 2:14½, dam of The Roman 2:10½, and his dam is the great broodmare Francisca, dam of I Direct 2:12½, Sable Francis 2:15½ and Guycesca 2:26.

Despite labor troubles in Chicago demand for what are called "wagon horses" remains brisk and prices up to $150 are being paid. This is a high figure for a horse that cannot be properly classified in any of the regular marker divisions, and shows how free the demand and high the price for every horse capable of doing a profitable day's work.

It is reported that "an invasion of American horse shows in the autumn is being planned by some English exhibitors, who contemplate banding together and bringing over a big string of harness and saddle horses to compete at American shows." Should this invasion materialize, it will add much to the interest of the horse shows where they compete.

That was pointed out as a significant fact, to put force to the report.

Mr. Perrin, who is one of the most skillful amateur reinsmen, would try to move the universe to drive the horse that would wrest the cup from John A. McKerron, and he will, no doubt, be the man to pull the reins over The Abbot.

For several weeks New York horsemen, who stand high in amateur circles, have known that there was "something in the wind" concerning the Boston Cup race, and this report indicates that there has been more in the wind than even they suspected. They have known that several ambitious amateur drivers have been making all sorts of offers for top notch campaigning horses with a view to competing for the cup, and that several offers are now being quietly considered.

If The Abbot starts in the race he will add a great and an unexpected feature. His professional record of 2:03½ he has almost equaled to wagon, for Ed Geers drove him a workout mile over the Lexington track, timed by a dozen watches in 2:03½. John A. McKerron, present holder of the cup, is working good and strong, according to reports, and has reeled off miles in his work easily in 2:10.

It is predicted by Cleveland horsemen who have seen him recently, that he will be able to go some faster than his mile in 2:06½. The Monk's work at Detroit and Cleveland shows him fit, and while Lord Derby was beaten at Cleveland, his winning of a second heat in 2:07½, the last half of which mile was officially timed in 1:01½, shows that he has all his wonderful speed this year.

Good Racing at Columbus.

The Grand Circuit racing entered its third week Monday and shifted to the Columbus track. There were three races on the card for the first day, but the fields were small and had it not been for a heavy storm which swept over the track shortly before 4 o'clock, the day's program would have been easily completed. Before the storm the track was very fast and every heat winner lowered his mark.

The 2:09 pace, the feature of the opening day, was postponed after Fred S. Wedgewood had taken the first two heats and Captain Sphinx the third. Dan R. and Daphne Dallas sold equal favorites before the race, each bringing $50 in a pool of $125. Dan R. could not catch Wedgewood in the first heat and Daphne Dallas was unable to land the second or third, for both of which she was driven hard. Prince Direct was drawn after the third heat. The 2:18 pace was a gift to Miss Leach, the favorite, at $20 to $25 in a field of three. Summary:

Trotting, 2:30 class, purse $1200—Directum Spier won in two straight heats. Time, 2:14, 2:11½. Darwin, Horace W. and John Patterson also started.

Pacing, 2:09 class, $2000 (unfinished)—Fred S. Wedgewood won the first and second heats in 2:06½ and 2:05½. Captain Sphinx won the third heat in 2:06½. Daphne Dallas, Dan R., Prince Direct and Lon Vaughn also started.

Pacing, 2:18 class, two in three heats, $1200—Miss Leach won two straight heats in 2:13½ and 2:11½. Emma Lou, Josh and Legal Hal also started.

Owing to the condition of the track the races could not be held Tuesday but were postponed until the following day. There were eighteen hard fought heats on Wednesday and the racing was sensational. Dan

R. reeled off three straight heats in the unfinished 2:09 pace and the time made was the fastest ever paced for a six heat race. Summary:

Pacing, 2:09 class, purse $2000 (three heats Monday)—Dan R. won the fourth, fifth and sixth heats in 2:06½, 2:06½ and 2:06½. Fred I. Wedgewood won the first and second heats in 2:06½ and 2:05½. Captain Sphinx won the third heat in 2:06½. Daphne Dallas, Prince Direct and Lou Vaughn also started.

Trotting, 2:12 class, purse $2000—Hawthorne won the fifth, sixth and seventh heats in 2:12½, 2:14½ and 2:15½. Leola won the second and third heats in 2:11½, 2:10½. Dan T. won the fourth heat in 2:12. Border won the first heat in 2:15. Belle Kuseck, Lady Thisbe, Tessie S. and Henry S. also started.

Trotting, 2:23 class, purse $5000—Rhythmic won three straight heats in 2:12½, 2:12½ and 2:13½. Patchen Maid, Lauretta, Alfred Star and The General also started.

Pacing, 2:25 class, purse $1200 (two in three)—Pearl Lester won the second and third heats in 2:13½, 2:14. J. C. T. won the first heat in 2:12½. Dick Wilson, Junius, Orin B. and Belle Marshall also started.

Trotting, 2:19 class, purse $1500 (two in three)—Miss Johnson won the second heat in 2:16½. Ellalee won the first heat in 2:17½. Brigham Bell, Baron Bell, Jack, Jim Fenton, Betsy Rose and Thombuy also started.

It did not take long to finish the 2:19 trot on Thursday as Ellalee won the third heat in 2:15½, giving her the race. She is a bay mare, six years old, bred at Palo Alto Stock Farm. Her sire is Dexter Prince and her dam Extra by Electioneer is a full sister to Expressive 2:12½, and is the dam of Esparto Rex 2:15½.

The summaries of the other races on Thursday are as follows:

Pacing, 2:16 class, purse $2000—Byrl Wilkes won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:12½, 2:10, 2:15. Baron Waltzer won the first heat in 2:10½. Tim Keen also started.

Trotting, 2:17 class, purse $2000—The Roman won three straight heats in 2:10½, 2:10½, 2:12½. Silver Sign and Alice Russell also started.

Pacing, 2:13 class, purse $1500, two in three—Twinkle won two straight heats in 2:09½, 2:08½. Prince Direct, Sylviaone, Dolly Carr, Casonda, Joe Lisco, Flash S., Flossie F. and Game Cock also started.

Pacing, 2:07 class, purse $1200, two in three heats—Fanny Dillard won the first and third heats in 2:05½, 2:08½. Major Muscovite won the second heat in 2:08½. The Bishop and George also started.

Another Ella Madison.

An item has appeared in several Eastern papers, and was copied into the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, to the effect that the mare Ella Madison was recently sold by Capt. B. H. Tuthill, of New York, to Austrian parties.

Geo. T. Beckers, who is now in Portland, writes us that Ella Madison 2:12½ is dead, having met with an accident two years ago at Los Angeles, being injured so that she had to be shot. This is correct and we find on investigation that the mare sold to the Austrian parties was Ella Madison 2:21½ by Madison 8376. She was bred by H. J. Miller, of Goshen, New York. The California bred Ella Madison was by James Madison and bred by Mr. M. A. Murphy, formerly of San Bernardino, but now of San Francisco. At the time of her death she was owned by Fred Ward and was running in the centre field of the Los Angeles track. Mr. Ward went out to catch her and she ran and tried to jump the fence, but got snagged on a board and one of her hind legs was nearly cut off at the stifle, necessitating her being shot.

Opening of the Deer and Dove Shooting Season. Changes in the Game Law.

The exodus this week of sportsmen for the deer coverts and to the grain fields and willow bordered water holes frequented by the swift and erratic winged dove is a phenomenal one. Bucks are plentiful in many sections and the birds are not by any means scarce this year. In most counties the provisions of the state law will govern shooters, the changes made by several county governments in these respects are noted below.

The deer hunting grounds easiest to reach from this city and where for seasons past many lordly bucks have been shot in a single day's hunt is undoubtedly the hills and canyons of Marin and Sonoma counties. In the former county much good hunting territory has been leased by various gun clubs. The Point Reyes Sportsman's Club, the Country Club and the Tamalpais Gun Club each have splendid deer shooting territory within sight of this city. In Sonoma county the Miramonte Club control the shooting privileges over some good ground in the hills back of Burdells. In both counties, however, there is plenty of open territory which will be thoroughly hunted over by various parties. Success for the independent woodsman, however, hinges largely upon a knowledge of the particular section hunted over. In both counties many good deer ranges are posted, permission from the owners being necessary for one to go over the land in search of bucks.

A noticeable fact connected with this season's foray on the venison packers, is that about nine out of ten sportsmen interviewed prior to the opening day have been extremely reticent or decidedly evasive in vouchsafing any information as to the particular section they proposed to visit in search of a buck. This precaution is a reasonable one, many huntsmen will treat themselves to but one deer hunt this year. For this exhilarating and exciting outing, preparations were begun weeks ago. By dint of inquiry and prospecting trips, knowledge of available deer country has been acquired and a trip arranged having in view an arrival upon the selected ground by daylight on the opening day. Other hunters have gone afar in parties, starting several days prior to the 1st inst. and with the intention of remaining out for a week or more. As a rule still hunting country is not much in evidence, the deer of the coast foothills finding refuge in thick cover from which it is necessary to have the aid of dogs in starting them. Most hunters find, in this kind of hunting, that a horse is almost indispensable in taking them from point to point during a hunt.

The State law provides for an open season on male deer commencing on August 1st and closing on October 1st. The individual annual bag limit is three male deer. It is illegal to kill either does or fawns, antelopes, elk or mountain sheep in this State. Traffic in deer hides and venison is prohibited also. Venison shipped by hunters must be properly tagged, giving the names of consignor and consignee. A deer hide, from which the evidence of sex has been removed will subject the possessor to arrest and prosecution.

The law protecting does and fawns has been, we are pleased to note, generally observed. This immunity has tended to make does in some sections comparatively tame. A case in point occurred recently in Marin county. Mr. John K. Orr and a friend were passing over a road on the Shafter property in Marin county one day recently. Just before coming to an abrupt turn in their path, Mr. Orr saw his Setter come suddenly to a staunch point. Proceeding on cautiously, to the astonishment of both pedestrians they saw a doe not more than fifteen or twenty yards away, standing in the middle of the road and regarding the dog quietly and without the least showing of fear. The doe, on the appearance of both observers, turned her glance, without evincing a particle of emotion, to the newcomers on the scene, and after apparently satisfying her curiosity slowly turned and leisurely trotted up an adjoining slope. Further on another evidence of the tameness of the deer in some sections of Marin county was noted. In passing along the road by a grain field, three deer, a buck and two does were observed playing and cavorting about in the shade of a large tree growing in the middle of the field. When the trio of four footed woodland roysterers saw they were observed by their arch enemy, man, they all took a good, long look at the intruders before they turned tail and without apparently hurrying, ambled across the stubble and disappeared in a thicket.

The open season on doves began yesterday and will prevail until February 1st next year. The daily individual bag is limited to 50 birds.

The shipping of doves is subject to the same regulations as other game is—the proper tagging and in such manner as to afford open inspection.

Many sections where doves were reported to be in plentiful numbers, one and two weeks ago, will probably be found vacated by the birds during the first days of the open season. This is accounted for, partly, because the birds have been shot at and harried away. Many shooters have been erroneously under the impression that the season commenced either on July 1st or 15th and again, we are sorry to say, the observance of the close season has not been practiced by some unscrupulous shooters.

So far as can be ascertained, from returns received, there have been but few changes from the provisions of the State law made by county Boards of Supervisors that will be operative this year. There are a number of county ordinances on the records which are now invalid for the reason that they were in conflict, in part or altogether, with the game law which is now in force.

Boards of Supervisors in their respective counties have jurisdiction and power to provide by ordinances, not in conflict with the general laws of the State, for the protection of fish and game, and may shorten the season for the taking and killing of fish and game within the dates fixed by the general State law, but cannot lengthen the same.

While this article deals with deer and doves particularly it may not be out of place to give an epitome of the law pertaining to the taking of various game and fish.

The open season for shooting, as fixed by the State law is as follows:

Quail, Partridge, Grouse, Sage Hen, Wild Duck, Rail, Curlew, Ibis or Plover... Oct. 1st to Feb. 1st

Advices received from the county clerks of the following counties are that there have been no changes made and that the State game and fish laws prevail: Calaveras, Colusa, Contra Costa, Lake, Merced, Monterey, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, San Benito, San Joaquin, Solano, Sonoma, Shasta and Siskiyou.

In the following counties ordinances have been adopted which shorten the season, also place a limit on the taking of fish and govern miscellaneous matters germane to protection:

ALAMEDA—Quail, Nov. 1 to Feb. 1.
MARIN—Deer, Aug. 1 to Sept. 15. Quail, Oct. 15 to Jan. 15. Shooting on county roads and in cemeteries prohibited.

MONTEREY—Sea gulls and blue cranes, killing of prohibited. Use of guns of larger calibre than 10 gauge prohibited.

SANTA CLARA—Trout, individual limit per day, 50 fish.

SAN MATEO—Quail, Nov. 1 to Dec. 1. Rail, Oct. 15 to Nov. 15. Shooting from boats at high tide prohibited.

SANTA CRUZ—Tree squirrels can not be shot or taken at any time. Trout, individual limit per day, 50 fish. Trout of less than half a pound in weight can not be bought or sold. Black bass, close season until Jan. 1, 1907. The use of a seine, gaff, spear, or a fish hook larger than No. 3, to catch any kind of fish in any lake, lagoon or stream in the county is prohibited. Where fish are taken with a hook of legal size, the use of a gaff having a handle of two feet in length is permitted. Feathered game can be hunted and taken in the county in accordance with the provisions of the State law. The use of plows or cultivators in digging clams is prohibited.

The county ordinance also prohibits the taking and killing of any kind of bird or song birds—those enumerated by the State law excepted—and the destruction of their nests is prohibited. The birds which do not come within the protection of this law are hawks, owls, bluejays, shrikes or butcher birds, English sparrows and house finches or linnets.

Sportsmen who keep posted on desirable shooting country will be enabled this season to get into comparatively new and very excellent deer hunting territory by making Willits a base for their objective point. The recent extension of the California Northwestern Railway to Willits will now enable one conveniently to get very close to a good large game section. Mendocino county via the railroad to Ukiah also offers first class opportunities for deer hunting. Deer are reported to be plentiful in Humboldt, Trinity and Mendocino counties.

For a short period prior to the opening day of the season an effort was made by the Bureau of Information of the Southern Pacific Company to ascertain the conditions in regard to possible deer and dove hunting at various points. Returns from many sections have been turned in as follows:

BAKERSFIELD—Deer can be found within twenty-five miles of this station, in the foothills, although they are not many left. Dove shooting grounds will be good within a few hours' drive of the station, being easily accessible.

BOULDER CREEK—Situated in the heart of Santa Cruz mountains and within a few miles of the Big Basin. The deer hunting is considered the best that can be found within so short a distance of this city.

CASMALIA—There is no deer shooting near the station, but doves are quite plentiful and can be found within a mile of the station and all through this section.

CHATSWORTH PARK—There will be plenty of good dove shooting this year near here. There are not many deer in this locality.

COTTAGE GROVE, OR.—No dove hunting in this vicinity, but good deer hunting can be had within fifteen miles of here. By taking pack horses and going back farther better hunting can be enjoyed. This also includes bear hunting, some large ones have been killed recently.

COYOTE, CAL.—The good hunting grounds here are owned by private parties and it is necessary for outsiders to get permits to go over the grounds. Vic. Poncellet's Mountain Home is, it has been claimed, a good place for deer and can be hunted by guests.

DUNNIGAN—There will be good dove shooting two or three miles out from this station. At M. T. Emmert's place, five miles out, dove shooting is always exceptionally good. No deer shooting at this altitude.

DURHAM—No deer shooting in vicinity of this station. Dove shooting will be good. Hunting grounds about four miles from town.

EXETER—Doves are plentiful in this vicinity, close to town and in the Yokohl valley, a point about eight miles distant. Dove shooting to be had in the hills back of here from fifteen to twenty-five miles distant.

FELTON—There is good hunting east of here, about two to six miles, as well as on Ben Lomond mountain, about two miles west of here. Doves are not plentiful.

FIREBAUGH—No deer shooting in this vicinity. Plenty of doves along the San Joaquin river. Best shooting four or five miles up or down the river, which is a quarter of a mile from the depot.

GLENDAL—Deer hunting only fairly good here. Country is brushy and game shy. There is good deer hunting at the head of Cow Creek, twenty-five miles from here.

GLEN ELLEN—Doves are plentiful and there are some deer in the mountains a distance from the station.

LATHROP—Dove shooting will be fair within a radius of two or three miles of this station.

LELAND, OR.—Plenty of deer within a mile of this place. Fair hotel accommodations. Parties can be secured to show hunters to the best grounds.

LINCOLN, CAL.—Good dove shooting can be had from one to five miles from this station.

LOS GATOS—There are many doves in the hills near here. Deer can be found within a few miles of town on the Loma Prieta range.

MADRONE—Deer and dove shooting will be good this season. Doves can be found anywhere in the vicinity of this station. For deer the Mountain Home on the Llagas creek, ten miles distant, or Uvas creek, nine miles distant, or Pine Ridge, ten miles distant, are the best places.

MAXWELL—Good dove shooting in the grape vine country near Stites, fifteen miles distance. Good deer hunting at Sheet Iron Mountain, Bloody Rock and Snow Mountain, all in the vicinity of Stony Ford. This country has not been hunted over much and is doubtless as good a place as sportsmen can find within a short distance of San Francisco.

MIDDLE CREEK—There are a few doves in this vicinity. Deer are plentiful in a half-day's drive.

MINUTURN—Doves are plentiful here.

OKAVILLE—Good dove shooting can be had by going five miles into the mountains on either side of the valley. Deer are not plentiful, but a few are bagged every season.

OCEANO—There is an abundance of doves in this vicinity, and deer can be found within a distance of fifteen miles.

PENRYN—Fair dove shooting in this vicinity.

RED BLUFF—The Coast Range, from sixty to a hundred miles west of here, is a most favorable section for deer and large game. Doves are plentiful.

SALINAS—Both doves and deer are scarce this season. There are deer in the foothills fifteen to twenty-five miles distant.

SANGER—Good dove shooting close around town. Some deer shooting back in the mountains, but it is a hard and expensive trip.

SANTA PAULA—Doves are plentiful. Deer shooting will be good, about five to ten miles from the station, but the country is rough.

SHERIDAN—There are many doves here. They can be found almost anywhere in the vicinity of the station.

SHINGLE SPRINGS—Doves are plentiful this season within a radius of from three to seven miles of the station. Many ranchers prohibit shooting on their lands.

SISSON—There is no dove shooting in this locality, but all indications point to excellent deer shooting in this section this season. Signs are more numerous than for years past; plenty of "sign" and a number of deer have been seen within a mile of town. Good deer ground can be found within five miles of Sisson. The south and west sides of Shasta are the best grounds close at hand. On the west there is good deer hunting around Castle lake, distance nine miles. The Game Association has raised $100 and applied it to putting the road in order, and it is now possible to drive the entire distance, which can be made in two hours easily.

SUMMIT—No doves in this vicinity. Some deer can be found at Soda Springs on the American river, about twelve miles from here.

TALENT, OR.—Fair deer hunting grounds can be reached within a distance of twelve miles from this station.

TEHAMA—The nearest locality for deer shooting is thirty miles distant in the mountains. Doves may be found in large numbers along the river banks a little later in the season.

TEMPLETON—Deer are not plentiful in the immediate vicinity, but some can be found in the hills from ten to fifteen miles distant from here. Good dove shooting near here.

TOWLE—The hunting in this vicinity will be good this year. The hunting grounds are about a mile from this station.

WALNUT CREEK—Dove shooting will be good this season and can be found outside the town limits.

WATSONVILLE—There will be good dove shooting in this vicinity, especially in the hills adjoining Vega and in and around Aromas Station. These places are distant about ten miles.

WOODVILLE—Plenty of deer and grouse shooting eight to ten miles from this station.

YOLO—No deer hunting in this vicinity, but good dove shooting can be had along Cache creek, distant a half mile from the station. By getting off the train at Elvaton a person is right at the hunting grounds.

YUBA CITY—Good dove shooting can be had within a half mile from the depot.

Later advices this week give the following and further information concerning other localities:

RIDDLE, OR.—Dove shooting in this vicinity fair, but the birds are not very plentiful. Hunting grounds can be found within a quarter of a mile from the depot. The deer hunting is excellent this season and no end to them in the hills very close to town. The best grounds, however, are from two to ten miles distant. Teams and pack horses can be had at Hotel Riddle.

DUTCH FLAT, CAL.—Local sportsmen say it looks like a good season for deer. The hunting grounds are from six to ten miles distant from the station and all the hunters usually go by team from here and make a day of it by hunting and fishing, the fishing being good at present. Doves are somewhat scarce thus far.

EUGENE, OR.—From interviews with reliable sportsmen, we find that prospects for deer this season are better than they have been for several years. For hunting deer the last part of August or the first of September will be the best. The best hunting grounds are about fifty miles distant up the Willamette river. For the month of October the best hunting grounds for hunting is fifty miles up the McKenzie river. There are no doves in this vicinity, but there are a good number of pheasants which can be found in any direction.

ANTIOCH, CAL.—Doves are quite plentiful in this vicinity; the hunting grounds are about two miles from the station.

JUNCTION CITY, OR.—The nearest deer hunting is about twenty miles west of this station and the best place is in the Lake creek country. The lake is about three miles long and two miles wide; as there are no boarding houses or hotels a person going would have to go by private conveyance and be prepared to camp out. Deer are plentiful there; also fishing is good and there are good camping places. Private conveyances can be secured here for the trip for about $5.

MARYSVILLE—Doves are quite plentiful and can be found most anywhere within a distance of about three to twelve miles of the station.

VOLTA—Fair dove shooting may be had at a distance from two to ten miles from this station. Saddle horses and teams with guide or driver can be had here; also, hotel accommodations. The deer hunting grounds are distant from ten to fifteen miles from this station.

EMIGRANT GAP—The deer hunting grounds are distant from three to ten miles from this station, and plenty of grouse and quail in season. No dove shooting, but good trout fishing in Bear river—distant three miles, Yuba river four miles and Lake Spalding six miles from station.

VENTURA, CAL.—There is every promise of most excellent dove shooting and a good shot should be able to bag the limit of fifty in a day's shooting. The hunting grounds are about five miles north of Ventura and continue to Nordhoff, sixteen miles distant from Ventura. Headquarters should be made at Ventura, from where the trip and return can be readily made in a day by livery rig. Deer signs are good and it is said that deer are plentiful in the hills surrounding Nordhoff, where headquarters also can be made.

PIRU, CAL.—Think the dove, quail and cottontail shooting will be pretty fair in the immediate vicinity. That is, parties could probably come up one day and return the next and get a pretty good bag of game. The mountain hunting ground is about ten to fifteen miles distant. Mr. W. P. Wittaker, who is government forest ranger, has a ranch about ten miles from here in what is called the "Devil's Potrero," which is a headquarters for hunting and camping parties. Understand the camping grounds are excellent at this place and good trout fishing near by. From this place parties can start in the morning and go further up in the mountains where they say bear, deer, mountain lion and wildcats and any quantity of small game can be found. The trout fishing is said to be exceptionally good this season. Mr. Wittaker will meet parties going out to camp at the depot. There is no stage.

PHENIX, OR.—This place being situated in a small valley, twenty-five by thirty miles in extent, surrounded by mountains and heavy timber abounds with game. Distance from the station to good hunting from ten to twenty miles.

KING CITY, CAL.—Doves, quail and rabbits can be found in abundance anywhere from one to twenty miles of this station. Deer are scarce, a few may be found along the Nacimiento and San Antonio rivers—six to fifteen miles from here.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.—Doves are very plentiful this year and within easy access of town; almost anywhere in the grain fields. Later on quail promise to be in good numbers and within easy access. Good reports come from the deer county, they can only be found in numbers in the Forest Reserve, about a day's drive from here. Anyone desiring to go can readily find a proper party to take them to the hunting grounds from here.

CHICO, CAL.—Doves are very plentiful from one to five miles from town. Deer can be found from five to ten miles away. The roads this year are exceptionally good.

MORGAN HILL, CAL.—Dove hunting can be had anywhere within three miles of this station, all hunters, however, must secure a special permit from land owners.

WALLACE, CAL.—Doves and rabbits are plentiful, deer can be hunted about seven miles from the station. The stage will take hunters to the deer country daily. Quail will also be plentiful here this season.

Sportsmen's Annual Dove Stews.

The time honored function among California sportsmen known as a "dove stew" will be the attraction for the annual gathering of good fellows at Indian Springs, near Grass Valley, to-day. This affair will be under the auspices of the Grass Valley Sportsmen's Club and will be similar in character to the meetings held annually since 1873.

During yesterday and this morning a number of sportsmen devoted themselves to the task of securing doves and rabbits for the camp kettles. To-day the cooks will serve the "stew," and also other viands, liquid as well as solid, to a company of possibly two hundred and fifty gentlemen assembled together in good fellowship and for the enjoyment of many things known to and appreciated by the craft.

Emulating the good example of the Nevada county and other sportsmen of that section of the state, a similar meeting will take place to-morrow in Sacramento county under the auspices of the Del Paso Outing Club and the local gun clubs. The place selected for the sportsmen's convention is on the grounds of the Del Paso Club.

Judge Hughes will officiate as chairman. J. Frank Brown is the secretary. Louis Faure will supervise the camp kettles, George Wittenbrock has been deputized to provide liquid refreshments and L. S. Upson's duties require him to look after the banquet tables and their proper garnishment. Frank Newbert is chairman of the invitation committee.

The doves and other small game will be provided by the various sportsmen attending, who will devote to-day and to-morrow to taking a trip afield with gun and dog. A feature of the picnic will be the fish chowder. For this dish it is proposed to use black bass, catching the fish in a number of well stocked ponds on the Del Paso preserve.

The affair has created much enthusiasm among the Sacramento sportsmen and promises to be a well attended success.

Fly-Fishing in Sierra Lakes.

A picturesque mountain region practically unknown to the angler and sportsman is the section of Sierra county in and around Bassett's. This mountain hostelry is located on the stage road midway between Downieville and Campbell's Hot Springs, about five hours' drive from the latter resort. The easiest way to reach this section is via stage through Sierra valley from Truckee. On July 4th, a party consisting of Frank Lacoste, Henry M. Landsberger, Robert J. Chapman, Louis Titus, Mr. Kyroll, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cummings went into Bassett's from Webber lake, over the Sierraville and Sierra City stage road via Campbell's.

In the vicinity of Bassett's can be found nearly thirty mountain tarns, ranging in size and depth, all fed by mountain springs and melted snow from the Sierras, ideal water for trout. In this enchanted region the angler can find a different and prolific fish-water for each day in a month's vacation.

The party fished Gold Lake, eight miles distant from the mountain inn, on the first day. The catch averaged forty trout to the rod. In this lake the fishermen were enabled to obtain three boats. The resort was reached by team. Upper Sardine lake was prospected on the following day. Here the fish caught were rather small; the big fellows would not take the fly. Those caught were rather thin, evidently having spawned late in the season. It may be here noted that the first snow and ice in this region made its dual appearance about March 1st, March and April constituting a period of winter in that section of the mountains this year. This made the fishing somewhat later this season.

Lower Salmon lake was subsequently visited, Cummings fishing from shore and wearing wading pants; the others were in portable canvas boats which had been packed into the fishing country. Cummings caught seventy-seven trout, averaging a little better than three to the pound. The rest of the anglers also made good catches. The same lake was repeatedly visited, invariably with good results. The boats were afterwards transferred to Upper Salmon lake, 400 yards distant. Three rods accounted for eighty fine trout averaging a half a pound apiece in one day's fishing. The same evening a good catch was made in Lower Salmon lake. These two bodies of water are distant four miles from the hotel and reached by horseback over a rugged mountain trail.

A second trip was made to Gold lake. On this occasion several of the party journeyed by saddle to the Bear lakes, three miles distant, three opalescent mountain lakes each within about 200 yards of the other. From this beautiful spot one of the anglers continued on to Long lake, a body of water about two miles long by three-quarters of a mile wide. The trout here are plentiful, but apparently had spawned late in the season. The catch in the Bear lakes was a good one, the fish running about four to the pound.

An another day, instead of going afar, the party fished the headwaters of the north fork of the Yuba, a bustling, tumbling mountain stream, that runs by within a stone's throw of Bassett's. The catch averaged sixty trout to the rod, running four and five to the pound. The trout were of a darker color than those caught in other adjacent waters. The spots and red fins, etc., made a beautiful color contrast, however. All the fish caught in this region were remarkable for their brilliancy of color. Another catch to be noted was the taking on the fly of ninety-two trout in three hours in Salmon creek, the outlet of Lower Salmon lake.

A trip to Packer lake on Sunday was to a certain extent experimental. This lake contains large numbers of big fish, some of which will undoubtedly scale over ten pounds. These big fellows would not take fly or spoon and were not to be induced by grasshopper bait. The hoppers, however, were little immature fellows. Doubtless the large fish will relish them later on in September, when they are big and fat. Enough small trout were caught in the outlet creek to supply a fish lunch for the picnickers.

The fly-fishing was found to be so excellent that bait or spoon was never thought of. The best flies for this region are a black-bodied royal coachman, the gray hackle with a yellow body and red tail and the royal coachman. Other good lures are the brown hackle with a peacock body and red tail, grizzly king, black ant, professor and hair lug. All these flies should be tied with a jungle cock wing. The hooks were Nos. 8 and 10 splot. The gray hackle is especially good for evening fishing. The royal coachman was usually the dropper fly.

Spoons are good for the big fish. The trout, which take the fly readily, run as high as three to the pound. The best spoon for this section is the Wilson silver and copper wobbler for trolling. For shore casting the Wilson all copper No. 1 spinner is the most effective spoon.

Mr. Cummings had with him some silver and copper spoons, specially made by Al Wilson, of the same pattern as his bass trolling spoon. The sizes were Nos. 2 and 3. These spoons worked well in Webber and White Rock lakes.

On this trip it was noticeable that as the moon approached its full the trout in all the lakes gradually refused to take the fly in the daytime. The fishing was only good between 6 and 8 o'clock at night, and then it was similar to the best fishing that had been indulged in. One evening Mr. Titus landed forty-nine fine trout. The fish seized the fly almost as soon as it landed on the surface of the water. In these waters, as in other places, during the full of the moon the fish evidently feed at night.

The fishing in these lakes and streams will be excellent until about October 1st to 15th, the close of the season depending upon the coming of the ice and the advent of winter.

Three portable Acme canvas boats taken in the trip proved to be most essential and useful. These boats, weighing 240 pounds, were packed by one mule easily. They took up but little space and were easy to handle. The boats proved to be safe, durable and seaworthy. One boat was loaded down, bow and stern, one day with 250 pounds of rocks. With this cargo, and three men in her besides, the frail vessel was propelled back and forth a number of times across the widest part of one of the lakes. The boat was thoroughly tested and found to fill the bill in every respect.

Fish Lines.

A useful implement in a fisherman's kit is a hydro-scope or water glass as it is commonly called. There are very few anglers probably who, as they have waited with more or less patience for the fish to bite, have not longed to get a peep into the water just to see if there were any fish about or not.

Bass especially congregate in certain localities, where the food supply is good, and there are rocks to play around, and as a rule remain there all day long. It is an immense convenience, therefore, for the bass fisherman to be able to look down into the water and survey the prospect.

This simple means of surveying the bottom of a river or lake has been successfully tried. A pail with the bottom knocked out, or a narrow box, open at both ends, or furnished with a stout pane of glass at the end in the water, has been found to answer fairly well.

Those who use the box or pail plan get a good deal of fun of it, and learn unsuspected things sometimes, as when an angler saw a big bass deliberately drive away smaller fish from, and stand guard over his carefully baited hook. Whether it was solicitude for the bass's young companions, or an ordinary case of dog-in-the-manger policy, he could not make out.

On another occasion, he noticed a couple of fine bass remain rapt in contemplation of his bait for some time, and make no sign nor exhibit any feeling, when an ugly big catfish proceeded calmly to swallow the whole dose, hook and all.

When the big cat was drawn toward the surface of the water, these two accompanied it as far as they could, whether in sympathy or in derision, could not be told.

T. C. Burns and S. Clevenger, of Arroyo Grande, recently took charge in San Luis Obispo of 25,000 rainbow trout fry received from the Fish Commissioners. The fish had been consigned to the Arroyo Grande Fish Club and will be used to stock the waters of the Los Berros, Arroyo Grande and Lopez creeks.

There are three well known varieties of eel found in Hawaiian waters. The largest is the big gray fellow, which so closely resembles his cousin, the conger. He is voracious and fearless, and the natives tackle him with eel-like, for when cornered he fights viciously and can easily wound with his powerful jaws, which bristle with needle-like teeth.

The other species are fat, flabby looking customers, with fantastic markings of black and brown and many shades of gray. On an eel of this sort the skin appears to hang loose from the body, and when disturbed the head swells like a puff adder's. These eels seldom attain a length of more than three feet and love to locate in the crevices of a stone breakwater, from which they dart out incessantly and make havoc among any school of small fry which may be innocently disporting themselves within striking distance. These hooded eels have been known to haunt a particular spot for over a year. They are good eating, despite their unprepossessing appearance.

A dispatch from Rosslyn, Wash., dated July 23d, states that the notorious fugitive from justice, Tracey, was seen on the shore of a lake in that vicinity on the date given, where he passed the greater portion of the day fishing. It was not stated whether he caught any fish or not, but it seems reasonable to assume that he can be regarded as a long distance caster.

During the past week fly-fishing on the Truckee has had a set-back. The warm weather caused a melting of the Sierra snows; as a consequence the river was very high and handicapped the anglers to quite an extent.

Salmon fishing in Monterey bay is still in good shape. Thos. F. Flynn recently took eleven fish on a Wilson spoon. Six rods and lines were out from a launch. Flynn used a spoon, the other fishermen used bait; the total catch was twenty-eight fish.

The program for the world's fly-casting tournament, which will take place at Stow lake next week, made its welcome appearance yesterday according to the promise of the committee. Lack of time before going to press prevents an extended notice which an elegant typographical appearance and the contents entitle the angling brochure to.

The record rainbow trout for the Truckee river between Boca and Truckee was taken last Monday from the river by William Leaf, a resident of Boca and a well known guide and river fisherman. The fish was caught at a point about half a mile above the hotel. The coloring and condition of this beauty was unsurpassed and elicited much enthusiastic comment from the anglers and others who saw the trout shortly after it was taken from the water. The fish scaled nine pounds, measuring twenty-eight inches in length and seven inches through from back to belly. The big trout was taken on a spoon late in the afternoon. The fish was sent down to this city by Landlord Dougherty and can be seen at 613 Market street in a show window.

The Pacific Striped Bass Club was organized on Thursday, July 23d. The officers are as follows: F. A. Carroll, President; Al Newman, Vice-President; G. Luttrell, Treasurer, and W. Gray, Secretary. The meeting was held at 816 1/2 Valencia street, twenty-seven salt water anglers were present and signed the roll of membership. The club dues are 50 cents per month, initiation fee $2.50. The club fishing grounds selected are located in San Pablo bay. A list of members is the following: F. A. Carroll, M. O. Feudner, G. E. Donnellan, W. Gray, Al Wilson, G. Luttrell, J. O'Reilly, T. Chaffer, L. Ammet, H. T. Whitley, Geo. Thackray, W. H. Fishbourne, Wm. Campbell, C. M. Bonton, A. Gandreau, J. A. Zeller, F. Claretot, Wm. F. Kratz, J. Christenson, E. J. Mildner, A. P. Matson, S. W. Smith, A. W. Wilson, H. P. Draper, W. Hutchinson, A. Schneider and Leo Carroll.

A. L. Coombs writes from Prattsville, Plumas county, in a vein that can come only from an enthusiastic angler and keen sportsman. He states that there is plenty of good fishing in a good fishing country. The location is credited with many happy conditions which combine more of the elements which go to make up an ideal fishing resort than any place he has yet visited. There are no mosquitoes to worry and torture one, "you can get Webber lake fishing close by: Truckee river, Hat creek, McCloud and Sacramento angling can be duplicated, and at a distance of ten miles the fishing is a reminder of Pelican bay. Good horses and wagons are readily obtainable. All in all, after eliminating the tiring trip of a rather long drive over from Chico, it is the anglers' Mecca in truth. Trout are plentiful and there is enough skill required for their capture to give an agreeable zest to the sport. An attendant pleasure which does not always exist where fish are plentiful and easily taken." Mr. A. B. Finch was at Bunnell's House during the week. Mr. Alex T. Vogelsang has been mentioned as a pleased visitor to the fishing resort which our correspondent is so enraptured with.

A recent trip from Reno to Pyramid lake was made by Rueben Haas, C. W. Coburn and Theodore Rothschild. The party started from Reno in a team, leaving at 9 o'clock in the morning, arriving at Sutcliffe's, a resort on the lake shore, a drive of forty miles, at 4 o'clock. They fished from 4:30 until 7 o'clock. At this first stopping place the fishing was not satisfactory. In the morning a start was made at 4 o'clock for Simons, ten miles distant, which resort the anglers reached at 5:30 o'clock. This point is fifty miles distant from Reno and about the center of the lake shore, Pyramid lake being some sixty miles long by about the same number of miles wide.

A permit from the United States Indian agent is necessary to enable one to enjoy the pleasures of catching the big trout in this body of water. At Sutcliffe's the sportsmen hired Indians and their boats, so that trolling on the lake could be taken advantage of. These Indians understand the ways of the fish and the lake, and are material auxiliaries for a day's fishing at Pyramid lake. The party fished until 8 o'clock in the morning, by which time they were cleaned out of tackle. The spoons used were No. 4 Wilson, copper outside and silver on the inside. Heavy tackle is necessary to land some of the whales frequenting the waters of the lake. During the visit of the anglers an Indian caught a lake trout weighing twenty-two pounds, which was sent in to Mr. Beadle, of Reno. The party were gone three days on the trip, driving 100 miles in that time.

August striped bass fishing promises to be first-class. The record average catch, previously held by W. S. Kittle and W. R. McFarland was beaten last Sunday by Al Wilson and Al Newman. These two anglers started out at 5 A. M. and fished off the west side Belvedere island, on the first of the ebb tide. They caught three bass and lost two, then hooked two at once which were followed by a fish weighing nineteen and one-half pounds. Seven fish caught scaled eighty-three and a half pounds, an average of nearly twelve pounds. Another boat containing Jacob Christianson and Mr. Draper accounted for eighteen bass, the largest scaling twelve pounds. "Parson" Jackson and Al Newman are now tie for high hook on bass in Raccoon straits. The anglers did not get all their fish at one point, they crossed over to Angel island and caught some of their fish near Stewart's point and at the fog bell.

On Thursday Wilson took three fish weighing twenty-seven pounds just off the Corinthian club house at Tiburon. The largest weighed thirteen and a half pounds.

W. W. Lowry and J. A. Pariser landed a twenty-one pounder from Lake Merritt this week. The fish was weighed by the "Parson."

The No. 6 Wilson spoon seems to work much better than a No. 5. Bass have been taken on this spoon that were but little larger than the spoon.

AT THE TRAPS.

The Golden Gate Gun Club monthly live bird shoot at Ingleside started with an entry of fourteen shooters last Sunday. The weather was pleasant for the work in the forenoon but turned rather disagreeable later on. The two high scores up to date are Otto Feudner and C. C. Nauman, each having lost three birds so far this season. Feudner lost his first bird Sunday in rather an awkward way. He dropped an incomer, which he ought to have got easier, close to the dead line. In retrieving he tripped, the bird getting over the line. A claim was made for "dead bird" but disallowed by the referee after some little time in consideration. "Slade" and Nauman scored the only straights in the club race and divided first money. The shooters who scored 14 birds each divided second money. Messrs. Blemer and Smith shot as guests in this race. Emil Holling of Dixon was also a guest of the club, shooting in the pool matches. "Slade" and Nauman won club gold bars, Derby, Gauld, Haight and Feudner were awarded silver bars in the club race for straights of 15 and 12 respectively.

Following the club shoot a 15-bird pool, $5 entrance, was shot. Ten men entered this race. First and second money was won and divided by Ed Donohoe and Otto Feudner on straight strings. In this race Feudner, McConnell, Derby and Gerstle entered for back scores also. Donohoe and Feudner won gold bars and Ned Fay won a silver bar. In an 8 bird pool, $2.50 entrance, seven guns entered, the purse was divided by J. V. Coleman, Ed Donohoe and Dr. Derby. Considerable difficulty was had at times by different shooters in connecting with red or brown pigeons that were liberated. These birds blended so closely with the ground coloring that it was pretty hard to locate them for a center.

The scores made during the shoot are the following:

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

At last reports Mr. Christenson's Boston Coronado Lithia is on the improve.

Dr. Kendall sold last week the Boston Terrier bitch, Mollie O., to Mr. Francis Burton Harrison of San Jose.

Champion Juaita, the bitch recently sent East to Montebello Kennels, is heavy in whelp to the harlequin Montebello Caesar.

Reference to our kennel advertisements this week will enable the owner of an English Setter bitch puppy to find a purchaser.

All but one of the litter of sixteen puppies whelped by Chas. Dresser's Great Dane bitch, Fanny, recently, are alive and doing very well.

Woodcote Acrobat, Mr. Peggs corking good little Bulldog, has been sold to an American fancier. The price paid was $750, it is claimed.

C. Steinbach's Bull Terrier bitch Bloomsbury Queen (Bloomsbury Baron—Woodcote Queen) was bred to Dr. Bunnell's Mose, a dog brought here from the East some time ago. He is a well formed good bodied dog, it is claimed.

The bench show in connection with the Texas State Fair will be held on September 27th instead of October 8th-11th. A fire which destroyed several of the fair buildings has made necessary a change in the plans, for which the association has requested Secretary Vredenburg to allow a change of dates.

Rumney Racket, a noted English Setter, is now owned by Mr. H. A. Belcher of Boston. Racket is a blue belton, three years old, by Sir Bentinck out of Lady Dorothy. He has the proud distinction of being the only dog, so it is claimed, who has beaten the English crack Rumney Rock. He is the winner of a long list of bench show prizes. For his litter brother, the sum of $1500 has been refused.

It is hardly probable now that the fall dog show at San Mateo will materialize, if Mr. Phil C. Meyer is correctly quoted. The affair was enthusiastically advocated and seemed to have plenty of support but for some untold reason, interest in the happy project of holding a lawn dog show in connection with a society function, has fallen through. The idea was an excellent one and we are sorry to note the possibility of its abandonment.

Rhoda Windem, the northern prize winning English Setter bitch has been purchased by John W. Considine of Seattle, Wash., from Plimley and Turner, Victoria, B. C. This handsome bitch is entered in the Pacific Coast Derby, her new owner will probably run her in the Fall Inter-State trials, etc. She is by Llewellyn Drake out of Lola Montez. Llewellyn Drake is regarded as the best pure bred Llewellyn stud dog on the northern coast. Lola Montez was the winner of special for best English Setter bitch at Seattle show this year, she is a litter sister of Roy Montez, the northern bench show champion. Rhoda won 1st puppy, Nanaimo, B. C., 1901; 1st puppy and special for best puppy shown, Victoria, B. C., 1901; 3rd limit, Seattle, and reserve open, Portland, 1902.

THE FARM.

Requirements of a Good Dairy Stable.

The following requirements of a sanitary dairy stable, recommended by R. A. Pearson, M. S., assistant chief of the United States Dairy Division, will commend themselves to dairy farmers, who contemplate the arrangement or construction of stable for cows.

The stable should be arranged with a view to the comfort of the animals so as to facilitate the work of cleaning, milking, etc.

The floor shall be smooth and incapable of absorbing liquids, and sloping sufficiently to cause good drainage.

The gutters behind the cows shall be open and with sufficient incline to cause good drainage.

The side walls and ceiling shall be so tight as to prevent dust sifting through, and they shall be so constructed as to prevent cobwebs and dust from collecting, and easily to be cleaned.

There shall be windows in at least two sides of the stable, providing not less than three square feet of unobstructed window glass to each animal.

Each animal shall be allowed at least as many cubic feet of air space as the number of pounds of its live weight.

The ventilation shall be so efficient that one will not notice a stale, disagreeable or animal odor on entering the building.

The stalls shall be comfortable, at least 3 feet wide, or 3½ feet for a large cow, and so long that the animal need not habitually stand with her feet in the gutter.

The stable yard shall be well drained so as to be usually dry and no pools allowed to form.

A suitable place, at least 200 feet distant from the stable building, shall be provided for cows not approved by the veterinarian and those separated from the herd for any cause except calving.

A special room, conveniently located, shall be provided for the milkers to wash in before and during milking.

The interior walls shall be kept clean and light colored. If whitewash is used, a fresh coat shall be applied at least three times a year, and oftener, if necessary, to keep the walls clean and white. Mold spots shall not be permitted.

The accumulation of dirt, cobwebs, rubbish and materials not needed for stable work shall not be permitted.

At least half an hour before milking time, the stable shall be thoroughly cleaned and ventilated and manure removed from the building.

The stable floor shall be sprinkled, when necessary, to keep down the dust.

When cows are kept in the stable continuously (as in stormy weather), it shall be cleaned often enough to be kept as free as possible from manurial odors. If necessary, land plaster shall be used for absorbing liquids and odors.

At least once every two months the mangers shall be scrubbed with a brush and water and soap, lye or washing powder.

Animals of other species shall not be kept in the same room with milch cows.

No strong smelling material shall be allowed in or near the stable. If manure is on premises, it shall be at least 100 feet from the stable.

Good Horses Regardless of Breed.

Much has been said about the relative merits of the breeds of draft-horses. Last season a prominent Hereford breeder of Missouri told me that notwithstanding the fact that he had been a lover and breeder of the "white-faces" all his life, he still believes that there is no best breed of cattle or anything else; that it is purely a matter of fancy, and that each and every breed has not only its fanciers, but also its distinct place in business. This is good logic, and I feel that I can apply it to the breeds of draft-horses.

In the first place, we have all seen good and poor horses of all breeds and types; we have all seen beautiful Percherons almost faultless in form and action and capable of transmitting to their progeny all the desirable qualities of the breed, and we have seen Clydesdales possessed of every characteristic that could be asked for in a draft-horse and that would sire very fine draft-colts from all kinds of scrub mares. We also have seen some curby Percherons long in the back, weak in the coupling and breeders of colts exactly like themselves. We have seen Clydesdales with very bad flat feet, and found their colts similarly objectionable. Have we not all seen these things?

Now, as much as possible I like to see a man breed the kind of stock that he likes best, and to raise horses I recommend that he first select good broodmares of the breed he likes best, and use a stallion of the same breed. Use a good sound sire, and if possible one that you know to be a good breeder. The fact that a horse has been imported is no evidence that he is a better horse than the home-bred horse across the road bred by John Smith. Select what you know to be a good sound stallion, and then if your colts are not good you cannot blame yourself. And when you have a nice team of good horses raised they will bring good money regardless of the breed.—J. G. Willis in the Breeders Gazette.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

FOR SALE. AEGON 6994.

TROTTER RACE RECORD (3 YRS.) 2:18¼; sire of six trotters and two pacers, with records between 2:11¼ and 2:29¼. Never advertised for public service. Foaled in 1887; solid mahogany bay; 16 hands; will weigh in ordinary stud flesh 1200 pounds. High style and action; as sound and vigorous as he was at six years of age.

Sired by Nutwood 600 (2:18¼), the greatest sire that has ever lived. Aegon's dam, Alpha, race record 2:23¼; dam of Aegon (3) 2:18¼, Algy (4) 2:19¼ and Acolian 2:30. Alpha by Alcantara 729, record 2:23, sire of 146 with records of 2:30 and better. Alpha's dam, the great mare Jessie Pepper, dam of Alpha 2:23¼, Iona 2:17¼ and Le Grande, sire of Jim 2:30, and granddam of Montezuma 2:29¼. Nutwood by Belmont 64, he by Abdallah 15, he by Hambletonian 10. Nutwood's dam was Miss Russell, dam of Maud S. 2:08¾, Cora Belmont 2:24¼, Russia 2:28, Nutwood 2:18¼, etc., she by Pilot Jr. 12. Alcantara by George Wilkes 519, race record 2:22, he by Hambletonian 10. Jessie Pepper by Mambrino Chief 11, etc.

This horse became mine the 12th of last month, through the will of the late Judge Hubbard. He is warranted exactly as represented, and is offered for sale because I am not in the horse business.

It will be noted: 1st, that Aegon is himself not only a grand individual but a proven trotter; 2nd, that he is no experiment, but is already a proven sire of trotters; 3d, that he was sired by Nutwood, himself a trotter and the greatest sire of trotters that has ever lived; 4th, that his dam, Alpha, was herself a trotter; 5th, that she is a proven dam of trotters; 6th, that she was by a horse himself a trotter and a great sire of trotters.

This combination cannot be had in a young stallion, and is rare in old or young. I believe Nutwood sold for $22,500 when he was 18 years old, and earned a fortune for Mr. Stout afterwards.

McKinney (15 years old) has just sold for $25,000. If this horse is not sold immediately he will be placed in the stud. Address C. E. WHEELER, Asst. Gen. Atty for the Chicago and Northwestern Ry. Co. in Iowa, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

How to Make Most Pork for a Dollar.

This will depend on several conditions. The question is really an important one. It has been discussed many times and it may be a little difficult to find anything new in regard to it, says a writer in Swine-Breeders' Journal. Everyone seems to have an idea of his own, and my idea may be a little different from some others, but such as it is, I give it. We can make pork by keeping a pig in a small pen and feeding it expensive food perhaps faster than some other ways, but we will not get the most pork for the dollar. There is not much profit in it, and profit is what counts.

We cannot make much pork for a dollar from a scrub, say nothing about profit. To make the most out of the money spent on the animal, we must study the animal's ancestors as well as the animal himself. In other words, to make the most, we must have the right kind of blood to start with, and treat it right. It must come from vigorous stock, great feeders, fast growers, easy fatteners, those that answer quickly to feed of whatever kind. Therefore, first we must have the very best strains of blood to start with.

After having all this to start with and our little fellow in the world ready to be put to the test, it will be necessary to keep his mother in such shape as will cause her to produce the most and best food for him to start out on his pilgrimage through life toward the pork barrel. He must get a good start, and it must be kept up. There must be no backset or we have lost more than we made. While he gets his support from his mother during the early part of his life, he will soon need a little outside help. This must be furnished in proper shape, such as a little wheat, corn or oats in its original state, with milk added. He will soon begin to look for something else. This something else seems to be his natural food, and that is grass. He will now forsake his mother and become very independent.

From this on, it is necessary to study economy more than before. For if we feed him one dollar's worth of food in order to produce one dollar's worth of pork, how much have we made out of our work? Some cheap food in connection with grass is necessary at this time. Grass of some kind is the thing, as it costs very little in comparison to corn or wheat. We must give him a good help in connection in the shape of shorts, slop, corn, wheat and oats, with milk if on hand but to get the most pork for one dollar, some cheaper food is necessary in connection. A field of green wheat or rye or oats will furnish lots of cheap food early in the season, with green sorghum, Kaffir corn, or oats later, but the best of all, so far as our experience in Kansas goes, is a field of alfalfa.

I do not think much can be made on green food alone. I may grow some bone, but very little flesh. To grow flesh and bone at the same time, the pig must have grain in some shape. Alfalfa will make the best gain of all green stuffs alone, and I make the claim that grain and green stuff combined will produce more pork than twice the amount of grain alone.

It is possible we could get a pig ready for market a little quicker on grain alone, but the cost would be greater. To get cheap work, cheap food must be used, and unless we get a little profit for our money and time while we feed, we must better invest our money in some other way and work at some other calling. A pig shut up in a small pen and stuffed with grain may grow plumper than one that is hustling in the field for some cheap food to help his gain; but it is easy to count without figuring which dollar is the best invested, the one spent on the pig that is not helping himself, or the dollar spent on the one that adds another dollar itself. To sum it up, we must get good breeding stock, good foragers, good feeders, fast growers, easy fatteners, and those that grow to large size; start them with care, make all the growth possible on green stuff and grain combined, get them to market as early as possible and get as good a price for them as possible; and then we may count dollars profit instead of dollars lost. In this way we will surely prosper.

VOL. XII. No. 6.
36 GEARY STREET.

SAN FRANCISCO, SATURDAY, AUGUST 9, 1902.

SUBSCRIPTION
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR

BANKERS DAUGHTER 2:13 3-4

Bay Mare by Arthur Wilkes 2:28½ son of Guy Wilkes 2:15¼

OWNED BY MR. B. CRONER OF SAN FRANCISCO

Mr. Croner Buys Bankers Daughter.

Last week Mr. B. Croner, a well known business man and road driver of this city, purchased for a long price, but no more than her value, the very handsome mare Bankers Daughter 2:13½ by Arthur Wilkes, whose portrait appears on our front page this week. Bankers Daughter is one of the prettiest gaited pacers ever seen in a race, and while she wore the hoppers during the short campaign made by her, it is said that she goes better without them and has paced several heats better than 2:10 in her work with nothing on but her harness and quarter boots. She was formerly owned by Mr. Runyon a banker of Red Bluff, and was raced on the California circuit during last season. She started first at Woodland, August 29th, when she met Sir Albert S., the undefeated champion of last year. She was second to him in her first start in 2:11½, and two days after that got second money to that good pacer Topsy 2:12½, one of the fastest of last year's side wheelers. At the State Fair she met a fast field of horses in the 2:20 pace won by Midnight. In this race she took the third heat in 2:14½ and took second money. In the 2:25 class she won a heat in 2:13½, her present record, and took second money again, Topsy winning the race. These were all her starts and while she did not win a race, was three times second and once third. In her races she always wanted to go to the front with a rush and when restrained would shake her head, break her check, and leave her feet, but when permitted to go at speed, seldom made a break. She was started in three races within five days meeting the fastest pacers on the circuit, and her gameness was fully tested in these races. That she has an excellent disposition, however, is attested by the fact that she is an ideal road horse and can be driven by a lady or child.

Her sire Arthur Wilkes is by Guy Wilkes and is also the sire of Welcome 2:10½, Fitz Lee 2:13½, Wayland W. 2:12½, Hobo 2:14½ and others.

It is Mr. Croner's intention to drive Bankers Daughter on the road during the remainder of the year and send her East in February next to be trained and raced on the Grand Circuit. Many experienced horsemen believe that she will pace close to the two minute mark with proper training.

Marysville Entries.

But two of the harness races advertised by the 13th District Agricultural Association of Marysville were filled, but these two should furnish a couple of high class contests, and with the special races to be given during the meeting and the running events, it is believed an excellent program will be arranged for the five days beginning August 26th. Races at Ventura.

VENTURA, Aug. 6.—To day saw the opening of the Thirty-first District Agricultural Fair races at Agricultural Park. The events of the day were a trotting race and two running races. In the trotting race, purse $500, there were six entries, but for some reason the horses owned by James Dowd, H. Brown and James Dwain were withdrawn. The race consisted of three heats, all of which were won by Cozad, owned by Charles E. Clark, the time being 2:19½, 2:21½ and 2:20½. Zambra, owned by L. J. Rose of Oxnard, coming in second and Leader, owned by W. S. Lierly, third.

The second event was a five-eighths of a mile dash, with a purse of $200. This race was shot in by Hercules, owned by Lud Jones; Fine Shot, owned by S. J. Dunlap, and Helen Dare, owned by L. J. Rose. Hercules, the Bakersfield horse, won in 1:02, with Fine Shot second and Helen Dare third.

The third event was a one mile dash, with a purse of $200. Castake won, Ygnacio second, Tibbs third. Time, 1:43.

Colusa Meeting Next Week.

The Colusa County Fair and race meeting will open at Colusa next week. There will be four days' racing and while the fields are not large the horses are pretty evenly matched and several good contests are assured. The display of county products, including live stock, promises to be very large and the people of the district are taking a great deal of interest in the fair. The races are always well attended in Colusa. The entries to the races to be decided during the week are as follows:

A Job Nipped at Columbus.

The judges at the Columbus Grand Circuit meeting unearthed a job in the $5000 stake for 2:20 pacers, and severe punishment was promptly meted out to the guilty person, driver Tom Stuard, who, together with the horse Elder One, was suspended for one year.

There were six starters, but Green Line and Elder One were conceded to have the race between them. Green Line won the first heat with ease in 2:09½, slow time over the track, which was lightning fast. The second heat was a race in itself, and was won by Elder One, who paced a beautiful mile in 2:05½, cutting his record by four seconds. The original betting had been Green Line $100 and the field $30. Elder One's showing in the second heat produced the desired effect on the odds, which now switched to $30 on Green Line and $50 on the field. The third heat went to Green Line in 2:10½, Stuard making no effort with Elder One.

When the horses came out for the fourth heat the judges took Stuard out of the sulky and put Valentine, a local trainer and driver, up behind Elder One. Elder One took the fourth heat in 2:06½, outpacing Green Line in the stretch. In the fifth heat Elder One went to a break in the first turn and could not be set to pacing again. He finished behind the flag with a broken hopple, which investigation showed had been cut nearly through before the heat started. The judges declared all bets off, placed Elder One fourth instead of distancing him, sentenced Stuard and the horse Elder One to suspension for a year, and fined Hudson $100 for not trying to finish the last heat with Tertimen. Elder One is the pacer who finished second to Direct Hal in the Chamber of Commerce stake at Detroit and again at Cleveland. He had worlds of speed and should have beaten Green Line.

Notes and News.

Zephyr 2:11 has made good.

Vallejo races begin Tuesday next.

Rythmic's blindness is due to an attack of distemper when he was a two year old.

Anaconda 2:01½ is now being touted in New York as the coming two minute pacer.

Wauban 2:10½ has been a lucky investment for Johnny Ray, the vaudeville actor.

Ed Geers received $1500 and all expenses for driving Lord Derby in the race against Boralma.

Poindexter is not rated as a gold brick in Boston since he trotted two miles in 2:09 and 2:08½.

Two offers, each of $10,000, were refused for the Indiana pacing gelding Dan R. 2:05½ last week.

The Roman 2:10½ and Charley Mac 2:10½ are getting very close to the 2:10 list and will break in before long.

Santa Rosa Stock Farm, by its representative, Millard Sanders, has already refused $10,000 for Anzella 2:08½.

M. H. Hanna, of Cleveland, has purchased of J. T. Hagaely, of Danville, Ky., the trotting mare Leola 2:13½. Price, $10,500.

The match race for $10,000 between The Abbot and Lord Derby will be trotted at Brighton Beach track next Thursday, August 14th.

Budd Doble is still at Cleveland with Kenney Lou and Chas. Newman's roan mares, Maud and Neerbell. He may stay there all summer.

William G. Layng shipped Effie Logan, the dam of Sir Albert S. 2:08½, to Woodland yesterday, where she will be again bred to Diablo 2:09½.

Boralma worked a mile at Cleveland in 2:06½, last half in 1:02, last quarter in 30½ seconds, ten days before the race in which he was so severely injured.

President Harry W. Devereux, of the Cleveland Gentlemen's Driving Club, has announced the dates for the Intercity matinee as September 4th and 5th.

Riley B. 2:06½ has forced more sidewheelers out of the 2:06 and 2:07 paces than any other one horse. He was right at Dan Patch's wheel in 2:03½ at Cleveland.

Once a cripple and now one of the fastest trotters of the year is the history of The Monk 2:07, and it looks as though 2:05 would not stop him before the season closes.

The Directors of the State Agricultural Society will meet to-day to act on the entries which closed last Saturday. The list will be printed in these columns next week.

Falrose received two additions to his list of standard performers at the San Jose meeting. Dixon Maid paced to a record of 2:20½, and Mayme H. took a record of 2:24½.

Wm. G. Layng will hold another sale of horses from the Oakwood Park Stock Farm, August 21st, at the Occidental Horse Exchange. Catalogue will be ready on Thursday next.

Joe Cuicello, the well known trainer, was down from Vallejo this week and reports everything very promising for a successful meeting at Vallejo next week. The track is in good shape and will be fast.

The $10,000 Bonner Memorial for 2:12 class trotters has thirteen entries and promises to be a great race when it is decided next week at Brighton Beach. The blind horse, Rythmic, is among the entries.

W. E. Billups, proprietor of the Billups Stock Farm, Memphis, Missouri, has four two year olds by Baron Dillon that are very promising. He is also training this year Fanny Dillon 2:22½ and Whirlwind Mac 2:17½.

According to a recent decision by a Pennsylvania court, if the owner of a trotter or pacer does not wish the man in charge of his horses to draw winnings at a race meeting he must notify the association to that effect.

Dr. Hammond, by making a record of 2:14½ at Columbus, Ohio, last Saturday, became ineligible to the 2:25 class pace at Marysville, for which he was entered on that day. The owners of the other horses will not be sorry.

At the meeting held last week at the Old Saugus track near Boston, the Eros mare Algonetta 2:14 started in the 2:14 class trot. There were six starters. Algonetta finished last four times and was then drawn from the race.

Myron McHenry has been up against it with Prince Direct formerly Freddie C. 2:14½. The "pocket edition" has demonstrated his ability to pace in about 2:07, but he has been meeting horses that can go the distance in 2:05.

Bonner N. B. 2:17, a son of Rosedale Stock Farm's stallion Daly 2:15, stepped a mile in 2:12½ in his work at Portland last week. This is a pretty fast mile for a fourteen year old horse. He made his record of 2:17 in 1893 at the old Oakland track.

It is impossible to produce the high priced horse that society admires in the show ring without generous treatment when young. The stunted colt will never develop into the high priced animal which commands the top price of the market.

Mack Mack, the bay gelding by McKinney that took a record of 2:29½, at Everett, Washington, last year, stepped a mile in 2:19½ in his work at Portland last week and did it easily. George Beckers writes that Mack Mack "will 2:14 this year sure."

John C. Humphreys has secured the betting privileges for the Vallejo and Napa meetings and will manage the pool selling and bookmaking for Henry Schwartz, who has the privilege for the Pleasanton meeting. At all these meetings auction pools will be sold on harness races.

Geo. S. McKenzie, former sheriff of Napa county, but now a resident of Hilo, H. I., is sending a string of horses to California to race at the State Fair this year. The string comprises Nullah, Del Vista, Socialist and Gen. Cronje, all runners. They are in charge of Bob Burns and are due to arrive next week.

Whenever the get of a stallion show their ability to trot or pace very fast, a lot of "wise gazabaz" immediately begin telling the public that they are quitters. There is only one simon-pure, long-distance, never-say-die, game-to-the-core family in the world and that is the "Knocker" family. They never quit.

The Roman is said to be the best educated horse on the Grand Circuit. He can be placed anywhere and wins his heats in the stretch. No one knows what the limit of his speed is as he comes from behind and beats the others out without any seeming extra effort. He has won his races easily so far and is yet in the 2:11 class.

Stipulator, the black pacer by Titus, and China Maid, Consul-General Ho Yow's mare, represented California in the 2:25 class pace at Freeport, Illinois, July 30th. Stipulator got third money, but China Maid got the flag in the first heat. Semmassa, a mare by Simmocolon, won the race in straight heats, the time being 2:11½, 2:13½ and 2:14.

Here is what Murray Howe says of The Roman: "Just how good Dick Benson's unbeaten trotter, The Roman, is, is a question that has furnished no little food for talk. Everybody is agreed that he is the best educated trotter on the circuit, and it is a rare treat to see Dick place him as he pleases in any kind of a field. To date he has won all of his heats in the stretch and never seems to be extended."

The only way nowadays to get speed is to breed it, as it is no longer possible to go out into the farm lands and pick up 2:10 prospects. The farmer breeder has, of late years, turned his attention to the hackney type largely, as so many buyers demanding "toppy," cob-made animals are abroad willing to pay the highest prices for such as meet their views. The trotting end has, in a way, been somewhat overlooked.

The sale of Lafayette Funck's horses came off on Tuesday, July 29th, at Farmington, as advertised. It was the closing out sale of Mr. Funck's breeding farm and was managed by the well known auctioneer, William G. Layng. Every animal offered, some 66 head in all, was sold, and the average, $70, was very fair, considering the fact that most of the animals were only halter broken, although all were well bred.

Henry Haas, well known all over California as a horse trainer and driver, died at his home in Eureka, Humboldt county, last week as a result of a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Haas was ill but a few hours, and was thought to be in perfect health until stricken down. Mr. Haas gave Jack W. 2:12½ his record and trained and drove a large number of Humboldt county horses to fast marks. He was a native of Wisconsin aged 42 years.

The Diablo mare Tags paced a good race at Freeport, Illinois, July 30th, although she did not win. There were ten starters in the race, the fast horse Larrie Ginter being favorite. Tags forced him out the first and second heats in 2:09½ and 2:08½ and won the third heat in 2:11½, her record. Larrie Ginter just managed to beat her the fourth heat in 2:11½, thereby ending the race. Tags is almost certain to reduce her record enough to place her in the 2:10 list this year.

On the last day of the meeting at Columbus, Ohio, last week, Will Welch had the Chas. Derby horse Dr. Hammond in the 2:23 class pace, the purse being $1500. Welch managed to win the third heat in 2:14½ and got second money. The horse that beat him was another son of Chas. Derby and was also bred at the Oakwood Park Stock Farm. He is called Willie Osborne and is out of Directress by Director, a mare bred by Fred Loeber of Napa county and sold by him to Mr. John F. Boyd. Dictatress is out of Whip by Whippleton and she is out of a mare by George M. Patchen Jr. Willie Osborne was foaled in 1896 and was raced last year, getting a mark of 2:23½ at Washington, Penn., in a race where he won in straight heats. His race last Saturday was a peculiar one. There were five starters. In the first heat Charley Hofer was distanced, after the second heat Vasten was drawn, and after the third heat another horse, Ted, was drawn. This left only Dr. Hammond and Willie Osborne in for the fourth heat, which Osborne won in the slow time of 2:25.

Mart Demarest is giving Prince Alert 2:00½ a very careful preparation at Hartford, and the big pacer is reported to be in fine condition. Demarest has been training Prince Alert this season along very sensible lines. The big gelding has had nearly 100 heats this spring from 2:40 to 2:30, and in consequence is as hard as nails and is ready to go fast miles right now. The fastest workout to date was three heats in 2:16, 2:17½ and 2:16, with the final quarter in 30 seconds.

We are in receipt of a handy book, which should be in the possession of all horse-keepers; for although primarily published for the purpose of introducing Dr. S. A. Tuttle's remedies for every ill the horse is heir to, "Veterinary Experience" will be useful to all who keep and care for horses by pointing out the early stages of diseases to which man's best servant and companion is liable. Dr. Tuttle's remedies—five in number—are compounded to meet almost every emergency in veterinary practice and his "Family Elixir" is a useful compound in many ailments which afflict men, women and children.

Dr. Hammond, the pacer owned by Capt. Harry Goodall of this city that Will Welch has been racing on the Grand Circuit, won the third heat of the 2:23 class pace at Columbus on Friday of last week, getting a record of 2:14½. Dr. Hammond is by Chas. Derby out of Bella II by Nutwood, and was bred at the Oakwood Park Stock Farm. He is entered in the $2000 pace at the Oregon State Fair meeting which will be held during the second week in September and will doubtless be shipped to Salem to start in that event, and thence to Sacramento in time to start in the races during the second week of the California State Fair. Mr. Welch will then race his string through the remainder of the California circuit.

Lord Derby will not start in the 2:07 trot at Buffalo to day, Mr. Smathers having decided to withdraw him from that event and start him in the race to wagon with a blue ribbon as a prize at Empire City Park. The New York Driving Club, of which Smathers is a member, will hold its fifth meeting at the Yonkers' track to-day, and, in order to make the occasion a memorable one, he has agreed to drive Lord Derby against C. K. G. Billings' Louise Jefferson, the mare that pulled a wagon at Cleveland in 2:08½ a fortnight ago, and against Fred Gerken's trotter, The Monk, and any other horse of the fres for all class that wants to come into the contest. Billings has consented to drive either Louise Jefferson or the champion wagon trotter, Lucille 2:07.

The horsemen at Portland, Oregon, where George Beckers is located with his stallion Zombro 2:11, were congratulating him last Thursday on the fact that Zephyr, the filly by his stallion, has taken a record of 2:11 in her first start on the Grand Circuit. "All of Zombro's get will go that fast," said Beckers, "because the Bible says so." The boys expressed a doubt as to there being any such assertion in the Good Book when Beckers removed all uncertainty by telling them that somewhere between Genesis and Revelations the assertion was made that "a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump," and he was willing to leave it to any preacher on the coast to decide the matter. "Zombro," said he, "is in the 'leaven' class, and the majority of his sons and daughters will get there according to scripture."

Those who were fortunate enough to be at the Glenville track July 24th witnessed some speedy miles, which caused the Eastern horsemen to do some talking. John A. McKerron, hitched to a wagon, came out for his fast workout. After several warming up miles, "Doc" Tanner let the great trotter have his head. He went to the quarter in 31½ seconds, and then Tanner eased up a little, but McKerron came home from the three-quarters to the wire in 30 seconds flat, stepping the mile in 2:10½, his fastest mile this season. E. E. Smathers, the owner of Lord Derby; J. J. Scannell, the owner of The Abbot; "Nick" Hubinger, and others who have contemplated entering horses to get the Boston trophy away from Cleveland, were amazed at the performance, for McKerron finished strong and could have gone a mile close to 2:06. C. K. G. Billings' string were then worked to wagon, and Mazette paced a mile in 2:07½, Hontas Crooke went a mile in 2:07½ and Doctor Monical paced a mile in 2:08½.

Don Derby, a full brother to Diablo, won his race at Hartford last Saturday in straight heats, beating a field of four other fast pacers in 2:08 and 2:07½, thus making a new record for himself and giving his sire, Chas. Derby, a new 2:10 performer, his fourth, and making his dam Bertha the dam of two 2:10 performers. This daughter of Alcantara is owned at Oakwood Park Stock Farm and is one of the greatest broodmares ever brought to California. Her first foal Diablo was by Chas. Derby and took his record of 2:09½ as a four year old, her next foal a bay filly Elf, was by Steinway, trotted to a record of 2:22½ as a five year old, and was then shifted to the pace and secured a record of 2:12½. Her next foal was Geo. McA., a bay colt by Steinway that was sold and we believe was not trained. Thereafter Bertha was bred regularly to Chas. Derby. In 1892 she produced Ed Lafferty that took a record of 2:16½, then came Jay Eff Bee that paced to a record of 2:26½ as a yearling but went wrong, then came Kawookum, Demonio and Bertha Derby, all sold from the farm when young. Demonio is owned by Hon. Ben Rush of Suisun, and has shown speed enough in his work to warrant the assertion that a mark of 2:15 is within his reach at any time when he is right. Don Derby, that took a record of 2:07½ last Saturday, was foaled in 1897. The following year Bertha produced a brown full brother that was called Arner and has been in the stud this year at the farm. He is said to be very fast and may be given a record.

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonade and be refreshed.

CIRCUIT OPENS TUESDAY.

Vallejo Has Excellent Program of Events for Trotters and Pacers.

The main circuit of district fairs and race meetings in California will open on Tuesday next at the thriving navy yard city of Vallejo, where the horsemen will find the best tracks in the State at the present time. The circuit which opens Tuesday will continue until early in October without a break, the order in which the meetings will occur being Vallejo, Napa, Pleasanton, Woodland, State Fair at Sacramento (two weeks), Stockton, Fresno, Bakersfield and Los Angeles, the last named running two weeks and closing October 25th. This will give a continuous circuit of eleven weeks with purses ranging from $500 to $2000, the latter sum being hung up by the Breeders Association for trotters of the 2:24 class to compete for at the Fresno meeting and to which twenty-two horses have been entered.

The Vallejo meeting, which opens the harness racing season in this section, never had a better list of entries or a more promising outlook for good contests and fast racing. The 2:15 trot, which opens the program on Tuesday, should be a battle royal if the six horses entered go to the post in fair condition. Vic Shollar, What is It, Puerto Rico and Lijero have all worked below their records this year. While Lijero 2:21 has the slowest record of any in the race, he is known to have 2:15 speed and will be a contender for first money no matter what horse wins. The 2:30 trot on Wednesday has ten green horses entered, the 2:25 pace set for Thursday has fourteen entries and the 2:20 pace which closes the program on Saturday has the same number. In addition to these big fields, the 2:24 trot with nine entries, the 2:19 trot with seven, the 2:17 pace with six and the district and club races will furnish contests worth going to see. Then there will be running races each day, entries to which will close overnight, in which it is expected a number of fast runners will start.

The betting privilege was sold last week to the well known bookmaker, John C. Humphreys, who will conduct auction pools on the result of the races and make books on the result and on the heats.

Vallejo is easily reached from San Francisco by both rail and boat, and the time table is so arranged that city people can attend the races and return home each day, leaving the track a few minutes before six o'clock.

The program of the five day's racing is as follows:

TUESDAY.

2:15 trot, purse $500—Vic Shollar 2:15½, What Is It 2:16½, Alta Vela 2:15, Puerto Rico 2:18½, Thomas R. 2:15, Lijero 2:21.

It was announced at Cleveland that C. K. G. Billings will offer to be contested for during the Memphis meeting a solid gold cup of elaborate design, to cost $5000, for trotters driven to wagon by amateurs. It is to be a challenge cup and will be the most magnificent trophy ever offered for competition.

Stockton Entries.

Of the ten harness races advertised by the Stockton Driving Club for its meeting beginning September 20th, nine have been declared filled. The races have an average of eleven entries each, and all the best horses now in training in California are entered. Stockton's meeting follows the State Fair and promises being the best ever held in the metropolis of the San Joaquin valley. The entries to the races closed are as follows:

Equine News from the Citrus Belt.

HOTEL ROSSLYN, LOS ANGELES, Cal.,
August 2, 1902.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: Since the Durfee family have fallen under the monetary eloquence of the Gentrys, and the great sire of California, McKinney, is to be shipped to the Hoosier state, every owner of a colt by McKinney in California is thinking that his particular colt will be the one on which the mantle of McKinney's greatness will fall. I will venture to state that a Los Angeles man named Desmond can honestly lay claim to about the best bred McKinney that has ever been foaled. This lucky gentleman formerly owned Italia. The colt in question is a blood bay, black points, no white marks, gaited like a real trotter. His dam, Bonnie Red, was sired by Red Wilkes 1749, the greatest son of George Wilkes 519, one of the greatest producing sons of Hambletonian 10; second dam Bonnie Bell, dam of five with standard records from 2:15 to 2:29½, by Almont 33, the grandest producing son of Abdallah 15; third dam Alice Drake by Norman 25. Alice Drake was dam of three standard performers; fourth dam by Pilot Jr., the horse that made Woodburn famous by producing Miss Russell, the dam of Maud S., also sired the dam of Jay Eye See. Now to any student of pedigree this colt's breeding should look good. It should satisfy even J. H. Wallace, the most exacting critic on the pure bred trotter that has yet appeared. Mr. Desmond says that it is his intention to give this grandly bred colt every advantage. I asked him if he was entered in many stakes, and he said "All I can get him in, and will be kept paid up," and barring accidents, this should be the best McKinney ever foaled. Bonnie Red, his dam, is beyond question one of the greatest broodmares I ever saw.

The young Zombros in and around Los Angeles are more than satisfying every one who is lucky enough to own one.

Neernut, the great son of Albert W., sired sixty foals last year; his bookings so far this year exceed that number. Neernut's colts are all solid colors, and every one has that lofty knee action and clean, open stride that goes to make a track or park horse attractive.

Trainer Farrah gave El Diablo an easy workout last Friday in 2:11, last half in 1:05, last quarter in 31 seconds. The friends of Diablo need not worry because Sir Albert S. has gone East, for this chestnut son of Diablo will, if given his head on a good day and a good track, make the last year's record of Sir Albert S. look like eleven cents.

I believe I have figured out who the pacer is that Quinn is ringing under the name of Cyclone in Honolulu. I will tell you definitely soon. It is not Midnight; he is here. Quinn had Cyclone in 2:30, 2:22 and 2:14 class. He won 2:30 class and 2:22. In the 2:14 class against Wayboy and Abdine, W. M. Cunningham, owner of Wayboy, protested him and would not start against him, but in scoring or working, Cyclone had a bleeding spell and was drawn, then Wayboy beat Abdine in 2:23, Cunningham driving Wayboy and Mike Costello driving Abdine. Cunningham sent me a description of Cyclone, and I believe I will be able to call the turn before you go to press next time. I can to-day, but I want to be sure.

The mare Carrie C., by Malheur, dam Kitty Kisber, that I sold to August E. Dreier of Honolulu, has a beautiful filly by Hambletonian Wilkes. Cunningham wanted it, but was told that money could not buy it.

I bred my Hambletonian Wilkes mare to Coeur de Alene, son of Dexter Bradford, and will enter 'he produce in the Occident and other stakes. Yours truly,
C. A. HARRISON.

The raising of the general admission at Saratoga to $3 from $2, which obtained for a number of years, and the general advance in admission prices all down the line, bears a significance not readily apparent. The move received the fullest support of Mr. Whitney and other gentlemen prominent in promoting Saratoga, the prospective national seat of racing. The gentlemen intend to avoid a recurrence of the bugbear which for years was a thorn in the side of English racing, the predilection for the sport of an element not desirable from any point of view. This element, it is said, has been practically barred from English tracks by the imposition of big entrance fees, and it is proposed to shut off the evil here before it gains a foothold.

A New York gentleman, a Mr. Wallace, who has been sojourning at the Del Monte Hotel, Monterey, has recently purchased from B. V. Sargent, the well known Salinas attorney, a handsome black pacing mare which he will ship East to drive on the famous speedway in New York. The sire of this mare is a son of Sidney owned by Hiram Corey, of Las Palmas. The dam of this pacing mare is by Brown Jug, and is an own sister to San Carlos 2:27½ and Keno 2:22½. The price paid by Mr. Wallace for the mare was $500.

Lord Derby Won the Match.

The great match race between Boralma and Lord Derby last Saturday terminated as many matches have heretofore, in a disappointment. After winning the first heat in 2:08 Boralma went lame in the second, broke down in the third, and had to be withdrawn before the fourth heat, which was a walkover for Lord Derby. Boralma struck his quarter, cutting a gash nearly four inches in length, and the veterinary thinks it is doubtful whether the son of Boreal will ever be able to race again. Fully fifteen thousand people had congregated at the celebrated Charter Oak Park at Hartford to see the race, which has been the talk of the trotting world since the match was made last spring, and while they saw some excellent racing the accident left a feeling of disappointment and chagrin with those who had backed Boralma that made the day anything but a pleasant one. The match was made between Thos. W. Lawson of Boston, owner of Boralma 2:07, and E. E. Smathers of New York, owner of Lord Derby 2:06½. $20,000 a side was put up, to which the Charter Oak management added $10,000, winner to take all.

The day was perfect for racing. A light breeze prevailed, but it was not strong enough to interfere with the speed of the horses. The track was in splendid shape and everything was favorable to record-breaking time. Among the celebrities who occupied boxes were William C. Whitney and B. F. Tracy, both former Secretaries of the Navy.

Lord Derby was a hot favorite in the betting. Just before the first heat odds of 2 to 1 were freely offered on him. When Boralma won the first heat the odds were even and at the close of the second heat, which was won by Lord Derby, they shifted decidedly in favor of the latter. The racers came on the track shortly after 3 o'clock, both being greeted by prolonged cheering. Geers, driving Lord Derby, won the toss for position and chose the pole.

After scoring three times, during which Geers showed a disposition to hold back Lord Derby, starter Walker gave the word to go. The Boston horse outstepped Lord Derby from the first. He took possession of the pole at the first turn and held it all the way. The horses were about a length apart until the homestretch was reached. As they came toward the wire Lord Derby broke and Boralma came under the wire four lengths ahead in 2:08. Loud cheering marked the finish of the heat.

The horses got off promptly in the second heat and Boralma shot to the front and kept the lead until he reached the distance pole, when he broke and Lord Derby won by two lengths in 2:09½. In this heat Boralma showed signs of lameness.

In the third heat Boralma once more took the lead at the start, but his advantage was short lived. He broke at the first turn and again at the stretch. As the racers came toward the wire it was plainly evident that something serious had happened to Boralma, for he went to pieces, and Geers pulled Lord Derby in order not to distance his unlucky rival and allowed Boralma to come within a length of him at the wire. Time, 2:18½.

As soon as the heat was over the announcer called for a veterinary surgeon. Dr. Low of Boston responded, and found that Boralma had been so badly injured that he could race no more that day. With the consent of the judges he was then drawn. In order to fulfill the requirements of the match, Lord Derby trotted the next heat alone and was then awarded the purse. After the last heat had been trotted Lord Derby, accompanied by a runner, trotted an exhibition mile in 2:08.

After the accident Boralma was taken to his quarters and Dr. Low set to work on the animal. He told a reporter that the wound was the result of the horse overreaching, and that the gash cut in the leg was four inches in length. He was unable to say if the horse had been permanently injured.

T. D. Marsh, who drove Boralma, said he was unable to tell just when the accident occurred, but was of the opinion that it occurred at the three-quarter pole. John Roach, Lawson's representative, said that the injury to Boralma would undoubtedly prevent the race between the Boston horse and The Abbot at Charter Oak Park on August 30th.

In addition to the match race there were three other races on the card and some very fast time was made.

In the 2:09 class pace Joe Pointer, the fast son of Star Pointer, was a starter and the favorite. He won the first and third heats in 2:08½ and 2:09½, Sphinx S. winning the second in 2:08. This is a new record for both horses.

In the 2:11 class pace there were five starters, and Don Derby, a five year-old stallion bred at Oakwood Park Stock Farm in this State and an own brother to Diablo 2:09½, covered himself with glory by winning in straight heats in the fast time of 2:08 and 2:07½.

The day's sport closed with the 2:14 class trot, in which seven horses faced the starter. The King was the winner in straight heats, the time 2:13½ and 2:13.

The Horses of Mexico.

The native horses of Mexico are in general small; but they are tough and hardy, and are capable of much hard service, both under the saddle and in light vehicles, though comparatively few are ever broken to harness. Farm work is nearly all done with oxen, and for freighting and road service to coaches mules are used almost exclusively. Brood mares are kept in large numbers on many ranches, from 1 to 500 or more. They are driven in once a year in order to brand the colts and shear the manes and tails, the hair being used for ropes. As a rule a mare never has a bit in mouth during her entire life, and nothing whatever to eat except wild native grasses. As the mares are small, of course the mules are also, but are capable of great endurance. Little care has heretofore been taken in the selection of sires, either stallions or jacks, though there are a few stallions from the United States and a few Spanish jacks. On many ranches the males run at large with the mares the entire year, in which case, of course, they have nothing but the wild pasture. Some of the more careful breeders take up their jacks and stallions the first of the year and feed them for three or four months, and then turn them loose again. Wild mares in this locality are worth from $10 to $15 per head in droves of 25 or more.

A native horse in good order and well broken either to harness or saddle is worth about $40, and mules three or four years old, entirely unbroken, just off the range, and that have never tasted grain, are worth from $40 to $50. The local demand takes nearly the entire supply. Whenever there is a surplus there is a ready market in the City of Mexico at a somewhat higher price. Last year a man drove a lot of three-year-olds to Mexico and sold them at $55 per head. Distance, 700 miles; cost of driving, pasture on the way, feed and expenses attending sale in Mexico and fare home in cars, less than $4 per head.

Imported horses from the United States do well when given the same feed and attention to which they have been accustomed; but they will not thrive the year round in the wild range. They do well for about seven months of the year, but for the rest of the time must have good stalk pasture or a little grain. Native-born colts from imported sires and dams do better, but even these need some supplement to the wild pasture. Half breeds—that is, colts from imported sires and native mares—do much better. I think two or three crosses would produce an animal very far superior to that which we now have, one which would do well on the range; but there should be a continuous and prudent selection of sires.

Mexico takes great pride in her cavalry. In Mexico City, on Independence Day, which is usually observed with considerable pomp, one of the most remarkable features of the long procession is a body of several thousand cavalry. The display they made was well worth seeing. A man who had seen three years' service in the United States army said he never saw a body of troops so well mounted as these. Nine out of ten of the horses came from the United States. The government has agents in the States nearly every year purchasing cavalry horses, the demand being for a larger horse than the average native. The Mexican Government is now considering a plan for the purchase of 200 or 300 good American stallions to be distributed among respectable and responsible breeders of the country, the government to retain ownership of the stallions and to have the right to purchase all male colts at a certain age.

There is also a good, constant and increasing demand for carriage horses in Mexico. These are nearly all imported, some from the United States and some from Europe. Good carriage teams are worth from $600 to $1000 per pair. The horse wanted is one of 1200 pounds or more, and a good looker. He must please the eye, and be one that can be used either to draw a carriage or as a substitute for a looking glass, one that "puts on style" and makes a show. Speed is not particularly in demand, action, yes, but if team could make a mile in from five to six minutes it would be all right so far as speed is concerned, provided other requirements were satisfactory. There is a demand for this class of teams in all the cities, but especially in the City of Mexico, which is said to have more fine driving equipages than any other city in the world. This is doubtless true as to any other city of its size, even though it should fall short of the entire claim. One great drawback to the handling of improved stock of this kind in Mexico is the fact that the peon laborer has no love for animals, and without love it is difficult to raise good stock of any kind with the best results.

Dolly Dillon and Anzella.

That entertaining writer, Volunteer of the Chicago Horse Review, said last week of the two great mares owned by the Santa Rosa Stock Farm:

In the excitement caused by the great finish between Lord Derby and The Monk in the second heat of the free-for-all, it was not generally observed that Dolly Dillon also trotted home at a record breaking gait. No one, that I heard of, timed her, but this is certain: At the half Lord Derby was all of four open lengths behind The Monk, and Dolly Dillon was two, perhaps three, open lengths behind Lord Derby. The two geldings were heads apart at the wire and the mare was not more than three open lengths back of them. As a consequence she trotted the last half faster than The Monk, whose time was 1:01½, and almost, if not quite, as fast as Lord Derby, whose time was 1:00½. She was trotting much faster than either of them at the distance, when the clip told on her; she swerved slightly, and came on a little slower. In the first heat she led to the three-quarters in 1:35, trotting the first quarter in 31½ seconds, the second in 31½ and the third in 31½ seconds, but The Monk carried her to a break at the distance and beat her easily in 2:07½. Her showing in the second heat was therefore a surprise to me, and indicates that the day will doubtless come when she will do something wonderful. It is to be regretted that Dolly Dillon is not such a racing tool as The Monk. Millard Sanders is obliged to rig her with a pole in order to make her carry her head straight, and she lays her ears back, not as a struggling racer pins his to his neck, but as if she bodged mischief, although she never made a break in the race except the pure speed break at the finish of the first heat.

Millard's other mare, Anzella, is now the mare of the hour. In her race at Detroit she was rank and lost the first two heats. At Cleveland her behavior was perfect. Her speed is truly intense. In the first heat she was fourth, several lengths back, at the half, and in the next eighth, around the turn, trotted around the leaders, who were themselves stepping at least a 2:08 gait, as if they were 2:30 trotters. At the finish of both heats, each trotted in 2:08½, she was away within herself. I saw Anzella race on the Great Western Circuit two years ago, when she made a record of 2:13½, and her improvement since then has been astonishing. She is a snappy, nervy going thing, carries her head checked rather high, and her legs are almost clean except for shin, ankle and hock boots behind. A few days ago Mr. Sanders priced her at $20,000, guaranteeing to show 2:06 with her.

Big Price for a Show Horse.

For a price that has rarely been equaled in the sale of a heavy harness horse, Frank Jay Gould last week parted with his noted prize winning high stepper, Burlingham, to W. D. Grand, of the American Horse Exchange. The exact amount paid for the horse was not disclosed, but it is known that Mr. Gould has been holding him at $10,000, and it is the opinion of downtown dealers that the record price was pretty closely approached.

When the sale was announced the rumor gained circulation that Mr. Grand had bought the stallion to take abroad and exhibit at the English horse shows, but it is generally understood that the purchase was made for James Hobart Moore, of Chicago, who owns one of the most extensive stables of prize winning high steppers in this country.

Burlingham's record in the show ring stamps him as one of the best big horses of his type now living. In single and double harness he won four championships and twenty-five blue ribbons within one year after making his first appearance in the ring. He gained much prominence at the National Horse Show of 1900 by defeating all comers for William C. Whitney's special prize of $500 for coach horse sires.

Burlingham is a bay stallion, 15.2½ hands high, by Gebhardt, 2:23, son of Kentucky Prince. He was developed and brought out by Strauss & Hexter, who sold him and his mate to Mr. Gould for something like $10,000.

The Chicago Horseman thus speaks of Darkway, the black pacer that Ed Gaylord, of Denver, purchased a few months ago from the Oakwood Park Stock Farm: "One of the most observed pacers that is going down the Grand Circuit is in the stable and owned by the popular Denver horseman, Edwin Gaylord. He is called Darkway. His sire is Steinway, dam by Electioneer. It is not the intention of Mr. Gaylord to start him the present season. He is along for educational purposes only. Mr. Gaylord worked him a mile last Thursday in 2:13½."

THE AUCTION POOL SYSTEM of betting on harness races, once so popular with racegoers in California, can be again placed in favor with the public if the associations conducting racing so will it. A much different condition of things prevails at the present time on race tracks however than in the past and the management of harness meetings should realize this fact. It is not alone in California that the habit of making large bets, which at one time generally prevailed, has diminished. In the East and even over in England, where millionaires are supposed to be as thick as leaves in Valambrosia, the falling off in large wagers has attracted the attention of all who have investigated the conditions existing at race meetings. A select committee of the House of Lords, appointed to inquire into the increase of public betting among all classes, and whether any legislative measures are possible and expedient for checking the same has made a report.

The committee begin by stating that, after "hearing much evidence, they are of opinion that betting is generally prevalent in the United Kingdom, and that the practice of betting has increased considerably of late years, especially amongst the working classes, whilst, on the other hand, the habit of making large bets, which used at one time to be the fashion amongst owners and breeders of horses, has greatly diminished. Betting is not confined to horse racing, but is also prevalent at athletic meetings and football matches."

The report goes on to make a number of observations and recommendations, "which all in all lean fairly to the voice of the people," realizing that betting cannot be suppressed. The committee agrees, however, that betting should be confined to the tracks and when that is done find little to condemn in the sport. All realize that racing without the opportunity to wager on the results would have so little attraction for the public that it could not be carried on to any extent, and as the auction and mutual systems of betting are the fairest, they should be the ones employed. Sellers of auction pools whose experience was all obtained in the "old days" when money was in the hands of men who liked to wager it in large sums, are almost unanimous in the opinion that the bookmaker has made small bettors out of the public; but while bemoaning this fact they have done nothing to regain their lost patronage—on the other hand, have unconsciously done all they could to drive the public to the books. At nearly every meeting where an attempt has been made to sell auction pools in California, during the past few years, a bid of less than $20 has often been refused for first choice and never one of less than $10. Now there are many people who attend race meetings who enjoy "having a bet down," but $5 is their limit, and consequently they go to the books, being refused a ticket at such an insignificant price in the auctions.

If at the first meeting to be held this year the auctioneer will start selling the choice to the highest bidder even though the bid is not more than two dollars, we believe he will find that the pools are rapidly filled and by the close of the day a large sum will have passed through the box. It is a fact which it is no use to deny that large bettors do not attend the races in this State, except during the winter running meetings, and even then the game is principally kept up by those whose average wager on their choice is not over five dollars. The old plan of demanding from $20 to $50 for choice on a race is no more popular than the old custom of demanding 25 cents for a drink or cigar at the bar. The custom of making large wagers has become obsolete except on the Grand Circuit and in a few of the big cities where wealthy men like to wager against one another's judgment. Managers of race meetings must be prepared to meet the new conditions if they would make their meetings popular with the general public.

MCKINNEY 2:11½ left for his new home at Bloomington, Indiana, last Saturday morning in a handsomely fitted up car on which was the inscription "McKinney 2:11½, champion sire of the world." In the car when the train pulled out from the Oakland mole was his new owner, Mr. H. B. Gentry, proud of his recent purchase and already deeply in love with the grand stallion that was in the very pink of condition. To the writer, who has seen McKinney nearly every year since he was raced, the son of Aloyone never looked better. He was in good flesh, and his coat shone like satin. At Mojave Mr. Gentry was joined by Dr. P. O. O'Rear, a prominent veterinary surgeon of Indianapolis, who came to California to inspect McKinney for Mr. Gentry, and who had been spending a week in this State. It was at Dr. O'Rear's suggestion that Mr. Gentry asked for a price on McKinney, the two gentlemen agreeing between themselves several months ago that he was the greatest stallion in America. While in San Jose Dr. O'Rear purchased the very handsome broodmare Our Lady by Nearest 2:22½ (full brother to John A. McKerron 2:06½), dam by Anteeo, grandam by Venture 2:27½. Our Lady is a show ring mare in looks and has at her side a four months old filly by McKinney and is again in foal to him. Both Mr. Gentry and Dr. O'Rear were in love with California and had nothing but praise for its climate, its soil, its horses and its people. Mr. Gentry, who has four big shows on the road in the Eastern States, tells us he will bring the largest and best to California next year. He is known as the leading trainer of horses and dogs in America, and has accumulated a large fortune in the show business, having started with nothing and made his way to the front by his own energy and ability. He aims to own the greatest breeding farm in America and to make it a paying investment, his idea being to start with the very best to be had and then breed up. We hope his venture will be most successful and if he chooses as well with his mares as he has with his stallion he cannot fail. There will always be a warm place in the hearts of Californians for McKinney, and his future will be watched with great interest by everyone.

OAKWOOD PARK STOCK FARM, from whence come so many champions, will sell about sixty head of standard bred mares and horses on Thursday, August 21st, at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city. These horses are sons and daughters of Chas. Derby 2:20, Steinway 2:25½, Arner (full brother to Diablo 2:09½ and Don Derby 2:07) and Prince Red, a son of the great Red Wilkes. There will also be offered a few choice broodmares in foal to the best stallions on the farm. All the horses offered will be well broken and no one can miss it who attends the sale and purchases a few. A good filly or broodmare by Chas. Derby or Steinway will be a valuable acquisition to any farm in California, as the blood of these two great sires is getting more valuable every year.

SCOTT HUDSON is the biggest money winner on the Grand Circuit this year and since he won all the races on the card, four in number, one day at Cleveland, his system of caring for horses has attracted much attention. Murray Howe, Secretary of the Memphis Association, and one of the most observant of all the trotting turf writers, notices that Hudson uses Dr. Smith's Vita Oil. Here is what he wrote in the last Horse Review: "I notice that in doing up his horses Hudson follows a system that is all his own. During the race he uses an alcohol wash; right after the race this is followed by a liniment which is steamed in, and if the race is particularly hard he has them rubbed with Smith's oil just before they are put away for the night."

THE FRESNO FAIR is to be held at the same time as the Breeders Meeting and the harness racing program of the latter will be the best held in the State this year. An electric road is now in course of construction from the business centre of Fresno to the fair grounds, a distance of about one mile. If the new road is in operation by September 29th, the entire fair will be held at the Fresno fair grounds. At any rate, the live stock will be exhibited there and if the road is not completed the agricultural exhibit will be made in town. S. N. Griffith, of the electric road, has assured the Directors that his road will be running by that time without question. If it is completed by then, the entire fair will be held there and there will be night concerts to attract the crowds from town.

TIME HAS BEEN EXTENDED for closing the Bakersfield entries. August 20th is now the date set for closing and all who made entries August 5th should make a note of this. The 2:24 class trot, for which a purse of $750 was offered, has been changed to a 2:30 class trot. Otherwise the program remains the same. The list of purses offered is printed in full in our advertising columns to day. Bakersfield is on the circuit and the date is the week between Fresno and Los Angeles. The purses are very liberal. Send your entries to Henry Jastro, Secretary.

STEWART'S HORSE MARKET, at 721 Howard street, is one of the leading horse marts in San Francisco. Anyone wanting matched teams, single drivers or saddle horses cannot do better than leave an order with Mr. Stewart, the proprietor. He is one of the most reliable horse dealers in San Francisco and guarantees every horse he sells to be just as represented. It is this plan of dealing with buyers and sellers that has built up for him a large and increasing trade.

A New Champion in Sight.

Dan Patch, the unbeaten champion of last year, beat the record of his famous sire, Joe Patchen 2:01½, last Saturday at Columbus by a half second and now shares with Prince Alert the honor of being the third fastest pacer in the world, Star Pointer 1:59½ and John R. Gentry 2:00½, being the only horses that have faster records. The feat was a most remarkable one as McHenry, his driver, pulled the brown stallion up at the finish and there is no question but he could have gone the mile in two minutes flat or less if McHenry had driven him out. The quarters were as follows: 31, 29, 30½, 30½. The track was lightning fast and the weather calm when Dan Patch was brought out for the trial. He scored down once and the next time was sent away, accompanied by a runner. The first quarter around the turn was paced in 0:31. When he turned into the back stretch McHenry let him fly and the half was reached in one minute flat. The third quarter, around the upper turn, was paced in 1:30½, and the horse was going so easily when he straightened away for the wire that it was evident that he could not fail to break the record. About fifty yards from the wire McHenry began to pull Dan Patch and succeeded in partially stopping him before the mile was finished.

McHenry made the following statement to the Associated Press after the trial: "My intention was to drive Patch a mile close to 2:01½, but not quite reaching that mark, thus escaping the penalty of the record and leaving the horse in the 2:04 class. He was so good, however, and acted so easily that we made faster time than I intended. When I saw that he was certain to beat Joe's mark I tried to stop him, but could not slow him up in time. I am sorry now that I did not drive him out, for I am sure that he could have come the last quarter in 0:29 or better, equaling or lowering Star Pointer's record of 1:59½. He will do it before the season is over."

McHenry has arranged with the management of the Brighton Beach track to make the attempt next Saturday to lower the record of Star Pointer with this mighty son of Joe Patchen. With a good day and track and the horse feeling right, he will probably set the mark at 1:59 or perhaps a fraction of a second faster. It is a tremendous effort however for any horse, and every condition must be favorable or two minutes will not be beaten.

Dan Patch is the greatest pacer that has yet appeared as he has come very close to the world's record and is yet an entirely sound and young horse, having been foaled in 1896.

Dan R., winner of the 2:09 pace, is a horse standing nearly 16 hands, and is a wasp-waisted chestnut gelding that to look at would hardly inspire confidence in his lasting ability, but this idea is destroyed when one comes to sit and see him race for seven or eight heats, says the Horseman. Without any reflection on his driver's ability, it may be said that he has been called upon to go quite a number of unnecessary heats in the two races that he has won in the Grand Circuit. His breeding in both the top and bottom crosses is made up of Indiana's best pacing blood that has made so many of that State's horses famous. He is what is denominated by horsemen, a leg pacer, and something out of the ordinary must happen in order to make him break.

Grand Circuit Races at Buffalo.

The horses campaigning on the Grand Circuit are racing at Buffalo this week, the meeting having opened there on Monday. The first event that day was the 2:30 class trot for a purse of $1200, and it gave Rythmic, the blind horse, a chance to again demonstrate his ability to win over the horses in his class this year. The son of Oakland Baron dropped into the 2:10 list in the first heat, trotting it in 2:09½. He won the next two in 2:10½ and 2:13½ as he pleased.

Dan R., the hero at Cleveland the previous week of the fastest six-heat race ever paced, made the 2:08 class a straight heat affair in 2:07, 2:08½ and 2:05. New Richmond, The Bishop, Fred S., Wedgewood, Captain Sphinx, Chestnut and Martha Marshall also started. This was the race in which Sir Albert S. was expected to make his first start, but he was not in shape and was kept in the barn.

The 2:12 class trot went to Dan T. by Crawford, and he also took a place in the 2:10 list during the race. His heats were 2:11½, 2:09½ and 2:11½. The other starters in this race were Border, Belle Kaiser, Lady Thisbe, Red Princess, Hamward, Lady Geraldine, Hawthorne, Leola, Tessie S. and Iva Dee.

On Tuesday a big crowd saw Ed Geers' pacer Direct Hal make a three straight heat affair of the 2:24 class pace, winning easily in 2:07½, 2:08 and 2:07½. Behind him were Junius, King Charles, Tertimin, Free Advice, Beauseant, International Queen, Grasshopper, Vice Regal, Cherry Kiss and Hallick in the order named.

The 2:18 class trot gave The Roman another opportunity to show his speed and class. He won three straight heats in 2:11½, 2:12½ and 2:11½. Those behind him were Allie Wood, Baron Dillon Jr., Alla Brieve, Minka, Lauretta and Lord March.

Funston, the roan pacer that Sandy Smith purchased last year for a Pennsylvanian, won second money in the 2:30 class pace, in which but three horses started. Gold Brick won the race in straight heats, 2:11½, 2:09½ and 2:11½. Orrin B. was the other contestant. Funston is showing well and although he has not yet won a heat, has won several second and third moneys, and has been timed separately in 2:10 more than once.

There was great racing at Buffalo, on Wednesday, and fast time was made in all the events, the slowest heat of the day being 2:12½. Zephyr, the handsome four year old by Zombro, won the $5000 2:24 class trot right off the reel in straight heats, putting her record right in the same notch with that of her sire—2:11. She defeated seven good trotters in this race, Dulce Cor, Chase, Wentworth, Wilton Boy, Oxford Chimes, Hallie Hardin and Alfred Star. The blind horse, Rythmic, was entered in this race, but his owners declined the issue and he was scratched. Zephyr's heats were in 2:11, 2:11½ and 2:12½.

In the 2:10 trot Millard Sanders won again with Anzella in straight heats, the time being 2:10½ and 2:12½, both heats being easy for the daughter of Antrim. Edna Cook took second money, Antzella third and Dan Wilkes fourth. Behind these were Dr. Spellman and Ruth M.

The 2:14 pace went to Twinkle, daughter of the Sidney stallion Mercury. Twinkle won the fourth, fifth and sixth heats in 2:08½, 2:10½ and 2:10½. Roamer won the first and second heats in 2:06½ and 2:07½. Laconda won the third heat in 2:07½. Winfield Stratton, Prince Direct, Carl Wilkes, Joelisco, Dandy Chimes, Pauline Gammiss, Wilimont and Brown Heels also started.

Audubon Boy won the 2:06 class pace in straight heats in 2:06½ and 2:07. Fannie Dillard, Shadow Chimes, Hetty G., Riley B. and George also started.

The Buffalo meeting would have ended Thursday had it not been for a rainstorm in the afternoon which necessitated the postponement of the 2:14 and 2:07 trotting events after two heats had been trotted in the former and one in the latter.

The 2:18 class pace went to Greenline in three straight heats in 2:15½, 2:14 and 2:15. Buck Thorne, Cubanola and Lithopolis also started.

Don Derby knocked a quarter of a second off his record in the second heat of the 2:10 pace winning his race in straight order in 2:07½ and 2:07. Behind him were Billy H., Dandy C., You Bet, Carthage Girl, Daphne Dallas, Pinchem Wilkes, Maggie Hubbard, Terrace Queen, Don Riley and C. T. W.

Seven horses started in the 2:14 trot, Re-elected taking two straight heats in 2:15 and 2:12 before the rain came, and then the finish was postponed until Friday. The other starters in this race were Prince of Orange, Malborn, Alice Carr, Klondike, A. J. D. and Alice Russell.

The Monk, Dolly Dillon and Chain Shot were the only starters in the 2:07 trot. The track was heavy from the rain that began to fall after the horses were called and Chain Shot won the first heat in 2:09½ with The Monk second and Dolly Dillon last. The race then went over until the following day.

The Scarcity of Horses.

With all our American ingenuity and enterprise in manufacturing electric cars and automobiles to relieve the horse of the drudgery of increasing work and the cruelty of drivers, the horse is being advanced to a higher plane of utility and luxury. There is no longer a demand for the cheaper grades of street car horses. The African war took several thousand, but the armies of the world call for the better class of horses. The old cab horse, that stands in the streets day and night, is being supplanted by automobiles in cities where good pavements prevail, just as the horse was relieved from the cars by electricity; thus, step by step, the horse is being advanced, and we welcome every improvement in mechanical power as a blessing to the horse.

The growth of our cities and industrial centers increases the demand for horses of a better class. The big draft teams in our city streets indicate the prosperity in this country; and it is the ambition of our manufacturers to get the finest draft horses to be had. While our merchants and express companies are increasing the number of handsome active horses, the grocers and tradesmen utilize many of the cheaper animals. While a few wealthy people own an automobile they must have fine horses, and with the cheap price of vehicles in America, with so many big factories, almost everybody has a horse and buggy, surrey, or carriage, while all who can afford it have handsome coach and carriage horses—the prices of which are higher than ever before known. The demand for all the better classes of horses is far greater than the supply, because our farmers became discouraged six or eight years ago, and quit breeding, when panic prices were below cost of production, and the fear that the bicycle and electricity would soon displace the horse.

With the return of prosperity came the increased demand for horses, but a higher class and at higher prices. We now have an era of industrial horses and horses of luxury, never before known in the history of this country. After our civil war in 1865, we discovered we were horse poor, with millions of little trotters, mules and ranch ponies. We began importing draft horses, and later the large handsome coach horses, to increase the size and utility of our American horses. We imported these animals by the thousand from Europe to improve our own, more liberally than any nation has ever imported any pure breeds of stock, and when prices dropped the export buyers took 50,000 to 75,000 a year to Europe, until our prices last year got so high that they could handle but a few.

With the revival of commercial prosperity came the increased demand for good horses; and with no breeding for a few years, the horse buyers soon culled out the good horses, and we are now in the midst of a horse famine.

Farmers rallied to horse breeding as prices advanced, and our importers are again annually importing shiploads of pure-bred stallions of the Percheron or French draft breed, known in the cities as the Normans; from France some of our importers brought 200 last year, and brought still more this year. The importations of Belgians, English Shires and Scotch Clydesdales are all increasing for our draft horse production, while our importations of French coach, German coach and hackney horses is annually growing.

Eight to ten years ago, these stallions would not sell for more than $200 to $500; now they readily sell at $2000 to $5000—ten times as much. They are chiefly bought by companies organized to improve horse breeding in different localities of the horse breeding States: Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Missouri.

The draft horse is now the most profitable and most popular horse with the American farmer, who requires a good draft team for his farm work. The trotters are increased in size and utility by crossing with the large handsome coach horse.

The whole world wants more good horses. England, France and Germany cannot supply their cities and their armies. Russia, with 25,000,000 horses, has no good horses for export. America is the only country from which large supplies may be had, and when our increased horse production begins to mature, we can supply the world as well as our own increased market interests in all our growing cities. The export trade will always maintain good prices for our horses, and while many farmers may still raise scrubs, the enterprising American farmers get the best improved horses to be found in the horse breeding countries of the old world. Now they breed to suit the market demand for high class horses to supply the markets of the world.—Scientific American.

Glory for Little Tobe.

The principal English horse show is the Richmond show, and that for 1902 was held last month (June 13-14). Its hero proved to be the famous little ex-American gelding Little Tobe 2:19½ by Pamlico 2:10, owned by Mr. Walter Winans, the well known American now living in England, who has taken so many fast trotters there in recent years. He has won many prizes with them at the British shows, but last month at Richmond Little Tobe won for him the coveted distinction of owning the champion light harness horse of England. This the son of Pamlico accomplished by winning the 100 guineas ($500) Challenge Cup for best single harness horse, any height, pace and action considered. This cup is the gift of Max Waechter, Esq., high-sheriff of Surrey, and to become the property of any exhibitor, must be won by him three times in succession by the same horse or five times not in succession. In both 1900 and 1901 the cup was won by the grey ex-American gelding Piloteer 2:23½ by Pilot Medium, and in advance it was believed certain that he would this year win it for the third and last time, making it the property of his owner, Mr. H. Simms. Piloteer had an unbeaten record in the show rings of England, but he was decisively beaten by Little Tobe, who outshined him separately, and, when the judges required the two to step together, outspeeded him easily. This, however, was not all Little Tobe's achievement at Richmond, as he also won the Martin Cup of £60 ($300) offered for the best American bred horse imported into England between June 15, 1901, and June 13, 1902.

Little Tobe is one of the best known American trotters ever sent to England. He is a bay gelding, now twelve years old, by the great dead stallion Pamlico 2:10, out of a pony mare of no breeding. He is considerably under 15 hands in height, and for his inches was one of the fastest trotters ever in training. His record of 2:19½ was made in 1884, but in several races he was timed heats below 2:15. It used to be a standing joke among turf writers as to how many times he would equal his record, and if he would ever be allowed to lower it. But, although he unquestionably could have beaten 2:19½ at one time by a wide margin, and although he won forty-three heats in 2:30 or better, he never did it. At one time he was converted to the pace and considerable time wasted in training him at that gait, but the experiment was not a success. He was kept entire until a few seasons ago, and last fall, as he was so shapely and snappy, he was metamorphosed into a show horse, and was a winner at the New York Horse Show. It was soon after that he was purchased for Mr. Winans, at a stiff price, and went across the pond, where he has just won so handsomely.

This is the "polite sarcasm" used by "Columbus" of the Western Horseman when referring to the timing done at a recent meeting in his section: "While at Hastings, Neb., last week the writer was forcibly impressed by the slowness of every watch held in the judges' stand. Now, while we do not claim to be an expert at timing trotters or pacers, it has usually been our lot to come within a fraction of a second of the time officially announced at a majority of the meetings attended in the past. At Hastings our watch was certainly in need of repair, as it invariably made the miles from one and a half to two seconds faster than the watches held by the official timers. We shall give this watch another trial, and if it serves us any more such capers it shall be exchanged for a 'Waterbury.'"

Trouting.

The speckled trout,
The mottled sprite of mountain brooks,
That hides 'neath rocks and covered nooks,
So shy of human kind and hooks,
Darts in and out,
And snaps anon the heedless fly,
And luckless hopper floating nigh.

My youthful joy,
To see the silvery beauty glide
In babbling brook and shyly hide,
Whenever I came the brook beside;
Then coax him coy,
With worm hid hook or other bait,
Impatient that he made me wait,
But in the end to land me straight.

The boy's delight
Is now the joy of manhood's prime,
When I would flee the tug and grime
Of office work and checked-off time;
In rubber boots,
With rod and reel, with laugh and shout,
To mountain river hurry out,
And cool my blood by landing trout.

[BY C. W. KYLE]

Some things suggest very forcibly their opposites. This is essentially true of July days in the interior valleys of California, at this season when the mercury mounts above the 100 degree mark.

At such times one's mind is apt to be filled with scenes of the higher mountains amid the lofty snow-crowned peaks, blue lakes set a ripple by cooling winds, foaming falls and white-lipped streams, tall pines with their favorite companions, the spruce, the fir and cedars shadowy grassy vales. You are going? How anxious you are to get away! The interval, drags by at the snail's pace. So it seemed to me a few days since.

The sun had scorched the foothills until their erstwhile verdure—of waving green presented the appearance of Etruscan gold as my companion and I viewed the scene from the train which slowly wound its way up the gradual incline, toward the little mountain town of Placerville, situated amid the world-famed gold fields of Eldorado county.

It was early evening when we arrived. The air was delightfully cool and pleasant. An hour or so was interestingly passed in company with Attorney Swisher, County Clerk Fisher, and, that most companionable of officials, Sheriff Bosquit, all of whom are ardent devotees of the rod and gun. We swapped lies, interspersed with refreshing glasses of Placerville's famous brew, and, after arranging with the best "whip" of the mountains for our start on the stage over the Placerville and Lake Tahoe route at 4 o'clock A. M., we went to bed to dream of the delights which we knew would be ours to experience during the next two weeks.

My companion, Mr. Fred Burnham of Folsom, was astir at 5 o'clock next morning and lost no time in calling me from dreamland. While dressing we heard the sharp crack of the whip and the rattle of the four-horse stage as it drew up to the door. We were soon bundled into the crowded stage and before the birds were awake we were fast leaving the still sleeping town. Joseph Ruply held the reins but not his tongue. Did you ever travel over this route with him? No? Then you have a unique experience awaiting you, should you ever do so. The wheels of the coach kept rolling rapidly, and it was well, else they could not have wound the yarns he kept spinning; stories of adventure, events which long since have become historical, tragic deaths, marvelous feats of skill and courage, known only to the brave pioneers of early days; encounters with savage and wild beasts, interspersed with glowing tales of the gold days of early times fell as regularly from his lips as the music of the hounds when on a hot trail. Each prominent tree and stone served as a monument commemorating some wonderful event. We reached the breakfast station. Some one has truly said that character is best revealed by the manner of taking food. The satisfaction of putting this saying to test was denied me, as all I observed was the well-nigh universal tendency of the ten persons, when seated, to exercise the sense of scent, when with one accord they arose and sought the fresh air, the gentlemen to "wet their whistle" and light a cigar, the ladies to regale themselves on ripe peaches and crackers as we continued our journey.

The route now became every moment more interesting; we pause at the Pacific House, twenty miles from Placerville, to receive and deliver mail. The aroma of the breakfast hour is still on the air. It brought to my mind the story of Mark Twain's "Observing Americans." When a young lady was questioned as to her visit to the Matterhorn, she turned to her mother and naively asked: "Ma, did we visit the Matterhorn?" "Oh, yes, dearest, don't you remember, there is where we enjoyed such excellent coffee." So I remember the Pacific House, though it stands in the echo of God's greater voicings which shadow the American river while it washes their feet, at points so distant, that its singing is lost amid the wealth of pines which cover the intermediate steep slopes, knowledge of its course being revealed by occasional glimpses of its silver gleamings. The mountain road here winds along the abrupt sides of a chain of mountain peaks, so great is the angle of the decline that at intervals retaining walls have been constructed to secure the roadway. At these points the river seems actually beneath us. Away up the frightful gorge the eye may catch the gleam of waters, white-beaten as the snows on the lofty and distant peaks which give them birth. Like silver cords they seem, lacing the green vesture over Nature's bosom. Lips are still, for the eyes are busy. We are rounding point after point in the most abrupt manner. Every turn in the road presents a new and still more impressive scene. "Whoa!" The horses are snorting and plunging wildly; the heavy stage creaks and groans; the leaders swerve toward the awful precipice. Every face is blanched with fright. The situation is awful! The driver, a powerful man, swings his whole weight to swerve the lead team to the right against the upper incline of the mountain, simultaneously locking the brake with his feet. The horses rear and fan the air with their fore feet as they feel the force of the cruel bits. One instant and they hurl themselves up the steep bank and turning back, the ribbons slacken and they double on the driver, as they kick and plunge and struggle, the stage careens toward the gulf, spins about as on a pivot—the off wheels of seasoned oak crash as if made of pine—the frightened horses drag the powerful driver from his seat throwing him full length, face downward, amid the rocks, but he clings with heroic tenacity to the ribbons. In the meantime gentleman have jumped from the stage and grasped the leaders by the bits and the horses are subdued. It was all done in an instant, but in that instant every person on that stage reviewed their past lives. What was the cause? It was a step in the world's progress. An automobile had shot around a sharp turn in the road without ringing the bell or giving other warning. A grizzly bear could not have terrorized the horses more. I want to see the auto come into general use but I shall in the meantime be very careful about traveling on mountain roads where the horses are not familiar with them. Mr. John E. Sexton of the automobile party did the "handsome" by taking all passengers and light baggage on to Riverton, where Mr. Rupley made such arrangements as to cut our delay down to about one hour. On we went, thankful and very merry in the thought that no one had been seriously injured. About 4 o'clock P. M., we arrived at one of the most picturesque scenes on the route—Strawberry valley. This was our initial destination and within less than an hour we were busily engaged in whipping the upper waters of this fork of the American river for trout. Our first evening's catch was very satisfactory, some twenty beautiful pan fish having been brought to creel. Did we enjoy eating them as well as we did catching them? Indeed we did, for the chef at this summer resort has the knack of preparing trout for the table so as to repeat the delight which the angler feels when he sees them curl for the fly in the foaming stream. Mr. Burnham and I spent two weeks at this point and immediate vicinity. Those were delightful days, full of good fellowship and splendid sport. We would start out in the morning with creels filled with lunch and "A. B. C. Bohemian." The latter would be placed to cool at some convenient point in the running stream, the lunch depending from some convenient bough. Then we would separate and whip all likely nearby places, returning about midday to enjoy a feast, which whetted appetites made most delicious. Beer in the mountains, where one is all but exhausted by pleasurable exertion, is surely the wine of the gods. The country is very wild and often we scared to cover covers of grouse and mountain quail. What glorious shooting will that region afford about the first of October! We visited Echo lake which lies on the crest of the Sierras and found it to be one of the most lovely lakes in the entire range. The body of the lake is about one and three-quarters of a mile in length by an average breadth of half a mile. It slopes to a depth that has not been measured. Soundings have been made to the depth of eight hundred feet without touching bottom near its center. The trout here taken run on the average about a pound, varying from one-half to three pounds. They are as gamey a fish as one could ever wish to hook. There is some fly fishing in the upper lakes at suitable hours but most of them are taken with the spoon. Our first day at the lake was a most successful one, owing to splendid conditions and the courtesies extended to us by Prof. John Becker of Sacramento, who enjoys from two to three months each season with his mother, wife and friends at that point. We were strangers and he took us in. He fed and sheltered us. We were unacquainted with the caprice of the trout and he furnished us the proper lure; we had no boats and he loaned us his own; we made our stay longer than we anticipated and our consequent thirst he assuaged! What more could he do? Nothing. We only had to press the button, he did the rest.

Echo lake is fittingly named. From a certain point about the center of the lake, by throwing the voice of other sound into the natural amphitheater of the hills as high as ten distinct echoes can be heard. The strange weirdness of it all produces peculiarly pleasing sensations. To attempt to fittingly describe the lake and its enchanting surroundings would require much more space than can be given to this article. This mountain twin is a marvel of beauty.

One almost invariably meets pleasant people in the mountains. At Strawberry were Mr. Willis, the well-known newspaper writer of the Sacramento Record-Union; with him was his estimable wife and daughter, also Miss Elizabeth Winn, Mr. C. W. Boyne of San Francisco, Mrs. S. P. Sessions and Miss Sessions of Oakland, Mr. George De Golia and son, Mr. and Mrs. Williams and daughter, and Prof. Samuel Adelstein of San Francisco. After the first few days some of the above-named sojourners would be taken by the obliging proprietor, Mr. W. J. Martin, by team to one of the chosen fishing lakes or choice points on the river for a day's outing. On the 20th of the month a party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Willis, Miss Willis, Miss Winn, Professor Adelstein, Mr. Fred Burnham and the writer enjoyed a rare day's outing on the banks of the river near the foot of the meadows. It was an ideal day, in an ideal spot. The great cliff which arises almost perpendicularly for 1500 feet on the right of the valley overshadowed the scene. On the opposite side a long pine-dotted mountain falls but little below the great cliff's elevation, shutting in, as it were, the beautiful scene. Stories were told, songs were sung and poems recited, luncheon enjoyed, and then came the great treat of the day, which was the marvelous performance of Prof. Adelstein on his favorite instrument, the mandolin. The mandolin has never been a source of great pleasure to me, but I found I had never before listened to it when touched by a master hand. Selections from Chopin, Mendelssohn, Bellini, Verdi, Schuman, Schubert and Hauser delighted our senses and mingling with the duet of wind and brook wooed to the silent attention which is wisdom's own. It was a revelation of feeling and harmony which filled to overflowing the measure.

The tall sentinels of the mountains were signaling the approach of evening ere the music ceased, and we regretfully quitted the charming scene. Next morning we commenced our descent into the lower regions a la Dante's Inferno. We have now reached a point where the mercury indicates 110° in the shade. Shall not the former scene remain with us as a comforter? So mote it be.

Sportsmen's Annual Dove Stews.

Two sportsmen's outings last week will keep alive kindly memories for those lucky ones who were present. On Saturday the Grass Valley Sportsmen's Club held high carnival at Indian Springs and on Sunday the Sacramento sportsmen enjoyed a "camp stew" at the Rancho del Paso.

The origin of the now famous camp stew held annually at Grass Valley is given briefly by the pen of T. J. Sherwood, of Marysville, a keen sportsman and lover of nature.

"The first of the outings was near Grass Valley, November 12, 1873, and it was named 'Frog Breakfast,' and it was so named because more than two hundred frogs were consumed by those present. Since that date, almost twenty-nine years, Mr. Sherwood missed only one of the annual outings. The origin of these outings was a suggestion of William Watt, of Grass Valley, who was killed sixteen years ago near North Bloomfield, where his team ran away. At the frog breakfast in 1873 there were five invited guests from Marysville—Judge C. E. Filkins, C. W. Sheidel, Dr. S. T. Brewster, A. C. Bingham and T. J. Sherwood. The three first mentioned died years ago, as also did General John Addison, of San Francisco, the only other invited guest. The original members were William Watt, David Watt, Dr. William McCormick, Robert Watt, Judge A. B. Dibble, C. W. Smith, J. K. Byrne, W. K. Spencer, A. B. Brady, Ira A. Eaton, Joseph Perrin, T. W. Sigourney, Reuben Leech, S. D. Bosworth, Peter Johnston, H. H. Bigelow, George Johnston, Stephen Moore, Samuel Granger, S. P. Dorsey, William Hamilton, Dr. James Simpson, Dudley Hoyt, S. W. Lee, Jules Fricot, Andre Chavanne and Louis Chavanne.

The following year the outing was at a point two miles east of Spenceville and it was arranged by William Watt as chief commissary, who was assisted by two cooks and a bottle washer. The same gentlemen mentioned in the foregoing as invited guests from Marysville were present on this occasion except Bingham, and in his stead W. G. Murphy made up the party of five. Every man was required to report in camp at 10 o'clock A. M. and contribute their game to the pot. Each hunter brought in game. The two having least were Joe Perrin and W. G. Murphy. One contributed a crow and the other a magpie. There was game in plenty for a broil and camp stew, with singing and drinking until six o'clock in the afternoon, when the farewell was said and the gentlemen departed for home. At that meeting it was resolved to renew the obligation each year, and it has been an annual occurrence since. But time and the reaper have depleted the ranks and to-day not half of the gentlemen here mentioned are living."

What took place last Saturday during the gathering at Nature's shrine under the greenwood tree is best told by the Grass Valley Union and Herald.

Tired, dusty, but supremely happy, with large grins expanding their features, the local people, visiting sportsmen and guests who were fortunate enough to attend the annual camp stew and outing of the Grass Valley Sportsmen's Club came in Saturday evening from the scene of festivities at the Driesbach ranch.

In the history of the club it is very doubtful if a more successful outing was ever held. Some may have been more largely attended, but none was ever jollier.

There are not sufficient adjectives in the English vocabulary to do justice to the fun and cheer of that outing. One word—"success"—tells it.

At early dawn Frank Dulmaine and Ed Morgan crawled out of their downy couch in a neighboring barn, and started the fires for breakfast, while awaiting the early birds. While they were in the midst of their culinary achievements, who should appear on the scene but Jerry Goodwin, all the way from You Bet. Jerry lugged out a big box from his rig, and to the glad surprise of the cooks brought to light about 800 fine trout which he and "Bob" Richardson and one or two others had captured the day before for this event, without taking the club into the secret.

"Jack" Connelly was pressed into service as chief trout fryer, while Dulmaine and Morgan prepared the rest of the good things and superintended the job generally, leaving no detail unfinished. When the hungry gathering appeared for breakfast, what it didn't do to those trout wouldn't be worth telling. Goodwin was surely "it" in the camp from that time on. Of course, there were other things, including steaks, chops, brains, sweetbreads, sliced tomatoes, baked and boiled potatoes, coffee that beat the kind mother used to make, cream, milk and salad—yes, they really did have salad for breakfast.

The savory dishes were spread on two tables, and it was estimated that over a hundred were present for the morning meal. And they were hungry, too. The way food disappeared would have given a boarding house keeper heart failure and put a section hand to shame. It is wonderful what an early morning ride through the pine woods will do for one's appetite.

Then the dishes were washed and preparations made for the great event—the camp stew which comes but once a year.

Several big kettles were put on, fires builded and hunters went out to scour the woods for game. Some had been out in the early morn and their bags of doves and rabbits were quickly dressed and ready for the big kettles. As fast as the game came in it was dressed by a force which took charge of that work.

From Marysville came a surprise. Frank A. Leonard and T. J. Sherwood, accompanied by Dr. J. Crawford and John K. Orr of Berkeley, drove up with a hundred doves and a lot of rabbits. These went into the stew in a hurry.

While Dulmaine, Morgan and their assistants were preparing the "big eat," arrivals came in a steady stream until shortly after noon, adding at least fifty more to the gathering.

Hay had been provided for the horses, and the guests as they arrived were given a badge and led up to the liquids, where everything from soda to long thin ones with foam on them was to be had for the asking. It was the club's treat.

During the afternoon the time was enlivened with song, story and amusing sports. Several blue rock matches were arranged and the way some of the shots failed to bring down their birds created no little amusement. In the first match Cole bore off the honors with five straight breaks, Bourne being next with three, Hortman and Beckley each scoring two. Cole brought down two in the second round, with eight entries. Bourne bagged three out of five and was declared the victor. Hortman failed to hit a bird in his five times up. Willis Clinch smashed two, Hull two, Beckley one and Luke and Swift two each.

The attorneys present were pitted against each other in a fifty-yard dash. Forbes of Yuba and Jones and Austin of this county toed the scratch.

John Glasson sent them off. Instead of using a revolver he used a dishpan and a club. The judges decided the race a dead heat and in the next trial Jones was left at the post and failed to come within the money, Forbes was declared winner. Time, thirty seconds.

The mining superintendents were also rounded up and entered. They put "Bob" Walker out in the finals, because he lost his breath the first heat and wanted to rest until he recovered. Hull, Mainhart, Eddy, O'Connor, Howard and Walker were inveigled into the race. Hull won by twenty yards and the official timekeeper announced him as seven minutes ahead of the remainder of the bunch.

It was worth going the distance to see the erstwhile dignified Dr. Crawford of Berkeley humming a sweet bass accompaniment to the thin, ear-splitting tenor of a Swede, whom somebody christened "The Swedish Nightingale." He (the Swede) sang in his own language and—but that's getting ahead of the story.

The next event was the time-honored stew. One lone table holding a hundred diners was quickly filled, while a similar one met the same fate. It was guests first, and the club members set about serving up an appetizing mess whose aroma filled the air with assurance of a feast fit for any old god that ever sat upon Olympus or anywhere else.

President Dulmaine made a neat little speech, stating he hoped the stew would be equal to expectations, and he retired amid a shower of applause.

Dr. I. W. Hays was voted the head of the table. He accorded the guests a hearty welcome in behalf of the club, explained briefly its history and concluded by expressing the wish that he might see the same faces present next year.

T. J. Sherwood of Marysville who, by the way, has missed but one of these events since the club organized, responded in a charming little speech, combining wit and wisdom most aptly. Frequent applause interrupted him.

Dr. Crawford was introduced, and as he had proved himself the proverbial "jolly good fellow" during the day, he was greeted with an outburst of applause. He remarked that this was his first experience at such an affair, but he had had such a royal good time that he intended to be on hand next year if Providence permitted him to live that long. He made a big hit in his witty way and concluded by asking for three cheers for the Grass Valley Sportsmen's Club. They were given with a roar that shook the forest.

The assemblage adjourned with cheers and songs and renewed pledges of friendship.

The praiseworthy function last Sunday, which was the initial meeting of what is destined to be an annual affair with Sacramento sportsmen, is best described by the capital city scribes:

The annual dove stew served up Sunday afternoon on the Rancho del Paso, under the auspices of the Capital City Blue Rock Club and the Del Paso Club, was a great success. No feast of the kind ever served in this section of the State could excel it. Every person who was fortunate enough to get a bid for the stew of Sunday will certainly be on the lookout for another one next year. The feast was spread upon long tables beneath a shed put up for the occasion near the clubhouse of the Del Paso Club. As the members of the two clubs had decided to invite their friends of the fair sex to be present, they had brightened up the buildings with American flags.

Dove stews have, of course, been served hereabouts, but never before on such an elaborate scale. Perhaps never more than a dozen persons ever before met together in the country for such an event. The hunters of the two clubs had been hard at work shooting the doves ever since the season opened, with the result that there were nearly 1000 birds on the ice in the clubhouse refrigerator ready for the cook to begin his work on Sunday.

But doves were not the only good things in the great ice chest. There were dozens of bottles of soft and cooling drinks and there were also several kegs of sparkling brew. About midday, when the invited guests started for the rancho, the weather was scorching hot, and many persons felt like turning back, but they kept going and finally reached the club house, almost fagged out. But the banquet which followed at three o'clock fully compensated for all the discomforts which had been undergone.

County Clerk W. B. Hamilton and B. H. Gallup, his chief deputy, and W. A. Eckhardt were up several hours before the lark and out at Brushy lake, near the club house, angling for black bass. They had splendid success, catching in the neighborhood of 100 pounds of the toothsome fish. "Billy" Hamilton, who is an ardent angler, one who would rather fish than eat, looked like the comic cartoons of Grover Cleveland, the modern Izaak Walton, as he perched his 300 pounds of flesh in the bow of his boat. Both "Billy" and Ben caught some beauties and had some hard tussles with the gamey fish, but Eckhardt won the first prize for the largest fish. He landed one bass weighing over six pounds. He said he thought he was lifting a ton when he was pulling it out of the water.

Lucien Faure, a member of the Del Paso Club, was chief cook, and he prepared a meal that will long be remembered. Of the black bass he made a chowder which could not be excelled. The fish were cooked in rare old wine and highly seasoned. But the dove stew was the main dish on the menu. The birds were cooked in an immense iron cauldron and the women closely watched Faure at his work. The birds were stewed in five gallons of fine wine, and then there were added potatoes, onions, gumbo, butter, a large quantity of garlic and other things which only a good cook knows how to use.

The feast was fit for anyone. No king ever sat before a more tempting spread. The first course was a fine salad, followed by fish cooked in a style that made every woman present and a great many of the men wish they possessed the recipe. Many of them tasted black bass for the first time, and it will be a favorite dish with them hereafter. The dove stew followed, and although 200 people sampled it to the best of their capacity, several hundred of the toothsome birds remained after all, appetites had been satiated.

The committee had taken out a huge ice chest and put in a ton of ice, and an abundance of soft drinks had been provided, and as the temperature of the atmosphere was high, the cooling draughts were most palatable.

The arrangements were perfect and carried out without a hitch. Judges J. W. Hughes and Peter J. Shields of the Superior Court, Judge S. S. Holl, Major Frank D. Ryan, George W. Jackson, John Mackey, J. Frank Brown, Stewart Upson, Fred Raschen, E. E. Panabaker, George Wittenbrock, W. B. Hamilton, Warren E. Doan, F. M. Newbert, John Morrison, John Blair and Fred Gotobed helped to receive the guests and entertain them.

The California Quartet, composed of J. H. Desmond, William Howe, Dr. Jerome Carroll and Charley Ellsworth, sang many popular songs; in fact, they were kept warbling nearly all the time.

Those who feasted at the rancho dove dinner will long for the time to roll around so they may be bidden to come again.

The Rationale of Deer Hunting.

Deer hunters, novices and occasional, also the experienced hunter, may find some very pertinent truths in what "Leatherstocking" states in the San Jose Mercury as the rationale of deer shooting. True, the writer's remarks pertain particularly to still hunting, but a deal of it is applicable to other methods of deer shooting.

The deer season is now open and scores of nimrods are out in the mountains in quest of the elusive game. They will climb in and out of canyons, crawl through brush, toil and sweat, go hungry and thirsty, and come into camp at night dead beat—for what?

Not for venison; they can buy better meat at the butcher's shop for no trouble and less money. For head and horns? The trophy is worth something to put up over door or mantel; but that gets to be an old story after the first two or three. But it is a sign and a token; the reward of effort. And here we come to the real meat of the matter.

Deer hunting is an encounter of wits; like a case in court or a debate in the forum. It is the energy, patience, observation, reason, skill and weapons of the man against the keen senses and instinct of the brute, and in two cases out of three, aye, nine out of ten, the latter will win.

Consider how many hunters go out on the ranges and how many deer are killed. Those who talk about the slaughter of innocent and defenseless animals are those who speak without knowledge. The deer is full of defenses and evasions; enough to test the quality of the keenest hunter. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat venison, and in the travail of thy brain also.

I read in a book lately that the modern, long-range rifle put the game at the mercy of the hunter; that the quarry would be struck down at a distance at which it could have no suspicion of approaching danger.

The writer may have known something about rifles and target shooting, but very little about deer hunting. Consider that the deer must be sighted before he can be shot. There's the rub. You may range the woods through a summer day, with deer all around you, and never get sight of one. You may hear him bounding through the brush, but he heard or smelt you first, and your chance was gone.

But suppose you do sight him, by good luck or wit, at long rifle range, it is another thing to hit him. Perhaps you could hit the size of him on a target at a measured distance, but that is another story.

You have only a guess at the deer's distance. At any considerable range you cannot judge within fifty yards of the true distance, and a misjudgment of that amount, with a rifle of the latest trajectory, will cause a miss. Then there is the shifting light, the dark background, uphill and downhill, and other contingencies which conspire against you.

Another writer, who knew more about deer hunting than the one before quoted, once remarked that if he had always carried a rifle that would not carry a foot beyond 125 yards he would have got more deer in his life. He realized that, hard as it is to get within short range of a deer, it is yet harder to hit one at long range.

Perhaps the uninitiated who have followed me thus far begin to realize that "still hunting" for deer is a pursuit to tax the mental and physical resources of the hunter. The initiated know it all too well.

Just so long as many men are of many minds, so long will some of them take keen pleasure in pitting their wits against those of the wild denizens of field and forest. It is merely one manifestation of that instinct to overcome obstacles which inspires all human achievement. And this I take to be the true rationale of deer hunting.

Fly-Casting Tournament at Stow Lake.

Under the auspices of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club a world's tournament commenced yesterday morning at Stow lake and will be concluded to-day. The affair will long be remembered in the annals of fly-casting as one of the most important meetings of the season.

A full and complete report of the tournament will appear next week.

This evening the club and guests will meet at the California Hotel, where an elaborate banquet will take place, after which the medals and prizes will be distributed to the winners.

Fish Lines.

Striped bass angling during the week has been very barren of results. The fish seem to have deserted for the nonce their favorite haunts around the bay.

The Garcia river, above the dam, is reported full of trout. The fish are in splendid condition and run from six to ten inches in size. J. H. Wolf and G. H. Traubles recently enjoyed a month's outing on the river.

Chase Littlejohn deposited July 30th 20,000 trout fry in the Fitzpatrick and Purissima creeks. The fish were brought from the hatchery at Sissons. It is estimated that it will be fully two years before the troutlets will grow large enough for the angler to catch.

R. L. Sloss, President of the Modoc County Game and Fish Association, has been notified by the Board of Fish Commissioners that 1000 black bass fry would be shipped the last of the present month for transplanting in Goose lake. The commissioners say 1000 will be ample to stock this body of water. They will heartily co-operate with the association in stocking the rivers and lakes of the county with all kinds of edible fish, and also assist in their protection. With 1000 bass in Goose lake they would supply the county in five or six years. There is a number of streams and other lakes in that section that will in the course of time be well thought of resorts by anglers. At present the principal means of transportation in the county, from point to point, is by stage.

Salt water fishermen find diversion at low tide along the rocky shores between Lime Point and Sausalito in catching eels. Some of these snaky fish have recently been caught that have weighed almost five pounds. The tackle used is simple but strong, a stiff piece of stout wire about a yard and a half long with a hook baited with raw beef on one end is poked about under the flat rocks and in the crevices. When the bait is seized by a ravenous eel, the wriggling fish is quickly whipped out of his retreat before he can entwine himself about anything that will give him a hold or anchorage and secured in a sack. The hook is taken from his mouth. Mr. Eel is left to his reflections and the eel hunt proceeds. These fish are said to be very savory and tasteful when dished after having been cooked in oil and served with a white wine sauce.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

Doves have been found in plenty in most every locality hunted since the opening of the season.

Bucks have been shot by a number of hunters who sought them since the 1st inst. The Marin county preserves did not furnish as many deer this season as have been found there in past years. Hunters have had to go further afield to get a buck this year.

Four young men from San Francisco, out on a camping trip, made too free use of their guns and were caught in the act of picking several quail near San Anselmo by Constable Agnew last Sunday. They put up $100 bail for their appearance before Judge Rodden at San Rafael.

That the experienced hunter does not always get a buck is one of the conditions of the chase, but, as sometimes happens, he loses the venison almost from under his nose, and the prize is, to his great disgust, taken by a novice, more the result of chance than any effort in woodcraft. Such an occurrence happened on Friday in the vicinity of Escalante. Dan Ostrander, F. W. Bell and H. Lybert a youth of fourteen years, had hunted the near-by hills all day and unsuccessfully. In the afternoon the boy, armed with a .22 rifle, strayed up the slope back of Escalante's vineyard. He was accompanied by a small Fox Terrier, which, under the impulse of boyish caprice, he sent into a bunch of brush. The little dog nosed about a few seconds and shortly barked furiously, following close at the heels of a young fork horn, which the boy shot and killed with his light rifle, without much ado.

Ray Barnett, a lad of thirteen years, saved his life last week after being bitten by a rattlesnake, near Bakersfield, where he was working. The reptile was coiled among some bricks in the shade of a tree, and was in the act of striking when Barnett laid his hand on the brick. Barnett heard and saw nothing until he felt a sharp pain in his right hand, and then came a rattle.

Not the least unnerved at the sudden attack, he realized that something must be done, and that quickly. Without a moment's hesitation he put his lips to the wound and sucked out the poison. He then got a heavy piece of string, and, tying it around the base of the third finger, which had received the sting, he ran to Kern, sucking out the poison in the finger as he ran. The first place at which he stopped was a saloon, and he was given six ounces of whiskey. He then hurried on to Dr. Kellogg's, where the wound was dressed.

When the finger was examined it was found to be cold and that the string had stopped the circulation of the blood. The venom had all been sucked out, and, according to a statement made afterwards by Drs. Kellogg and Taggart, it is believed that no bad effects will result. Further than being under the influence of the whisky taken the lad was not considered to be any the worse for his experience with the rattler.

AT THE TRAPS.

The Golden Gate Gun Club will hold the final club live bird shoot for 1902 at Ingleside to-morrow.

Ernest Tripp now holds the inanimate target championship of Indiana, having won this honor recently at Muncie with a score of 92 out of 100.

The Oak Park Gun Club had its closing shoot for this season at Sacramento, July 27th. J. Davey made the only 25 straight for the season. The score in the club race at 25 targets is as follows: J. Ralphs 20, Kern 20, E. Brady 20, D. Buell 21, J. Harvey 25, T. Schurr 22.

The Martinez Gun Club live bird shoot to-morrow will no doubt attract a large attendance of shooters from interior points. A number of local shooters propose to be present.

The program offered embraces three regular events: a six-bird race, entrance $2.50, $10 added, high guns, three moneys; a twelve-bird race, entrance 35, $35 added, class shooting, three moneys, and a six-bird race, entrance $2.50, $15 added, class shooting, three moneys. The price of birds will be included in the entrance money and deducted therefrom at the rate of $2 per dozen. The purses will be divided 50, 30 and 20%. The shoot will open at 9:30 A. M. on the base ball grounds; there will be a free bus for shooters to and from the grounds. A bus will meet the 9:20 train. Other events, time permitting, will be shot up.

The California Wing Club monthly live bird shoot took place at Ingleside last Sunday; fourteen shooters lined up for the club race at fifteen pigeons. P. J. Walsh won the monthly $25 cup on a straight score. The club purse of $50 was divided by Messrs. Justins, Sweeney, Donohoe, Nauman, Golcher and Feudner.

A twelve-bird pool shoot followed the club event; Feudner, Nauman and Justins divided the purse on straight scores.

The day was favorable to the sport and the birds supplied were an extra good lot. The scores were as follows:

R. C. Reed won the Putzker cup shoot with nineteen out of a possible twenty, at the meet held by the College City Club last Sunday afternoon at the North Berkeley trap shooting grounds. Mr. Reed shot remarkably well during the day. This gives Mr. Reed two wins to his credit, putting the cup within his reach, he having to win it once more to make it his permanently. Mr. Reed and Mr. Kerrison tied in the club shoot, each having twenty-two out of a possible twenty-five.

The cup race scores at twenty birds were as follows: Reed 19, Hutton 17, Leavell 17, Chick 16, Juster 16, Kerrison 15, McClain 13, Demeritt 12, Ruble 12, Putzker 6.

The club race scores at twenty-five birds were: Reed 22, Kerrison 22, Chick 21, Hutton 19, Demeritt 19, Ruble 17, McClain 16, Leavell 16, Juster 16.

The results of the regular ten bird shoot were:

Hutton 8, 9, 6, 10, 7; Juster 7, 5, 9, 8, 7, 7; Eish 4, 7, 7, 6, 2; Kerrison 7, 7, 8, 9; Reed 9, 10, 8, 10; Ruble 6, 4, 5; Demeritt 7, 8; McClain 5, 9; Putzker 6, 4; Chick 9, 6, 9, 10; Leavell 7, 10.

In the club race at twenty five birds, the scores were: Hutton 19, Juster 16, Keirnan 22, Reed 22, Demeritt 19, McClain 16, Chick 21, Leavell 16.

The five pair doubles shoot resulted as follows: Juster 8, Fish 6, Kerrison 4, Ruble 5, Chick 7, Leavell 6.

The fifteen bird pools resulted as follows: Hutton 13, Juster 10, Fish 9, Kerrison 15, 15; Reed 13, 9; Chick 14, 10; Leavell 10.

Fox Terrier affairs in Wandee Kennels are coming along pleasantly. Wandee Peril (formerly Richmond Peril) whelped two weeks ago to Champion True.

Another bitch, Sweet Music, has a litter of three puppies by Wandee Blizzard (formerly Lithian Blizzard).

There is now at the kennels a choice bunch of very clever looking young dogs from which it is expected a crack or two will materialize.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

C. F. Charles has a fine litter of beautifully marked Fox Terriers recently whelped by his bitch Nerve to the well known Vivacity.

Gabilan Kennels offer for sale some good Setter, Pointer and Cocker puppies, see announcement in kennel advertisements this week.

C Steinbach of this city has purchased a handsome English Setter bitch puppy by Count's Petrel out of Fairland Pet from Gabilan Kennels.

A handsome litter of blue Great Danes was whelped by J. L. Cunningham's Carmencita early this week. The little fellows are an extra fine lot and coming on nicely.

Gabilan Kennels young English Setter Danston's Pride has been turned over to John Lucas for his field trial training. Pride will be entered in the Northwest trials this fall.

A paragraph in last week's issue should have read—Champion Juanita, the bitch recently sent East to Montebello Kennels, is not heavy in whelp to the harlequin Montebello Caesar. The inadvertence was one of those happy conceptions of the compositor that will creep in at the wrong time. We make this correction to mollify Mr. Cunningham if we can and particularly to show the reliability of one of the Coast staff of correspondents whose statement that the bitch was in whelp was not warranted by any report to that effect from Mr. Cunningham. On the contrary Juanita is not in whelp and her owner has had his expectations upset and is out just so much temporarily.

Mr. Carl Waldeyer, of Wailuka, Maui, H. T., during a recent visit to this city became the owner of a very handsome and stylish Collie bitch, Bessie B., which he purchased from the College Kennels. Bessie is a white and tan, she was only shown at Oakland but was a winner. She is well bred, going back to such ones as Lady Ormond, Old Hall Captain, Tyke of Nesseldown, Champion Christopher, etc. She is in whelp to O. J. Albee's Max (Major Welton-Meg R.). Mr. Waldeyer will have one of the best Collies on the Hawaiian Islands in his kennels, the prospective litter should be the means of vastly improving the breed among the Pacific islands.

Raby Elvet, a slashing young Fox Terrier recently procured for Mr. Murphy by Mr. F. C. Hignett of Lostock Junction, England, has been installed in Woodlawn Kennels, where he has been placed at stud. This dog is a terrier from the ground up, has much quality and character, is well headed and possesses good bone and legs and strong body conformation. Elvet is by Champion Durham out of Richmond Laurel Leaf by St. Leger, out of Newton Vic. Champion Durham by Champion Dominee out of Champion Dame Fortune. Among Elvet's English wins are first puppy, novice and limit Barnsby, first, second and third New Brighton, third and first and special Ripon, two firsts and a second Chester, 1901. He was whelped December 2, 1900, has a white body and a white, black and tan head. He was bred by George Roper. The stud announcement appears in our kennel columns.

An Autumn dog show, if only for one day, held in the open air on a lawn and in connection with a swell society function is by no means a bad idea. It will no doubt tend to do much towards maintaining the interest in Coast doggy matters and would also, possibly, bring into camp some needed new recruits and enthusiasts.

Such was the contemplated doggy attraction outlined by two enterprising and progressive young fanciers—but alas, the old spirit of distrust thrusts its ugly head up and rumors are rife intimating that the show would be run by those interested and for their own purposes at the expense of those who would lend their aid and efforts in bringing off a successful exhibit.

A show for one day where the prizes would be simply in the nature of awards of merit and devoid of anything substantial in value would materially decrease expenses, so would the gratuitous services of the judges.

But, say the carping fellows, why shall we help to boost anyone's kennels at a society bench show. We will fill in and help make up the parade, the projectors have selected the battle ground and have an acquaintance and influence with the company who will be present and they will get all of the plums at our expense. Their prestige and methods in disposing of dog junk, present and future, will temporarily leave us out in the cold and possibly in the end have the effect of dampening the ardor of new fanciers, and so on ad nauseum.

We must say that it will be a happy day for Coast dogdom when the knockers' club goes out of existence and fanciers who have the advantage of time and money and who are doing everything they can for the advancement of the fancy and their interests, will be supported and appreciated.

THE FARM.

The Telephone For Farmers.

J. E. Moss read an interesting paper on "The Rural Telephone" before the recent Farmers' Institute at Grand Junction, Ia., in which he gave much valuable information that might be read with profit by every farmer in the State. Mr. Moss told of a few of the advantages of having a telephone in every farm house, and then said the best recommendation the rural telephone had was the fact that wherever they have once been put into a farmer's house that farmer could not be induced to get along without one. In the Scranton Mutual line there are forty miles of wire and ninety-two shareholders, while as many more want to join and have even offered a premium of $5 a share for stock. They cannot be accommodated, however, until another wire is put up, but the company intends to branch out and to eventually have a telephone in every farm house in Greene county.

Mr. Moss explained that the cost of building the mutual lines is very little, and after a man has once paid for his share of stock and has secured his telephone, the cost of maintenance is so little that the additional expense each year is practically nothing. The Scranton company has employed two young men to put in and take care of their phones, and they have a contract to put in and keep it in repair for two years. The cost of material for a mile of telephone line is less than $30. It takes twenty-seven telephone poles eighteen feet long, and these can be obtained for from 25 to 80 cents each, making the poles for the mile of line cost something near $20. It takes 160 pounds of number 12 galvanized wire at $3.40 a hundred pounds, making the wire cost $5.44 a mile, and the only other expense is 27 brackets and insulators at 4½ cents each, or a total of $2.21. This brings the total cost for the material up to $27.15, and when $3 or $4 is added for the expense of having the poles set, the cost per mile is complete. A line five or six miles long with ten or twelve phones will make it cost each shareholder $29 or $30, but after the first year the expense is practically nothing. The day is coming when a farm house without a telephone will be a rarity.

Neufchatel cheese is made by running buttermilk into a large tempering vat where it is heated to a temperature of 120 degrees Fahrenheit. Let it remain quietly in this vat until the buttermilk has coagulated and the casein settles at the bottom when the whey is drawn off from the surface. The curd left in the bottom of the vat is put into a press where the excess of moisture is expelled. It is then seasoned with salt and cumin and if it appears dry a little butter is added. The curd is then mixed thoroughly and printed into small prints which are wrapped with glazed paper so as to prevent the escape of moisture. It is a cheap production and sells well to the limit of the requirements of any market.

In a little feeding experiment to determine the value of alfalfa against a grain ration for dairy cows the former came out with flying colors. While the ration in which the protein was supplied by grain produced slightly more milk and butter than the alfalfa ration, still the latter produced the milk at 12.7 cents less the 100 than the grain ration. Although a cow can change grain protein into fat still it would not be wise to force her in this way.

A type of Shorthorn cattle has been raised to the dignity of a special breed in Lincolnshire, England. It is known as the Lincolnshire Red Shorthorns. A society was formed in 1895 to protect these animals. They are cherry red in color and of large size, but they are not quite so beefy as that of the ordinary Shorthorns. Their milking qualities are of high order.

IN AN ALFALFA FIELD.

Dairy Animals With World's Records.

Stockton can boast of having two dairy queens holding the world's official thirty-day butter record for their respective ages.

Representatives of the Agricultural College at Berkeley recently visited "Riverside Ranch," owned by the Pierce Land and Stock Company on Rough and Ready island, near this city, and conducted a series of official tests under the rules of the Helstein-Freisian Association of America. During that time they tested sixteen animals, fifteen of which were duly qualified for admittance to the advanced registry by making the necessary butter records. Their names will appear in the blue book along with other dairy queens throughout the country.

One of the above-mentioned animals is a two year old heifer imported by Messrs. Pierce when but a calf from Wisconsin—De Natsey Baker by name—who gave as high as fifty-nine pounds of milk per day, her milk testing as high as 4.1 per cent butter fat, making seventeen pounds and seven ounces of butter in seven days. Her thirty-day record was 1689 pounds of milk, making seventy pounds and ten ounces of butter.

The other, Fidessa by name, a four year old, who was bred at Little Falls, Montana, by ex-United States Senator Paris Gibson, gave 569 pounds of milk in seven days, making over twenty-five pounds of butter, her milk testing as high as 5.8 per cent. Her thirty-day record was 2393 pounds of milk, making ninety-one pounds and five ounces of butter.

This latter record has only been beaten by one cow, and that is a five year old cow known as Lillith Pauline de Kol, owned in New Jersey.

Fidessa has given her own weight in milk in two weeks.—Stockton Mail.

The mutton breeds, while producing very desirable wool, are not adapted to the rough life of the range because they have an inherited need of more care and better shelter than is necessary to the happiness of the merino. The advisability of cross-breeding for certain purposes is no longer questioned, but the difficulty is that this destroys the effects of generations of care expended in producing pure-bred varieties and the only effect of cross-breeding is to create a race of mongrels, which can not be depended upon to reproduce themselves with any degree of certainty.

How Sheep Will Help a Range.

In 1872 I took the first sheep on Trinity writes Robert Taylor in Denver Field and Forest. The range was then a wild place of dense masses of timber, pine, fir, cherry and hazel bushes and beautiful open glades. These glades were covered with a dense mass of vegetation that tangled my feet in the stirrups when riding through it and when dried in the fall formed a combustible matter which would carry fire like a dried grain field. In eight years of successive summer grazing the character of the feed changed.

New and valuable grasses came in, the feed shortened and thickened, and the last year in which I used it, the range easily carried fifty per cent more sheep than it did the first year. During that period I never knew of a forest fire on a sheep range, although I did see some very extensive ones on other parts of the mountains that were reasonably attributed to the carelessness of hunters and prospectors. In the summer of 1882 I took the pioneer flock of sheep on the Continental Divide, south of Rawlins, Wyoming, watering on the very heads of streams which find their way into two oceans. It Breeding High Class Cattle.

Never was there a greater demand for good sires and the encouragement for the improvement of herds than at the present day. The sales of pure bred cattle during the last three or four months prove this. The only way that we can produce a better grade of live stock—a grade that will top the market—is by improvement of the native herds by the infusion of pure blood, says Kansas Farmer. The ideal constantly recedes. When the breeder of to-day approaches the standard set a year ago, he will find that it had advanced a few points further. This means that he will never reach perfection. The apparently perfect animal will be found to be lacking in some small detail, and future generations will develop a type of animal far superior to the best produced by our most successful breeders of the present. The recent high prices paid for pure bred bulls are likely to discourage some farmers from buying a good bull. This should not be. Nothing should deter him from buying a good bull. It is not necessary to pay a thousand dollars for a good bull. The price does not cut such a figure. The progeny of a good pure bred bull costing $200 will readily sell from $2 to $5 a head more as calves or yearling stockers than

Horace F. Wilcox of Julian, California, reports an actual case of death from bots and describes his discovery as follows: "When the horse's stomach was cut open and spread out one hundred full grown bots were found attached. The place the bots had injured the most was a round spot one and a half inches across where about twenty of them were fastened. Each had a hole the size of BB shot at its mouth. This spot was so perforated with these holes that four-fifths of the surface was gone and the holes were eaten clear through. All the other bots were scattered about this part of the stomach and each had a hole at its mouth. It is the opinion of all the neighbors present at the death of the horse that these bots killed him."

Milk cows which are allowed to have access to stagnant water ponds during the summer will invariably waste in water to escape flies and to cool themselves. Not infrequently are they seen in water of sufficient depth to reach to their stomachs. In so doing their udders and teats are submerged for invariable lengths of time. If the water contains organisms detrimental to milk, contamination is sure to follow, as it is impossible to milk such a cow without particles of material falling into the milk and carrying with it innumerable was a great game country then with thousands of elk, deer and antelope.

The dead timber and burnt sage brush stumps showed plainly the effects of the fires that the Indians only a few years before were in the habit of setting in order to corner and drive out the game on their annual fall hunts. Now, hundreds of thousands of sheep annually graze that range. It is completely eaten out each year, yet timber and sage brush have flourished and improved, and that it will keep more stock each succeeding season is the testimony of everyone who is using it. These are facts, not theories. It stands to reason that the presence of sheep on a mountain range is a safeguard against forest fires. They do not invade the heavy timber, for there is usually little or nothing for them to eat, but they do clean off the brush and small trees, which, if left fed off, are a constant menace.

Henders on their own account and that of the flocks for which they are responsible, are compelled to be more careful than others, who are only perhaps passing through the country and often thoughtlessly leave unextinguished remains of open fires behind them. In conclusion no matter what the result of this fight against sheep on forest reserves or the course of the department may be, the merits of the case cannot be impaired. If sheep are permanently excluded from the government forest reserves, it simply means the enforced sale of a large percentage of the taxable wealth of the sections affected and this will have brought about by theorists in the East, aided and abetted by the selfish hostility of certain interests in the West.

the offspring of a scrub or grade bull at the same age, and the better bred stuff will bring from $15 to $20 a head more as finished heaves.

The small farmer who cannot afford to purchase a pure bred sire may easily breed his cows to the bull owned by some one of his neighbors. Nowadays in nearly every farming district may be found one or more first class bulls that may be secured at a fee ranging from $1 up to $10. There is no excuse for not having highly bred calves.

Every dairyman should know that suppressing milk secretion tends to weaken fecundity and thereby to shorten the reproductive period of cows. The better milkers are almost invariably the best breeders in the herd, while the shy breeders are rarely if ever found among heavy milkers. Cows that do not milk well seldom breed regularly until advanced age is reached and their calves are necessarily stunted unless provided with a nurse cow. The most important reason for combining milking quality with beef however is rarely considered at all. Still it is a prime factor in maintaining smoothness and quality. To suppress milk is to curtail fecundity or breeding quality and to do this tends to unsex the animal. As a direct result such females become coarse and masculine. The scant milker becomes a shy breeder and grows gaudy and uneven in flesh. It is a rare exception to find a Shorthorn that will carry flesh smoothly and evenly to maturity unless descended from good milking ancestry.

germs. This we know occurs to such an extent that it is customary to strain the milk to remove the particles of foreign matter. When a bacteriological study is made of this sediment the number and kinds of germs found are surprising.

The majority of sheepmen who fail to cure their sheep of scab after using a good commercial dip can only blame themselves, for as a general rule the directions for dipping were not carefully carried out. It would be fully as effective and far less expensive to drive the flock through a creek as to dip in prepared sheep dip and not follow directions.

SPAVIN CURE

NOTE OUR CLAIM: "IT IS INFALLIBLE"
Let there be no mistake or misunderstanding as to this point. It makes no difference how long standing, what the condition, or if all other known treatment has failed, this remedy will positively effect a cure. This statement will appear absurd to the sceptic, but it is absolute and inviolable truth, and we put it in no stronger words than facts, actual experience—results—confirm. It contains the great essential principle to promote the complex process of absorption. It will raise a scurf or mild blister, but it is not by blistering a cure is effected. The great potency of "Save-the-Horse" lies in its concentrated penetrating absorptive power. It penetrates to the seat of the injury or disease, produces a physiological change, absorbing all inflammatory exudate or deposit, stimulating and diffusing vitality and strength to the tissues and ligaments, producing a healthy, normal condition of the part.

VALLEJO MEETING.

Circuit Opens With Good Racing and Large Attendance.

The Sclano County Agricultural Association opened the main circuit of California district fairs and race meetings for 1902, on Tuesday last, with a good program of racing and the best attendance for a first day that has been seen at the Vallejo track for years. The weather could hardly have been better had it been ordered for the occasion, and although a strong breeze was blowing, which made very fast time out of the question, it made the day a pleasant one and was agreeable to all.

President Luchsinger, Director Thos. Smith and Secretary W. T. Kelly had charge of affairs at the track and all matters were attended to. In the judges' stand were Thos. Smith, J. W. Hartzell and B. F. Rush, the first named presiding and acting as starting judge, doing excellent work during the day and getting the fields off in good order and with very little delay in scoring.

The first race on the program was the 2:15 trot, for a purse of $500, and it furnished a contest that was worth going a long way to see. There were six starters in this event, as follows: Vic Schellar 2:15½, What Is It 2:16½, Alta Vela 2:15, Puerto Rico 2:18½, Thomas R. 2:15, Lijero 2:21. Of these Alta Vela, owned by Sam Hooper of Napa, was made the favorite when pools were sold the night previous. Eight dollars were paid for tickets on this son of Electioneer, $5 for the gray gelding What Is It, $2 for Vic Schellar and $2 for the field in which Lijero, Puerto Rico and Thomas R. were bunched.

After three scores the word was given to a good start. Alta Vela took the lead but broke on the turn and Durfee took Lijero to the front. Alta Vela did not seem to be able to get to trotting squarely and broke again as he entered the stretch, this time losing a great deal of ground. The heat went to Lijero rather easily in 2:17½, a new record for the son of McKinney. Vic Schellar was second, What Is It third, Puerto Rico fourth, Alta Vela fifth and Thomas R., who was lame, sixth.

Alta Vela remained the favorite after this heat and the books chalked up the following odds for the next another tap caused him to break twenty feet from the wire, and Hooper did not catch him until he was beyond it. He was awarded the heat, however, and was entitled to it, having been the contending horse in every heat but the first. The time was 2:15½ and Lijero was driven out to the last ounce. Second money went to Lijero, third to What Is It and fourth to Vic Schellar.

Alta Vela is undoubtedly the most perfectly gaited trotter that has been seen on the California circuit for years, and although fourteen years old gives every promise of lowering his record this year. He can certainly trot in 2:12 on a good track and many think he can beat 2:10. He does not wear a boot of any kind, a set of shoes and a light harness being his entire wardrobe. He is a worthy son of a great sire. Summary: Alta Vela, br s by Electioneer-Lorita 2:18½ by Piedmont (Hooper) 5 1 1 1 Lijero, b g by McKinney (Durfee) 1 4 3 2 What Is It, gr g by Direct (McDonald) 3 2 2 3 Vic Schellar, b g by Hamb. The 2:17 pace had but four starters and was not much of a race, although it took five heats to decide it. The Nutwood Wilkes mare, Echora Wilkes, was favorite, although the little gray mare, Irene D., owned in Vallejo, had the sympathy of the crowd in the grand stand. She won the first heat in 2:19½, but acted as though a rod or two further would have made her awful tired, and Echora Wilkes took the next two heats easily in 2:20 and 2:22. Before the fourth heat was called, a running race was put on and there was an interval of nearly an hour between the third and fourth heats of the pace. This enabled Irene D. to get a good rest and she came out and won the fourth heat in 2:20½.

This looked to the judges as if O'Kane, the driver of Echora Wilkes, was not trying and they put Charley Whitehead up behind the mare in the fifth heat. She had little trouble in winning in 2:20½. Summary:

Two running races were on the card. J. C. Dinne wielded the starter's flag and did his work well, getting the horses away in both races nicely lined up.

Eleven horses went to the post in the six-furlong dash. It resulted in a whipping finish with Young Morello a short head in front of Intrepido, Bill Young being third and only a neck behind. The time, 1:15 flat, was good.

In the half-mile dash there were eight starters. Corncake was a hot favorite at even money, but was among the also rans. The race went to Cuidado in fast time, 48½ seconds. Zem was second and Miss Culver third. Cuidado was 20 to 1 in the books.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 13, 1902.

The second day of the Vallejo meeting opened with a bright sky and pleasant atmosphere. The races carded were a 2:30 trot; a bicycle race, handicap of three miles, and two runs consisting of a three-quarter and one mile dash. There was a very nice attendance, the grand stand being full and many saw the well contested races from their carriages in the center field. The first race on the program was a 2:30 trot. Several horses faced the starter for the word in the first heat, and the winner of this heat turned out to be the erratic son of Dexter Prince, known as "Prince Howard." He had the seventh position, and receiving the word on the second score raced to the quarter with the Alexis mare, Dolexa. From that point the Dexter Prince gelding took a commanding lead and although close pressed by Dolexa at the head of stretch, he went on and won with ease in 2:23. The favorite for this heat as well as the race, was the handsome brown son of McKinney, known as Coronada, he made a break going away and after which was very wisely placed by his driver, Mr. W. G. Durfee.

In the second heat there was considerable scoring, but the horses were finally sent away to a good start. Prince Howard took the lead which he held until after passing the half at which point Coronada came with a rush and won with plenty to spare in 2:23½. The third heat was a repetition of the second, but the fourth, although won by Coronada, was quite exciting. Briney K. took the lead at the half and retained the same till well down the stretch but Coronada would not be denied and by a well timed and splendid burst of speed, trotting last eighth in 16½ seconds, placed heat and race to his credit.

The summary is as follows:

Fourth heat	0:35	1:10½	1:45½	2:21½

Next came the bicycle race and then the three-quarter mile dash, which was a selling race. Eight horses faced the starter and although having some green material to handle, starter Dinne did admirable work, the field being sent away with but little delay to a very pretty start. The winner proved to be the b g Wieland, he finishing with a well timed rush, nicely ridden by I. Tullet.

In the mile dash Billy Lyons got off well and won all the way, although he had to be ridden at the end. Summary:

Running, six furlongs—Wieland first, Lady Ella second, Frolita third. El Kahu, Myrtle H., Torilla, Donee and Rafaelita also started.

Running, one mile—Billy Lyons first, Jennie Miller second, Expedit third. Filtrilla, Diamond, Banjo, and Boardman also started.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 14.

The card to-day consisted of a 2:25 pace, the Vallejo Roadster Race for both trotters and pacers and two runs, one a five furlong and the other a seven furlong dash. The weather was as the preceding days, very pleasant, and the crowd saw excellent racing.

Nine pacers scored for the word in the first heat, receiving the word without much delay. The favorite for the race was the mare The Mrs., who on account of some creditable work was considered best. She, however, was not what her backers thought, for whilst she led till well down the stretch, did not have enough left to stall off the rush made by the chestnut stallion Robert I., he winning very comfortably in 2:15½. The next three heats were easily taken by the bay stallion Yukon, a son of Bay Bird, ably driven by Mr. J. W. Gordon of San Jose. Mr. Gordon had this handsome little horse well in hand at the finish of each mile and from the observer's point of view it would appear that this horse was a high class one, whose record for 2:14½ is not near the limit. Yukon is a good actor, a strong finisher and his manners reflect great credit on his trainer and driver. Summary:

Fourth heat	0:34	1:06½	1:40	2:14½

The Vallejo Roadster race brought out four starters, all local horses. The favorite was the b g Gen'l Vallejo driven by Mr. Thos. Smith, but he, like the average favorite, fell by the wayside. It took five heats to decide this race, the winner being Mr. Leadbetter's mare Linda. The old horse Blondy Wilkes won the first heat as well as the third. Summary:

Alta Vela 2:15 by Electioneer.

heat: Alta Vela even money, Lijero 2 to 1, Vic Schellar and What Is It 3 to 1, Thomas R. 15 to 1 and Puerto Rico 30 to 1.

Thomas R. rushed to the front when the word was given but the game little brown son of Electioneer has the foot of his field and soon had the lead and the pole and was never again headed in the heat. Al Macdonald made a splendid drive with What Is It down the stretch and closely pressed Alta Vela, but could not pass him. The mile was in 2:16. Thomas R. was distanced in this heat, and Joe Culicello got permission to draw Puerto Rico. He had finished fourth but was slightly lame.

The third heat went to Alta Vela with What Is It and Vic Schellar both pressing him hard. The time was 2:15½, rattling good speed for the first race of the year. Lijero in this heat and the second was not driven hard, Durfee probably realizing that his only chance to beat the little brown stallion was by making a waiting race of it.

In the fourth heat there was quite a horse race between Alta Vela and Lijero, the driver of the latter finding it was now or never to win first money. The struggle through the stretch was a thrilling one and the grand stand rose to the occasion. Durfee and Hooper were both driving when entering the stretch, and one hundred yards from the wire Lijero poked his nose in front of Alta Vela, but Hooper tapped his stallion with the whip and he shot by the son of McKinney and was a half length in the lead in the next stride. Had Hooper kept his whip off the little horse then he would have won without leaving his feet, but

Notes and News.

Napa meeting opens Monday.

Don Derby's mark is now 2:06.

Coney 2:02 will not be started until fall.

Marysville's fair will open August 26th.

The pacing mare Twinkle 2:05½ weaned a foal last March.

Ferna, the dam of Sophia R. 2:16½, has been bred to Zombro.

The North Pacific racing circuit begins at Seattle next Tuesday.

L. B. Royce of Tacoma has purchased Kitty Kisber 2:28 and will breed her to Zombro 2:11.

Peter the Great 2:07½ will not be raced this year, as his complaining leg is in evidence again.

The Roman 2:10½ has not been defeated this year. He has won six races in as many weeks.

Scott Hudson thinks Rhythmic will be the first two minute trotter and that he ought to do the trick next year.

Prince Direct, formerly Freddie C. 2:14½, has reduced his record. He won a third heat in 2:12½ at Brighton Beach last Monday.

Geo. T. Beckers will take his great stallion Zombro 2:11 to Salem, Oregon, September 1st, and will exhibit him at the Oregon State Fair.

Robert I. by Hambletonian Wilkes got one heat and second money at Vallejo, Thursday. The heat was in 2:15½, a new record for him.

Yukon, the handsome little son of Bay Bird, won his second start as handily as his first. His mark is now 2:14½, made in the fourth heat.

The Roman drew sixth position in his Buffalo race, but marched through the ranks and won easily. Pools on him sold for $50 to $10 for the field.

The speedy pacing stallion, Fred Lancor, by a son of Jim Mulvanna, owned by J. A. Pell, of Pacific Grove, has been placed in James Dwain's stable at the Salinas race track.

The veteran Thos. Smith and his son Jo both started horses in the race for local roadsters at Vallejo last Thursday. The young man showed his father the way around the track.

Seekers after nice carriage teams, good single drivers or young stallions, or choice producing broodmares should attend the Oakwood Park Stock Farm sale next Thursday at Occident Horse Exchange.

Scott Hudson is the biggest winner on the Grand Circuit and the only man that ever won every race on the card during an afternoon of racing. He uses Vita Oil on his horses and says it takes the soreness out.

Rhythmic has trotted an eighth in 14½ seconds, and has never yet been driven to a break in his races. Scott Hudson thinks he will win all his starts this year and close the campaign by annexing the Transylvania.

The sons of Alcyone are having much to do with the rapidly growing 2:10 list. Audubon Boy 2:05 is by J. J. Audubon 2:19, Daphne Dallas 2:07½ is by Quarter-master 2:21½ and You Bet 2:07 is a son of McKinney 2:11½.

Trotting may experience a boom in England now that the Ranelagh Club—itsself the very embodiment and type of all that is most fashionable and recherche in the sporting world—has set the seal of its approval upon the sport.

Larry Ginter, the pacer that beat Tags in the race at Freeport and took a record therein of 2:08½, is by Medeyone 2:13½, son of Alcyone 2:27. His dam is Alice by Attorney and he is the third 2:10 performer out of an Attorney mare.

The trotting horse Hobo 2:14½ by Arthur Wilkes is now at Irvington track, Portland, and has been converted to the pacing gait, at which he is said to show great speed. He is entered in the $2000 stake at the Oregon State Fair.

Juntorio, the fast green trotter which T. W. Lawson purchased from Hon. Frank Jones last spring, is dead. She was thought to be one of the best stake prospects in the country until she was taken sick early in the season. She was bred at Palo Alto.

Sandy Smith has been working Cronje, Mr. A. B. Speckels' handsome colt by Cupid, out of Hulda 2:08½, over the half mile track at the Aptos Stock Farm, and thinks he is a wonder. He trotted a nice mile for him the other day, coming the last quarter in 36 seconds and finished the last eighth at pretty close to a running gait. A gentleman from Seattle visited the farm this week and purchased a young gray mare by Aptos Wilkes that is not only a good gaited and fast trotter, but a handsome one as well.

The Abbot, Dolly Dillon and Edna Cook were worked out together over the Cleveland track July 30th. The fastest mile was in 2:07½. Dolly Dillon led until within a few feet of the wire when The Abbot passed her. Her time was 2:08½. Edna Cook's mile was in 2:08½.

The $5000 gold cup which Mr. C. K. G. Billings will offer for a race between horses driven by amateurs at the Memphis meeting is to be in the nature of a challenge cup. Mr. Billings states that it will be the most magnificent cup ever offered in racing history in the United States.

Kansas City is to build a $250,000 race track, modeled after the Washington Park course, at Chicago, this fall and winter, and all the stock has been subscribed. The management contemplate the holding of a month's running meeting, in May or June, each year, with trotting meetings in the fall.

Mrs. Ben Griffin, of Winters, has selected and claims the following names for her three colts by Bayswater Wilkes out of the standard and registered mare Claribel by Privateer. "The Giggler" for the black two year old, "Tee Hee" for the bay yearling and "Ha Ha" for the four months old bay.

Lou Dillon, the Sidney mare in the Santa Rosa Stock Farm string that is under Millard Sanders' charge over East, has been declared out of all her engagements and will be kept over for next year. She worked a mile in 2:11 at the trot and is considered a great prospect for the big stakes of 1903.

J. M. Nelson is meeting with more bad luck. He started two horses at Pontiac, Illinois, August 7th. In the 2:18 trot his horse Dan W. was last in the first heat and was then drawn. In the 2:23 class trot he started Solo. There were three starters and he got third money. The fastest heat was 2:19½.

Searchlight has broken down so that he will never race again. In the 2:04 class pace at Albany two weeks ago he was second the first heat and won the second, but was distanced in the third heat, and it was thought he had been pulled as he was favorite for the race. It developed that he had broken down, and the announcement has been made by his owner Mr. Hubinger, that the horse will never race again. Searchlight in Tom Keating's hands was a great race horse, but he developed a bad disposition and Keating sold him for $15,000. It is to be hoped that his present owner will have Searchlight registered, now that he will be retired to stud duty, as there are several colts in California sired by him whose owners cannot register them until the horse is registered.

The State Agricultural Society has closed the following purses: 2:20 trot and 2:25, 2:18 and 2:13 pacing events. A purse of $1000 is to be offered for a free for all mixed pace and trot. The 2:30 trot will be reopened for a purse of $700 to close September 1st. The balance of the harness program will be announced August 16th to close September 1st.

Ed Geers drove the four year old filly Zephyr by Zombro, when she won at Buffalo in straight heats getting a mark of 2:11½. Her regular driver, Lefe Shafer, was laid up with a sprained ankle. Wentworth was the horse that made her trot, and but for his unsteadiness the time would have been faster, and McKinney in all probability would have had another 2:10 performer.

K. O'Grady, the well known horseman, is working a number of very promising trotters and pacers at the famous Alvinza Hayward race track. They are by the well bred Onward stallion, Hart Boswell. He has one in particular, a four year old out of a mare by Stamboul 2:07½, second dam Kitty G by Tilton Almont, etc. This filly is a simon pure trotter and has a perfect way of going.

Official announcement will soon be made of the sale of Palo Alto broodmares and young horses to take place at Sacramento during the California State Fair this year. We want our readers to keep this sale in mind. No mistake can be made in buying mares at this sale. There has never been a sale of Palo Alto horses held but many fast ones or producers have developed among the animals sold. Electioneer blood is the most valuable that a breeder can use in breeding to cross with all other strains and combined with the Wilkes blood it holds first rank.

There are prospects for a good free-for-all pace at the State Fair this year. $1000 has been hung up by the State Agricultural Society and the following horses may be named in the race: Bonnie Direct 2:05½, Miss Logan 2:06½, Clipper 2:06, Kelly Briggs 2:10½, Dr. Hammond 2:14½, Uncle John and Thornway. Such a race would be a great drawing card.

The three qualities essential to a first class race winner are speed, endurance and gameness. A very successful trainer has said that "speed makes gameness." Other noted trotting horse trainers quote the remark occasionally as an established fact and believe it to be true. Men who have trained horses, developed their speed and driven them in races should be the best authority upon this matter.

Marsh Thompson's pacer Alford D. must be a good one. He is by Longworth 2:19, son of Sidney and sire of El Moro 2:13½, and in his first race this year, which was at the Ventura meeting, he won in straight heats, the time being 2:14½, 2:12½ and 2:13½. This is a pretty good showing for a green horse and the pacers that meet him when he strikes the main circuit will have to get a wiggle on to beat him.

The 2:18 class trotting stakes for the Pleasanton meeting which closed August 9th failed to fill, there being but two nominations received. The Golden Gate Agricultural Association will give a race for local horses, entries to which close the Saturday before the meeting. This race will fill well and in place of the 2:18 trot a special race will be given for horses at the track, class to be decided later.

Secretary Murray Howe of the Memphis Trotting Association has closed a contract with George Ketcham to drive Cresceus against his own world's record of 2:02½ on the Memphis trotting course October 23d, the third day of the Memphis harness horse meet. Mr. Ketcham is quoted in the telegram as saying that he believes the champion trotter can drop his record to two minutes on the Memphis track.

Mr. W. W. Howard, of Los Angeles, is the owner of a four year old stallion that he calls Bonnie Russell, that Vet Kent took green last March and on July 17th trotted him a third heat in a workout in 2:15. His gait is perfection and he gives every indication of being a future free for all trotter for the Eastern Grand Circuit. He is by Conifer, son of Lord Russell, and his dam is by Bonnie McGregor. Mr. Kent has fourteen horses in training at Los Angeles but none are to be raced this year.

Athania 2:10 is dead. He died in Austria, to which country he was sold some years ago, and where he raced very successfully. Athania was bred by George L. Warlow, of Fresno, Cal., and made his record at Lexington, October 14th, 1897. He was a black stallion foaled in 1892, and was by Junio, out of Athalia, the dam of four in the 2:30 list. He was owned for a time at Village Farm, New York, and there are now a number of very promising young horses by him at that celebrated breeding farm.

Millard Sanders is at Brighton Beach this week with Dolly Dillon, Anzella, Bonsaline and Sir Albert S. The last named will start in his first race September 1st. He met with a slight injury at Cleveland and as he is heavily engaged in stakes in September and October, Mr. Sanders concluded not to take any chances by starting him until he believed he was "on edge." Everybody who saw this game gelding win his races in California is interested in his welfare it seems, judging by the inquiries at this office.

B. Croner purchased two more horses this week and will soon have a stable of roadsters able to head most of the horses that go over the speedway. His new purchases are Altower, a four year old gelding by Altivo 2:18½, dam Wildflower (dam of four in the list) by Electioneer. This is a very promising young horse. The other is a gray mare by Wildboy 5394, dam Abbie S. by Abbottsford, second dam the famous old mare Sweetbriar by Eugene Casserly, son of Gen. Taylor. Mr. Croner tells us that he timed this mare two heats in 2:13½ and 2:13 before purchasing her, and he believes she is one of the most promising trotters in California. She is but five years old.

Lord Derby 2:06½, conqueror of Boralma, was defeated by a mare with a much lower mark at a matinee meeting of the New York Driving Club last Saturday. The trotter that performed the feat was the bay mare Louise Jefferson 2:17½. She belongs to C. K. G. Billings of Chicago. He was not in New York to drive her, so her trainer, Scott McCoy, handled the ribbons, while Mr. Smathers drove Lord Derby. The race was a special mile dash. Louise Jefferson was sent away flying, while Lord Derby was rather slow in starting, and before the half-mile post was reached the mare had the lead by a full length. Mr. Smathers urged Lord Derby on with both rein and whip, but the mare had too much speed to be headed off and she won by a good length in 2:09½.

During the Grand Circuit meeting at Cleveland, C. K. G. Billings, the millionaire reinsmen of Chicago and New York, purchased of J. H. Outhwaite, of the Forest City, the chestnut mare Imogen by Elyria, dam Divernon by Robert McGregor. Imogen is five years old and has no turf record. In Cleveland matinees she has trotted winning heats in 2:13½. In a private trial last month she trotted a half in 1:03½, the last quarter being in 0:31½. The consideration was private, but there is no doubt of its having been at least $5000. Mr. Billings will drive her upon the New York speedway, and also in the matinees at the Empire track. He will also show her in the New York horse show, as she is one of the handsomest mares in the country. She captured blue ribbons at the Cleveland horse show in 1901, and this year also.

News from Seattle.

Spec. BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 10.

The King County Fair Association can now announce that their racing plant has reached a state of completion that insures the grand stand, club house, stables and paddocks being ready to throw open to the public on August 18th for the ten days racing. A special matinee was given on Saturday, August 9th, and though the public was warned that the street car line was not completed, a crowd numbering close to 3000 visited the track and enjoyed a good afternoon's sport.

The principal feature of the program was a match pacing race between the Van De Vanter Stock Farm's Pathmark 2:15½ and Geo. Wright's Daniel J., a green young pacer. John Sawyer drove Pathmark and Bob Breeze held the lines behind Daniel J., the match was for $1000 a side and Pathmark won the three out of four heats, but the heats were each of a spectacular nature and the result was always in doubt excepting in the fourth heat when Daniel J. went to pieces and Pathmark won the deciding heat easily.

There were two other events carded for gentlemen drivers to road carts. Princessa D. driven by Capt. E. E. Caine, a wealthy local citizen, won the second race, while Black Jack, ably handled by John Clancy, won the last of the harness races.

The running events were a half mile dash which was won by the black mare Eldred. The six furlong race was a hollow victory for H. Jones' Gibraltar, the old horse is now acting kind and will be hard to beat on this circuit. Dr. Mark's won the one mile dash after being nicely ridden throughout the race. The feature of the running races was the excellent starting of Mr. Robert Leighton, who handled the flag like a veteran and sent the horses away quickly and with accuracy.

Quann Bros. and Dickson of Vancouver, B. C., have been awarded the betting privileges for the meeting and will have auction, mutual pools and the regulation bookmaking. They have the reputation of being liberal bookmakers. The new Maxwell starting gate will be operated for the runners and the Hess timing and result machines are already in place. There are now 150 horses at the track, while ten carloads of trotters, pacers and runners will reach here from Portland, Ore., by Thursday. A special train load of runners are now en route from Butte, Mont. Manager Van De Vanter has recently received applications for stabling accommodations for 150 horses from Butte and estimates that 400 will be stabled at the track by next Saturday.

An important change has been made in the original program and instead of the original program where eighteen trotting and pacing races were scheduled, only one race a day will be devoted to the harness horses and four running races will be given daily, and on Derby Day, which has been set for Saturday, August 23d, a program of six running races will be carded.

The management expect to entertain 10,000 guests on next Monday, when the stake feature of the card will be the North Pacific Stakes for 2:16 class pacers.

Everybody Advised to Use Caustic Balsam.

LEVERGUE, TENN., June 30, 1890.

The Lawrence-Williams Co., Cleveland, Ohio:

I wrote you March 21st in regard to my mule's shoulder. I have used about one-fifth of a bottle of your Gombault's Caustic Balsam and have cured the shoulder, which I thought ruined. It cured it with four applications. I would not take $5 for the rest of the bottle of Balsam. I advise anybody to use Caustic Balsam in a case of this kind, instead of losing the horse.

A Handsome Son of Sidney.

On our title page this week is a life-like photo engraving of St. Nicholas, a son of Sidney that has had but little opportunity in the stud but one that is siring a grand lot of colts. St. Nicholas was bred by the late G. Valensin, and is a beautifully proportioned bright bay horse, 15.3 hands high, well muscled, with plenty of good bone, and has style and action. As a three year old he was one of the fastest colts ever bred in California, having shown quarters in 30 seconds to the old high wheel sulky. He pulled a Chicago cart to the half in 1:08 and a quarter in 32 seconds. His sire, Sidney, was one of the most successful speed producers that America has yet produced and his sons and grandsons are breeding on with great success. The dam of St. Nicholas was Towhead by Echo, sire of the dam of Direct 2:05½, etc. His second dam was Silverhead by Gray Eagle, thoroughbred, son of Woodpecker.

To show how St. Nicholas produces, we publish here with the pictures of two of his get, taken when they were but 13 months old. The bay colt is out of a mare by Nutwood Wilkes and weighed at that age 750 pounds, standing 14.3, with a development equal to a three year old. He has been driven four or five times to a cart and shows the Sidney early speed.

The other photo engraving is of a chestnut filly by St. Nicholas out of a mare of Leviathan thoroughbred stock. At 13 months she weighed 775 pounds and stood 15 hands high. These two youngsters are certainly fine specimens and reflect great credit on St. Nicholas as a sire.

St. Nicholas is now owned by Mr. F. M. Hammett, of Watsonville, Santa Cruz county, and will be in the stud at that place again during the season of 1903.

Plungers Not in Favor.

For many years there has been an element on the trotting turf that by reason of the magnitude of its operations has practically controlled betting on the races. Not always successful, yet by the very power of its money it has been a menace to the trotting turf. By this we mean the plunging element, and while the fact that thousands of dollars are wagered on an event does not necessarily mean that the ultimate result of that race is always influenced thereby, it is a fact that on more than one occasion races have been settled in a manner that would arouse suspicion even to a novice, and to a close observer the power of this plunging element can be distinctly seen. The fact that a man bets thousands of dollars on a race does not necessarily mean that the race will not be won by the best horse, but it means that the temptation not only to award a victor after the race but to suppress a dangerous antagonist during the race is very great.

There have been in the last twenty-five years many trotting turf scandals that have never been aired to the public. Every circuit follower and close observer of racing has seen tons of money wagered on a horse, and after the horse was apparently beaten has seen him win under circumstances that could not have existed had not money been used for dishonorable purposes. The temptation to do wrong when thousands of dollars are at stake is naturally greater than when the sum is insignificant. Drivers of dangerous factors have been bribed to pull their horses. All of which comes from the fact that there are men connected with the trotting turf who, when they stand to lose $10,000, will not hesitate to offer $1000 or $2000 to the driver or owner of the contending horse, and from the fact that there are drivers and owners who are willing to accept the bribe.

Plungers have always been in disrepute on the running turf. By this we do not mean that every man who bets heavily is under disfavor, but it is the history of thoroughbred racing, both in this country and in England, that almost invariably the great plungers of their day have been under suspicion, or under suspension by the Jockey Club, that body arguing that where a man freely gives a large sum as a reward to a winning jockey is likely to give a like sum for a losing ride, if by doing so he can clinch his own bets. The only way that racing can be kept clean and elevated to the plane of first-class sport is to punish fraud to the limit whenever discovered, and whether the offender be driver, owner or plunger, give him to the fullest extent the penalty for his wrong doing.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

The Oakwood Park Stock Farm Sale.

The demand for large, well-formed, stylish, gentle and well-bred horses was never as strong as it is at present. The Oakwood Park Stock Farm has been the Mecca to which all seekers after this class of horses have heretofore gone, and thousands of dollars have been paid for single drivers and fine teams there. But everyone cannot spare the time to go to this beautiful farm, which lies at the foot of Mt. Diablo, so it has been decided to ship about fifty of the choicest ones to San Francisco, and next Thursday, at the Occidental Horse Exchange, Wm. G. Layng, the well-known auctioneer, will sell them to the highest bidders. There are, among others, sons and daughters of Major Hilton, the handsomest Cleveland Bay stallion in California, out of trotting bred and thoroughbred mares; sons and daughters of Steinway 2:25½, Chas. Derby 2:20, El Benton 2:23, James Madison 2:17½, Prince Red and Major Ban. All are well broken, single and double, and among them are many choice teams and fine carriage and saddle horses.

Besides these there is a full brother to Algregon 2:11, a stallion that will make a fast horse. The blood of Steinway and Robt. McGregor has always blended exceedingly well. Then there are a few choice standard broodmares in foal to Owyhee 2:11, Arner (brother to Diablo 2:09½), Chas. Derby 2:20. These mares have produced many fast ones. Catalogues are ready for distribution.

This Year's Occident Stake.

Fourth payment has been made to Secretary Geo. Jackson on nine three year olds entered in the Occident Stake of 1902, to be trotted this year on the opening day of the California State Fair at Sacramento. Those on which this payment has been made are as follows:

Bouquet, bay filly by Nushagak-Woodflower, and Aristo, bay colt by Nushagak-Nosegay, owned by Alex Brown of Walnut Grove.

Larkin W., chestnut colt by Boodle Jr., owned by Jesse D. Carr of Salinas.

McPherson, bay colt by McKinney-Evaline, owned by W. H. Lumsden of Santa Rosa.

Cuate, bay colt by McKinney-Miss Jessie, owned by Chas. A. Durfee of Oakland.

Flora Russell, black filly by L. W. Russell-Flora Allen, owned by Santa Rosa Stock Farm.

Zombowette, bay filly by Zombro-dam by Silver Bow, owned by L. H. Todhunter of Sacramento.

Bay filly by Stone Robin (formerly Cock Robin 2:20)—Mabel, owned by F. D. McGregor of Santa Rosa.

Suomi, bay colt by Zombro-Belle Medium, owned by Tuttle Bros. of Rocklin.

It is thought there will be not less than seven starters in this stake, which will be worth close to $2000, and predictions are now being made that it will be the fastest Occident ever trotted.

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonade and be refreshed.

The Growth of the Feet on Young Horses.

The necessity of having sound, well shaped and strong feet in all classes of horses used for any kind of work, and more especially for work in towns or on hard roads, is most important and requires the attention of all horse breeders, says a writer in the London Live Stock Journal. Weak, badly shaped, or too small feet decrease the usefulness and the value of a horse to a greater or less extent, according to the seriousness of the defect and the kind of work the animal in question is required for. In the case of team horses on farms, for instance, which travel principally on soft ground, feet which are faulty or defective in some way or other are not nearly so serious a drawback as in the case of draught horses doing town work, in which sound and strong feet are of the utmost and of vital importance if the horses are to stand work for any length of time.

The shape and nature of a horse's feet depend primarily upon three points, which are as follows: Firstly, on heredity and on the breeding of a colt; secondly, on the influences of soil and climate which these exert on the development of the foot; and, thirdly, on the care with which the feet are attended to during the growth of the foot from foalhood to maturity.

In regard to the first point, it is well known that in breeding horses stress should be laid on having sound, well shaped feet in both mares and stallions, so as to ensure this desirable quality in their progeny. Poorly shaped, weak and flat feet in the parents, or in one of them, are readily transmitted to the offspring in the same way as any other bad quality may be transmitted. Though poor feet are found in any breed of horses, yet they are much more frequent in certain breeds than in others, this being due largely to the nature of soil and climatic influences under which different breeds of horses are reared.

As far as concerns the second point, it may be broadly stated that dry, high-lying soil and a comparatively dry climate favor the production of horses with strong, tough, sound and well proportioned and small rather than big feet, while horses bred on low-lying, marshy land and in a damp climate have soft, spreading, and oftentimes flat feet of an inferior quality as far as regards ability to stand work.

Apart from the more general question of different countries or different districts in one country, the question of the nature of the soil influences the quality and development of the hoof in one and the same locality, according to whether a horse has been reared on low-lying, damp pastures or on higher lying and drier land. Dampness is always associated with the production of soft horn, and dryness with that of harder and sounder horn. The nature of the soil has also a further effect on the feet of horses in that on soft or spongy pastures the wear of the horn is not equal to the rate of its growth, which results in the hoofs becoming overgrown and misshapen unless attended to. When young horses are reared on dry pastures where the soil is fairly hard, on the other hand, a considerable wear of the horn of the hoof takes place, which serves to balance the growth and preserves a proper shape of the foot and a correct proportion between its various parts.

Regarding the third point, a careful breeder should in all cases pay attention to the feet of his foals and young horses, and have them attended to and trimmed when necessary. The degree of attention this point requires varies greatly according to circumstances. The more unfavorable natural conditions are to the production of a sound and well-formed hoof, the greater must be the care bestowed upon the feet, as will have been gathered from the foregoing remarks. Apart from natural influences which affect the development and growth of the hoofs of all foals and young horses in the same manner, the feet of some colts are much more disposed to become outgrown at certain parts, and consequently misformed, than is the case with others even when they are reared under exactly similar conditions. It must, however, be understood that even the greatest care of the growing feet cannot actually modify the quality and the strength of the horn, but that only the shape of the hoof can be controlled thereby to a certain extent.

The evils of misformed or overgrown hoofs in growing horses are not confined merely to the feet, but often also affect the limbs, causing these to assume abnormal positions, such as turned-in or turned-out toes, and influencing the slope of the pastern. Hence it is necessary to see that no part of the wall of the hoof becomes overgrown owing to want of wear balancing the growth of horn, and to pare the wall or crust in such a manner that a level and even-bearing surface and a correct proportion between the toe and the heels of the foot are obtained.

The proper development of the frog—which is so essential an organ in the horse's foot—must also be encouraged by ensuring that it takes a proper bearing on the ground and receives its due amount of pressure as a consequence, and by refraining from touching it in any way with the drawing knife when in a healthy state. Further, the feet should be examined occasionally to see if thrush is developing, and if this is the case, the frog must be immediately treated for the complaint. Though the presence of thrush may not be attended by any visible inconvenience, and on this account is usually neglected, it inevitably leads to a shrinkage of the frog, and frequently to a contraction of the heels.

It is difficult to say how far feeding affects the growth or quality of the horn of the hoof, though it cannot be denied that this question also has a bearing on the subject under discussion to a certain extent. When keeping colts in straw yards, or housing them in sheds or loose boxes, dry bedding must always be provided. Dirty litter, soaked with urine and rainwater, has—like damp pasture—a softening action on the horn, this deleterious influence being greatly increased owing to the presence of ammonia generated from the urine.

Once the horse has attained the age at which he is put to work, the chief factor in regard to his feet is a correct mode of shoeing. Though damp still has a softening effect on the horn of mature horses, and feet may and often are spoiled by bad shoeing, yet the question whether a horse has sound and strong or weak and misshapen feet depends primarily upon the factors discussed above.

Not the Fastest Six-Heat Race.

The announcement in all the daily papers, and also made from the judges' stand at the Columbus meeting, to the effect that the race won there by Dan R., was the fastest six-heat race ever paced, is a mistake. As the Chicago Horseman points out, "this mistake of the Columbus judges was a peculiar one, inasmuch as the record for a six-heat race was made at the Columbus track on August 7, 1897, when Aileen won the first heat in 2:07¼, Frank Bogash the second and third in 2:05¼ and 2:04¼ and Planet the fourth, fifth and sixth in 2:05¼, 2:07¼ and 2:06¼. The average for the six heats in this race was 2:06, while the average for the race this year at the same place was 2:06¼. But while the record for the fastest six-heat race was made at Columbus, the latter place was forced to share honors with the four-cornered track at Terre Haute, when, on September 20, 1898, Bumps, Directly and Anaconda won heats in time that averaged just the same. Bumps won the first two heats in 2:04¼ and 2:04¼, Directly won the third in 2:05¼, and then Anaconda came along and won the race in 2:05¼, 2:07 and 2:08¼. The last two heats at Terre Haute was slower than any heat in the race last week, and one heat was slower than that made in any heat when the world's record was established at Columbus in 1897, but the average was the same as on that occasion, owing to the two fast heats paced by Bumps. Owing to the fact that there are so many world's records of different kinds, for the fastest first heat, the fastest second heat and so on—the fastest two-heat race, the fastest three-heat race and on until ten or eleven heats are made, it is impossible for anyone to carry all the different records in one's head, and an error under any condition is excusable. The Year Book is so encumbered with records that it would be manifestly impossible for that publication to contain all the records of this nature, and for this reason it is easy to slip up in a case like this. Still Columbus has not lost the glory. It has the honor of being the track on which the world's record for six heats was first established."

Boralma Was Overweighted.

A special from Hartford, Conn., dated August 3d, has the following to say about the recent defeat of Boralma at Charter Oak:

"The cause of the accident to Boralma was that his near hind foot was overweighted. It was reported at the track to-day that Tom Marsh (Boralma's driver) and the blacksmith who is employed by the Lawson stable had a dispute the day before the race regarding the weighting of the horse. The blacksmith was allowed to have his way, and the subsequent result showed that his opinion was wrong. There was no inference of selling out, and it was simply a difference of opinion between the two men about the weights when the horse was shod. The artery was cut, as well as the gristle that protects the knuckle. Many believe that if the horse had been withdrawn after the second heat the injury would not have proved severe enough to prevent Boralma from starting in the scheduled race with The Abbot the latter part of this month. Boralma was walked in front of his stall this morning with the injured leg heavily bandaged. Dr. Ingram, of this city, is looking after the horse. Another veterinary said that overweighting was the cause of the injury, and he said it was a poor policy not to follow the driver's advice in the matter of weighting."

ADDITIONAL STAKES, ten in number, are announced in this issue for the great meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association to be held at Fresno during the week of the Fresno Fair, beginning September 30th. Entries to these additional stakes will close Monday, September 8th, the opening day of the California State Fair. In the arrangement of these stakes provision has been made for every class of trotters and pacers and there is not a horse in training in California but has a race provided for him where he will have a chance to win if he is as good as his record. There are two excellent provisions made: Nominators have the privilege of naming two horses from the same stable in any race on one entrance fee, naming the starter the night before the race. Then in races that fail to fill nominators can transfer to any other class to which their horse is eligible on the date of closing. These are generous conditions and were made in the interest of the horsemen. The Fresno meeting will be the greatest harness meeting on the circuit.

California State Fair.

At a meeting of the State Agricultural Directors, Wednesday afternoon, it was agreed to close the following stakes: Rush Stake, for all ages, three-quarters of a mile, with twenty-five entries; Mackey Stake, three-quarters of a mile, maiden three year olds, with twelve entries; G. L. Johnson Stake, one mile, selling, with nineteen entries; Vinctor Stake, one mile, with fourteen entries; Bella Vista Stake, five-eighths of a mile, for two year old fillies, eleven entries; Governor's Stake, one and one-eighth miles, three year olds and over, fifteen entries; California Annual Stake, three-quarters of a mile, for two year olds, fourteen entries; President's Stake, one and one-quarter miles, for three year olds and over, twelve entries; Stallion Stake, for two year olds, with fifty-two eligible starters.

The balance of the running races, to make a program of forty-eight races for overnight purses, are to be announced September 1st.

Of the purses advertised to close August 1st, the following were declared filled. All are nomination purses, horses to be named September 1st:

The contract for furnishing music for the fair was awarded to G. H. Bennett, of San Francisco, who agreed to furnish twenty-eight pieces.

A special committee was appointed to report on the issuance of special season complimentary tickets.

Morse's Patrol Agency, of San Francisco, was awarded the contract to police the grounds and the pavilion.

The program privilege was awarded to Emmet Phillips, of Sacramento.

The appointments of employes was laid over until the next meeting of the Board, on August 30th. The Board decided to advertise for bids for the auction, Paris mutuels and bookmaking privileges, to be opened August 30th, at 1:30 o'clock P. M.

Golden Gate Fair.

Pleasanton will be the scene of one of the best fairs and race meetings ever held in California, when Golden Gate District Agricultural Association opens its exhibition on August 25th. The premium lists are printed and show premiums both numerous and liberal in amounts.

This liberal apportionment of premiums has naturally brought out many exhibits not heretofore suspected and from present indications Superintendent Frank Lewis will have to do some close figuring to get all of them properly placed.

Among the many attractions of the week will be an exhibit and possibly a contest of models of air-ships. There are a number in course of construction and completed within a radius of 100 miles of Pleasanton, and it is thought that all those sufficiently advanced in construction to do so will exhibit. The Directors are assured of at least one, that of the Tolliver Co. at Verona, and it will be an interesting exhibit.

Work at the track is progressing in good shape. The cattle sheds are all up and are believed to be amply sufficient to accommodate all in that department and the grand stand will be completed this week. As the time approaches for opening the fair, the enthusiasm increases and the prospect now is for one of the greatest times Pleasanton has ever seen, and with the inducement of a fare and one-third which has been granted by the railroad, thousands of strangers will attend from various parts of the State.

The races have filled well and the track will be well watered and put in perfect condition. The horse centre will be the liveliest town in the State week after next.

Santa Barbara Fair.

SANTA BARBARA, August 12.—Races at the agricultural fair, which opened here this afternoon, proved a great success, with several close finishes and good sport all afternoon. The first race was a mile pace for a $250 purse, for the 2:40 class. Lady K. took three straight heats. Her best time was 2:22. A three-quarter mile dash for a $150 purse was taken by Fire Shot, owned by S. J. Dunlop, in 1:16. Hercules ran second and Clandator third. This was an exciting race, with a close finish. A seven-eighths mile dash for $150 was won by E. J. Boeseke's Castake in a smart race. The time was 1:20½; second, Rey del San Juan.

Between the races there was a short polo game. The colors were changed several times. Goals were made in some spectacular plays by John L. Colby, wearing green, and by B. C. Boeseke, who wore red. Further polo will be played from time to time during the fair, with a big match game scheduled for Thursday afternoon.

The favorites were winners in all cases. Every race following the first two heats of the pacing race saw large sums up in the pools.

Aug. 13.—The races at the fair to-day proved even better than those of yesterday. The first race was a 2:30 trot. Zambra was the favorite for this race, yet in the first race he lay back and was beaten by Maud Wilkes. The pools paid $16.15 on the heat. Zambra then took the second, third and fourth heats and the race. The best time was 2:26. A running half mile repeat race for $200 was won by Hercules, the favorite. The fastest heat was made in 49 seconds. A quarter mile dash for polo ponies for a cup was won by Nancy Lee, owned by R. C. Rogers. Her time was 26 seconds.

Big Wagers Don't Worry Him.

Mr. E. E. Smathers, the New York millionaire, is about the coolest bettor that wagers money on horses or anything else. At the historic Charter Oak track at Hartford the day of the big match when his horse Lord Derby, defeated Mr. Lawson's Boralma, he appeared to be the least interested man at the track. To see him chatting with his friends and telling them he thought his horse would be pretty good, it could not be imagined that in an hour or two he stood to win or lose a fortune.

As soon as the silver tongued Frank Herdic began to sell pools, he sauntered into the betting ring and when Joe Pointer won the first race from his horse Sphinx S., he was chatting with several women friends in one of the grand stand boxes as gaily as if he had won instead of lost $7000 on the race.

When Boralma won the first heat, and it looked as if there was a chance that he would lose upward of $60,000, he was just as smiling and pleasant as if there was no such thing in the world as money. A telegraph boy passed him a message while he sat in his box, stating that even money was being wagered on the stock exchange on the big race. He coolly wrote an order to take $10,000 worth at that price on his horse and resumed conversation with his friends.

Figuring up the amount of the money for which the match was made and the sum wagered on his horse in the pool box, Mr. Smathers won close to $75,000, yet when he was seen in his apartments that evening, there was not the slightest sign of elation over his victory and he could not have been more unconcerned had his winnings been no more than a good cigar.

Driving Club Race at Woodland.

One of the features of Woodland's fine program of racing is a race for horses owned and driven by members of the Sacramento Driving Club. It has received six entries, and from the class of horses named 2:15 should be beaten in this event. The entries are as follows:

Dr. McCollum's Dave Ryan, F. E. Wright's Margaretta, C. W. Paine's Baby Button, Harry Bell's H. D. B., C. Silva's Polka Dot, F. J. Ruhstaller's Monroe B.

Boyce Tablet Co.

GENTLEMEN—I have given Boyce Tablets a fair trial, and I find it far superior to any other wash I have ever used. I have used it freely on Mambrino Clay for three weeks. As a leg wash it limbers the joints and relieves the tendons and ligaments from soreness and fever. I used it thoroughly over the body between heats, and after a sharp workout the next day my horse is as limber as an eel and fit to go for a man's life. I highly recommend it to the public. Yours respectfully, F. S. GOULDING, V. S.

Relative Speed of Champions.

The New York Herald recalls the fact that in 1891 Robert Bonner was asked why he believed no horse could ever trot a mile in 2:00. His reply was:

"Just see what they have got to do! To make a mile in 2:00 the horse must beat Maud S. more than 350 feet. They have been trying for six years now to beat her just one foot, without doing it, let alone beating her 350 feet." Mr. Bonner's graphic style of stating the case brings out forcibly the actual meaning of every advance in the trotting record, and the vast difference between a mile in 2:08½ and a mile in 2:00. To the average horseman it is much easier to think of a mere chipping away of quarter seconds and seconds until the 2:00 mark is reached than to conceive of a trotter great enough to leave the peerless Maud S. away up the homestretch, 20 yards back of the distance flag, as he dashes under the wire. This picture seems so preposterous to horsemen of ten years ago that when Mr. Bonner presented it in a friendly controversy with General B. F. Tracey concerning the ultimate speed of the trotting horse, it carried more weight than any argument the then Secretary of the Navy could advance, and the owner of Maud S. accordingly had the majority of horsemen on his side. Yet within one year of this time the trotting record had dropped from 2:08½ to 2:04, and Maud S. was left nearly 200 feet behind the new champion, Nancy Hanks, in the imaginary race of record holders. A radical improvement in sulky building doubtless contributed much, if not all, to this marked reduction of the record, but improvements in sulkies, tracks, training methods, etc., have aided nearly every other champion to advance the limit of trotting speed, and they are always to be considered.

A computation of the relative speed of the record breakers shows that Cresceus 2:02½, the champion of to-day, would beat Maud S. 267 feet in trotting a mile, assuming that both traveled the distance at their best recorded rate of speed. In a match race, where the distance flag is 80 yards from the wire, this would mean that the great daughter of Harold, whose record Mr. Bonner believed could not be beaten, would be ingloriously shut out.

And if all the champions, from Yankee, the first horse that is known to have beaten 3:00, to Cresceus, were to start in a race, each maintaining his best recorded rate of speed, the lion-hearted son of Robert McGregor would win by 43 feet, or about four lengths, from his nearest competitor, The Abbot 2:03½ and would distance Jay-Eye-See 2:10 and all champions that preceded the game little black gelding by Dictator.

Flora Temple 2:19½, whose record, when made, seemed more wonderful than the record of Cresceus seems to-day, would be more than a furlong behind the winner, and Trouble 2:43½, the Boston Horse 2:48½ and Yankee 2:59 would be struggling along back of the three-quarter pole as Cresceus finished his mile.

The present king of trotters travels at the rate of 43.19 feet a second in covering a mile in 2:02½. In a theoretical race with the other champions he would gain more than two feet every second on the famous Sunol 2:08½, on St. Julien 2:11½ about three feet a second, on Dexter 2:17½ nearly five feet, on Lady Suffolk 2:29½ nearly eight feet, on Sally Miller 2:37 nearly ten feet and on Yankee nearly fourteen feet.

When the horse comes along that can gain not quite ten inches on Cresceus, covering 44 feet a second, we shall see the record set at "even time." Many horses now living can do it for 30 seconds. Cresceus himself has done more than this. He has trotted at the rate of 44 feet a second for about a minute and a half, carrying a two-minute clip practically as far as the three-quarter pole.

In a race with a two-minute trotter Cresceus would be beaten about 97 feet. In other words he is within that distance of the coveted goal. A little quickening of his stroke or a little increase in his reach and the trick would be done. But to breed the trotter that can do it may take many, many years.

Resemblance Not a Necessary Quality.

A horse or mare sometimes bears a very close resemblance to a noted ancestor, near or remote, so far as color, conformation and outward appearance are concerned, and when such is the case that animal is usually valued much more highly on account of this resemblance. It is a somewhat singular fact, however, that some of the best of the get of the most noted stallions bear but little outward resemblance to their sires. A practical amateur breeder, who has for years been a close student of the trotting-breeding problem, and a very close observer of horses recently made the above suggestion to the writer. This gentleman has visited many noted stock farms during the past forty years, and has examined some of the most noted trotting sires and their progeny, including Rysdyk's Hambletonian. The fastest of Hambletonian's get was Dexter 2:17½, yet he was an entirely different type of horse from his sire, and inherited his color and marks from one of his maternal ancestors. Rysdyk's Hambletonian was far the best son of old Abdallah, and though he resembled the latter as to color, his conformation was very different from that of his sire. Abdallah, too, was unlike his sire, Mambrino, in size and conformation, yet no other son inherited or transmitted the trotting action of Mambrino and the inclination to stick to that gait when pressed to the limit of speed, as did Abdallah. Mambrino, too, was quite unlike his sire, imported Messenger, yet as a perpetuator of trotting inclination he was superior to any of Messenger's other sons.

This difference in color and conformation is quite as marked in the Clay and Morgan families of horses as in the Hambletonian. Young Bashaw, that got Andrew Jackson, sire of the founders of the Clay and Long Island Black Hawk trotting families, was a coarse, ungainly gray horse about 15.1 hands high, while his sire, the thoroughbred imported Grand Bashaw, was black, of very handsome conformation and only 14.1 hands high. Justin Morgan, founder of the Morgan family of horses, was a bay with black points, stood 14 hands. His best son, Sherman Morgan, was a bright chestnut, about 13.3 hands high. Sherman Morgan's best son, Vermont Black Hawk, was black and stood about 15 hands. Black Hawk's best son, Ethan Allen 2:25½, was a handsome bay, and Ethan Allen's best son, Daniel Lambert, was a chestnut in color. The man who pays a high price for an untired animal, solely because that animal bears a close resemblance to sire or dam, is liable to afterwards discover that the qualities which made the sire valuable are lacking in the offspring, or, at least, are not so prominent as to make him or her of more than ordinary value. Those who have foals by a celebrated sire should not value them less highly if they do not bear a close resemblance to their sire in color and conformation, for they are just as likely to possess his most valuable qualities as those that do resemble him closely in these respects.—American Horse Breeder.

Brighton Beach Meeting.

NEW YORK, August 11—The second seaside meeting of the New York Trotting Association began at Brighton Beach under favorable auspices. The track was fast and 5000 spectators saw the sport. The big feature of the card was the $10,000 Bonner memorial purse for trotters of the 2:12 class, for which there were twelve starters. The blind horse, Rhythmic, who has won all his races down the line from Detroit, was the choice at $50 to $40, but eventually sold at 2 to 1. He won in three straight heats.

The 2:15 pace was on what is named the novelty plan. The race is completed in three heats. The winner of the first and second heats retire from the race, and the first money goes to the winner of the fastest heat, second and third moneys in the same way, while the fourth goes to the horse holding the next position. In reality each heat is a distinct race. Prince Direct was the favorite in all three heats, but he was not able to get to the front till the third. Summary:

Pacing, 2:15 class, purse $1500, Novelty race—Pauline G. won the first heat in 2:11½, Carl Wilkes won the second heat in 2:09½, Prince Direct won the third heat in 2:12½. Alice Mapes, Schley Pointer, Surfeet, Barolletta, Mercury Wilkes and Josh also started.

Trotting, 2:12 class, Bonner memorial, purse $10,000—Rhythmic won in three straight heats in 2:09½, 2:09½, 2:12. Lady Thisbee, Major Delmar, Alice Carr, Miss Whitney, Leola, Dan T., Alcy, Silver Sign, Belle Kuser, Alfred Star and Ruth M. also started.

Trotting, 2:14 class, purse $1500, Novelty, same conditions as 2:15 pace—The King won the first heat in 2:13½, Mobel the second heat in 2:10½, Ida Highwood the third in 2:13½. Meadow Belle, A. J. D., Flash Lightning, Ivandoff, Mars and Maiborn also started.

Pacing, 2:06 class, purse $1500, unfinished—Fannie Dillard won the first and fourth heats in 2:05½, 2:06½, Dan R. won the second and third heats in 2:04½, 2:07½. Hetty G., Dumont W., Daniel, Riley B. and Martha Marshall also started.

NEW YORK, August 12—The second day of the Grand Circuit meeting at the Brighton Beach track had an excellent card. The weather was bright and cool, but a high wind prevented fast time.

Trotting, 2:24 class, purse $1500—Tiverton won three straight heats in 2:12½, 2:13½ and 2:14. William Tell, The Question, Narcial, Mary Joe, Anna Held, Marie Studholme, Roan Wilkes, Little Helena, Poteen and Trilby Simmons also started.

Pacing, 2:20 class, the Metropolitan, purse $5000—Direct Hal won three straight heats in 2:06½, 2:07 and 2:07. Tertimon, Cubanola, Gold Brick, King Charles, Greenline, Miss Willamont, Grasshopper, Elastic Pointer and Elderone also started.

Pacing, 2:18 class, novelty race, each heat a race, horse making fastest time winning first money—Allie Wood the first heat in 2:12½; Prince of Orange won the second heat in 2:12½; Alvander won the third heat in 2:14½. Wilton Boy, Silver Hour, Bemay, Minka, Sunday Morning, Brighton Bell, Mary C. and Charles D. Jacobs also started.

Three year old horses, Horse Review Stakes, pacing division $1000—Ecstatic won; best time, 2:08½.

NEW YORK, August 13.—The events of the Grand Circuit meeting at the Brighton track to-day proved to be the most exciting up to date. The attendance was large and speculation heavy.

Pacing, 2:08 class, purse $1500, Novelty, each heat a race, the horse winning the fastest heat taking first money. Chestnut won the first heat in 2:07½, The Bishop won the second heat in 2:09½, Sphinx S. won the third heat in 2:08½. Major Muscovite, Winfield Stratton, Tom Nolan and Miss Leach also started.

Trotting, 2:20 class, Hiram Woodruff Stake, purse $5000—Wilque won the first, fourth and fifth heats in 2:11½, 2:12, 2:13½; Chase won the second and third heats in 2:09½, 2:10½. Patchen Maid, Westworth, Betsy Tell, Dulce Cor, Baron Dillon Jr., Colonel Wilkes, John Patterson, Joan of Arc, Dick Berry, Allabrieve and Patchen also started.

Amateur race. 2:09 class, trotting to wagon, prize silver cup—Mabel Onward defeated Franker in two straight heats. Time, 2:14½.

NEW YORK, August 14—Seven thousand spectators to-day saw a splendid series of contests, in which the best trotting and pacing records of the season in races were made. In the first race of to-day, the 2:10 novelty trot, Susie J. won the second heat in 2:06½, and in the special race between Prince Alert and Anaconda the former paced in 2:03½. The best previous records of the season in races were The Monk, trotting 2:07, and Dan Patch, pacing 2:03½. The fastest time of the season made against the watch, by Dan Patch, 2:00½, was duplicated.

For the special it was announced that Dan Patch would go against his own record of 2:00½ and Star Pointer's record of 1:59½. He was accompanied by two runners. He went to the quarter in 0:30½ and to the half in 1:00½. The three-quarters was passed in 1:31, and he came home without pressure in 2:00½, equaling his record. Summary:

The 2:10 class trotting, novelty race, purse $1500, horse winning fastest heat winning first money—Susie J. won the second heat in 2:06½. Louise Mac won the first heat in 2:10½. Notes on Shell Loading.

The witty observation that "the man who is his own lawyer has a fool for his client" might almost be extended in these days to many sportsmen who load their own shells. Some knowledge of law may be very desirable for one in the journey through life, if only to impress one with a wholesome horror of law suits and the necessity of avoiding them if existence is to be enjoyed; and in the same way every sportsman is the better of some acquaintance with the mysteries of shell loading, if it only leads him to the conclusion that he is best served by leaving loading to those who make a regular business of it, and therefore have to study the operation scientifically, which they carry out with the aid of every mechanical aid available to them.

One class of shooters delight in dabbling in the loading up of their own ammunition. In their gun-rooms or smoking rooms may be found all kinds of implements and instruments for loading purposes, a shot-counter in one corner, an ideal machine in another, and a measuring apparatus, etc., in a third, while all kinds of wadding and other material are to be seen scattered around. As an amusement, no doubt, shell-loading is found very fascinating by some sportsmen of particularly inquiring minds, who would like to get at the bottom of everything connected with their favorite sport. The same men—generally very young men—take pleasure in taking apart their guns, whenever they get in the mood, and examining and oiling the lock mechanisms. It yields them pleasant occupation, but it does not benefit their guns. Loading may afford them similar pleasure if they have a target handy, on which they can pattern their guns with every imaginable variation in their shells. But if they are wise they will let the plate have every shell they load themselves; if they shoot their home-made shells, seldom indeed are they successful in filling their game-bags. They believe they are gaining valuable experience and knowledge in trying all kinds of ammunition loaded in their own gun-rooms, and so they are, of what they should not attempt to do. The more experience they acquire, the more certainly they come to two conclusions, as all crack shots have done—that the powder manufacturers' own standard loading is, under all conditions, the best suited for obtaining the best results, and that that loading is best carried out by the manufacturers themselves, or the retail dealer who makes a specialty of hand loaded shells.

Sportsmen cannot be too strongly impressed with the fact that a good and effective shell, nowadays, requires to be loaded with an intelligent attention to details, so numerous that no amateur or inexperienced effort can possibly grasp and observe. As a technical expert has pointed out, the quality of a shell is governed by the kind and quality of the fulminate, the size of the flash-hole, the kind and amount of explosive, the gauge, thickness and elasticity of wadding, the internal diameter of the shell itself, and the length and strength of the crimp, and essentially, the perfect qualities of the shell and its adaptability for particular loads or guns. But though wads and crimps are the two main points on which wadding is requisite, there are many more considerations beyond those mentioned involved in accurate loading, chief of them perhaps being the compression of the contents of the shell. Specially bored guns may be best suited by special loading, which is an inducement to the owners of such guns to obtain their shells from the gunmakers who built them, and may be supposed to know their peculiarities, if there are any. But such loading is only applicable to such special conditions, and is never of the all-round excellence obtained from average barrels by the loading recommended and adopted by each manufacturer for his own particular powder. A table showing the variations in the particular standard loadings recommended by each powder manufacturer for each explosive, which has been published, should show that no two powders are recommended to be loaded in the same manner, demonstrating the difficulties in loading to be contended with, even by gunmakers or dealers who undertake to load shells with any selected explosive, difficulties that are almost insuperable to accurate loading by the mere amateur, desirous of having perfect shells in his gun.

There is not only great variety in the materials used in loading, but also in the manner in which they are assembled in the shell. The thickness of the wad and the size of its diameter and a combination of different wads and cards are of the first importance, but not more so than the degree of their compression on the powder, or even upon the shot. Everything is now tending to greater need for accuracy on all these heads, seeing that not only the gun chambers are being standardized, but also the shell cases that are to be put into them. With the standard shell three-guns out of four will shoot well, and if the fourth gun has to be humored by variations in standard loading it is far better to have that variation settled by the expert or maker of it himself than to attempt special loading to suit it. But guns that require special loading may well be regarded in these days of standard gauging as unnecessary inflictions upon shooters. They should insist on their guns being regulated to suit standard shells, so that there may be uniformity in their shooting, without which first-rate marksmanship cannot be secured. The trend of events in gunnery is now bearing in favor of standard chambers as well as shells, and special loadings, however strongly recommended by some gunmakers, should be regarded merely as evidence of undesirable peculiarities or weaknesses that should have been dispensed with, but that require humoring in the guns. Where such guns were recently built there is the less excuse for their necessitating special loadings. The chambering of such guns should have been to standard dimensions, and their barrels should have been regulated to suit standard shells.

This may seem somewhat hard upon gun manufacturers, seeing that the standard gauge is a matter only of the last few years. But conservative to a degree are some manufacturers of guns in adherence still to rule-of-thumb measurements. And if they persist in that attitude the benefits of standardization in shell making are greatly lost, and all the pains taken in loading to standards are almost in vain. It would do such makers good to pay a visit of inspection to such a loading factory, for instance, as that of the Selby Company near Port Costa and note the care and pains with which all the work of cartridge loading is performed, according to the most scientific rules and the recognized standards of method and measurement. Regularity and uniformity are ensured by the use of machinery of the best description and the most up-to-date appliances, while the results in the form of loaded shells are tested and checked at various stages to make certain of adherence throughout to standards that have been adopted as those from which no deviation whatever can be allowed. Samples taken from each batch of shells loaded are selected and tested by a complete set of gauges for the purpose, the interior as well as the exterior diameters being accurately tried, and any variations either in shells or contents at once detected and remedied. The wadding in the same way is accuracy itself, separate sets of plungers being used for each variety of wad, the same care being taken in the measurement and loading of powder and shot. Automatic machines are employed, each of them turning out several thousand shells per hour, every one being loaded and crimped with uniform force, calculated to a nicety impossible with the hand machine, dependent upon a loader's varying strength during a long day's work. It is difficult to make a mistake in such careful and accurate machine loading, but, if made, it is quickly ascertained and corrected by the skill of those who have had long training in loading and the detection of failure in the action of loading machinery, should such occur at any time during operation in progress.

With a gun chambered to standard size, or nearly so, and ammunition loaded to standards so precise and accurate, it must be the gunner's own fault if he cannot make good shooting.

The results obtained by the shooter with such advantages should be twenty-five per cent better than those obtainable with an old gun and shells loaded any old way by an apprentice or an amateur.

A Hunter's Worthy Deed.

We take pleasure in noting a deer hunting episode radically different in its nature and more in accord with the true spirit of sportsmanship than unfortunately is usually recorded.

During the recent outing trip of Dr. R. F. Millar and his family to Mendocino county, the Doctor, who is an ardent huntsman, indulged in several buck hunts. One day he jumped a buck, or rather his dog did from a thicket. The deer which had evidently been trying to conceal himself and remain under cover until his arch enemy, man, and his canine companion had gone his way, made a break with the dog following in hot pursuit. The animal had made but a short run, when it was noticed by the Doctor its effort for escape was in a somewhat more listless manner than a vigorous buck usually shows. The hunter was in the act of aligning his rifle sights on a vital spot, when the deer came to a full stop, seemingly caught or hanging in some obstruction. The dog was up with and at the quarry on the instant. The distance of the two four footed actors in the impending woodland tragedy or rather melodrama, as it turned out to be, was but short and in a trice the huntsman was at close quarters. The Doctor had by this time felt that there was something out of the ordinary in the whole affair. On getting close up, he found that the buck, a four pointer, was entangled and hung up in the brush. It was so emaciated and weak that it could not extricate itself from its predicament. The Doctor beat off his dog and easily made a captive of the quarry. On examination, after being taken to camp, the animal was found to be in such poor condition, very weak and so infested with ticks and fleas that it probably would have been but the question of a few days when it would have succumbed to the combined influences of the parasites and debility.

Pity for the poor animal and a high minded regard for the sportsman's code prompted the Doctor to give the tortured animal relief from his insect persecutors first and then a course of treatment that within a few days put the four pointer on his feet again, when he was freed and left to his own resources once more in the hills.

We believe, there are numerous other sportsmen who would have done the same thing, under similar circumstances, but alas, there are some who would not have been so humane.

AT THE TRAPS.

The Union Gun Club shoot at blue rocks will be the regular attraction at the Ingleside trap grounds tomorrow.

The Golden Gate Gun Club closed the blue rock club shoots for this season last Sunday at Ingleside. In the first event, the monthly club race at 25 targets, Clarence Nauman won first money with a straight score, second money was divided between Otto Feudner, J. W. Golcher and Ed Donohoe. The third division of the added purse fell to Fred Feudner and Dr. A. T. Derby. In the second event, a merchandise shoot at doubles, 10 setts, Nauman was again the high gun with 17 breaks. In the third event, at 20 birds, the shooters were placed under a distance handicap, ten prizes were won by the high guns, the two best scores were made by W. E. Murdock and Ed Wands, 19 breaks each. Otto Feudner scored straight in the fourth race at 20 targets. Fifteen merchandise prizes were won by the high guns in this event. One of the visiting shooters was Mr. Densel, of Marshalltown, Iowa, who made several creditable scores. During the shoot Clarence Nauman won a gold bar and three silver bars. Edgar Forster won a gold bar. Otto Feudner won three silver bars and Messrs. Donohoe, Derby, Robertson, Wands and Iverson each won a silver bar. The scores in the regular events follow:

Jackson's Napa Soda untangles the feet.

Thomas A. Marshall, the popular Western trap shot, is a candidate for Congressional honors, having received by acclamation the nomination of the Democrats of the Fourteenth Illinois district. Mr. Marshall is Mayor of Keithsburg. He gained fame among sportsmen by twice winning the Grand American handicap at live birds. He was captain of the All-American team that visited Europe last year. He is wealthy, owning telephone lines, electric lines and plants and lands. He was a member of the State Legislature when Palmer was elected United States Senator.

The members of the Humboldt County Gun Club of Eureka were most hospitably entertained by the Cream City shooters on July 27th, a royal entertainment being provided and a day's sport in disc breaking. Following are the scores at blue rocks made at the meeting:

Eureka Club—Ferrill 13, Roberts 15, Puter 19, Dungan 19, Cadman 21, Mahan 11, Cook 15, Durnford 10, Kelly 18, Gillette 17. Average 15.9.

Mad River Club—Everding 15.

Fortuna Club—Wellock 9, Graves 9, Hanson 11, Dickson 11, Ranson 4, Leech 1. Average 7.5.

Scotia Club—Perrott 23, Forsythe 15, Meller 14, Alberts 10, Skero 4, Douglass 11, Gribble 13, Whitney 15, Pond 7, Brock 11, Miller 10, Morse 19. Average 12.6.

A hint to deer hunters, particularly those who will get their first deer hunt this season, which if followed will be of much importance in making their camp comfortable, that is, not to hang a venison carcass within near distance of the camp, and to keep the deer hides away from the tents. Deer are colonized by big communities of fleas. These insects appreciate the difference between the tender cuticle of the hunter and the thick hide of a buck, and make a quick shift from their former forest companion at the first opportunity, their early training has given them keen appetite and sharp tools for a post graduate course in a hunter's camp and blankets.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Dr. W. F. Sharp was presented by W. F. Kelley, this week, with a handsomely marked Pointer dog puppy. The little fellow is now two months old and is by Bruce (Dorner-Sallie L.) out of Fay, a Rip Rap bitch. The pup shows quality and is a very good looking little Pointer.

An opportunity to purchase some prize winning Fox Terriers is offered by the "ad" of Mr. N. H. Hickman in our kennel announcements page this week.

Imelda will be remembered as the handsome young bitch that won winners, and first puppy here last April. Ione was sent East two years ago and made a win of third, we believe, in good hot company. Elmwood Vassar is not only a winner but the producer of a sound and handsome progeny. Isabelle is the promising young one that won third puppies here this year.

Norfolk Truman's winning record is too well known for extended mention here, he commenced his Coast career, after a good Eastern bench record, with a win of third in open, 1901. He was bred in Mr. George Gooderham's kennels, Toronto.

Alec C. has gone his long journey and a good Pointer is laid away under the sod on the green slope of a Marin county hillside, keeping company with the Setter Marie's Sport.

The dog was one of the best looking Pointers ever bred on the Coast and was a winner at bench shows here since his first appearance in 1897, when he won third in open. As a field trial winner his most conspicuous performance was capturing the 1898 Derby at Bakersfield. Under the guidance of George Rose he was taken through the Eastern circuit, 1899-90. He was thought so well of that John Lucas was offered, and refused, $400 from an Eastern gentleman who believed in his worth and quality.

The immediate cause of his death was supposed to be an affection of the brain. This followed the loss of the dog's right eye several weeks ago. The primary cause of trouble was a "foxtail." This dangerous grass spearhead must have been picked up by the dog along in June and slowly worked its deadly and unsuspected way through the skull until the poor dog was finally killed by it. Aleck's sire was the champion Glenbeigh, a field trial winning dog imported from England by Mr. Huber. He was also a bench show and field trial winner here and owned by Howard Vernon subsequently. Saddlebags, the dam of Aleck, was a daughter of champion Duke of Vernon, brought out here also by Henry Huber. Aleck has been bred to a few good bitches which have whelped puppies of merit. Several Derby starters for the Bakersfield trials next January are by Aleck C., who was, by the way, a litter brother of the sterling good bitch, Lady C.

In the loss of the Pointer and Setter above mentioned, Mr. Lucas feels his misfortune keenly; he is sanguine that the chances for another dog like Aleck C. in the Mt. View Kennels' string are too remote for speculation.

Mt. View's Kennels' Pointer bitch Fan Go (Young Jingo-Abdallan Fan) is in whelp to Aleck C. It is to be hoped that this expected event will come through without mishap. Aleck C. puppies, we believe, will be in demand.

Doorjamb—"Ah there, my doglets! How do you feel this morning?"

Water Spaniel—"Good enough to wear a jewelled collar! You're looking well."

Doorjamb—"Never felt better, just had a bath and a rub down. Come and have one on me."

Water Spaniel—"No thanks, as I turned the corner a minute ago I stopped and had two on the house."

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

Entering Terriers for Work.

The handling and working of terriers should involve a good deal more care and attention than is usually the case, the mere teaching of a young dog to attack furred game or vermin not constituting by any means the proper course of training from puppyhood upwards which entitles a dog to the title of a good working terrier. It is an old aphorism in the field that a badly broken dog is worse than no dog at all, and certainly a rioting terrier out of control is as much a nuisance as anything else when rabbits or vermin are the quarry in view.

A proper course of training is as essential to the working terrier as it is to the first-class sporting dog, and education must in the one case, as in the other, commence from early stages of the dog's existence; and inasmuch that early teaching comes best and leaves its mark most permanently engraved upon the young dog's intelligence when exerted through the influence and example of an older one, so in breeding with a view of obtaining good working dogs, it is always most desirable that, if possible, the parents should be good working dogs. In any case, it should always be sought to have the bitch in this category, for through her much of the initiative will come for the puppies when first entered. This is not the place to discuss the question as to whether the parents pass on their natural good working traits to their progeny, but there can be no question of the utility of the mother dog, in, so to speak, enticing the pups along the way they should go, and for this reason either the services of the bitch or of some well-trained, steady dog must be enlisted, if possible, for the earlier training. Where the dog so used, is not the parent, the pup or pups to be worked should be allowed to become acquainted with it before actual training operations are commenced, and to this end they should be kennelled up together, so that they may get on good terms some old dogs possessing a nasty habit of snapping at youngsters which may put themselves at all forward.

Although the advocates of the all-round general utility terrier are many, I think that where possible, separate terriers should be kept for rabbits and for vermin, but experience points to the fact that, as a rule, you will get an earlier and better command over your young dogs if the initial stages of training are confined to entering them to rabbits. So many terrier puppies are ruined for all time by being bitten or mauled by rats if forced or led on to tackle them before they really know what it is they have to deal with, that in the case of decently bred dogs, and much more so in those of good strain, intended also to figure upon the bench as well as in the field, the young dog may be spoiled for all time through undue haste to label it a vermin killer. To this end, then, it will be seen that it is advisable to commence the puppies' work in any case upon rabbits. Before anything else is done, however, in this direction they will want to be walked and brought under a certain amount of control, and in this connection if several young dogs are to be dealt with they should be taken in hand one or two at a time, even in the preliminary stages, when being taught to keep to heel, to range and to seek, to follow you through gates and gaps, to keep quiet and lie down, if need be, if you stop, and to generally hold in check to a reasonable extent those exuberances to which all young dogs are so particularly prone. All this should be done by word of mouth and through the example of the old dog, and requires much trouble and patience, combined with close watchfulness. It is at this early period that you will learn the idiosyncrasies of temper and nature of each and all of your young charges, and also obtain a glimpse of those faults which later on will become even more apparent, and may require correction with the whip. At this stage the best place for this article is at home, for it must be remembered that in the preliminaries of training the young dogs cannot be punished for offences committed in innocence, otherwise it is likely to imagine everything it does is wrong, become shy, and accordingly useless. As soon as you have your dog or dogs under control, to come to their names and answer the whistle, introduction to the quarry may follow. As later on you will have to teach the terriers to 'ware dead, there is little to be gained by time spent in fooling them with dead rabbits or rats. Show them the dead quarry, let them nose it well, turn it about, and generally learn the nature of the thing—that it is something to be dealt with, but not played with, and then seek the earliest opportunity to introduce them to the living article. To this end you should obtain one or more about half grown rabbits and take the old dog and the young ones into a suitable field, and let the latter see the other catch and kill a rabbit.

They will soon "tumble" to the game, and be keen to emulate the example set, when you can keep the old dog on hand and give the youngsters their chance. Never mind if they fumble the quarry or miss it altogether the first time; you can only persevere until such time that the pupil becomes an adept to the business and learns to course and catch its rabbit cleanly and well. At first the youngster is sure to want to mouth the quarry, and this should be reasonably checked until such time that the dog kills and leaves the rabbit. If it shows a disposition to hang on to it, do not snatch the rabbit away or fight with the dog for it. It must be firmly and patiently shown that the killing is the end of the business, and that the thing is dead and done with. Don't exactly beat the dog off, but if necessary use enough correction with the hand to let it understand, and under no circumstances commit the unpardonable sin—of a trainer—of striking the dog with the quarry. You can then give the young dog or dogs a further lesson by carrying the dead rabbits at arm's length, keeping your charges at heel and seeing that they ignore the fur being carried. There is no more annoying fault in a terrier or other sporting dog than continual worrying at carried game, and it is one that must be checked at its inception, or it will cling to the dog for all time and saddle it with an intolerable fault. At the same time, always make much of the young dogs; teach them to be pleased when you are pleased; and when after successive trials you can take one or more of them out, keeping them under control, kill one or more rabbits in the manner described and bring them home again to kennel up in order and without trouble, then the initial stage of entering the terriers is accomplished, whether their ultimate service is to be upon rabbits or vermin only or upon both. Up to now you have only taught them to kill a quarry which does not retaliate; the next stage is, if they are to be vermin killers, to enter them to a quarry which will defend itself, and give punishment more or less severe unless it be properly tackled and killed without opportunity being offered for its doing so. Here their general teaching ends, and particular training begins. Of course, in the case of the general utility terrier, the two courses will have to proceed more or less simultaneously, but for the present purpose we must go on to the entering of terriers to rats before dealing with the further training of them when intended for rabbits only. In this manner we can serve all three ends to greater advantage than if we went straight through with the teaching for rabbits only.

In entering your dogs to rats, the first question which arises is whether to introduce them first to the live or dead subject. Each plan has its disadvantages, but much will depend upon the nature of the young terrier being dealt with. The rat, whether living or dead, and, for the matter of that, other vermin, too, possess a natural offensiveness which the dog must overcome before it can be trusted to unhesitatingly tackle the live quarry, whilst, of course, the vermin can retaliate, and it is of the first importance, if the young dog be entered to a live rat, that it should have first bite, even though some do not put the vermin out of all running, for should the dog then get pinched it is far more likely to go on with increased zest for the game and quickly settle the matter. Under all considerations, then, I think the young terrier should be taught that a rat is dead, and then make the acquaintance of the living article. This should be done by showing a live rat in an open wire cage or trap to the dog, and then let an old dog kill it in some sufficiently wide enclosure before the youngster. If the latter quickly takes to the business and tries to get in as against the old dog, you can then let it kill one or two by itself, and the first lesson of the entering to vermin will be learned, practice only being required to bring about the requisite smartness and cleanness of killing. Again here you must be careful not to allow the youngster to maul and worry at the dead quarry; teach it to 'ware dead, as was done with the rabbit, and, further, not to rush after the dead vermin when you throw it from you. It should be sufficient that if you handle the rat it is dead and done with. There is no objection, however, to the young dog just nosing and turning over a rat to satisfy itself that it is dead, but any chopping at it or mouthing must be sternly repressed as being likely to spoil both the dog's grip at a live one and its nose for scent of these varmints. When first entering young terriers to rats give the latter plenty of room to move, and do not ask too much of the young dog. A rat which sees a chance of escape is much easier to tackle than one which knows it is cornered, and if you give the young dog the easier chance, often it will learn to kill cleanly and quickly, and will then make no more ado of a big rat in a corner than a steam hammer would of a filbert. In easy stages the lessons will follow, till you can trust the young dog amongst several rats at a time. I say trust advisedly, for there is nothing gained, and there is no kudos in a dog getting bitten and mauled, even though it make naught of its injuries. The terrier's work is to kill, not to fight rats, and it is to this end all your attention should be devoted.

Having advanced thus far with the pup's education, the next lesson is the killing of rats shaken from wire cage traps, and those in gins, or other spring traps. When you have a rat in a cage trap show it to the dog, but do not let the latter jump up excitedly at the trap, barking and generally making a nuisance of itself. The dog must be taught to remain quiet, but on the acute qui vive. The instant the rat reaches the ground it should be nailed by the dog, and not before. It may be that the dog will try for it in the air, with the result that nine times out of ten the rat will grip hold, and the dog pay for its rashness, or else the rat will be missed, and if in the open, get clean away. Therefore the rat should always be shaken clean away from the cage, and the dog tackle it on the ground. It may not look so smart or showy, but where business only is meant the proper manner of doing the thing is as stated, and "all others are spurious."

To properly tackle and kill a rat in a gin-trap is, as a rule, a good test of a young terrier's ability. As a rule the rat is very little injured, its viciousness is greatly increased, and it seems to know that it is a case of now or never. The trap with the rat should be placed upon the ground; to hold the trap up and invite the dog to grip and kill the rat is neither fair to one nor the other, and may mean serious injury to the dog. The tribe of rodents will no doubt become extinct before this practice dies out, but the man who uses his dog to it treats it to nearly the same risk as he does himself when he looks down the muzzle of his gun to see why it does not go off. Many a valuable terrier has lost an eye or torn out a nostril through such fooling, and there is absolutely nothing to be gained by it. This stage of the subject reached, we come to the entering of young dogs to work with ferrets either for rats or rabbits. The preliminary teaching is the same. In the first instance the puppies have to be made acquainted with the ferret, taught to know it, respect it, and not interfere with it. You must bear in mind that the average ferret no more likes a dog sniffing and nosing about it than you or I, and resents the intrusion accordingly.

Fly-Casting Tournament for the World's Championship.

Under the auspices of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club, last week, there took place on the banks of picturesque Stow lake in Golden Gate Park a series of contests in fly-casting that will be, among the devotees of the gentle art who were fortunately present in the scene, remembered as red-letter days in the annals of the craft. With the grand army of anglers the world over the occurrences of both days will be for a long time the theme of enthusiastic discussion and speculation.

Agreeable to previous beliefs, two world's records were beaten. Champion Walter D. Mansfield was the apparent victor of the two events in which new records were established. In long distance casting with light rods (5 ounces) Mr. Mansfield put out his braided silk line 129½ feet, beating by 34½ feet the record cast up to date of Mr. Reuben C. Leonard, 95 feet, made at Central Park, N. Y., 1888. This contest was the first light rod competition ever held here. In the long distance casting with heavy tournament rods (not exceeding 11 feet long) Mr. Mansfield won the event with a cast of 132 feet, a foot less than his own previous world's record of 133 feet.

W. D. Mansfield.

In the team contest in heavy rod long distance he made the new record cast of 134 feet. Two diamond medals were the first prizes in these events. Mr. Mansfield also won the Hearst silver loving cup for the highest general average in all the events, and the diamond medal, presented by Mr. F. W. Van Sicklen, for the highest percentage in the delicacy contest. This style of casting is more in the nature of actual angling work than any efforts imposed by the other tournament events.

The diamond medal for the first event, accuracy casting, was won by J. Boswell Kenniff, who made the excellent score of 96.4-36 per cent. Twenty-one contestants entered in this event. Mr. Fayette H. Reed had the honor of making the initial cast of the tournament.

In the lure casting twelve contestants entered the lists. This event was generally conceded would go to one of the Chicago club members. As it was there was the difference of only 4-15% between the score of the winner, C. R. Kenniff, and H. G. Hascall. The latter gentleman is a thorough expert in this style of casting. One short line at the 80-yard buoy in the first round, if we are not mistaken, killed his chance for the diamond medal.

The concluding race of the first day was light rod long distance casting, this being the initial contest here with five-ounce rods. Mr. Mansfield here came to the front with his record cast. H. C. Golcher, 127 feet, was second. It may here be noted that the seven men next up also went over the record mark. The dry fly casting event was noticeable for a general average of excellent work in this particular essential angling quality to success in stream fishing. Mr. Mansfield was high rod in this event, with F. H. Reed and F. N. Peet close up.

The concluding event of the tournament, long distance with heavy rods (not over 11 feet long) was the principal feature of the meeting. Col. Edwards led off, followed by others, who, while they made a good showing, did not get anywhere near an expected mark until Harry Golcher laid out his line for 130 feet. Mr.

H. G. Hascall.

Peet followed with 123 feet. Shortly after Mr. Mansfield was called to the platform, and from the moment his fly struck the water he attended strictly to business. A lost fly and a slight snarl took a portion of his ten minutes, but the champion did not allow these trifles to disconcert him. After several attempts he made his supreme effort. Seeing his line extend properly, he hailed the judges sharply, "Watch that!" The silk went forward impelled by a masterly extension aided by a perfect back cast. The serpentine convolutions rolled out beautifully, sending the nine-foot leader straight out and parallel with the floating gauge, the whole line dropping symmetrically and gently, lightly in fact as a cast at one of the accuracy buoys. The judges announced the result, 132 feet, which was received with cheers. Hascall and Brotherton followed, both scoring prize-winning casts. J. B. Kenniff, who was regarded by many as a dangerous competitor, closed the race. His work was noticeable for a vast improvement during the season. He tried two rods and finally changed to a third one to save time in tying on a new fly. Just before time was called he buckled down to work. Throwing his cap aside he whipped out the silk, got a few coils off the reel, and then, after a satisfactory back cast, put all his energy in a final grand effort. The result was a close shave for the champion's laurels, 131 feet, sandwiching him in between Mansfield and Golcher and winning him second prize in the race. Seventeen casters were in the race.

Another sensational feature of the long distance event was the saving cast made by Mr. Hascall in the team contest. The score of Mr. Mansfield, 134, went a long way towards decreasing the lead of the Chicago men in the team races. Hascall by a game and skillful application of his mastery over the rod and line served 127 feet, putting the visiting team in the winning goal by a slight margin. When the result was announced, the Eastern anglers received an enthusiastic ovation from the large crowd who were present and closely watched the finale of one of the most successful fly-casting tournaments in the history of the sport.

It was estimated that at least $1500 worth of prizes were distributed to the various winners in the five events. The principal trophy, a magnificent silver loving cup presented by W. R. Hearst, Esq., and valued at $125, headed the list and was awarded for the best individual general average. Another beautiful and valuable silver loving cup, presented by Shreve & Co., was the second important prize, this trophy was annexed by the Chicago club. The other awards, aside from diamond medal first prizes, comprised a costly and appropriate assortment of rods, tackle, and a miscellaneous collection of seasonable articles for anglers. The prize winners in the different events in their respective order were:

Contest 1—J. B. Kenniff, F. N. Peet, T. W. Brotherton, H. G. Hascall, Chas. Huyck, W. D. Mansfield, Edw. Everett, E. A. Mocker, John Waddell and H. C. Golcher, the last four were tied.

Contest 2—C. R. Kenniff, H. G. Hascall, F. W. Church, P. J. Tormey, W. D. Mansfield, J. B. Kenniff, T. W. Brotherton, H. C. Golcher, John Waddell and H. Battu.

The weather during both days was favorable during the forenoon, but each afternoon a west wind pre-ailed with the addition of a slight fog toward evening. The wind favored the casters to a certain extent—but what bothered most of the rod wielders and particularly the Eastern men, was the gusty cross currents that played havoc numberless times with casts that would apparently have made a good showing for the man on the platform.

Too much cannot be said of the skill and expertness of the visiting sportsmen. The graceful and telling manner in which they handled their tackle was much studied, admired and commented upon. Hascall's style of lure casting was particularly interesting. John Waddell has a peculiar knack of letting out his line from the reel, when making a back cast, that was a new one to the local talent.

A social and fitting windup of the tournament was the club banquet last Saturday evening. Walter Mansfield was chairman and Hon. John Hunt toastmaster. Many speeches were made before and during the presentation of the medals and prizes. Numerous healths were drank and the loving cups—the Hearst trophy and team prize, filled with sparkling wine were passed around the board repeatedly. During the evening a national organization of anglers was formed. The new body was named the American Fly-Casters' Association and the following officers were elected: President, Walter D. Mansfield; Vice-President, John Waddell; Secretary, Alex. T. Vogelsang; Treasurer, F. N. Peet; Directors—H. G. Hascall, W. G. Church, Colonel E. C. Fox, C. B. Kelsey, C. S. Wheeler and C. G. Young. Committee on Laws—P. J. Tormey, H. G. Hascall, F. N. Peet, C. THE FARM.

How is the Country to Increase Its Beef Supply?

It is very plainly seen that in the rapid narrowing of the western cattle ranges in public land by entry and settlement, the increase of beef must come from some other source, says the Indiana Farmer. What is it? Plainly, it is a fact that this increase must come through pure-bred cattle. The country can come to this as certainly as it did to pure-bred swine, which is the rule now, and not the exception as in beef cattle. Pure blood will increase the beef supply by making 1200 to 1400 cattle in twenty-four months, whereas such beef now requires, as a rule thirty-six months—that is, the same acres which now produce feed stuffs for 1000 pounds of beef will, with pure-bred cattle, produce 1500 pounds of beef, though growing no more grain or forage. But another condition toward which we are moving rapidly, and which, of course, must add in a marked measure to the additional increase in beef production, is that of feeding a balanced ration, in which protein, carbohydrates and fat are duly proportioned, and so saving much of the feed products now grown on the farm. Corn, now the chief reliance for feeding in all stages of live stock growth, is low in protein, but the latter can be produced abundantly on the farm by growing the cowpea and soy bean, both rich in protein, and so used as forage to balance corn in its high qualities in the other respects. And so the beef supply is to be increased by pure blood in breeding; by growing protein foods as well as fat and by a large saving in feed stuffs by using them in balanced rations. The agricultural colleges and experiment stations are doing a great work along all these lines, and a marked advance is being made by farmers.

Live Stock at State Fair.

The Directors have made special efforts to promote the live stock, dairy and poultry interests at the coming State Fair. Professor W. L. Carlyle, Professor of Animal Industry at the University of Madison, Wis., has been secured to judge all classes of live stock, and Henry Berrar will judge the poultry classes.

The State Dairy Convention will hold its annual session in Sacramento during the fair, and able lectures on matters of interest to farmers and dairymen, with many new and up-to-date examples, will be presented to visitors.

Among the many benefits that have been introduced by the State Agricultural Society, none have exceeded that of the introduction many years ago by them into this State of Chile clover, now commonly known as alfalfa. It has spread from this State all over the western portion of the United States, and is the most valuable forage plant now known for dairymen, cattlemen and other live stock breeders. Its economic value is so great that it cannot be even approximately given in figures.

This fair will be conducted on strictly educational lines; many examples of experimental agriculture, economic feeding and farming for profit will be elucidated. All interested in advancement of the highest types of live stock in every class should visit the fair, see the accepted standards of all animals that will be awarded premiums by so eminent an authority as Professor Carlyle.

In vaccinating to prevent blackleg the place of injection is a matter more of convenience than anything else. The original method, and one that is still largely followed with gentle animals, is to make the injection near the tip of the tail. The brush of the tail is held in the left hand and the tail is twisted. Then the side which is uppermost has the hair clipped out of a place one inch long. This should be done with a pair of sharp scissors. The needle of the syringe is then thrust under the skin, pushing it well under, and the necessary amount of fluid injected. If the animals are wild and have to be thrown or held in the chute, a more convenient way is to inoculate on the side of the neck just in front of the shoulder or if proffered the injections can be made just behind the shoulder. Animals one year old and over are given a full dose of vaccine. Under this age the dose should be reduced according to the age of the animal—that is to say, if it is under six months old it gets one-half the adult dose. Vaccine must be used within an hour or two after it is mixed with the water.

A drove of 100 two year old steers running on a good clover and timothy pasture and on full corn feed during the last half of May and the first half of June made the remarkable gain in weight of 119 pounds each in the thirty days, or nearly four pounds per day. This happened near the writer's home, where he saw the cattle and the certified weights.—Farm and Field.

Horse Steaks at Davenport.

On an average 300 broken down horses are killed and sold to Davenport people every year as prime roasts, steaks, corned beef and dried beef. On the outskirts of that city is a genuine horse slaughterery in charge of a German who is an expert horse butcher with years of experience at Berlin. Though he likes horse meat himself, preferring it to beef, he conducts his business under cover there and with great secrecy, because of popular prejudice against horse meat and certain state laws. Nearly all saloons and others operating cheap or free lunch counters serve horse meat sandwiches, weinerwursts, sausages, etc. Disabled horses are usually the particular prey of horse butchers, the average old hack horse being so tough that only the flank and meat along the back bone can be saved. Forequarters are usually sold to railroad contractors who have large bodies of men to board cheap. The portion of the carcass worthless for beef is fed to the hogs, and the bones and hides bring good prices.

Almost any wound in fowl or human is benefitted by anointing it with vaseline.

Chicks of large, heavy breeds are liable to get their breast bones twisted out of shape if they are taught to roost on perches before they are five months old.

The broods that have outgrown their coops should be looked over and the culls marketed as broilers, or if this is not practical, substitute a small open shed for a coop.

Where there is no natural shade in the poultry yard make a frame and stretch wires across it. For a permanent shade set woodbine at the base of the frame; for temporary use plant the seeds of the morning glory, gourd or other quick-growing vines.

If a man wishes to change the type of cattle kept upon his farm, it is better to sell out clean and start with the kind wanted rather than to attempt to cross breed into it.

What Does a Dairy Farmer Need to Know?

Not long since we saw a program of a dairy convention with the above named subject chosen for discussion. It set us to thinking. Mind, it was not—What may a dairy farmer know, but what does he need to know. The more we thought of it the wider the subject grew, until we saw two things plainly concerning it:

First—The great breadth of the question and the number and importance of the truths it contains.

Second—The great lack of this needful knowledge among the dairy farmers and their lack of appreciation of its value.

Let us consider a moment a few of the things a dairy farmer should know for his own interest and good fortune:

(1) He needs to know that this business of dairying cannot be successfully carried on without he is intelligent. He needs to know that a lack of dairy intelligence is constantly bringing serious losses; constantly producing serious waste of means and opportunities.

(2) He needs to know that he must make a constant effort to be intelligent; he must spend some little time and money, at least, in the reading and study of dairy literature.

(3) He needs to know that he has not yet learned the trade of dairy farming; that there are a lot of ideas and methods that he should know something about.

(4) He needs to know that dairy farming is not a stationary business and that he must keep up with the procession in knowledge if he cannot quite keep up in practice, for only in this way can he tell what practice or method wisely to choose.

(5) He needs the best knowledge and judgment obtainable in the selection, breeding, feeding and caring for the dairy cow. Any one of these four questions could be discussed to the extent of a full volume, but we have not the space and time now.

(6) He needs to know what crops to grow, that will best aid the dairy cow in her work. He needs to be a good student of the soil. He needs to know how to apply fertilizers, good tillage and right care so that his farm is constantly growing richer and stronger.

(7) He needs to know all he can know about the construction of barns and stables. His cows, in these northern latitudes live in them at least 20 hours out of 24 for one-half of the year. For a farmer to go to work to build a barn, expending a large sum of money and make no calculation for a full supply of light and pure air, shows at once that he does not understand the subject and what it means to him and his future profit. Yet that is just what a large proportion of farmers are doing when they build barns and stables. They do not seem to know what it means to shut up a stable full of cows and compel them to breathe, over and over again, poisoned air for 12 hours. Because the poor animals cannot talk; because the farmer will not read and post himself on sanitary principles; because he will not keep a record of what his cows are doing and because he does not read what cows are doing under better conditions—because of all this, he builds every year the same dark, badly ventilated and unhealthy stables that his grandfather did. Within the past 10 years there have been built in this great dairy county, over 1000 barns and not one in fifty of them is provided with any intelligent system of ventilation, or provided with one-tenth of the light they should have. What is it but ignorance of the right principles of sanitation that does this?

(8) He needs to know vastly more than he now knows about profitable feeding of dairy cows. He wastes costly feeds, all because he will not study the meaning of a balanced ration. He calls such ideas, "newspaper stuff," "book farming," etc.

(9) He needs to know the value of succulent feed for his cows in winter and the value of the silo to provide such feed.

(10) A look over the herds of cow, even in the most advanced dairy districts shows plainly that the dairy farmer needs to know more than he now knows about breeding and raising a good cow. His ideas on dairy breeding are so badly mixed up with general purpose, beef and all sorts, that his cows average at a low grade nearly everywhere. The cows he produces mark unerringly his ideas of cows. They are the work of his hands, the outcome of his ideas. Do they not show clearly that he needs to know more than he seems willing to know on this question?

We might prolong this article indefinitely, but here are ten branches of knowledge which we believe all will admit the dairy farmer needs greatly to be better posted in.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Treatment of Colts.

I like to have a colt go some in harness when a yearling, and then if it is not wanted in harness again for a couple of years when it is harnessed again its past association with the harness all seem to come back to it again, and is ready to begin where it left off. The summer the colt is a yearling is the hardest time to keep it in good flesh, and even with an extra chance it will get thin. When the colt is a two year old it will do some work or some driving, but I never intend to use them much at that age. My colts are stabled nights for five months during the cold weather—that is, they are tied with a halter. I do not like the way of letting them run loose, for they will move about too much of the time. But if they are tied up, with some bedding under them they will lie down most of the night. This takes the weight off their joints and rests their legs, and seems to me the better way for them.

Even if I intend the colt to get its living in the field during the winter it is put in the barn at night, given a little grain in the morning, curried, watered and turned out. Its stomach is empty; it will go out to the fields and eat most of the day. Toward night it will be back for some water and its place in the stable. If I have a three year old I want two of them; then work them a half day each—that is, make them do one horse's work. This is good for them, and will go a long way toward paying for their keeping; and then a colt treated thus will, if properly fed and handled, make a better growth and develop into a more desirable horse than if turned out in the best pasture for itself as a four year old.

For the same reason that a boy eats more from the time he is eight years old till he is twenty than afterward, the colt needs more feed than the matured horse. If I kept a horse till it was old and decreased in value I would not part with it, for those that deal in that class of horses are not always the best to them, and when a faithful animal has been kept in good shape till it has passed its usefulness as painless a death as possible and a decent burial would be a fitting tribute to the noble animal.—L. S. Green, in Farm, Field and Fireside.

Advices from Australia tell of the terrible drought in New South Wales and Queensland, which has devastated the sheep ranches of that section of the southern colony. Millions of sheep have died, and men formerly considered wealthy have been compelled to seek employment. Samuel McCaughey, the sheep king of Australia, lost more than a million sheep of his herd of a million and a quarter, and other large herders have been equally unfortunate.

One Breed in a Locality.

The observing traveler through rural England will note the uniformity of type or breed of live stock in given localities. In one, only Hereford cattle are seen; in another, Shorthorns; in one, one type of horse only, in another a different type, but one only. And the same is true of other animals. Evidently farmers have become convinced that there is not much difference in the quality of standard breeds of any of the improved animals, and it is a matter of personal taste only that influences in deciding which type to adopt. And it seems also evident that experience has taught that this personal taste better be subordinated to uniformity in a locality, the type depending upon purpose, say beef or milk, and therefore the last has become the prevailing custom.

It is not strange that this is so, for it is clearly the best way. There is practically no occasion or even possibility of a departure from the one type, and constantly breeding in that way must lead to a steady and decided improvement. Where several types of animals are bred in one neighborhood there are not likely to be as high-class individuals as where but one class prevails. It will be profitable to put higher cost and finer sires into such localities, for greater employment will be found for them, and this will lead to greater improvement. There will be a uniformity of the cattle in that locality that will attract buyers, and a certainty that enough of one type can be picked up at any time to profitably buy, ship and market. Where several types are bred in the same neighborhood, intentional or accidental crossing is likely to follow. Some will be tempted to "try a cross," if the opportunity to make it is at hand, to see what the effect will be. Then cross-breeds may be bred, ing, and in an emergency one of another breed, if it is handy, will be used "just for this time," and so mixtures and want of uniformity will exist that will repel buyers instead of attracting them, and that are not so profitable to buy, ship or market. It scarcely requires an argument to prove that this English custom is a good one.

A sire of a particular breed may be wanted. Sober up on Jackson's Napa Soda.

"SAVE-THE-HORSE"
TRADE MARK

SPAVIN CURE

Can be Applied during the Hottest Weather
NOTE OUR CLAIM:—"IT IS INFALLIBLE."

Let there be no mistake or misunderstanding as to this point. It makes no difference how long standing, what the condition, or if all other known treatment has failed, this remedy will positively effect a cure. This statement will appear absurd to the sceptic, but it is absolute and inviolable truth, and we put it in no stronger words than facts, actual experience—results—confirm. It contains the great essential principle to promote the complex process of absorption. It will raise a scurf or mild blister, but it is not by blistering a cure is effected. The great potency of "Save-the-Horse" lies in its concentrated penetrating absorptive power. It penetrates to the seat of the injury or disease, produces a physiological change, absorbing all inflammatory exudate or deposit, stimulating and diffusing vitality and strength to the tissues and ligaments, producing a healthy, normal condition of the part.

POSITIVELY AND PERMANENTLY CURES
Bone and Bog Spavin, Ringbone, Curb, Thoroughpin, Splint, Capped Hock, Shoe Bolt, Wind Puff, Weak and Sprained Tendons

AND SPEED CRACKS.

Cases where ulcerations extend with transverse cracks which open at every step and often bleed, no matter how complex, aggravated, deep seated or chronic, if treated according to directions as given on circular with every box, positively cured with Veterinary Pixine.

After Blistering

Veterinary Pixine is the very best application that could be indicated. It absorbs all inflammatory exudate and hastens the reparatory process. Will heal the most severe cases without scar and prevents loss of hair.

As a Preventive.

If a light application of Veterinary Pixine be used before speeding, driving in wet, muddy or slushy weather, your horse will never have speed cracks, scratches or grease heel.

For Hoofs.

It will keep the hoofs healthy, soft and in perfect form.

This penetrating, stimulating, soothing, absorbing, anti-septic, healing ointment heals from beneath the surface by disinfecting the parts, subduing inflammation, and stimulating healthy granulation, not by drying and scabbing.

GOOD RACING AT NAPA.

Attendance Large and Fast Time Being Made in the Harness Events.

The horses on the main circuit moved to Napa this week and have been furnishing some first class racing and reducing their records. The attendance has been fair all week, the crowds being large on the days when the best harness events were carded. Mr. C. A. Durfee has acted as presiding judge and starter for the harness events and has done excellent work, being complimented on all sides for his fairness as well as his promptitude in getting the horses away. Director Arthur Brown, lessee of the track has acted as Superintendent of the grounds and has kept the track in good condition as has been shown by the fast time made. Secretary Bell and his assistants have treated all with courtesy and everything has passed off pleasantly so far. J. C. Humphrey has the betting privilege, selling auctions and mutuals on the harness races and making books on the runs, to the satisfaction of the public. His crew of assistants are all experienced men, and there is an entire absence of that spirit of grafting and "cinch" odds that has prevailed under some of the previous holders of this privilege. The weather has been pleasant throughout the week. Napa's meeting is undoubtedly a success.

MONDAY, AUGUST 18.

The opening day at Napa was all one could expect so far as weather conditions, but the card was none the best as the fields in each event were quite small. The attendance was very fair for the first day and everything went off smoothly so far as each event was concerned. The first event was the 2:15 trot, in which six horses were entered to start, but two were scratched before they came to the post and on account of a little accident whilst scoring the gray gelding What Is It was drawn after being warmed up and ready to start, leaving only three starters. The handsome little horse Alta Vela, well driven by Mr. Hooper, was the favorite in the betting, bringing 20 to 8 for the entire field. He proved that his backers' confidence was right, as he won in straight heats and seemed to have some left at the end of each mile. This little horse will take quite a fast mark before the season is over. Vic Schellar led to the half in the first heat, going that distance in 1:05, but just as he rounded into the turn he made a break which spoiled his chances for winning the heat. In the second heat both horses went as a team till they reached the far turn. At this point Alta Vela forged ahead a trifle, but Vic Schellar came fast in the stretch forcing Alta Vela to trot in 2:13, which he won by a very small margin. The third heat was won by Alta Vela, Vic Schellar again breaking on the turn. Summary:

The first run was a mile dash and was won easily by the ch g Frog, ridden by Tullett. Lady Ella was second and Rafaelletta third. Aunt Polly also ran. Time, 1:08½.

The second run was a mile dash. Five horses started. Flirtilla, with Hazard up, won, Boardman second and Bill Young third. Wieland and Torilla also ran. Time, 1:44.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 19.

The card for the second day of the Napa meeting included two runs and two harness races and although coupled with a slight accident in the second heat of the first harness race, everything was pleasant both as to the sport as well as the weather. There was a fair attendance. The first race on the card was a trot of the 2:24 class. Seven horses scored for the word, Petigru being a prohibitive favorite, and he was a well chosen one as he won each heat and the race just as he pleased, the only contest being for second money, which was won by Forest W. In the second heat Forest W.'s sulky collided with that of Lady Rowena, causing a smash up, Forest W. getting the worst of it, breaking his sulky and throwing out his driver, but fortunately no injury was done except a few scratches on the horse's legs and a broken sulky, Mr. McDonald, the driver, escaping without any damage. Petigru won this heat although Forest W. galloped along by his side for most of the distance. The summary is as follows:

2:24 trot, purse $600.

Time 2:17½, 2:30, 2:19½.

The second race was one for 2:20 pacers; the favorite picked was a handsome brown gelding by McKinney named Welcome Mac, but he failed to make good; the chestnut stallion Robert I. by Hambletonian Wilkes, dam Anna Belle, very ably driven by W. G. Durfee, winning first money in good time and straight heats. Robert I. paced the fastest heat on the circuit so far this year in the second heat, same being in 2:10; in fact, the entire race was a pretty contest and in good time, proving Robert I. to be a game and fast race horse and one that has not nearly reached his limit. Seven horses faced the starter, but the race was always between Welcome Mac and Robert I. Welcome Mac led in first two heats till well around the far turn, but Robert I. coming fast passed just before reaching the wire. In the third and deciding heat Robert I. led from start to finish. The summary is:

The second run was also a 4½ furlong dash. The winner was Magnelone 113, Miss Culver 113 second

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 20.

Two running races and the 2:25 class pace made up the program for the third day of racing at the Napa Fair, the harness race opening the day's sport. There were but four starters in the event, Yukon being the favorite, Eagletta next choice and Smuggler and Nance O'Neil in the field. Even money was offered against the little horse named after the big Alaskan river, and when he lost the first heat there were some who thought it was not his day, but although Eagletta had the assistance of W. G. Durfee in the sulky she found the clip too fast for her and stopped a little in the stretch in the next three heats and Yukon won the second, third and fourth heats very handily, reducing his record to 2:14 in the second heat.

In the first heat Yukon made a bad break going up the back stretch and was far behind before Mr. Gordon got him settled, but he paced fast afterwards and was not more than thirty yards behind the mare from the south when she crossed the line. In the second heat Yukon paced the last quarter in 31½ seconds and won handily. Durfee gave Eagletta a good drive but she could not equal Yukon's stretch speed and had to give it up. The summary of the race is as follows:

THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Dear Sir: I beg to draw your attention to the fact that I have some time ago disposed and gave away my mares China Maid and Solo entirely. Peter Stirling 2:11 1 2.

Mr. D. C. Palmeter, proprietor of the Riverside Stock Farm at Berlin, Wis., where the wonderful three year old Peter Stirling was bred, has the following to say: "I have used Quinn's Ointment for several years and it is the best preparation I have ever seen or used and does more than you recommend. I have given it a thorough trial and it has proven successful every time." Mr. Palmeter is one of the leading breeders who are giving their unqualified endorsement of Quinn's Ointment. For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all bunches use this first class remedy. Price, one dollar delivered. Address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whiteha 1, N. Y., if you cannot obtain from your druggist.

Notes and News.

Petigru reduced his record to 2:15½ at Napa Thursday.

Marysville and Pleasanton will both hold meetings this week.

Simassie 2:11½ by Simmocolon 2:13½ is the fastest four year old pacing filly of the year.

It is said that Rythmic was whipped out when he reduced his record to 2:09½ this week.

Theron Powers 2:19½, a new performer by Anderson Wilkes, is a brother to Effie Powers 2:08½.

Robert I.'s mile in 2:10 in the second heat of the 2:20 pace is the race record for the Napa track.

McKinney's fee at his new home next year will be $200 and his book is already about half filled.

Sharkey, Mr. Chas. Griffith's pacer by Direct, went an exhibition mile at Napa Thursday in 2:15½.

You Bet 2:07 got third money in the 2:06 class pace at Readville Thursday. Duriel won in straight heats, both in 2:06½.

Boralma and The Abbot are both lame and out of condition to trot, and the match race between them declared off.

Major Delmar, that won the $15,000 race at Readville Thursday, is by Del Mar, son of Electioneer and Sontag Dixie.

Prince Direct, formerly Freddie C., has at last struck his expected gait and won at Readville last Wednesday. His fastest heat was in 2:07½.

Elderone 2:05½ is an unlucky horse. In the first race he was started in after his reinstatement, he was distanced for foul driving on the part of his driver.

The green pacer Stipulator, that was second to Simassie in 2:11½ at Freeport last week, is by Titus, brother to Direct 2:05½ out of Grace Kaiser, the dam of Coney 2:02.

Sam Bowers, chestnut pacing gelding by Hambletonian Mambrino, is winning all his races up north. He has won two races this week at Seattle and taken a record of 2:13½.

Robert I. and W. G. Durfee made a successful combination. Mr. Durfee drove the Hambletonian Wilkes pacer to a record of 2:10 and three straight winning heats the first time he started him.

John Nolan 2:08 died at Cleveland the other day from the effects of poison. A careless employe had smeared everything around the stable with "Rough on Rats, and the result was as above.

Dr. D. E. Nash of San Jose has purchased the chestnut mare Our Boy's Sister 2:15 by Baywood, formerly owned by Mr. George Y. Bollinger. Dr. Nash will use the mare on the road and will not race her.

The two-in-three events, which were interspersed in the programs at Detroit and Cleveland, seem to have found favor with both trainers and spectators, although the predictions were many that the horsemen would have none of them.

Joe Cuicello has added the trotter Young Salisbury to his string. This horse is a handsome fellow, although a little undersized, and is quite a trotter, but not inclined to stick to his gait. When he settles he ought to trot a mile close to 2:15.

The folks who are criticizing Hudson for distancing Thomas W. Lawson's Mary P. Leyburn at Detroit would do well to remember that Boralma in the first race he trotted for Mr. Lawson was driven to his limit in the sixth heat, to shut out Idolita.

Yukon 2:14 by Bay Bird has a record of three wins out of three starts this year and begins to look like a 2:10 prospect. While he does not get away fast from the wire he comes home like a whirlwind. His last quarter in the second heat of his Napa race was in 31½ seconds.

W. G. Durfee has the best string that has shown up on the circuit so far. With Petigru 2:15½, Lijero 2:17½, Coronado 2:21½ and Robert I. 2:10, he has a quartet of horses that can get money in about all the classes they are entered in. He has a few others that will be heard from later on.

Sam Gamble purchased the old mare Clytie II. by Nutwood at the Oakwood Park Stock Farm sale last Thursday and will breed her to Stam B. 2:11½. She is the dam of Neernut 2:12½ and Naniwa 2:17½, and while 23 years of age looks much younger. She should produce a great foal to Stam B.

The sale of horses from the Oakwood Stock Farm held on Thursday at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city was a complete success. The horses were mostly by Cleveland Bay and thoroughbred stallions although a few were standard bred. The prices obtained were very good, the average being about $100.

L. A. Dougherty, 303 California St., is meeting with great success in his business as hay, grain and commission merchant. His extensive acquaintance amongst the hay raisers in the interior enables him to at any time quickly supply a superior article, either for shipment or domestic use. Try him with an order.

Alone, the first of the get of Nearest 2:22½ to start won the green class pace at Napa, Thursday, in straight heats and took a record of 2:13½. Alone and her sire are owned by T. W. Barstow, of San Jose. Nearest, formerly Wilkes Direct, is by Nutwood Wilkes and is an own brother to John A. McKerron 2:06½.

Alta Vela reduced his record to 2:13 at Napa on the opening day of the meeting and won in straight heats. It does not look at the present time as if there is a trotter in California this year that can beat the fourteen year old stallion by Electioneer. Sam Hooper has him in fine shape and 2:13 in the second heat of his second start looks like still faster time later on.

Millard Sanders was given a surprise recently a Cleveland when he got up behind Nora McKinney and started to let her out. The mare has not shown very good this season. But last Thursday the mare showed a 2:12 clip and now she may be taken along with the rest. She is eligible to the 2:17 class and Sanders has an idea now that she is a 2:10 possibility.—Chicago Horseman.

Hambletonian Wilkes has a good representative on the Eastern tracks this year in Phebon W., a brown gelding that took a record of 2:11½ last year and has reduced it to 2:10½ this season. At Dover, New Hampshire, August 9th, he won second money in a seven-heat race in which after the first heat he was second every time that he was not first and was just beaten out the last heat in 2:09½.

Creseus is certainly a wonder. His first start this year, after a heavy stud season, was at Indianapolis on Thursday of this week and Mr. Ketcham drove him a mile in 2:04½. If any trotter reaches the two-minute mark this year it will be Creseus, and Mr. Ketcham thinks he will do it when weather, track and horse are all fit. The Indianapolis track was anything but fast Thursday.

The Indiana pacer Dan R. 2:04½ does not look the high class performer that he is. He is a soft chestnut in color, rather light-waisted in conformation, and in a collection of ordinary horses he would not be the choice of the average horseman if any of the rest of them were even fairly impressive. He is bred in old fashioned Indiana pacing lines, but he does not wear the hopples and paces his miles gamely.

Erosmont, the handsome stallion by Eros out of I Direct's dam, trotted a quarter on the speedway in the park last Thursday in 34 seconds, pulling a speed cart. He will be sent a half mile over the same track at 3 o'clock Sunday, the 24th inst. He has only had a week's work and his showing is remarkable. Those who are at the park to-morrow will doubtless see a fast half.

Walter Maben has one of the handsomest, best gaited and most promising Occident Stake candidates this year he has ever had, and he has won this historical stake three or four times. It is a filly and is by Zombro 2:11 out of a Silver Bow mare. She came through the stretch at Napa last Wednesday morning in 32½ seconds and looks like one of the kind that never bothers about the length of the track.

In the wagon race won by Lord Derby at Brighton Beach last Saturday, the Mambrino King gelding set a new wagon record, trotting the first heat in 2:05½ and the second in 2:06½. Lord Derby was driven by his owner, Mr. E. E. Smathers, and he beat the fast mare Louise Jefferson very handily. The miles were nicely rated as follows: first heat, 0:32½, 1:03½, 1:35, 2:05½; second heat, 0:32½, 1:03½, 1:34½, 2:06½.

The Roman met his first defeat in the $15,000 Massachusetts Stake at Readville Thursday. The race was won by Delmar in straight heats—time 2:08½, 2:08½ and 2:09. There were seventeen starters, The Roman drawing a position in the second tier. He must have been out of condition, as he never got to the front and was seventh in the summary. He started favorite. Charley Mac was also in the race and was eighth. Idolita was tenth.

When all the horses now being campaigned in California meet at Woodland week after next there should be some racing that is worth going miles to see. The harness racing thus far on the circuit has been excellent, good contests and fast time being the rule. This week two meetings have been held, one at Napa and one at Salinas. The horses will be divided again next week between Pleasanton and Marysville, but they will all meet at Woodland and then look out for records.

A Minnesota paper tells of a giant Buff Cochin rooster, owned by a Mr. Plumason, of Luverne, Minn., which has been trained to trot in harness, pulling a tiny cart, in which rides the baby son of its owner. Golden Duke is the name of this strangest of fowls, and it is a prize winner in its class, as well as a freak. The big bird was broken to harness by the boys of the Plumason household and now seems to enjoy its work. It wears a little harness and is guided by reins, which it carries in its bill. It is the master of several gaits and at the word of command, given by the small child who is driving, it will walk, run, trot or come to a standstill. At home in the country the big rooster often pulls the cart and its occupant for half a mile or more without stopping.

The Baron Wilkes tribe has three excellent representatives out this year in Rythmic 2:11½, Baron de Shay 2:13½ and Baron Dillon Jr. 2:17½, all trotters.

Todd, the sensational Boston colt, has distemper and is out of training for a second time and at a time when his stake races are about due. He may prove a disappointment to his owner, who last season refused $17,000 for him twice.

Chimes is now credited with eight performers that have made records better than 2:10. They are The Abbot 2:03½, Shadow Chimes 2:05, Fantasy 2:06, The Monk 2:07, Council Chimes 2:07½, Merry Chimes 2:08½, Dandy Chimes 2:08½ and Ed Easton 2:09½. The dams of all the above except Fantasy 2:06 and Merry Chimes 2:08½ were by Mambrino King. The dam of Fantasy was by Almonarch 2:24½, and Almonarch's dam was Hi, a thoroughbred daughter of Asteroid.

Barney Simpson has purchased from Oakwood Park Stock Farm, the four year old brown stallion Arner, own brother to Diablo 2:09½, Don Derby 2:06, Elf 2:12½, Ed Lafferty 2:16½ and Jay Eff Bee, yearling record 2:26½, and has him at the Alameda track. He worked him a slow mile one day last week, and Arner came the last quarter in 32½ seconds. He is a magnificent looking young stallion and Barney thinks he will be able to put him in the 2:10 list next year without difficulty, thus giving the famous mare Bertha three 2:10 performers.

Ed Lafferty has received two new additions to his string. One is a very handsome large McKinney three year old out of Eveline, the dam of Robet 2:12, Maud Fowler 2:21½ and Tietam 2:19 by Nutwood. This colt is owned by Mr. W. H. Lumsden of Santa Rosa and is entered in the Occident Stake to be trotted at the State Fair this year. He received a slight injury to his leg just before coming into Mr. Lafferty's hands, which may prevent his starting in the stake, but if he is sound and all right he will be a factor in this rich event, as he is nearly perfection as a trotter.

The fast stallion Online, purchased last year at a long price by the International Stock Food Company of Minneapolis, and placed in the stud along with the ex-champion trotting stallion Directum 2:05½ at the company's breeding farm, is dead. Online held the world's record of 2:04 for the fastest pacing four year old, a record made in 1894, and which has never been equaled by any other four year old pacer. He was by Shadeland Onward, dam Angeline (dam also of Ontonian 2:07½ and two more in the list) by Chester Chief. At the close of 1901, Online was the sire of thirteen in the list, twelve of which were pacers. His fastest representative is Onoto 2:10½.

A notable horse sale was consummated during the recent race meeting at Columbus, O. On June 4th, Mr. H. S. Turner, the well known Columbus horseman, bought a young horse which had never been trained, but was a fast natural pacer. He placed him in the hands of trainer Will Swarengen and he at once began to show extreme speed. Swarengen had him in training just 57 days and the horse stepped three miles as follows: 2:14, 2:11 and 2:08. Mr. Turner sold the horse to Mr. A. N. Merrill, who officiated as starting judge at the Columbus meeting. The price paid was $2500. The horse is called Fitzgiven, and he was sired by Strong Boy 2:11½.

The well known sire of speed, King of Bellaire, is dead in Ohio. As a sire of fast horses and good roadsters he had few equals from a utilitarian point of view and all through the dull times when most stallions had little or nothing to do he had full books right along. He was got by King Rene, son of Belmont and a great show horse in his day, out of a mare by Almont and when young acquired a record of 2:24 at the pace. He stood nearly all his life around Urbana, Ohio, and to his credit in the speed lists stand such performers as Indiana 2:04½, Dan T. 2:06½, King of Salem 2:11½ and others. He was a good looking horse, typical of the Belmont family, and did a lot of good in the region in which he was kept.

At the Brighton Beach meeting on Wednesday of last week, the biggest ripple of excitement was caused when E. E. Smathers and the Hubingers locked horns at the auction pool box over the Metropolitan $5000 purse for 2:20 pacers, the star event of the day. Smathers played Ed Geers' Direct Hal to win against the entire field of eight other starters at $1000, and the Hubingers, Nick and Joe, bought the field end at $700 for a time, just as fast as Smathers could nod his $1000 bid. This occurred before the first race was called. Mr. Smathers nodded twenty-seven times and $700 was put up by the opposition just that many times. On the twenty-eighth nod there was no sign or word to be seen or heard from the other takers of the field end. They were at a standstill. Direct Hal won in straight heats, and Mr. Smathers winnings were $18,900.

About as popular a little three year old there is in training this year is Charles Durfee's Occident candidate, Cuate, by McKinney out of Miss Jessie. He calls him "Shorty" as he is a little fellow, but there is more trotting horse in his make-up than there is in a whole corral full of most big horses. Cuate means "twin" in Spanish. When Miss Jessie foaled in 1899, Mr. Durfee wrote to his son that she had given birth to twins, "one a good sized colt that came dead, the other a jack rabbit" that was alive, and in fact this little fellow was not much larger. He had to be held up so that he could reach the maternal font as he was not tall enough to nurse from the ground, and as Miss Jessie is a small mare, some idea can be formed of the diminutive size of Cuate. He was well taken care of, however, and there is not a more rugged looking, better muscled, or more game little trotter in California. The winner of the Occident will have to trot some to beat him.

JOTTINGS.

NO BOOK BETTING on either running or harness races is to be permitted at Woodland this year, the progressive and up-to-date directors of that enterprising association having decided to test thoroughly the pool selling system which the harness horse owners have been demanding for years. It takes a lot of courage for a board of directors to make such a radical move, but the gentlemen of District No. 40 propose to give the pool selling question a test, let the experiment cost what it may. There is no doubt in the mind of anyone who has given any thought to the subject, but the bookmaking plan will materially reduce the revenue derived from the betting privilege, but that it will make better racing and cleaner sport is also certain. Bookmakers do not handle such great sums of money at the district fair meetings, but they manage to keep a large proportion of what they do handle and consequently can afford to pay large sums for the privilege. They are as honest as the average of men in their dealings, and the instances where races are jobbed by the bookmakers are not as frequent as those where the bookmakers are jobbed by the horsemen. But the system is not a good one, one of the principal objections to it being that the stakeholder is interested in the outcome of every wager—being a party to each bet. Then there is the further objection that there is disappointed in this effort to meet a demand that has been made with much earnestness by the owners of harness horses that race on this circuit.

Anzella trotted a wonderful race at Brighton Beach last Saturday, beating this year's champion, The Monk, reducing her record to 2:07½ and winning the fastest five-heat race that has been trotted this year. The heats were in 2:09½, 2:07½, 2:07½, 2:08 and 2:08½, the last three being Anzella's. When it is remembered that the fastest five heat race ever trotted was the one in which Charley Herr took the first and second heats in 2:07½, and Cresceus 2:02½, the next three in 2:07½, 2:07½ and 2:08½, this race won by Anzella shows that she is entitled to a place in the very front rank of free-for-all trotters. It need not surprise anyone to see her put 2:04 or better opposite her name before the year is out, as she has two-minute speed and can carry it as far as any trotter with the possible exception of Cresceus. Her only fault is an anxiety to go to the front that makes her uncertain at times, but she steadies down after a heat or two and when she does there is not a trotter in training that has any license to beat her. When the Santa Rosa Stock Farm gave Geo. A. Kelly, of Pleasanton, $4000 and a yearling colt by McKinney out of Bonsilene 2:14½ for her last spring they got her at a very reasonable figure, as she has already won out all the cash paid and could be sold to-day for over ten thousand dollars. She is one of the handsomest, soundest and swiftest of all the trotters that have ever been raced on the Grand Circuit. Her breeding is unlike any other very fast trotter that a stallion sired by Jerome Turner, but the pacer was given the name of Search Light A. for purposes of registration, and those owning colts or fillies by him out of registered mares need not hesitate in sending their names on to Secretary Steiner to be registered. Mr. J. J. Shoo of Oakland, this State, owns a fine two year old colt by Searchlight 2:03½ out of Deborah W. by Sable Wilkes that he has registered under the name of Search Light Jr. Several parties in California who own foals by Searchlight have failed to have them registered because they were led to believe the sire had not been given a number. It would be well for these to remember that the great pacing stallion's registered name is Search Light A. and not Searchlight. His number is 33657.

The rule which prohibits the duplication of names in the Register leads to considerable trouble at times. The stallion Monterey 2:09½, for example, is registered as Monterey Amigo, because two stallions had already been recorded under the name of Monterey before the rule prohibiting duplication was adopted. A gentleman who owned a Palo Alto bred colt told me not long ago that he spent an hour looking through the volumes of the Register recently, trying to find Monaco by Electioneer. After a vain search he was told that Monaco's name had to be changed to Mendocino before he could be registered, as the other name had been claimed years before. The horse was leased to the late John Boggs of Colusa county one year and was pretty liberally patronized by the breeders of that locality, and there are owners up there in that section now who will tell one with great pride that their favorite roadster is by Monaco who would be ready to dispute an assertion that it was by Mendocino. All of which goes to show that when a horse has been once given a name, any change in it will cause a mix-up.

One of the most impressive trotters that has made his appearance on the California circuit this year is W. G. Durfee's stallion Petigru that took a record of 2:17½ at Vallejo last Saturday and did it so handily that he looks to me like a 2:12 or better horse before the end of the season. He is not a particularly handsome horse, but is a strong heavily muscled one that has lots of knee and hock action and a bold way of going, qualities that are just the ones for a great sire. It takes a big sulky to prevent him from hitting his hocks in a race and he lifts his knees well up. He looks to me like a horse that can trot all the afternoon without showing any signs of distress and he could probably beat faster horses where the heats were split and drawn out. I hear that he has been worked several heats below 2:15 and that his owner does not yet know the limit of his speed. He is a little unsteady at times—not rattled, but inclined to leave his feet and indulge in a short run. When he keeps to his gait however, he is a high acting trotter before and behind, and while inclined to be a little sluggish, finishes a heat as though he means business and is not to be denied. He is one of the best bred stallions ever brought to this Coast and Mr. Durfee got a prize when he secured him. He should be a great out-cross for our California mares. He is by Kingward, a son of Onward whose dam and grandam are in the great broodmare list. Petigru's dam is Lemonade (dam of four in the list) by Kentucky Prince Jr., his grandam is a great broodmare by Melbourne Jr., and his great grandam is also a great broodmare and is by Alhoit a son of Abdallah 15. The next dam is by Brignoli 77, next by Pilot, Jr., 12, and the next by Ole Bull, a son of Old Pilot. He is chuck full of great broodmare and producing sire blood, and is a valuable acquisition to this country.

George Kneier, of Princess Alice fame, known to all the horsemen in California as "Rio Vista," won a bet of $50 at Napa this week on the proposition that in the 2:25 class pace at Woodland in 1895, the horse Don Fallis, driven by him, was not distanced. George has about as good a memory as the next man, and the party that bet him the fifty doubtless realizes it by this time. Don Fallis was 9-7-7 in the summary, Javelin won in straight heats in 2:14½, 2:15, 2:15½; Dictatus was second every heat, Birdroe got third money and Ruby M. fourth. There were ten starters and not a horse was shut out. I heard "Rio Vista" telling the boys at Napa this week about the race and he named everyone of the ten horses. I looked up the race in the Year Book when I reached home and found he had not missed a name. The way they appear in the summary is as follows: Javelin, Dictatus, Birdroe, Ruby M., Pansy, Dan N., Welcome, Lynette, Don Fallis, May Nutford. George is going through the circuit as usual and beating the races pretty regularly. He puts in the morning hours working out horses for his friends and has formed a strong liking for Farmer Bunch's livery horse, Faust by Aptos Wilkes, and has driven him some fast miles.

no chance for an owner to back his horse to any amount at decent odds if the horse is the favorite. In the auction and mutual systems the public makes the odds on each horse and while it is true that the big bettors of former days are not to be seen on the district fair circuits at the present time, the small bettors are numerous enough to make better odds against the chances of any horse that may be considered to have a "cinch" than would be offered were the betting done through the books. I saw 1 to 7 chalked up as the odds offered on a favorite in a trotting race the other day where there were seven starters. Does any enthusiastic supporter of the bookmaking system believe for a moment that there would not have been better odds against that horse were the wagering done by the auction system? One to seven was prohibitive and the horse was not played, but by giving rather tempting odds on the other horses quite a sum of money was taken in and, of course, kept. The auction and mutual systems leave the money won in the hands of the public with the exception of a small commission taken out—never exceeding five per cent. The Woodland association deserves the thanks of every man who races horses on the circuit for its stand on the betting question this year. Woodland always has a good fair, good racing and a good attendance, and has always been able to secure a large sum for its betting privilege. It requires courage to give up a certain financial asset for an uncertain one, but the directors are anxious to make the test and they should have the support of every person who desires to see the sport of harness racing made popular and clean in California. It is to be hoped they will not be is now before the public, and tabulates as follows for three generations:

ANZELLA 2:07 3-4	Aberdeen 27	(Hambletonian 40)
	Antrim 508	(Widow Machree)
	Hvama	(Hylas 831)
		(Lucy Almont)
Hazel Kink	Alwood 372	(Almont 38)
		(Dan of Blackwood 74)
	Daughter of	(Adam's Bellfounder)
		(Lady Comet)

Although the third dam, Lady Comet, was a mare of untraced breeding, she was a producer of speed, as to the cover of Williams' Bellfounder she produced Wonder 2:27½. There is Hambletonian, American Star, Mambrino Chief, Almont and other excellent strains of trotting blood in the pedigree of Anzella and she is no accident. Millard Sanders has handled her well since she came into his hands and has made her the fastest trotting mare of the year. With average luck she will return with the lowest record of any trotter regularly raced and campaigned on the Grand Circuit this year.

An item in the "News and Notes" column of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN last week intimated that Searchlight 2:03½ was not registered, a statement that I am pleased to correct. The great son of Dark Night and Nora Mapes has been duly registered and will be found in Volume 15 of the American Trotting Register. The name of Searchlight had been already taken for

Last Two Days at Vallejo.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 15.

The program for to-day included two harness races and two for the runners. The 2:24 trot brought out only four starters, but whilst the number of starters were few, it was a pretty race and left a doubt as to the winner until the last heat was decided. Forrest W., a handsome brown gelding by that good horse Wayland W., was the favorite and satisfied his backers by winning in straight heats, although from the observer's point of view he had no easy task. The first heat Lady Rowena was after him from start to finish and was only beaten a short neck in 2:20½. In the second heat the mare went after the gelding again, but he had too much speed for her, he winning quite handily in 2:20½. The third heat was a repetition of the other two, although Mr. Smith's mare Trilby made a brush in the stretch and came very near nipping Lady Rowena at the wire for the place, the heat being in 2:21. Summary:

Forrest W., br g by Wayland W. (McDonald)	1	1	1
Lady Rowena, b m by Pilot Prince (Van Bokkelen)	2	3	2
Trilby, ch m by Mambrino Chief (Joe Smith)	3	2	3
Miss Jones, gr m (Washington)	ds

Time—2:20½, 2:20½, 2:21.

The second race was a mixed race for trotters and pacers of the 2:20 class. Five horses scored for the word, but the gelding Prince Howard seemed to out-class the field and led from start to finish in each heat. Summary:

Prince Howard, br g by Dexter Prince-Norma (Van Bokkelen)	1	1	1

Allice Lee (p), m by Tennysonian (Gordon)	4	4	2

Time—2:32, 2:33½, 2:24½.

Third race, running, four and a half furlongs—Miquelone won, Lady Ella second, Miss Culver third. Madge Simpson, Julia Thorne, White Streak, Myrtle H. and Infornatu also ran. Time, 0:55½.

Fourth race, running, one mile—Billy Lyons won, Expedient second, Flirtilla third. Wieland, Froudo, Boardman, Jennie Miller and Banjo also ran. Time, 1:43½.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 16.

The closing day of the Vallejo meeting brought out a fair attendance and the weather, which had been excellent all the week was still further improved and the track was almost perfect.

The first race, for 2:19 class trotters, with a purse of $500, brought out seven starters. W. G. Durfee's stallion, Petigru, purchased in the East last year, was the favorite, the odds after the first heat being almost prohibitive. The other starters were Arketa, a gray mare by McKinney, owned in British Columbia, Puerta Rico, Cicero, Briar Hill, Robizola and the little Noonday mare Twilight. The race went to Petigru in straight heats, none of the other horses being able to push him to his limit. The fastest heat was the first in 2:17½ and this could have been a few seconds faster had it been necessary. In the third heat of this race an unfortunate accident occurred in which that veteran trainer and driver, Dennis Gannon, was severely injured. He was driving Twilight for her owner Mr. Anderson of West Berkeley, who recently purchased her. When the word was given in this heat Twilight went to a bad break soon after leaving the wire and in trying to get her back to her feet she swerved against one of the other horses at the first eighth pole and the sulky overturned, throwing Mr. Gannon out. One of the horses behind him probably struck him on the head with his hoof as he was picked up unconscious and had a severe cut on the forehead. A physician reached him in a few minutes and before long Mr. Gannon recovered consciousness and the next day was well enough to be removed to his home in Emeryville. He was severely shaken up by the accident and will probably be confined to his house for some time. Mr. Gannon is one of the oldest drivers in America and has been identified with the trotting turf for half a century.

The summary of the race is as follows:

Petigru, b s by Kingward-Lemonade (W. Durfee)	1	1	1
Puerta Rico, b g by Sable Wilkes (Culicello)	2	6	3
Robizola, b m by Robin (Quinn)	4	4	1

Second heat	0:37	1:11½	1:45	2:19
Third heat	0:38	1:10	1:43½	2:18½

There were seven starters in the 2:20 pace, for which the Waldstein horse Smuggler and the Ketcham mare Eagletta divided favoritism. The mare was driven in the first two heats by her owner, I. M. Lipson, who seemed to be unable to control her and she acted badly. Smuggler won the first and second heats rather handily, the very sore but fast little gray mare, Irene D., owned in Vallejo, getting the place in the first heat, and the Advertiser horse Admonte being second in the second heat, while Eagletta could do no better than fourth each time. Mr. Lipson then asked W. G. Durfee to drive the mare, and as soon as that accomplished young reinsman got up behind her there was a change in her actions and she won the next three heats very handily, Durfee being compelled to almost pull her head off in the last heat to keep from distancing several of the others. Smuggler got second money, Admonte third and N. L. B. fourth. Irene D. was drawn after the second heat, being so sore that she would not pace a lick, but insisted on galloping. The summary:

Eagletta, b m by Ketcham 2:20½	Lipson, and WOODLAND'S FAIR is thus far the best advertised fair on the circuit and consequently promises to be the best attended. There is no conflict of dates during Woodland's week, and all the stables will meet there the week before the State Fair. The track is in fine shape, and there will be the biggest display of live stock that will be seen at any of the district fairs. The races should be first class, as the entries are numerous and the horses evenly matched. The fair opens Monday, September 1st.

THE BRIGHTON BEACH PLAN will be tried at Pleasanton on the last day of the meeting next week. In this plan, which proved so successful at the Brighton Beach meeting week before last, there are but three heats to a race. The winner of the first heat retires from the race as does the winner of the second heat. The winner of the fastest heat takes first money. A special race will be arranged for next Saturday on this plan at Pleasanton, and it should be a very popular race.

MARYSVILLE will open its fair next Tuesday: the district fair will begin in that city next Tuesday and continue until Saturday evening. The prospects are at present very encouraging for interesting races at the track and many good exhibits at the pavilion. Director Hauss, who is giving attention to the pavilion exhibits, is very much encouraged by the support he is promised in making a grand exhibit of fruits, live stock and cereals. Many exhibits will be made by local merchants and manufacturers, who have engaged floor space. Mr. Hauss says attractions will be presented each evening, which will be an incentive to the townspeople to attend. At the track many horses have arrived from a distance and others are coming from Colusa and San Jose. The track is being watered and is being put in good condition for the contests. Geo. B. Kelley of San Francisco, has charge of the races.

PLEASANTON IS THE PLACE where the horse men and all who enjoy visiting an old fashioned county fair with all the up-to-date improvements, will congregate next week. The fair opens on Tuesday and the racing begins that day on the famous track where more champions have been made than on any track in America. The Golden Gate District Fair Association did a very wise thing in locating its fair at Pleasanton this year, and the display of live stock will be one of the largest seen at any of the district fairs this year. The pavilion space is all taken and the display will be one of the drawing cards of the fair. The citizens of Pleasanton and the surrounding country are very enthusiastic over the fair being held there and propose to make such a success of it that Pleasanton will be the permanent seat of the annual fair of District No. 1. The Board of Directors of the association, headed by William M. Kent, the president and ably assisted by Joseph I. Dimond, secretary, is at work with a will, each individual director giving a large portion of his time to make the fair a success in every particular. The program of racing, which is an excellent one, appears in another place in this issue. Take a week off and go to Pleasanton during fair week.

Running Races at Los Angeles.

In addition to the harness races, which will be given under the auspices of the Sixth District Agricultural Association, the Los Angeles Racing Association offer the following stakes to close Thursday, September 18, 1902, and in addition to these stakes overnight handicaps and special races to suit all classes of runners will be given, sufficient to have three running races each day:

Colts to carry 122 pounds, geldings 119 pounds, fillies 117 pounds. Winners since November 1, 1901, of a stake of the value of $1100 to carry 3 pounds; of two such or of one of $3000, 5 pounds extra. Non-winners of a stake since that date allowed 5 pounds; non-winners of a race of $300 in value since that date, 12 pounds; maidens, 15 pounds. Allowances not accumulative. One mile and a furlong.

Jonathan Act Stakes, for two-year-olds—Entrance $5; $25 additional to start; $400 added, of which $60 to second and $40 to third. Winners of a stake of the value of $1000 to carry 3 pounds; of two of any value, 5 pounds extra. Non-winners of a stake allowed 3 pounds, and if such have not won three races 5 pounds, two races 8 pounds; maidens, if never placed in a stake, 12 pounds. Five and a half furlongs.

The Catalina Handicap, for all ages—Entrance $5; $25 additional to start; $400 added, of which $60 to second and $40 to third. Weights to be announced two days before the race. Winners of other than a selling purse race after the announcement of the weights to carry 5 pounds extra. One mile.

The Pasadena Stakes, for all ages—Entrance $5; $25 additional to start; $400 added, of which $60 to second and $40 to third. Winners of other than a selling purse race after the announcement of the weights to carry 5 pounds extra. Six furlongs.

The Santa Anita Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward—Entrance $5; $25 additional to start; $400 added. Weights to be announced two days before the race. Winners of other than a selling purse race after the announcement of the weights to carry 5 pounds extra. One mile and a quarter.

Horses intended for this meeting should be shipped to Agricultural Park, University Station, Los Angeles. The Los Angeles Racing Association will do everything in their power to make this meeting a success. They are contemplating giving a winter meeting, believing that the interest taken in racing in Los Angeles, together with its superior climate and magnificent track, will draw many high-class horses.

Opening of the Monterey Fair.

The twenty-third annual fair of the Monterey Agricultural Association, District No. 7, opened Thursday at Salinas under very favorable auspices. The attendance at the track was nearly double that of the opening day of the last fair held two years ago. The day was a delightful one, ideal from a racing standpoint. The infield was lined with carriages and fine equipages, and more enthusiasm was manifested in the speed contests than on any first days in years.

In the judges stand W. P. Harkey presided, assisted by H. S. Ball and J. A. Treacy. The timers were H. E. Kent, J. H. Vance and Sam Matthews. The distance flag was wielded by John Leach. John Hunter is in charge of the track as marshal, assisted by Andy Svart. Summaries for first day:

Readville Meeting.

READVILLE, Mass., August 18.—The Grand Circuit meeting had the opening day at the Readville track with fine weather and some sensational wins for horses little favored by the betting fraternity, the favorites in each event being beaten.

During the races the management announced that there would be an extra day's racing on Saturday, when Dan Patch will endeavor to beat the world's pacing record of 1:59½, made by Star Pointer in 1897. Summary:

2:08 class, pacing, two in three, purse $1500—Major Muscovite won the first and third heats in 2:07 and 2:08½. New Richmond won the second heat in 2:08½. The Bishop, Dandy Chimes, Sphinx, Louise G., Knox's Gelatine Boy, Carthage Girl, Albert Nathan Strauss and Cinch also started.

The "Blue Hill," 2:30 class, trot, purse $5000—Wentworth won the first, third and fourth heats in 2:09½, 2:10½ and 2:14½. Chase won the second heat in 2:09½. Maxine, Patchen Maid, Manila, Dick Barry, Boralma's Brother, Upton, Alfred Star and John Patterson also started.

2:16 class, pacing, purse $1000—Surfeit won three straight heats in 2:12½, 2:08½ and 2:09½. Lucy Wilkes, Buck Thorne, Kavalli, Cascade, Satan, Baroletta and Sphynx also started.

2:13 class, trot, two in three, purse $1000—Baron de Shay won the second and third heats in 2:11 and 2:10. Wilque won the first heat in 2:10½. The King, Aggie Medium, Consuelos, A. J. D., Flash Lightning, Pug, Darwin, Confessor, Red Princess, Promise, Phoebe Onward, Hamward and Mars also started.

There was no racing Tuesday on account of rain.

August 20—The Grand Circuit card to-day was the one arranged for Tuesday and which rain prevented. As the natural outcome the track was sticky, but, with this drawback, Direct Hal broke his own record of 2:06½ and the Norfolk stake record of one-fourth of a second slower, by going the third heat in 2:06. This race was easily the best of the day and the great incident was the whirlwind finish in the second heat between Direct Hal, driven by Geers, and Greenline, driven by Saunders.

The second event in to-morrow's races will be the great Massachusetts 2:12 trotting race for a purse of $15,000, and fast time is expected, as the track is in good condition. Summary:

The Norfolk, 2:24 class, pacing, purse $5000—Direct Hal won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:07, 2:06, 2:08. Greenline won the first heat in 2:09½. Termino, Fussy, Free Advice, Cubanola, Deacon, Elastic Pointer, Beasant and Gold Brick also started.

Trotting, 2:11 class, two in three heats, purse $1500—Susie J. won two straight heats in 2:10½, 2:10½. Metalas, Antezella, Temple Wilkes, Ozaman, Palm Leaf, Prince Lavalard, Colonel Cochran, Waubun, Border, General Johnson and Glory also started.

Trotting, 2:18 class, purse $1000—Prince of Orange won three straight heats in 2:12½, 2:14½, 2:11½. Silver Heir, Millard Sanders, Ben Hale, Alabrie, Kalevala Ralph Wyck, Belle Curry, Baron Belle, Eulah Mac, Effie G. and Hall Fry also started.

Pacing, 2:11 class, two in three, purse $1000—Prince Direct won the first and third heats in 2:07½ and 2:09½. Bill M. won the second heat in 2:07½. Oneota, Annie Leyburn, Dan Riley, Evolute, Alice Holmes and Maggie Hubbard also started.

August 21—The Massachusetts stake race, for 2:12 class trotters, the biggest prize of the Grand Circuit week at the Readville track, proved a commonplace affair this afternoon through Major Delmar's win in three straight heats. Before the race the wisacres were picking The Roman to win purely on his splendid races of late. The gelding made a miserable showing, seldom having speed enough to get ahead of the second platoon. Major Delmar's victory after the money had been won looked a simple one, considering he took the 2:13 trot at Detroit and the 2:16 trot in Cleveland and against fields that did not make him reach his top speed. Major Delmar is owned by George Vandyke of Boston. Summary:

2:21 class, trotting, three in five, purse $1000—Kwanon won in three straight heats in 2:12½, 2:13½, 2:13½. Norcol, Anna Held, Rustic, Roan Wilkes, Milton, The Questor, Surprise, Betsy Rose and Kamares also started.

The Massachusetts, 2:12 class, trotting, three in five, purse $15,000—Major Delmar won three straight heats in 2:08½, 2:08½, 2:09. Lady Thisbe, Dulce Cor, Edna Cook, Hawthorne, Poindexter, The Roman, Charley Mc, Aloy, Idolita, Belle Kuser, Easter, Miss Whiting, Dan T., Altre L., Ruth M. and Leola also started.

2:06 class, pacing, two in three, purse $1500—Daniel won two straight heats, each in 2:06½. Charley Mait, You Bet, Riley B. and Fred S. Wedgewood also started.

Goals of 1899, two in three, purse $2000—Chesco won the third and fourth heats in 2:19½, 2:20½. Roma won the second heat in 2:18½. Baroness Powell won the first in 2:16½. Tom Phair, Kyrrilio, Kentucky Wilkes and Baron Wilkes Jr. also started.

2:21 class, three in five, purse $1500—Wilton Boy won three straight heats in 2:14½, 2:13½, 2:15½. Mary Joe, William Tell, Kitty Wilkes, Katrinka G. and Trilby Simmons also started.

McKinney and His New Home.

[Western Horseman, Aug. 15th.]

McKinney 2:11½, the successful race horse and sensational extreme speed sire, arrived at his new home, the Gentry Stock Farm, Bloomington, Ind., last Friday evening, and it is safe to say that no stallion ever received a warmer welcome. The editor of The Western Horseman had been taken into the confidence of the enterprising and appreciative citizens of Bloomington and knew that a great surprise and a warm reception awaited the arrival of Mr. Gentry and his famous new purchase. Boarding the Monon fast express at Greencastle, Friday afternoon, we had the pleasure of finishing our journey to Bloomington in the car with Mr. Gentry, Dr. O'Rear, the only McKinney 2:11½, a handsome California-bred broodmare and her four months old filly by McKinney. The party was journey-worn, but at that McKinney impressed us as a horse of rare grandeur, almost human intelligence, unsurpassed individual quality and just about perfection of form and finish. Arriving at Bloomington about 4 o'clock, we found the streets about the depot literally packed with people, all anxious not only to see McKinney, but to do honor to his new owner, who, we afterward learned, is idolized and lionized by the citizens of Bloomington and surrounding territory. A brass band "Hailed the Chief," the stallion was unloaded as soon as the people could be gotten out of the way, a procession was formed, headed by the band and McKinney, and the march for the Gentry Stock Farm, some two miles out, was taken up. McKinney had been decorated with a mammoth flower saddle and collar before leaving the car, the gift of the people of Bloomington, and the march to the farm was a picturesque one. Arriving at the farm, a beautiful tract of four hundred rolling and fertile acres, "the home of McKinney" was christened a la battleship style and the new king of the harem given undisputed possession of his new and palatial quarters. Following this came feasting and speech-making, in which visiting horsemen lauded McKinney and his achievements, while the home orators, including Hon. J. B. Wilson, toastmaster, Hon. Ira C. Bateman, Hon. John R. East, Hon. R. G. Miller and others vied with each other in telling of the thrift, enterprise, philanthropy and general public-spiritedness of Mr. H. B. Gentry—Mrs. Gentry and the nine months old H. B. Junior coming in for a merited lion's share of praise.

The editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, San Francisco, last week said: "The severest blow and greatest misfortune to the trotting horse industry of the Pacific Coast is the sale and shipping away of McKinney," and to us it is as equally true that the greatest good that has come to the speed breeding interest of the great central West is the purchase of McKinney by H. B. Gentry. Not but what this section previously possessed great speed sires, but that we also needed McKinney, and that he will meet with appreciation. Without knowing what his fee would be, appreciative gentlemen have already about half filled his book for next season. As per announcement in this issue, we are able to say definitely that his fee for next year will be only $200—less than many expected. He will also be allowed five approved outside mares at this same fee this fall. His book will readily fill, and hence owners of good mares who desire engagements will do well to brook no delay.

McKinney's new owner is a gentleman destined to soon become very popular in the trotting horse world, as he is elsewhere personally known, and the great sire's new home will be a model one when its master gets his ideas in tangible shape. The Gentry Stock Farm is an ideal one in the rough, and soon it will have every modern and needed improvement. A new and elegant barn is half completed, paddocks, pastures, out-barns and a training track are already planned, and perfect provision will soon be made for the care of visiting mares and their produce. Mr. Gentry's sphere will be that of a breeder, and not a turfman, and a few more broodmares will be added to his present select band of a dozen or more.

Bloomington is situated on the Monon railroad, between Louisville, Ky., and Greencastle, Ind., and hence is of easy shipping access. The city itself is beautifully situated, and the Gentry Stock Farm, a couple of miles out, is in an ideal location for its purpose. Long live McKinney!

In this demonstration the citizens of Bloomington did Mr. Gentry great honor, but in doing so they did themselves still greater honor by showing their appreciation of a distinguished citizen and his new purchase, the greatest young extreme-speed sire of the decade. McKinney is a wonderfully rich brown stallion, full 15.3 hands high, weighs 1140 pounds, full and evenly made and just about perfect in finish at every point. When asked if he was disappointed in McKinney's individuality when he first saw him, Mr. Gentry replied: "Very much so, for I could not realize that without even seeing him I had purchased a stallion absolutely faultless in size, form and finish. I bought him to get the greatest extreme speed sire living, age considered, but I now believe that I have the grandest individual as well." This was also our impression and we are sure that no breeder will fault McKinney as an individual.

McKinney's rating as an extreme and uniform speed sire is most unique. With the greatest part of his fifteenth year still before him, he has five performers in the 2:10 list (and two more trotters at this writing with records of 2:10½), nine in the 2:12 list, twenty in the 2:15 list and twenty-nine in the 2:20 list. Zephyr, a granddaughter, has trotted to a four year old record of 2:11, and Chas. A. Durfee, his late owner, declares that there is "material enough now on the dump"—promising ones in training in California—"to raise McKinney's 2:10 list to an even dozen, at least." The Roman 2:10½ has not met defeat this year, and most horsemen think he can trot in 2:07. Charlie Mac 2:10½ and Zephyr 2:11 can both surely beat 2:10, and it will not surprise us if at least two of these acquire records better than 2:10 ere the ink is dry on what we are writing.

The Passing of Boralma.

[Chicago Horseman.]

After the Lord Derby-Boralma race at Hartford there was much speculation as to the cause of Boralma's too evident bad form. It was said that the blacksmith had his own way in the matter of shoeing and put an extra heavy shoe on the great little gelding despite the protests of Trainer Marsh. Other stories equally improbable were set afloat. The veterinary who attended Boralma makes the following statement, according to the Boston Traveler:

"This overweighting statement is all bosh. The horse was weak, and he cross-fired, with the result that he cut his quarters. The gash was only about an inch in length, and had that been the only trouble the wound would have been cocained. Boralma has had a bad leg, he had it before the race, and he has it now, and the chances are that he will always have it.

"The matter of a quarter cut on Boralma was nothing; but the fact is, the Lawson party was only too glad to find some excuse for withdrawing the horse from the race. He was good for only one heat. He wouldn't stand training, and Tom Marsh and the second trainer knew that. He has a bad tendon. He was lame, and that's all there is to it."

Horsemen generally will regret the breaking down of Boralma. Mr. Lawson had the gelding overrated, according to general belief, but that in many respects he was a wonderful trotter all are free to admit. Boralma was trained and raced as a two year old and has been steadily in racing condition ever since. As a colt he was undoubtedly given a tremendous amount of drilling, and this, with the preparation he has been given year after year, has at last told on him. That he stood up as long as he did is remarkable. On the other hand, the horse to defeat him in his last three races had none of the severe work as a youngster that fell to the lot of the Boston horse. As a colt Boralma was lucky; after he passed that age he did not have the usual run of luck that a winning horse should have. Those who oppose the racing of colts will find arguments in Boralma's downfall to support their contention. While he did not have many races in his two and three year old form, all familiar with the history of the young Boreals will admit that Boralma's drilling must have been severe.

From the following letter from Thomas W. Lawson, it is evident that for the time at least Mr. Lawson is through racing trotters:

"Boralma's racing career was probably forever ended by his accident. Anyway, he is on his way to Dreamworld, where he will endeavor for the balance of his life—and may its length be commensurate with his pluck, beauty and intelligence, if it is, he will live to be over one hundred, yes, a thousand—to see that he has the reddest clover tops, the greenest blades of grass and the fattest, juiciest oats, with no end of petting to season their eating and digestion.

"I leave to others, those myriads of intelligent horsemen, to explain what he would have done had things been different. To me he is no different, nor will he ever be, than if he had won the Lord Derby and every other race. In discussing, as the horse world now is, the whys and wherefores of match races, I would ask the intelligent consideration of those who have the best interests of the horse at heart to the problem I endeavored to solve with Boralma's match races. I early found it was impossible in the trotting horse game, as it is conducted, for the best horse to receive even equal treatment with the poorer ones in the regular races; that is, that I found that it necessarily followed that the best horse would be combined against through the system of laying up heats. This is my only excuse for Boralma's match races. I knew, or thought I knew, the dangers which attended match races where large sums were involved.

"As to the balance of my racing stable, Mary P. Leyburn, Poindexter and the others, they are all on their way to Dreamworld, where I trust they will enjoy themselves in those plain, old-fashioned ways that prevail upon the farm, and that what they lose in the excitement of being beaten by horses that trot seconds slower (as, for instance, Mary P. Leyburn at Detroit, where the horse that trotted the race two seconds slower was called her victor), they will make up in indolence and farm ease.

Mr. Marsh, who put in so much good work training the stable, and who made such heroic efforts with Boralma, has been given a well earned vacation at Dover for the balance of the season.

THOMAS W. LAWSON."

Thora Again With Foal.

A letter from Lexington says there is great rejoicing at La Belle Stud and Hamburg Place over the fact that William C. Whitney's Thora, queen of American broodmares, is with foal to imp. Sandringham, brother to King Edward's Diamond Jubilee (winner of the Triple Crown, 2000 Guineas, Derby and St. Leger), Persimmon (winner of the Derby and St. Leger, and sire of Sceptre) and Florizel II, sire of Volodyovski, winner of the Derby of 1901.

Thora proved barren last year and fears were entertained that owing to being now twenty-four years old, she would never breed again. She was sent to Hamburg Place early in the spring. The produce of Thora have won over $266,000 on the turf, the only two mares that led her in this respect being the famous Mannie Gray and the noted Marian, both of which are now dead.

Her great winning sons and daughters are Dobbins, Yorkville Belle, Sir Francis, St. Agnes, St. Nicholas II, Viking and Trump, and as the latter is winning this year as a three year old, Thora may yet live to surpass both Mannie Gray and Marian in money won by her offspring.

Absorbine Imitators.

It has been said that "imitation is the sincerest flattery." If this be true, then Dr. W. F. Young of Springfield, Mass., has cause for pride. A host of imitators of Dr. Young's Absorbine testify to the worth of the real article. Absorbine is a veterinary remedy which has long had an enviable reputation in the United States.

In Austria a firm was lately organized to manufacture and sell a preparation called "Absorbiniol." The promoters laid claim to all the properties of Dr. Young's Absorbine, and, indeed, they flouted his printed matter in all its entirety. The doctor at once instituted proceedings against the imposters, and succeeded so well as to draw the attention of the Austrian government to the matter. The result was that government officials investigated, and were so impressed with the injustice which had been done Dr. Young that all the papers in the case were recalled, the trade marked "Absorbiniol" was killed, and a trade mark issued to Dr. Young's original "Absorbine."

In England a firm made application for the registry of a trade mark exactly the same as Dr. Young's "Absorbine," in the most minute particulars. The doctor got after these people promptly, and the crown refused to grant the trade mark to the English applicants, but did grant and register the trade mark of the original "Absorbine" of Dr. Young.

The smuggler dogs along the border of the German empire and the French republic understand both languages. They are sent across the frontier to the house of some confederate with their loads of merchandise securely fastened on their backs. Here they are concealed, caressed and fed until they are ready to return with a load to France. They travel only on dark or stormy nights—avoid all roads—allow no one to approach them, and take great precautions in slipping through the frontier guard. They know that their traffic is illegal, and that they must not be seen with their loads upon their backs. They are criminals, trained to violate the law and employ every stratagem to escape detection.

Entering Terriers for Work.

Concluded from Last Week.

Under the circumstances, the best way to commence operations is to handle your ferrets before the dogs, letting them see, and get wind of the ferrets, but sternly repressing any undue familiarity. All that the dogs should evince towards them is a friendly interest, and you can give them their first lesson in the working of them. Whether the terriers are to be used for rats or rabbits, I think the first lesson is best given on rabbits. You can make fairly certain of getting a rabbit or two from one small burrow or another, and it is just as well at first to steady the dogs on bolting quarry. Taking each dog in turn to commence with, and using nets, the terriers should be shown the holes, and nets—for nets must be used—placed over the holes, and the dog or dogs taught not to wind at any holes covered with a net. The ferret can then be taken out, shown to the dogs, and be put into the burrow. The dog must be held on leash, and when a rabbit bolts any attempts to get at it whilst in the net firmly repressed. The rabbit being taken out and killed, should be shown to the terrier; let it nose it, and teach it 'ware dead. Several rabbits may be killed in this manner until the young dog is upon its best behavior whilst on the leash, and then it may be tried loose, and schooled until thoroughly steady. In this way it will learn to look for rabbits in the burrows, and should be allowed to wind at the holes when the nets are taken up, and if it show disposition upon subsequent occasions, before they are put down. In this way any instinctive predisposition towards "marking" which the dog may possess will be encouraged and developed. The faculty for "marking" correctly is to my mind bred in dogs, and can rarely be taught them; in fact, as regards rats I am practically certain it cannot be done with any reasonable claim to trustworthiness. The scent the rat leaves is too permanent, and clings for days to an abandoned run or working. With rabbits, however, it is somewhat different.

It is here that the great difficulty of training the same dog to rabbits and rats comes in. In the case of the former you want a very steady dog to be of any use to you at all. In the latter you require a quick impetuous one to serve you effectually. When rabbits are being ferreted to the gun the terrier in use must not move till the rabbit is wounded, and has to be caught; when rats are being ferreted the dog has to nail its quarry at the instant or immediately following its exit from its hole, whatever that may be. It consequently follows that when you have young dogs entered to this stage of the business a point has been reached where the further training of the young dog commences and the actual entering ends. A word of reference, however, may be made to the entering of them to other small vermin than rats, such as stoats, weasels and polecats. With these vermin all the preliminary training advocated for the working of young terriers upon rats holds good, but, of course, the first actual acquaintance of these will, in all probability, be when they are in a trap, or by chance when ferreting or otherwise working in the open. The foster of these vermin is a stumbling block to many a young dog, and you should never allow such to more than kill. Any tendency to mouthing the quarry should be strongly repressed, and if after a kill you see your dog rubbing and working its muzzle in the grass or ground leave it to itself, for it is only seeking a natural disinfectant. This is a point worthy of close attention, and it may serve a good purpose to wipe and wash the young dog's mouth and muzzle with diluted Condy's Fluid after any vermin killing of this nature, and before feeding them. The fetid odor and taste may remain with them otherwise, perchance sicken them, and for always put them off tackling any of the weasel tribe.

It will be seen from the foregoing that there is nothing in the entering of young terriers to work and in the actual working of them that can in any reasonable way unsuit them for the show bench. Why well-bred dogs—prize-bred if you like—should not be thoroughly entered for work is a secret deep down in the breasts of their owners. Rabbiting in reason cannot in any way affect the appearance of a dog upon the bench, except for the better, and dogs properly entered to kill rats and vermin, not to fight them, as I have previously enforced, can also suffer no hurt in the process, whilst the mere fact of being a good working terrier as well as a first-rate bench dog can but add to the value and attraction of the animal, whilst after all is said and done a terrier, whatever be its breed, is worthy of something more than mere walking exercise, an address card and a silver mug. To my mind the better bred the working terrier, the better the dog. The association of bad breeding with good working qualities is not right to-day, and never was, and long before silver cups and championships were thought of the best working Fox Terriers were the best bred. To-day the best bred should be the best workers.—Moorman in the English Stock-Keeper.

The Texas Kennel Club's fifth annual show has been postponed until next year. The State Fair buildings at Dallas were destroyed by fire.

There seems to be an unlucky coincidence in Dr. Clayton's connection with his two last shows. The last 'Frisco show was knocked into a cocked hat financially, that is the gate was, by the street car strike and now the Texas show has been side-tracked by a fire. Mr. Klein was superintendent at our show, Mr. Clayton was one of the judges—for the Texas show the positions were reversed.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The smooth Rowton Turk has been transferred from Mr. E. Powell Jr., to George Raper.

The Spaniel Club and its recent doings are the subject of some pithy correspondence in the Eastern press.

Mr. Clinton E. Worden's young English Setter Spotter, recently received from Tennessee, is a handsome lemon and white high class working dog, full of ginger and good quality.

Mr. Graham E. Babcock paid a brief visit to this office on Tuesday. Roundsman was with him and in fine fettle. Mr. Babcock has purchased the French Bull Diablo from Dr. Kendall. The dog has not yet been forwarded and we opine that it is like pulling teeth for the Doctor to part with him.

Some good Bulldogs will make their appearance here soon. George Raper has sold to a California fancier Ivel Damon, full brother to Ivel Dearie and a son of Ivel Doctor, for a good price. Damon is said to be one of the best of Doctor's get and is the winner, in eighteen months, of twenty-nine prizes. He is described as a typical Bulldog, with plenty of bone, beautiful ears, plenty of wrinkle. He is the best roach-back dog on the English bench to-day and withal a perfect pal.

The total number of entries for the South Dakota field trials is one hundred and twenty. Fifty-one in the Derby (twenty-nine English Setters and twenty-two Pointers, fifty-one in the All-Age (one Irish Setter, twenty Pointers and thirty English Setters) and eighteen in the Subscription Stake. Stockdale Kennels' Cuba Jr. and Petronella, Dr. Wilson's Clipper W. and Verona Kennels' Verona Wilhelmina are entered in the All-Age.

Fleet though the local Greyhounds are they are often pitted against swift hares, possibly the fastest in the world. A number of good ones last week tried the dogs to that extent that today's coursing has been cut out at Union Park. Strong running hares last week and the consequent long races had the effect of putting many hounds on the retired list and only two stakes filled with enough dogs of quality to make interesting coursing. An open stake with forty-four entries and a twenty-four-dog special will therefore be the card for to-morrow. The courses are now of three minutes' duration, if the hare is not caught or is unlucky in making its exit, the two dogs in the course are relieved—sometimes they are saved from serious injury—by relief dogs that are put in to finish off a demon hare.

A story is going the rounds of Fox Terrier circles that is an interesting one. It will be remembered that Lithian Blizzard was absent from the May show here. The reason for this was given out that he was down with distemper in the kennels of the Eastern handler to whom he had been consigned when shipped from England in transit to his new owner in this city. Blizzard out of the way, Rowton Bezom, with five points to his credit, won out here and when he went back to Mr. F. H. Farwell in Texas he was landed home, by his clever handler, a champion.

The question that is now puzzling the fancy is—just what was the matter with Blizzard. Mr. George Raper being curious to know why Blizzard did not materialize here and either fulfill the promise of his style and quality, or at any rate give the other dogs a run for their money, was eventually apprised of the situation and given incidental information. He wrote in answer that the dog had passed through the distemper sickness long before his leaving Albion's shores and that he was very much surprised that he should have a second attack (?) of it. There was also in this communication a gentle hint conveyed that it would be better for a purchaser to cut out some handlers when getting a dog through from England.

Some of our local wisecracks are capacious enough to insinuate what really was the cause—or rather influence—that kept Blizzard out of the show. Offering the ingenious reasoning that the other dog would then have an unchallenged walkover to the championship.

We cannot believe it ourself, deeming it incredible that these things are done. This theory of sidetracking a dog is hardly compatible with the ethics of the profession, so much so that we will wager that if the matter is worth noticing at all it will be refuted by a $1000 wager, backed up by the usual deposit of a $200 check. We have a check (unendorsed) on deposit now for $10,000 that the story is only mere canard.

A good story illustrating clever intelligence shown by Glendale, a handsome Pointer owned by Clarence A. Haight, was told us this week.

The dog is accustomed to a frequent wagon trip down to the DuPont powder magazine, situated some miles south of this city on the bay shore. "Glen" generally rides with the driver the greater portion of the way down, getting off for a run when the vehicle is within a mile or so of its destination. One day this week the dog was taken along with the wagon and as usual, jumped off for his run and regular investigation trip. Going into the doorway of a vegetable gardener who knew and also liked him, he was given a portion of a loaf of bread. The bread baked by the Italian gardeners is of a pretty hard consistency originally, this particular piece was ancient and doubly hard and difficult to chew. The dog picked up the bread and made for the road, following the distant wagon a half mile until the magazine was finally reached.

When the driver makes his regular visits to the storehouse, or when the powder stock is checked up, some time is consumed before the start back to the city is made, the dog, meanwhile, is left to his own resources. The dog, on arriving at the magazine, as a rule, is on the platform and at the doorway ready to enter as soon as the iron doors are unlocked. This time instead of at once going to the door and inside the building as was his custom, he kept right on to the close-by shore and dropped his loaf of bread in the water. Leaving the hard bread in the water for a short while he complacently picked it up again and brought the soaked loaf into the building and seeking his favorite spot, leisurely enjoyed a lunch on the soft bread.

From the actions of the dog in treating the bread to a soaking, the inference is that he must have used a certain amount of reasoning—finding the bread hard, smooth and too bulky to enable him to chew it with any degree of satisfaction he deliberately planned by placing it in the water to put the morsel in shape for proper mastication. Whether the bread was more palatable or not after the salt water, can not be known, suffice it to say the dog evidently enjoyed the meal.

Glendale is a son of Champion Glenbeigh and has often given evidence of the possession of intelligence and some reasoning power by an exhibition of pretty clever work for a dog—if it can be put that way. As a field dog he is high class in every respect.

The Pacific Northwest Field Trial Club closed the Derby list with thirty nominations, mostly Setters. Six or eight of these were made by California sportsmen.

Whidby island is considered an ideal place to run a field trial meeting. Reports from there state that birds are plentiful and that the season this year was an early one. The birds there are "bob whites."

Woodlawn Two Spot, a corking good prize winning young smooth Fox Terrier, can be picked up at a bargain. The dog is sound and healthy and in fine condition. He has a good disposition and is an excellent companion. See announcement in the kennel advertisements.

Every dog breeder will allow that prizes at shows are often won by dogs which, if the dog fakir had not previously treated them, would hardly be commended. Yet the practice is universally condemned by judges and fanciers. It is, however, of all swindles the most difficult to fight against, for in many cases it is next to impossible to detect.

For instance, a terrier may be completely spoiled for show purposes by having his ears askew, one up and the other down. Yet its owner may easily correct the fault by bandaging the animal's head for some hours a day while still a puppy. There can be no real objection to this practice. The dog fakir, on the other hand, will summarily remedy such a defect by the operation known as "threading" or sometimes by actually cutting a small muscle. It is extremely difficult for a judge at a dog show to detect the traces of such an operation if it has been carefully done. Yet this is, of course, "faking" pure and simple, and to be condemned accordingly. The ears of Collies, too, if at a wrong angle, are improved by weights being attached to them.

Some fakes are much more easily detected. Pipe-claying a Bull Terrier, for instance, to give it the admired pure white coat, was at one time a common practice. But a little handling on the part of the judge will usually give away this swindle. The professional fancier has got beyond pipe-clay nowadays. He has a whole case of carefully selected fast dyes. With these he can eliminate wrong colors or produce right ones with the greatest ease. Such dyes last four weeks, and will even stand soap and water. That patch around one eye, which makes a Fox Terrier look so workmanlike, is often improved by a little dye.

Nitrate of silver is another material which the professional dog fakir is always provided with. Dr. Gordon Stables speaks of a case in his knowledge in which the spots of a Dalmatian dog's tail were put on with nitrate of silver. The outfit of the dog fakir consists of a case of razors, several neat little tweezers, scissors, surgical needles and thread, paint, nitrate of silver and the dyes above mentioned. He also has a quantity of emery paper of various degrees of fineness. The latter will, in the hands of an expert, produce an amazing difference in the coat of a smooth-haired dog, such as a Bull Terrier or Mastiff.

Texture and quality of coat, as well as color, go for a good deal when a dog is on show, and many weeks before his appearance on the bench the unlucky dog which has faults in this direction is taken in hand for improvement. Superfluous hairs are picked out one by one, and various dressings are employed to make those that remain soft and pliable. Olive oil and a flowered sulphur mixed are rubbed in, and have a marvelous effect in softening and improving a bad coat. If a dog's head is bald, showing the skin beneath, glycerine is the remedy employed, and there are many other compounds known to the skilled, if unscrupulous, showman.

One dog which specially lends itself to this sort of treatment is the Bedlington Terrier. After such a dog has been a couple of weeks under the fakir's hands its own master would fail to recognize it. The Dandie Dinmont is frequently altered in equally startling fashion.

Occasionally the unscrupulous professional will go to even greater lengths to improve on nature. There is a case on record in which an Irish Water Spaniel, whose splendid topknot had excited the admiration of all spectators, was found to have had this adornment artificially attached by means of glue.

The cropping of the ears of black and tan and Bull Terriers has now been definitely forbidden by a law, and more recently an edict has gone forth against the docking of the tails of terriers. But these enactments are more honored in the breach than in the observance. What is worse, unnecessary cruelty is often practiced in docking dogs. Biting off a puppy's tail is a barbarous practice; cutting and searing with a hot iron causes needless pain. The surgeon's ecraseur is the proper instrument to use. Worse than all is the pulling out of the nerve of the amputated tail; the practice is both cruel and useless.—London Tit-Bits.

AT THE TRAPS.

The Golden Gate Gun Club will shoot live birds at Ingleside to-morrow; this will be the club's final regular shoot for this season.

The Union Gun Club blue rock shoot last Sunday attracted a fair attendance of shooters to Ingleside. Four regular events were on the card. The score of the first event, the club race at 25 targets, distance handicap, shows M. J. Iverson with the excellent record of 23 breaks, winner of first money. Burnell, Burns and Zeiner divided second money. Gordon, Pisani, Wollam and Herring split third portion of the purse and fourth money went to Geo. Barbr. In the second event Robertson, Pisani, Hoyt, Sylvester and "Remington" tied for first medal. Sylvester won with a straight score of ten breaks on the shoot-off. For second medal Burnell beat Burns in the tie shoot; the score was 9 to 5 out of 10 targets.

A race at ten birds for a fishing rod donated by the club, eighteen entries up, followed. Murdock and Burns tied with straight scores. Murdock lost the rod in a freeze-out shoot-off of the tie.

The regular program closed with the added money shoot. In this race the shooters each shot at a greater or less number of birds, according to the handicap allowance. Iverson and Burnell divided first class money, Sylvester took the second class purse and Gibson won third class money. Throughout the past season the members of this enterprising trap shooting club have generally turned out in force at the club shoots. Among the members at the beginning of the year were a number of men almost new to trap shooting. The improvement generally in blue rock shooting among the Union Club men is a noticeable one. The scores made are as follows:

What a Modern High Power Rifle Can Do.

Mr. Dall DeWeese, of Canyon City, Colorado, a keen sportsman and a noted hunter of big game, in an account of a moose hunt in Alaska which appears in Outdoor Life, says:

" * * * Boys, you wanted me to report on the Mannlicher, and I must say that it is the most deadly gun I ever carried. Its great velocity of 2000 feet per second, and its extremely flat trajectory, make it very desirable for long range shooting. At three to four hundred yards, if held on the game, the ball is into it almost the instant you touch the trigger. I was using the metal patch soft nose, which will mushroom on flesh, and the patch seems to be slightly cut with the lands of the barrel when fired, and expands by pressure of the soft nose when it strikes, and then goes through the animal like a buzz-saw. The mountain sheep when struck drop as limp as a rag, and the moose, no matter in what part of the body he was struck, seemed paralyzed from the first shot. Again, the gun is very light, which is a great advantage when you pack your loads on your back.

" * * * About 3 P. M., drenched, tired and hungry, I was at the edge of the heavy spruce and thick willows, six to ten feet in height, and heard a cracking near me. I thought it was a moose, then saw the willows shake near me, and stepping upon a rotten log and looking about, there within twenty-five feet, on his hind legs, looking at me over the willows, stood one of those fighting Alaska grizzlies. I had this neck skin of moose, shot-pouch fashion, over my neck, with left arm free; but in an instant I cocked my Mannlicher, while bringing it in position, and plugged him in the neck, just under the head. He dropped, and I stepped from the log, that I could see better under the willows. I sent another ball through his shoulder while he was roaring and fighting the willows and ground. I used lead and gave him another, which settled him. I still kept the neck skin on, thinking to use it for a shield if he charged me. He had evidently scented the skin, and was coming right after it. This was some sport. He is a monster, has claws four inches long, head twenty-two inches from nose to ears, measures ten feet seven inches straight; foot, eight by twelve inches, and has a good coat of hair. I took me till dark to skin him and after it was off I could not lift it. I dragged it over the willows and left it, and got in camp after dark, thinking Alaska had bears of uncomfortable size and numbers for night traveling while alone."

The Gun Trade.

The spectacle of our gun factories being so busy all the time, and turning out so many thousands of arms, which are sold before being finished, is a source of astonishment to everyone acquainted with the condition and the wonder is, where do all the guns go to. As an explanation of this it must be remembered that the liberal protective tariff has enabled our home manufacturers to secure the market as against foreign producers on the basis of price, and also that in all the years we have been turning out guns, we certainly must have progressed in quality until to-day the person who would say that we do not turn out a shot-gun of equal quality to the foreign product at any price, must assuredly be interested on the other side or be possessed of a terribly prejudiced mind.

In the line of rifles and revolvers no country has yet produced an arm for sportsmen's use that is superior to several now made in this country. In revolvers especially America leads the world and always has. Undoubtedly the time is coming when the rapid fire, automatic recoil cocking pistol will supercede all the arms now in use and it will soon come to the notice of the public that American inventors will take a leading position in producing this class of arms.

As to the great quantity of sportsmen's arms made in this country, it must be remembered that while the country has shown a wonderful growth in the past ten years there has been no corresponding increase in the facilities for producing the goods and through a wise provision of the national Legislature, the bulk of the demand is supplied from domestic manufacturers, thus shutting out a certain class of foreign made guns which, in the past, have been an important factor in the commerce of this country. At the same time the arguments of manufacturers are sustained by the fact that, although they are amply protected by the tariff to the extent that they practically control the market, prices are lower than when they were struggling in competition with foreign makers. Better guns can now be purchased for $15 than were sold not so many years ago for $50. Rifles that are retailed now for less than $20 are superior in every respect to weapons that used to cost five times that sum.

Deer hunting within a day's journey of San Francisco has been pretty well exploited. The hunter now, to enjoy the sport and earn the trophies of the chase must journey afar. The country most attractive and promising of best results is found in the northern part of the State, or rather seems to be the choice of a number of sportsmen. The rugged fastnesses of Trinity, the wilds of Mendocino and Humboldt and the far away canyons of Siskiyou counties are the chosen hunting grounds of camping parties, prospective and now out for from a week to a month or longer period. A pleasing feature connected with these outings is the number of good trout fishing streams available. Streams that are teeming with plenty of splendid fish and comparatively unknown or but rarely visited by the city angler.

Among the parties out recently was a camp of deer hunters established on Rancheria creek near the junction of the Point Arenas road, a spot about twenty miles from Point Arena. Nine fat bucks were killed in two weeks and the camp table was also supplied with plenty of sweet trout from the adjacent stream. The outing party was comprised of Patrick Boland, David Harefield, Robert Nolan, Robert Van Norden, R. H. Jones, "Cas" Schleuter of this city, Mr. Poole of Oakland, Sam Adcock and Geo. W. Hoyle, Otto Haehl, Carl Haehl and "Shorty" Davis of Cloverdale. Last Monday Phil B. Bekeart and wife and Dave Flisk and wife started for Ukiah, where they were met by Life Ball and wife. Mr. Ball undertook to pilot the party for a two weeks' trip to a good hunting and fishing locality about sixty miles north of Ukiah.

Dr. E. G. McConnell and brother, Achille Roos, Mr. Berry and Mr. Moore will start next week for Yreka. The company intend to stay out in Siskiyou county for a month at least. Dr. McConnell is familiar with that section and will take the hunters to a district full of big game and where good trout streams abound.

Many bucks, possibly fifty, have been killed by hunters in Marin county since the season opened. The Country, Tamalpais and Point Reyes Sportsmen's club members have had plenty of deer shooting. On outside and open ground a number of fat bucks have been gathered in. P. J. Walsh recently got a four pointer weighing 162 pounds near Novato. Lately six bucks were shot in Portuguese gulch. This is rather an unknown ground to most hunters but a good deer country and will be preserved on October 1st.

That there should be a law protecting English snipe is the opinion of nearly every sportsman in the State. The only objectors, probably, being a coterie of shooters in the central part of the State, who have, it is claimed, always combatted proposed legislation to protect the snipe for the alleged cause, that the snipe shooting in their particular county would probably be spoiled for the reason that the snipe make their appearance in that locality late and consequently the prohibitive season would cut off the interior hunters' snipe shoots.

In Sierra valley two hunters stopping at Campbell's Hot Springs shot snipe from the middle of July until recently. Nesting birds and half grown young ones were supplied the hotel table daily. There is no law to prevent the game hog's work in this respect, more is the pity. Mr. P. George Gow and a Mr. Smith, of Stockton, both good wing shots, have been stopping at Campbell's for over two months.

To a Trout.

Thou solitary tenant of my creel,
Thou only victim of my feathered hook,
Though "skunked" I scarce could more disgusted feel
Wert thou still swimming in thy native brook.
For thee alone I've walked ten weary miles,
And, what is worse, must walk them back again;
For thee alone I've crawled through stinging brush
And clambered over harsh barb-wire stiles,
Slept troubled slumber in the ice-cold rain,
And soaked myself in grasses all too lush.

And what art thou, thou slim and speckled mite?
Scarce large enough to save thee from the act
That makes it crime for five-inch trout to bite,
A worthy "speckled beauty," for a fact!
Where, tell me where, were all thy sluggish kind,
That I could not inveigle them to rise?
In all the summer season they will find
No more persistent fisherman than I,
No bait more tempting than my high-priced flies,
Yet thou alone art here. Dost thou know why?

And now my tired footsteps must I turn
Along that hilly road that homeward trends,
Aid spent and footsore, bear with unconcern
The jibes and jeers of all my loving friends.
For once they cast their scornful eyes on thee,
Thou smallest of thy kindergarten school,
They'll take a keen delight to point me out.
For all the mocking, scoffing world to see
As that weak-minded, idiotic fool,
Who fished two days, and only caught one trout.

—J. J. Montague in Portland Oregonian.

The fishing on the Truckee has been only indifferent for the week. Results with the spoon have, however, been excellent from Boca to Verdi.

Fish Lines.

Dr. C. G. Levinson, Mr. McBride of San Jose and Mr. Bennett of the Sea Beach Hotel, Santa Cruz, last week caught a number of fine steelhead at the mouth of the San Lorenzo. Mr. McBride landed a six pounder with a four and a half ounce fly-rod.

Striped bass seem to be plentiful in the eastern waters of San Pablo bay. In the shallow flats near Pinole, Sobrante and San Pablo the net fishermen have been making big hauls. This week there has been a greater supply of the fish in the local markets than during any period since January. Several boats made a total catch, with rods and handlines, last Sunday, of forty-two fish; the largest bass caught weighed sixteen pounds. The sloughs on the western side of the bay have yielded but small returns to the angler. The fish are reported to be plentiful in the sloughs bisecting the marshes of San Mateo county.

Salmon trolling may, it is hoped by many anglers, yet become one of the great attractions of salt water angling in the waters of San Francisco bay and its larger tributaries.

On Sunday last a thirteen and a half pound quinnat salmon was hooked in the middle of Raccoon straits and early Thursday morning a fish that scaled twenty-seven and a half pounds was caught close to the scene of the previous capture.

The first fish, a beautiful silvery sided thirteen and a half pound salmon was the lucky and unexpected rare prize drawn by W. R. McFarland in the briny lottery of Raccoon straits last Sunday. McFarland and Mr. O. W. Jackson had been out all day about the straits, Angel island and contiguous fishing grounds, trolling for striped bass. They had been unsuccessful and in the middle of the afternoon headed the boat across the dancing waves of the stretch of water between the island and Tiburon, intending to fish awhile at Belvedere before going in.

McFarland's line was out with a No. 6 Wilson bass spoon attached. Midway in the channel he felt a tug, he knew something was hooked, but from the dead action of the line he assumed it was some floating object. Taking the rod and line in hand he struck home and had an immediate response from a fish, the actions of which puzzled him, as the fight was not nearly as vigorous as a striped bass would give. Upon reeling in, without much ado, to his great surprise he gaffed and brought into the boat the salmon mentioned.

Thursday morning "Al" Wilson started in his boat from Tiburon at early dawn and made for the different bass trolling grounds. He fished various favorite places, without doing much damage to the fish family, until about 7 o'clock, when the fun began. He was trolling near the island and was rigged and working for bass, using a No. 6 brass spoon. Suddenly he had a strike that made the reel sing; immediately a fight was on with a big fish which lasted for a half hour. At one time the fish had out 400 feet of No. 15 cutty-hunk line. The fish's efforts to shake off the deadly incubus of strong tackle were futile; he was finally brought to gaff and to Mr. Wilson's intense delight found to be a beauty, fat and in splendid condition, weighing as stated, twenty-seven and a half pounds.

These unusual catches have set the fraternity of salt water fishers all agog. Much speculation is being indulged in as to why salmon cannot be caught by hook or spoon in our bay waters as well as elsewhere. On rare occasions a salmon has been caught here on a trolling line. Last May, "Al" Wilson caught a four-pound salmon in Raccoon straits. Two weeks ago a five-pound fish was also hooked on a spoon in the straits. The first salmon recorded as having been taken trolling in the bay was hooked by an angler named Maddocks some eight years ago near Red Rock. Another large fish, it was believed, was struck, but lost, on the same day.

That salmon will take a spoon in our bay has been demonstrated, whether they will, it is claimed by the experts, take bait, the usual sardine, or not is doubtful. It is urged that when the fish come through the Golden Gate and on the up river trip for the purpose of spawning, they are through feeding and will not stop for the allurements of bait, and rarely for the shining spoon. Fish caught below Pinole, the point nearest to the city where the salmon netters commence their work, have been examined and their stomachs were invariably found to be empty. In the Carquinez straits and further up the fish examined are found to have their stomachs shrunken to the size of a walnut. These facts being well known have adverted to a great extent against much effort to develop the sport of salmon trolling in the bay.

The salmon has been advanced by several expert fishermen that if the proper salmon rig were tried and the waters, say of Raccoon straits, fished by trolling deep and "sawing" back and forth across the stream that salmon might be caught. This has not yet been done to any extent, but now seems a plausible theory to work on.

Salmon grilse, fish rarely running over three or four pounds in weight, are annually caught by bait fishermen at various points in San Francisco bay, Powell street wharf and the railroad wharves across the bay. These little fellows are caught on a hook baited with a wriggling "spile" worm and a piece of shining white smelt belly. The fall run of grilse affords the most prolific catches to the wharf anglers. The method generally adopted to catch the fish being to fasten the rod to the wharf stringer so that the line, weighted with an ounce or two ounce sinker, will hold the bait about two and a half or three feet below the surface. With light tackle, grilse taken in the bay very frequently put up a good fight.

The angler of experience does not need to have another hammer into him the truth that the quieter he is, the more he keeps himself concealed, the less conspicuous he makes himself, in short, the more fish he will take. That truth has been beaten into him by countless incidents of the stream and lake.

The angler of inexperience, however, always fails to recognize the importance of effacing himself, and will continue to wonder year after year why it is that the other fellow gets the trout or bass.

In the whipping of a stream for trout, going down stream, the man with the rod should lift his feet only when he is obliged to. They should be slid along just above the bottom as noiselessly, surely, and gently as possible. The object of this is to avoid sending down sand or mud in solution, or starting small rolling stones, which infallibly notify the trout below that something unfriendly is coming down.

It is well, too, for the man to fish with the sun in his front, as his long shadow on the water will scare a good many more fish than it will allure.

In approaching a pool from the bank care should be taken not to show above its rim at all. If the angler knows where it is and how it is shaped, he should cast at it before he sees it. This pre-knowledge of a stream is worth a good deal.

In boat fishing for bass the utmost quiet should be observed. Water is an excellent conductor of sound, and any unusual motion in the boat is communicated to the fluid beneath.

In casting, the elbow should be against the side and almost the whole of the force imparted to the bait should come from the forearm and wrist. The man who throws his hand out far and high with the rod, much as if he were playing at shortstop and had to get a ball down to first base to beat a runner out by a foot, will be seen by bass fifty yards away and they will have none of him. An exemplification of this correct style of bass casting was shown by the Chicago anglers who participated in the recent tournament at Stow lake.

Similarly they have none of the chap who always strikes his rod handle against the boat's side, or sings, or swears, or stamps on the bottom, or runs the tip of the rod through the water.

A dark line is better than a light line in most waters, the object of all angling being to persuade the fish that the thing it sees is good to eat and has no string tied to it. A dark rod is better than a light colored one.

There is one bait rod now on the market made of nicked metal, handsome, durable, springy and attractive, but in the sunlight it flashes like a sword, and the gleam of it across the water is visible half a mile away. It stands to reason that so far as notifying the bass is concerned the man would as well take a hand mirror and flash its reflection up and down and across the water. The bass unable to see a nicked rod above the sunlit water would have its eyes located in its belly. This nicked rods, however, when properly wrapped with silk and toned down in color are good ones and will readily kill a very big fish, they have been effective in the bay on sharks and sting rays.

Not any of the wood rods have this defect, but a lot of anglers foolishly weight them with metal trimmings, which have as bad an effect. The nearer the joints of a rod and the reel itself to dullness the more killing that rod will be.

For this reason the hard-rubber reel is to be commended above the nicked, and it will not rust, though it is not so strong. In the time to come rods and reels will be made of, or covered with, some sort of composition which has no power of reflection.

Thousands of fish are lost every year because of shining apparatus. Men go upon the lakes day after day and catch nothing, or, at best, only a miserable two or three, though they fish hard and use all approved forms of baits. If one of them should try keeping quiet and use a dull colored outfit he would find his score much bettered.

The metal portions of the rod, reel and other tackle can easily be made darker by treatment in the following manner. Put in a wide mouthed glass stoppered bottle a pound of commercial nitric acid. Drop into the acid a silver ten cent piece, put the bottle in a warm place until the silver is dissolved; this will take several days. A chemist, however, can dissolve the silver in a few minutes by boiling it in a portion of the acid. After the silver is dissolved, add a piece of copper wire about four inches in length and the thickness of an ordinary knitting needle. The copper will soon disappear and the solution is then ready for use.

Clean all oil from the brass or german silver you wish to color, either with alcohol, ammonia or brown soap; rinse well and dry thoroughly. Then secure it to a piece of copper wire and the wire to a poker or something similar; dip the metal below the surface of the solution; withdraw it at once, give it a slight shake in the bottle to avoid dripping and then heat in a fire as quick as possible. A good alcohol lamp or a gas burner which gives a flame of alcohol character is better than a fire. Watch the metal carefully. It will first turn green, then a black speck or two will appear on the surface. This will speedily spread, until the whole surface is a dull, dead black. The instant this change is complete, remove the brass from the source of the heat. The change takes place at the temperature at which ordinary tinner's solder melts, hotter than this no ferrule or other piece should ever be heated after it is soldered together, lest it anneal and lose its stiffness and temper.

Two courses are now open. One is to cool at once with water, and then scrub well with an old toothbrush, holding the brass below the surface until clean; the other, less agreeable, but giving a better result, is to allow the brass to cool naturally and then to scrub the surface clean in the same manner, but dry. After being thus scrubbed, rub well with a dry cloth until all crock is removed. There will then be deposited a beautiful soft dead surface of black oxide of copper on the brass. It has a very attractive appearance, wears well and when the sharper edges after two or three seasons use wear bright, the piece can be re-blackened the same way any number of times. The whole original expense is little and the same solution can be used over and over again, till lost by evaporation and the small quantity used on the surface of the dripped articles. Any copper-alloy may be blackened by this formula.

NAMING HORSES.

Hark Comstock Makes Some Valuable Suggestions on the Subject.

Mr. Thomas W. Lawson, breeder of trotting horses and other live stock and an enthusiastic sportsman, has, in a most liberal way, brought forward the subject of reforming nomenclature in the field of trotting horse-flesh. I hope that his effort will bear good fruit, as the trotting world is sadly in need of improvement in that particular, writes Hark Comstock in the American Horse Breeder.

The naming of horses is, to many, quite a bothersome subject. If the horses prove of little value or prominence, it matters not how they are named, but if they come to the front, bad names are an infliction upon the public for which the owner is hardly excusable. The trouble is that in the great shuffle some very poor horses get exceedingly good names, while excellent horses are hampered with poor ones.

The registration rules of late enacted against the duplication of names are not an unmixed blessing. Probably I have had as much experience in tracing pedigrees as anyone disconnected with the office of the Trotting Register, and I know the confusion that may arise from the duplication of names; nevertheless, mares' names, from time immemorial, have been duplicated with far less harm than those of stallions.

Sometimes the sire's name is so suggestive of a particular imitation for his daughters as to lead to unintentional duplication and consequent confusion, but if the rules simply prohibited the duplication of feminine names among daughters of a single sire, and also prohibited subsequent duplication of names of mares that had obtained records, there would be enhanced latitude for good taste in naming without creating confusion. The trouble now is that in naming a filly one has to hunt the dictionary, encyclopedia and pretty much every source of information on nomenclature, to scare up a name that has not already been taken. Every girl's name, the name of every bird, flower and tree, and of every jewel and precious stone, has been appropriated and is no longer admissible. In desperation the owner makes up a compound word with no meaning, or hits upon so ugly a name (Sloppy Weather 2:14½, pacer, for instance) that no one has previously taken it, and applies it often where it is particularly inappropriate. As the best way to get rid of a bothersome subject, a meaningless, composite name is too often chosen, after writing it down in a book (if the namer be a careful man) lest it be forgotten when wanted.

If one were to scan the 2:30 list with a view of trying to decipher the various rules or principles which prevail in the naming of trotting horses in this country, he would find that the ugliest names are usually among those which appear to have been selected by definite rule and would be ready to exclaim, "Let us have no rules about naming horses when it leads to this!" And yet all the systems in general practice, for naming horses, are theoretically good. The trouble is, that in the working out they prove like Jack Bunsby's opinion, the value of which lay "in the application on't." Some awful naming has been done by following systems in themselves good. When a blacksmith starts out to draw a picture of an angel he is about sure to make a better likeness of the devil.

It is evident by the manner of Mr. Lawson's presentation of the subject to the public, that he is anxious to draw out various expressions of opinion as to how names should be selected, and as an indication of the lines upon which he would direct thought, he briefly instances a few names that are to his liking, giving his reasons why.

I do not write this with any intention of competing for the prize which he offers for the best instances of nomenclature to be adopted by trotting horse breeders in their registration during the current year, 1902. As will appear later, I am unable to act upon my own ideal in that matter. As he is very properly to be his own judge of those instances, it will be well in seeking names for young stock, that those who wish to compete for his prize carefully note his taste in names, as expressed in his announcements in the American Horse Breeder from February 25th to May 20th, inclusive. To those who, regardless of his prize, would like to see a general improvement in the naming of trotting horses, I submit a few ideas on the subject, on similar lines to those expressed by Mr. Lawson, but perhaps varying in a measure therefrom, as would be perfectly natural, since no two persons look upon such a subject from precisely the same point of view. My desire is merely to supplement and help along the measure of reform which Mr. Lawson has so ably inaugurated.

The new registration rules are defeating much commendable nomenclature, as well as restraining some that is worse than bad. As a general formula:

1. I prefer short, terse, single-word names when available, though some double-word names are admirable.

2. Significance and applicability of meaning or character to the family of the dam and to the dam individually, I regard as desirable. It is not always well to try to make such connection with the sire. His family is so large that he reflects no exclusive distinction on any one of his foals.

3. A name that alliterates with that of the dam, particularly if alliteration has been preserved for some removes along the female line, I favor.

4. Applicability of name to individual named, if there is any conspicuous feature about the individual to render it evident, is also desirable.

ILLUSTRATION.

I have a golden chestnut filly two years old, by Alert 737 (son of Hambletonian 10) out of Aglow by Advertiser; second dam, Ashby (dam of 2) by Gen. Benton; third dam, Ashland, by Ashland, thoroughbred son of imp. Glencoe, etc., This filly has a blaze face and four white legs—the blaze being wide and conspicuous.

I applied to have her name Ablaze, a name that is short and terse; is synonymous in character and meaning with the name of her dam, Aglow; one that alliterates with her line of dams and one particularly applicable to her color and markings, for she is a fiery chestnut with a blaze face.

Alas! I am told at the registration office that I am too late, as another person has claimed the name for a gelding. Just why opposite sexes may not duplicate names I am not informed, since no confusion in pedigree tracing could occur thereby. While the name Ablaze in itself is pretty and euphonious, and expresses action and force, it is not on that account "priceless." For ordinary application I would quite as soon choose Aflame (which I will probably have to adopt), and which might fit another mare quite as well and suitably. It is the special application of the name Ablaze to my particular mare in so many forms that makes it in my judgment such a "happy hit."

If it as perfectly fits the animal to which it has been assigned as it fits mine, I think him one of the best named in the Register, but if he only happened to choose it haphazard, with no special fitness to his family and individuality, as thousands have done, he has not set the world afire for himself, though he has spoiled a very good thing for me.

The name Aflame (my second choice) is as euphonious and, I think, as applicable to my mare as Ablaze, with the single, but important exception, that it fails to symbolize the conspicuous feature of her individuality—her blaze face. I could make it Emblaze and save that one point, but in so changing the meaning of the name and the alliteration, I would lose every other applicable feature in the category.

Among bad practices in naming, that of endeavoring to compound the names of sire and dam has led to more distressingly obnoxious and meaningless nomenclature than any other. To this practice we are indebted for Hontas Crooke, Abdalbrino, Aberdido, Blosceps, Compwood, Hamtattle, Nutbrino, Tranbrino, Electbrino, Trandallah, Nutalwood, Hampatch, Hambrintonian and so on, ad nauseam.

Unless a name is particularly euphonious it should have a meaning. A made-up word with no linguistic meaning is hard to remember, and if it is made up by trying to blend two others it very seldom possesses euphony, the only possible feature that can redeem it. Of course there are exceptions to all rules, and occasionally syllables taken from two different names can be united in a new name that has both meaning and euphony. An instance of this is the name of the stallion Boreal. This name was doubtless compounded from that of his sire, Bow Bells, and his dam's sire, Alcantara, with a connecting syllable for euphony.

As Boreal pertains to the north, the home of Boreas, the mythological god who sends down the north wind upon us, it suggests speed, power and unlimited force. Boreal is therefore a beautiful name with sufficient meaning. Not so fortunate was the naming of the mare Ear-al-ma by the Earl, out of Amal by Clay, since the word means nothing and is too vowelized to be euphonic. When, from breeding Boreal and Ear alma together, Boralma was evolved, euphony was restored though the name has no meaning. While every name is the better for having a significance of meaning instead of being a mere waste of syllables, however musical, still, in rare instances, meaningless names are so pleasant in sound as to be charming and desirable. Boralma's name strikes me as a case in point. Mr. Lawson is quite excusable for liking the name of Boralma and his "perfect gentleman of a trotter." Its softness, inflection and terminal all somewhat suggest femininity, but, even in that particular, it can hardly be criticized for a gelding. Yet I fear it is too marked an exception in composite naming to be a safe leader for the average horse namer to attempt to follow.

Another naming fad that is, in most cases, objectionable, is the complimenting of some prominent man or admired friend, by bestowing his full name upon a trotting horse. Mr. Lawson has hit this system an exceedingly good rap. No doubt James R. Shedd, for instance, was a real good fellow, and deserved all the honor conferred by an admiring friend in naming a great horse after him, but his name does not smoothly fit a trotting horse, however it may have been honored in the man. Then comes an admirer of the horse who wishes to secure a modicum of his name for one of his offspring. Hard pushed for a symbol suggestive of the sire, there was apparently but one he could think of, so the younger horse paced to fame under the surprising name of Woodshed 2:09½. A good horse he was, too, despite the handicap of his cumbersome name. It is to be hoped that his excellence will not fire another imagination under a stress of similitude to name one of his colts after the small building that frequently stands next beyond the woodshed, though that would be more than carrying the bad side of a system to its legitimate end.

But for all this, full personal names, while usually objectionable, are sometimes very attractive, depending on euphony. There is something so terse, quaint and homespun about the name of Nancy Hanks, that even had it not been rendered historical by the mother of Abraham Lincoln, it would still have been one of the prettiest names in the Register. In a less degree Flora Temple, Tom Crowder and Mary Best were to be commended. Personal surnames are often excellent. Copeland, Dexter, Mansfield, Shirley, Howland, Hollister, Allendorf, Allenton, Axtell, Betterton and many others have rendered good and acceptable service.

While it is not essential that a name should express the sex of its bearer, it may with propriety do so. Some names are as appropriate to one sex as the other. When a name, in meaning or in etymological construction indicates a sex, it should only be used for an animal of that sex. A conspicuous violation of this propriety is exemplified in the name of Idolita 2:12, an appropriate name for a mare, but so pronounced in femininity as to appear satirical when applied to the great young trotting stallion bred at Palo Alto.

The grotesque in naming is so often arrived at, all unconsciously and apparently by the sweat of the brow, that it is at times a relief to find it intentionally reached in a spirit of fun. There was evidently a Mark Twainian sense of humor and enjoyment of the ridiculous in the person who named his horse Pittsfield Brick Yard. Apparently the proverbial "thousand o' brick" were but as a set of hobbles to him instead of a handicap, for he paced to a record of 2:21½, thus landing the brickyard on the scroll of fame. Yet, it seems to me, the game was hardly worth the candle.

There are several other "don'ts" to be considered in naming horses. Certain prefixes and affixes have been done to death, and their further use suggests want of originality. We have had Prince this, Prince that and Prince everything; Lady this, that and t'other. Queens are almost as intrusive as Ladies; Barons, originally good, are getting oppressively numerous. Most names indicating title are apt to become overdone, once a prominent leader starts the spirit of imitation. The prefix Young and the affixes Junior and Second are poor sticks in the naming line. Where local pride runs high too abundant use is occasionally made of State, county and town names as prefixes. A while ago a champion trotter appeared whose name was made of the initial letters of his owner's name spelled out. At the time it was unique, and Jay-Eye-See was a prettily named horse. But this effect of originality started a flood of mimicry. Directly we had scores of horses named with three initial letters difficult to remember one from another. Fortunately this distemper has pretty much run its course. The original will never be forgotten; the imitators are all buried in oblivion. As a short rule for naming—try to be original and concise, express sentiment or significance, preserve euphony and avoid the grotesque.

But one does not always live up to his own rules. I have recently broken nearly all of mine in a bunch. I named a colt Three Times Ten, because his sire, Alert, his dam's sire, Cuyler, and his grandam's sire, Banker, were all sons of Hambletonian 10. There is at least one too many words in his name, though, as each word is of a single syllable, it is no longer to pronounce than some single word name. But, as stable license permits of nicknames, the boys are already calling him Thirty for short. If we find that too short, we may call him Thirty Cents, which may prove so appropriate as to command a chance at Mr. Lawson's prize.

Potency of Sire and Dam.

Scientists and practical men have investigated and debated this question for ages. As a result much light has been thrown upon the problem. The scientists have been accused of being technical and to some extent visionary, and perhaps they have. However impractical the scientist may be, though, he always seeks to be exact—to know the truth. No man can afford to ignore the truth as it is revealed in the laws governing Nature's creations. There are apparent inconsistencies at times in the practical breeder's operations. There are such inconsistencies in rating the influence of sire and dam. In cattle circles the emphasis is just now being placed on the dam and extravagant prices are much more frequently paid for females than for sires. In horse breeding the reverse is true and has always been true of the average breeder. Extreme prices are paid by horse companies and by individual breeders for imported stallions without regard to the kind of mares that are available for mating with such stallions. The best mares in the hands of the average breeder are always purchasable. They go to the city markets while the inferior ones remain on the farm for breeding. During the past few years many of the best heavy mares have been bought from the farms by shippers and their places have been taken by cheap Western mares. These become the breeding stock of the farm.

Both of these policies are wrong. No successful breeder ever underrates the value of either parent in mating domestic animals. The intelligent and successful breeders are not doing so to-day. Paying high prices does not of itself establish merit in a breeding animal. High prices for either sex are never warranted without corresponding merit in the other sex in the same herd. The sire is always the most potent factor in the improvement of the herd, for the reason that his individual influence extends to all the offspring. Improvement can be accomplished more economically through the sire than through the dam, but it can be more effectually established through both than either alone. It is folly to ignore the importance of either.

A striking illustration of the value of a good sire recently occurred at a prominent Western cattle sale. A well-bred cow of good individual merit in calf to a well known superior bull sold for $2125 and three offers of $1000 were refused for the prospective calf. A yearling from the same cow sold in the same sale for $250. The influence of the sires in the value of these two calves from the same cow presented a difference of not less than $800. A part of this difference may have been based on a somewhat fictitious value of pedigree, yet the circumstances justified the expectation of a good calf combined with a good pedigree, which is always the true measure of a valuable animal. Similar cases might be cited confirming the importance of the dam in influencing the value of individual offspring.

The value of the influence of either sex is always greatest when mated with animals of corresponding merit. Breeders should not lose sight of this fundamental proposition in these days of prosperity and high prices. When times of depression come the work that will stand will be that which is built on right principles of breeding.—Breeders Gazette.

The poor results which have so often followed the feeding of skimmed milk have been due to faulty methods and not because the cream which had been taken out is absolutely indispensable to the normal development of the calf. The butter fat or cream of the milk is by no means the most valuable part of the milk for the calf. The parts of the milk which furnish the growth-making material are the casein and albumen which are seen as a white curd when milk is sour. From this material is made the muscles and bone, nerves, hair and hoofs, and this remains in the skimmed milk. A calf fed on skimmed milk is not generally so fat during the first six months of its life as the one nursed by the cow. It often has, however, rather a better development of bone and muscle. It is true the calf requires in addition to skimmed milk, some food which will furnish a reasonable amount of fat to take the place of the fat removed from the milk when it was skimmed. Corn meal has been found to be very satisfactory and is used quite extensively for this purpose.

Wheat bran and alfalfa have a very similar composition and very nearly the same amount of digestible constituents. Alfalfa: ash 6.1 pounds, crude protein 13.24 pounds, nitrogen-free extract 39.26 pounds, ether extract 0.89 pounds. Wheat bran: Crude protein 12.02 pounds, nitrogen-free extract 39.02 pounds, ether extract 2.70 pounds. Alfalfa has the advantage in protein and the wheat bran in fat. Wheat bran is well known to be very efficient food for the production of milk. On the other hand, considerable of relative energy of alfalfa is used up in the extra work necessary to masticate and pass it through the system.

"SAVE-THE-HORSE"
TRADE MARK

SPAVIN CURE

Can be Applied during the Hottest Weather
NOTE OUR CLAIM:—"IT IS INFALLIBLE."
Let there be no mistake or misunderstanding as to this point. It makes no difference how long standing, what the condition, or if all other known treatment has failed, this remedy will positively effect a cure. This statement will appear absurd to the sceptic, but it is absolute and inviolable truth, and we put it in no stronger words than facts, actual experience—results—confirm. It contains the great essential principle to promote the complex process of absorption. It will raise a scurf or mild blister, but it is not by blistering a cure is effected. The great potency of "Save-the-Horse" lies in its concentrated penetrating absorp-tive power. It penetrates to the seat of the injury or disease, produces a physiological change,
absorbing all inflammatory exudate or deposit,
stimulating and diffusing vitality and strength to the tissues and ligaments, producing a healthy, normal condition of the part.

POSITIVELY AND PERMANENTLY CURES
Bone and Bog Spavin, Ringbone, Curb, Thorough-
pin, Splint, Capped Hock, Shoe Boil, Wind
Puff, Weak and Sprained Tendons
and all Lameness.

Contains no arsenic, corrosive sublimate or other forms of mercury, or any injurious ingredient.
Work horse continuously if desired.
Cures without scar, blemish or loss of hair.

$5.00 PER BOTTLE.
Written guarantee with every bottle, constructed solely to convince, satisfy and protect you fully. The need of second bottle is almost improbable except in rarest cases. Guarantee covers effectiveness of one bottle.
At all druggists and dealers, or sent prepaid.

Veterinary Pixine

Apply it. Rub it in on bare spots, inflammatory swellings, old sores, scratches, grease heel or skin disease. It penetrates and soothes, and the horse grows well as he toils throughout the day.

SCRATCHES, GREASE HEEL,
MUD FEVER, HOOF ROT
AND SPEED CRACKS.

Cases where ulcerations extend with transverse
cracks which open at every step and often bleed, no matter how complex, aggravated, deep seated or chronic, if treated according to directions as given on circular with every box, positively cured
with Veterinary Pixine.

After Blistering

Veterinary Pixine is the very best application that could be indicated. It absorbs all inflammatory exudate and hastens the reparatory process. Will heal the most severe cases without scar and prevents loss of hair.

As a Preventive.

If a light application of Veter' ary Pixine be used before speeding, driving in wet, muddy or slushy weather, your horse will never have speed cracks, scratches or grease heel.

For Hoofs.

It will keep the hoofs healthy, soft and in perfect form.

This penetrating, stimulating, soothing, absorbing, anti-septic, healing ointment heals from beneath the surface by disinfecting the parts, subduing inflammation and stimulating healthy granulation, not by drying and scabbing.

2 oz., 25c; 8 oz., 50c; 5 lb. pkg., $4. At all druggists and dealers, or sent prepaid.

GOLDEN GATE FAIR.

Pleasanton Crowded with Visitors to See the Races and Exhibits This Week.

The directors of the Golden Gate Fair Association, District No. 1, did a wise thing when they accepted the invitation of Pleasanton's citizens to hold their annual fair at the horse centre. Not only are the people of Pleasanton showing great interest in the fair, but from all the surrounding country they have been coming in large numbers every day and it is the best attended fair held in California this year up to this date. Its exhibit of live stock, as well as its pavilion display is also far ahead of anything that has been seen on the circuit thus far, and the entire exhibition is creditable to the directors and to those who have made the entries.

Pleasanton was gaily decorated when the fair opened Tuesday with an excellent program of racing and the new grand stand at the historical Pleasanton track was filled when the first race was called. In the judges' stand Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick of San Francisco, presided, assisted by Messrs L. C. Crellin and Jos. Neal, of Pleasanton, and none of the decisions were questioned. Col. Kirkpatrick gave the word to the harness horses and was able to get them away every time well lined up and "on their stride." Richard Havey started the runners and did it well. There were no long delays in scoring or starting. President Kent and Secretary Dimond were almost ubiquitous and had everything running smoothly before the day was over, in spite of the fact that exhibitors were late in arriving with their stock and an extra force of carpenters had to be employed to build new stalls to accommodate all that wanted space.

The first race, the 2:15 trot, was called at 2 o'clock and had four starters. The Electioneer stallion, Alta Vela, was taken as choice by the first pool buyer at $10, and without any trouble a buyer was found to take the field of Cozad, Richmond Chief and Vic Schiller at $12. Several tickets were then sold at $10 for Alta Vela and the same amount for the field.

They got away to a fair start with Cozad behind, but driver Clark had visited the stand previous to the race and asked the judges to send him away if his horse was trotting square, no matter what his position, as he was not good at getting away in the first heat and liable to mix it badly. W. G. Durfee took the "little blue horse" Richmond Chief right to the front and it was a battle between him and Alta Vela nearly all the way, but on entering the stretch Van Bokkelen brought Vic Schiller up with a rush and there was a very pretty contest to the wire, Vic Schiller and Richmond Chief both beating Alta Vela and Cozad getting inside the distance very nicely and without any extra effort. The time was 2:14½, fast time for the Pleasanton track.

In the second heat Cozad was warmed up to trotting pitch and had no trouble in winning that and the next two. Alta Vela was out-trotted by Richmond Chief in the third and fourth heats and did not seem near as good a horse as he was at Napa or Vallejo. The heats of this race were all trotted close to the same notch, there being less than a second's difference between the fastest and the slowest. Cozad, the winner, is a handsome large bay gelding and trots like a piece of racing machinery, although he is not the neat, jaunty trotter that Alta Vela is. Cozad is a big gaited fellow that wears very few boots and impresses one as being capable of taking a very low mark whenever it is necessary in order to win. He has won all his starts this year and has now beaten the fastest class of horses he will meet on the circuit. Richmond Chief is a vastly improved horse and is doubtless better than ever in his life. His legs and feet are good and his gameness is unquestioned. We look to see Vic Schiller trot a very fast heat some day before the circuit ends as he has wonderful speed, but being a bad breaker cannot be depended upon. Whenever he strikes his day, a heat in 2:12 should not beat him. Following is summary of the race:

Trotting, 2:15 class, purse $500.
Cozad, b g by Fred S. Wilkes, by Belmont.....(Clark) 4 1 1 1
Richmond Chief, rn h by Monroe Chief.....(W. Durfee) 1 4 2 2
Alta Vela, b s by Electioneer.....(Hooper) 3 2 3 3
Vic Schiller, b g by Hamb. Wilkes.....(Van Bokkelen) 2 3 4 4
Time—2:14½, 2:14½, 2:14½, 2:15.

The 2:30 pace brought out a field of five that contained four that were pretty equally matched. The handsome black horse Del Oro would have been close up among them had he been right, but he has been out on the firing line recently and a bad break put him behind the flag in the first heat. Before the race was called Alone was a big favorite at $10 to $4 for all the rest. This was on the strength of her win and record of 2:13½ at Napa last week, and she was thought to be about invincible. She won the first heat very handily in 2:15, with Eagletta second, Enoch third and The Mrs. fourth, and then there was little or no betting, as it was thought the daughter of Nearest would have a cake walk for first money. Horses are mighty "un-sartin," however, and in the second heat Alone made two bad breaks after trying to jump a shadow and colliding with Durfee's sulky, luckily doing no damage outside of scraping off a little paint. The heat went to Eagletta, Durfee making a splendid drive and beating The Mrs. in 2:16½, with the favorite third. In this heat Alone did her jumping at the quarter pole, being about a distance out before Barstow got her settled. She fairly burned up the track and paced the third quarter in 30½ seconds in her effort to get up with the leaders. She succeeded in collaring them, but the effort was too great and she was third at the wire. All the horses were tired after this, but Eagletta, fairly lifted along the last few yards of each mile by Durfee, managed to win in 2:20½ and 2:20 in the third and fourth heats. The Mrs. looks like one that will pace faster later on, as she has a nice way of going and did not seem greatly distressed. When Alone is just right it will take a good one to beat her, and a mark of 2:10 ought to be within her reach on a good track. The summary:

Pacing, 2:30 class; purse $500.
Eagletta, br m by Ketcham.....(W. Durfee) 2 1 1 1
Alone, b m by Nearest.....(Barstow) 1 3 4 4
The Mrs., b m by Derby Ash.....(Whitehead) 4 2 3 2
Enoch, b g by Sidmoor.....(Gray) 3 4 2 3
Time—2:15, 2:16½, 2:20½, 2:20.

There were two running races on the program and both were finished in time for the visitors from San Francisco to catch the 5:30 train for home. The first was a dash of five furlongs for a purse of $150. Hercules won in the good time of 1:01½, with King Dellis second and Quidado third. Billisis, Fine Shot, El Karn and Bruce Jr. also ran.

The mile race went to Billy Lyons, ridden by Tullett, in 1:42½. Flirtilla was second and Morinel third. Sirdar, Jim McCleary, Honor Bright, Jennie Miller and Boardman also started.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28.

To-day racing was of the kind that pleases the crowd, for of the four events on the card there was in each a prohibitive favorite and without a single exception the four choices were beaten and the crowd was happy. This seems a peculiar state of affairs, for it would seem that the favorite should be the choice of the public; nevertheless, when one is beaten, great joy seems to come from the crowd.

The first race carded was the 2:30 trot, in which five horses scored for the word. The horse Vi Direct, on account of a fair race at Napa, was selected as the favorite, selling at $20, whilst the entire field brought only $8. He certainly proved to be what is generally known as a "bad one," for after winning the first heat in 2:19½ in apparently easy fashion, making every post a winning one, he was as easily beaten in slower time and finally in fourth heat refused to finish inside the flag. In the first heat, after several scores, the word was given and Vi Direct assumed the lead and apparently won easily in 2:19½.

In the second heat there came a change, for although Vi Direct went away as if first money was his, he evidently changed his mind when half way down the stretch, for Lady Fair, nicely rated and cleverly placed by Geo. Gray, came through on the rail and won very cleverly, the time being 2:17½, proving the Gossiper mare a good one and also that Mr. Gray has not forgotten how to ride. The next two heats were won quite easily by Lady Fair in 2:21½ and 2:23½. The summary:

Trotting, 2:30 class.
Lady Fair, br m by Gossiper-by Anteeo.....(Geo. Gray) 4 1 1 1
P. Incess, b m by Eugene-by Ky. Prince.....(Vance) 2 3 2 2
Faust, s g by Aptos Wilkes.....(C. F. Bunch) 3 4 3 3
Vi Direct, b g by Direct.....(H. F. Brown) 1 2 4 5
Carry M., b m by Diablo-Alaska.....(J. Goss) ds
Time—2:19½, 2:17½, 2:21½, 2:23½.

The second race was a special for named trotters and on paper looked rather one-sided, but turned out to be quite a pretty race, even though the time was slow. Thomas R., who has been far from right this season, was almost a prohibitive favorite and after winning the first heat in easy fashion in 2:24½, it looked as if he could play with his field. He, however, broke twice, fell out of the race in the second heat, but by trotting fast he saved his distance. All seemed unsteady in this heat, except Lady Rowena, who won easily, never being headed, in 2:27½. The summary:

Special for named trotters; purse $250.

The second was a three-quarters dash and won by Young Morello (117), Maresa (112) second and Lode-star third. Time, 1:15. Golden Light and The Hoodoo also ran.

There was an excellent crowd at the races, the grand stand being filled and many carriages with their occupants in the center field.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 28.

The attendance at the fair is increasing every day and is far ahead of expectations. The entries are so numerous in all departments that the clerks have been working overtime to get things in shape for the awarding committees, and it has been found necessary to postpone the blue ribbon stock parade until Saturday to give the judges time to make the awards.

The races to-day were excellent, and good time was made. In both the harness events the favorites won in straight heats, the results being as follows:

Pacing, 2:30 class, purse $500.
Robert I., ch g by Hamb. Wilkes.....(W. Durfee) 1 1 1 1
Chief, driven by Treanor, won second money, Alfred C. won third and Diabla fourth money. Crieri was fifth and Al Sandy sixth. The time was 2:15, 2:16½ and 2:15½.

Roadster race, purse $200—Irene won both heats. Dew second, Sable third, Wild Bill fourth. Little Joe, Hattie C. and Monk also started. Time, 2:25, 2:30.

[The official summaries of the foregoing events did not reach us in time for publication but will appear next week.—Ed. B. & S.]

Third race, three-quarters of a mile, running, purse $150—Fine Shot won, Dwightway second, Quidado third. Time, 1:15.

Fourth race, one mile and 100 yards, running, purse $150—Flirtilla won, Expedient second, Morinel third. Time, 1:48½.

Marysville Meeting.

The weather for Tuesday, August 26th, the opening day of the Thirteenth Agricultural District fair at Marysville, was most propitious, a cool and refreshing zephyr from the north prevailing. The track was fair, horses in fine fettle, and what the spectators lacked in numbers they made up in enthusiasm. In the judges stand were the familiar faces of W. P. Harkey, T. J. Sherwood and George Sutliff.

Walter Trefry and Jos. Cuicello acted as timers.

The first race on the program was pacing, 2:25 class, purse $500, mile heats, three in five. Of the seven original entries but three came to the post and one of these was distanced in the first heat, the race going to the Woodland horse Smuggler by Waldstein, in three straight heats and in slow time.

Two good running races were on the card and were well played. Summary:

Pacing, 2:25 class, purse $500.
Smuggler, b g by Waldstein-Beauty.....(Norton) 1 1 1 1
Flashlight, b g by Illustrious.....(Brown) 2 2 2

Running, half mile dash, purse $100—Little Sister, first; Searchlight, second; Miss Culver, third. Time, 1:01½.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 27.

The attendance at the track to-day was much larger than yesterday. Ladies were admitted free and many turned out. The program proved quite interesting, consisting of one trotting and two running events. Summary:

Trotting, 2:19 class, purse $500.
Lijero, b g by McKinney.....(C. Durfee) 1 1 1 1

Running, six furlongs, purse $100—G. Berger's Mamie Hildreth won, W. Garmin's Bill Young second, C. S. Treadwell's Torilla third. Time, 1:15½.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 28.

An increased attendance at the track to-day showed that the good racing provided by the association is appreciated. The feature of to-day's contests was the special trot for a purse of $250, in which Chas. A. Durfee's little three year old candidate for the Occident Stake, Cuate by McKinney out of Miss Jessie 2:14½, downed a field of four aged horses in straight heats and took a record of 2:24½. Results:

Trotting, special purse $250—C. A. Durfee's Cuate won, L. J. Rose's Zambra second, Prince Howard third, Donnybrook fourth. Young Saulsbury distanced. Best time, 2:24½.

Running, five furlongs, purse $100, five entries—Tibbit's Nona B. won, T. F. McLaughlin's Mythrox second, Mrs. D. Johnson's Tioleta third. Time, 1:02½.

Running, seven furlongs, purse $100, five entries—G. Berger's Mamie Hildreth won, T. F. McLaughlin's Mike Rico second, W. Garmin's Bill Young third. Time, 1:30.

"The Story of a Great Horse" is the title of a book which has just been published. It is from the pen of John McCartney, a newspaper man of Chillicothe, Ohio, and contains a complete history of the birth, training and campaigns of Cresceus 2:02½, the world's champion trotter. It is profusely illustrated and printed in handsome style.

Notes and News.

All roads will lead to Woodland next week.

There is a letter at this office for S. Roberts.

The Rajah 2:14½ is the fastest three year old trotter of 1902 up to date.

Mr. Streubner of Erie, Pa., has sold the McKinney mare Eula Mac 2:17½ to E. J. Tranter.

McKinney has six 2:10 performers at 15 years of age. The Roman 2:09½ is the latest addition.

Henry Hellman has purchased the trotter Mack Mack by McKinney from Chris Simpson of Portland, Oregon.

Rythmic, Zeyhr and The Roman have all been beaten but they have been unable to head Direct Hal 2:04½ as yet.

Creseus made his second start of the year last Thursday at Chillicothe in an exhibition mile. The time was 2:05.

In one heat of her five heat race at Brighton Beach Anzella came the last half of the mile in 1:02½ and was not all out at the end.

Thos. W. Lawson writes to an Eastern turf paper that he has not retired from harness racing and has no intention of doing so.

The State Fair opens September 8th with the Occident Stake the first thing on the program. It will be a horse race this year and fast time is certain.

Willie Osborn, bay gelding by Chas. Derby, won a seven heat race at Jamestown, New York, August 15th, and the last heat in 2:17½ was the fastest of the race.

Anzella 2:07½ is buying the oats for the Santa Rosa Stock Farm string all right. She has five straight wins to her credit, aggregating over five thousand dollars.

Petigru 2:15½ and Cozad 2:14½ will make a hot race when they meet and are both feeling well. They are entered at Woodland in the 2:19 class trot, which is carded for Wednesday.

Naniwa, daughter of Chas. Derby and Clytie 2d by Nutwood, won a heat at Worcester, Mass., in 2:17½ August 12th. This is her record. Her dam is also the dam of Neernut 2:12½.

J. L. Druen, Bardstown, Ky., has purchased the pacing mare Twinkle in the stable of Hudson & Gathcomb. She was owned by Douglas Boyd, Griffin, Ga. The price was said to be close to $10,000.

Dan R. 2:04½ cost his present owners, Rudy Bros., just $85 three years ago at auction. Moral—Never allow a sound and well-bred horse to be knocked down for less than he is worth as a work horse.

Mr. George Hardy of Vancouver, B. C., has bred his fine mare Sadie Hood by Mount Hood 12,040 to Zombro. On the 20th of this month Zombro had been bred to just an even hundred mares this year.

Mr. Theuerkauf of San Jose had been so unfortunate as to lose by death his old broodmare, dam of the fast roan pacer Funston. Mr. Theuerkauf has two full sisters and a brother to Funston however that are very promising.

Volita, the bay mare bred at Santa Rosa Stock Farm and sold East last year, has been winning races on the Mississippi valley tracks this year and has a record now of 2:16½ made on the 19th of this month. She is by Beau B. 2:16½, son of Wildnut and Nellie Benton.

Prince Alert and Anaconda have been matched to race for a purse of $3000 at the Bethlehem fair on Wednesday, September 10. The conditions call for a sixty-yard distance flag, winner to receive sixty per cent. In case of one horse being flagged the winner takes all.

Mr. A. B. Spreckels was down to the Aptos Stock Farm last week and saw Sandy Smith work his colt Cronje by Cupid out of Hulda a quarter in less than 35 seconds. As the track is a half milering and rather heavy this is an excellent showing for Hulda's handsome son.

Geo. T. Beckers purchased the colt Edmond S. by Zombro last week after seeing him trot on the Portland track in 2:28½. Mr. Beckers believes that on a good track he can drive Edmond S. a mile in 2:20 within sixty days. The Portland track is about five seconds slow at the present time.

The pacing mare Mattie B. 2:15½ by that great sire of pacers Alex Button is offered for sale by her owner, Wm. Van Keuren of this city. Mattie B. has a wonderful burst of speed and has shown a quarter in 29½ seconds. She is a large mare and was bred to McKinney 2:11½ this year. She is thought to be certainly with foal. The produce of this union should be a speed marvel. Mr. Van Keuren, who is a police officer of this city, has no time to devote to this mare and no place except a livery stable to keep her, therefore he wants to sell. See his advertisement.

The enterprising Woodland association has secured the Los Angeles diving pony as a feature of its fair next week. The pony dives from a great height into a pond of water and seems to enjoy the bath. Diving horses are common at eastern fairs but this will be the first appearance of one at a fair on this Coast.

The Alcyone blood is found in the front very often this year when the heats are fast. The Maine stallion Wilkes by Alcyone 2:27 got two representatives in the 2:10 list at Dover this month. His son, Ned Wilkes, won the 2:12 pace, taking a record of 2:09½, and his grandson, Anadrosis, won the 2:14 pace in 2:09½, 2:07 and 2:07½.

Monroe Salisbury took Monte Carlo 2:14½ to Readville and started him in the 2:15 trot for a $1000 purse. He got third money and was a good second in the second heat, which was trotted in 2:11½. McHenry did the teaming. Monte Carlo started at Providence this week but was next to last in a field of eighteen horses, which probably means that he was behind the flag.

Derby Ash, sire of Chas. Whitehead's pacing mare The Mrs., is a full brother to Cibolo 2:13½, sire of Pussy Willow 2:10½, being by Charles Derby out of Addie Ash by Indianapolis. The Steinway blood is breeding on, and performers by his sons and grandsons are getting very numerous. The Mrs. will take a low record this year, in all probability, as she is fast and good gaited.

Owen McAleer, owner of the bay filly by McKinney out of Eva Wilkes by Adrian Wilkes, that he has entered in the Pacific Breeders Futurity under the name of Lady Gertrude, has been compelled to change her name. On applying for her registration he found that the name Lady Gertrude had been taken, so he has given her the name Reela Newo, which was formed by spelling her owner's name backward.

With regard to the alleged ringing of Oslund L. in Russia, it is now said that in addition to Oslund the Russian authorities think they have another ringer over there whose real name is William C. K. 2:18½, by

MILLARD SANDERS WINS THE
2:07 TROT AT BRIGHTON BEACH
WITH ANZELLA

How Cartoonist Dickey of the Chicago Horse Review pictured Millard Sanders and Anzella after the Brighton Beach meeting.

Pilot Medium. He is a grey horse and was exported to Vienna from here December 9, 1899. It is alleged that later he was bought by Russians, and has since been raced as an Orloff, as many of that breed are greys.

The oldest horse in Pennsylvania has recently died at Finleyville at the age of thirty-nine years and three months. At the age of twenty-two years the horse paced a mile heat at Homewood Park, Pittsburg, in 2:30. It was of the St. Lawrence strain and had been owned by the same owner since two years of age. It worked at the plow and on the farm for thirty-six years and had never been sick until two hours before its death.

Cozad, Chas. E. Clark's good gelding by Fred S. Wilkes, that he purchased over East last year, has been making a triumphal tour of the southern coast circuit, winning every race in which he has started. After he had won at Salinas, Mr. Clark drove him an exhibition mile for the edification of the crowd, and Cozad stepped the mile in 2:11½. He will make things very interesting when he meets such horses as Petigru 2:15½ later on.

At Napa last Friday H. R. Ward drove the handsome little bay mare Venus N. a mile in 2:20½ against time, thus giving her a standard record. Venus N. is a pacer and is owned by Albert W. Nolan, a popular young school teacher of Sebastopol, Sonoma county. Mr. Nolan has been driving Venus N. on the road, which is all the training she has had, except a few lessons that Mr. Ward gave her a week or two before she was started. She is a well built mare, sired by Contention, son of Director, and is out of a mare by Gen. McClellan. With the necessary training she would pace in 2:15 to a certainty. She paced a half in 1:04 in her work last week. Mr. Nolan does not care to race her, but will use her to drive on the road.

Young Jim, bay stallion, twenty-eight years old, died at the Rose Hill Stock Farm of Franklin Shropshire, Leesburg, Ky., August 11th. Young Jim was by George Wilkes 2:22, dam Lear Mare by Sir William and was bred by Simmons Bros. of Lexington. He was a great sire of speed. Up to the close of 1901 he had 45 in the 2:30 list, 18 producing sons and 31 producing daughters. His fastest performer is Trevillian 2:08½, a trotter. One of his daughters produced the trotter Bingen 2:06½.

Mr. J. W. Gardner, owner of the mare Miracle, full sister to Coney 2:02, McZeus 2:13 and Grace McK. 2:21½, sent her over to Toledo last spring to be bred to Cresceus 2:02½. He has just received word that her foal, three months old by Nearest 2:22 (brother to John A. McKerron 2:06½) was found dead in the pasture recently. Miracle is thought to be with foal to Cresceus and Mr. Gardner will send her to Lexington this fall to Elmwood Farm, where she will be mated next spring with the handsome stallion Adbell, holder of the yearling record of 2:23.

The first reports that came over the wires in regard to the novelty races at Brighton Beach, wherein three heats completed the race and the winner of the fastest heat received first money, were to the effect that they were highly successful. The later advices at hand in the New York daily journals say they furnished the worst racing seen in New York for years, and that heats were laid up most audaciously. All the journals agree that Secretary McCully was not to blame, as his plan was a new one and looked good on paper, but that it failed when put in practice. Thus another plan to prevent laying-up has failed.

Geo. Gray, superintendent of the orchards and breeding farms of the Meek Estate at Haywards, has not been in the sulky behind the farm's horses for some time until this year, but he showed at the Pleasanton meeting that his hands have not lost their cunning, nor is his head rattled by that tinge of gray which is beginning to show in his locks. He can drive a trotter or pacer with the best of them, and is "much better than a raw hand." He recently matched up a pair of trotters in Lady Fair 2:17½ by Gossiper, and Hopper 2:24½ by McKinney. They look alike and trot alike, are the same color, size and shape, and have attracted lots of attention at the Pleasanton fair.

Susie J., the mare that took a record of 2:06½ at Brighton Beach this year, came out as a two year old and competed with L. V. Harkness' fast filly Ferenio in the Junior Kentucky Futurity, but gained no record. As a three year old she made a mark of 2:17½, and forced Ferenio to trot in 2:10½ to win the $20,000 Futurity at Lexington. She was the contending trotter in the Transylvania race at Lexington last year, winning the third heat in 2:10½, which was her best record up to her start at Brighton Beach. Her only previous race this year was trotted at Boston on July 4th. She then forced Dolly Bidwell to take a record of 2:08½ in defeating her. She is by Jayhawker, dam by Norwood.

Sandy Smith, who is still at Aptos Stock Farm working a number of Mr. A. B. Spreckels' horses, has lately sold from among them a chestnut filly by Cupid out of Princess Louise to Mr. Roberts of Bakersfield. He has also sold to Mr. Joe Terry of Sacramento a black gelding by Aptos Wilkes out of Emma Stetson. Both these horses are fine lookers and good road horses. Sandy has taken up a carload of four and five year olds which he will get ready for a sale to be held at William G. Layng's Occidental Horse Exchange in this city the latter part of September. They are all by Dexter Prince, Cupid and Aptos Wilkes, and a fine lot.

Tuesday, September 16th, is the day set for the match race between the two great pacing stars of the turf, Dan Patch 2:00½ and Prince Alert 2:00½. The race will come off at the Empire City track at Yonkers, close to New York City. The purse offered by the association is $5000, winner to take all. Dan Patch has never been beaten and Prince Alert is considered one of the greatest race horses of the free-for-all pacing class. The race, if both horses are in condition, should be the fastest ever paced. The fastest two heat race was won by Prince Alert last year when he beat Riley B., Anaconda and Indiana at Memphis, his two heats being in 2:02½ and 2:00½, the last one his record. A horse that can pace a winning heat in 2:02½ and then come back in 2:00½ is a wonder, and as Prince Alert is considered to be better than ever this year, Dan Patch will cover himself with glory and be heralded as the greatest pacer that ever happened if he manages to defeat him next month.

While it has not as yet been definitely settled, Secretary George J. Deitrich and the Cleveland Driving Club officials have practically agreed that the Grand Circuit program for 1903 will consist exclusively of two in three races, non-winners to go to the barn after three heats. There will be six races on the program, no purse to be less than $1200. From the experience derived from the Brighton Beach and Memphis novelty plans and the various two in three races at Cleveland and other points in the big line, the officers of the Cleveland club have selected what seems to be the most meritorious plan both for horses and spectators, the only improvement that might be suggested, so as to insure the finishing of the race in three heats, being to send non-heat winners to the barn after the second heat. This would give at least twelve races for the afternoon and not more than eighteen—a sufficient number for any purpose. In fact, five races, making a program of not less than ten heats, would be ample. Such short, snappy races, with practically no chance for laying up, would insure a contest every heat, thus pleasing those who pay at the gate, giving those a chance who back their ability to pick the winners on form, while giving horsemen every legitimate opportunity to win money in an honest race, where the horses do the racing instead of the drivers.—Inter-Ocean.

MONTEREY'S SUCCESSFUL FAIR.

Good Management at Pavilion and Track Draws Big Crowds at Salinas.

The opening day's racing at the Monterey County Fair, held at Salinas, was reported in our columns last week.

There was a marked increase in the attendance on Thursday, the second day, the bettors patronized the pool box more freely and everyone seemed to be bent upon having a good time. In the crowd present were representatives from Hollister, Watsonville, Santa Cruz and every town in Monterey county.

The judges of the races were W. P. Harkey, H. S. Ball and C. Z. Hebert. In the timers' stand were P. E. Jessen, Henry Struve and S. N. Matthews. Henry Delaney acted as starter of the runners.

The first race on the card was the 2:30 class trot, which was a cake walk for the McKinney horse Lijero, that had taken a record of 2:17½ the week before at Vallejo. He played with his field in this race and took the event in straight heats. The two year old trotters beat three minutes in the first heat of their race. Summaries:

FRIDAY, AUGUST 22.

The attendance at the track Friday was nearly double that of the corresponding day during the last preceding fair.

In the judges' stand were W. P. Harkey (presiding), Sam N. Matthews and C. Z. Hebert. The timers' stand was occupied by Henry Struve, P. F. Jessen and F. M. Hammett. Henry Delaney started the runners and John Leach manipulated the distance flag.

The first race was the three year old trotting stake, for which there were three starters. Larkin W., the chestnut colt by Boodle Jr., was the favorite and won in straight heats. He is owned by Hon. Jesse D. Carr, the veteran breeder, and is entered in the Occident Stake to be trotted at the State Fair, September 8th. In the race Friday he did not have to extend himself to win, so his speed is yet a matter of conjecture.

A special pace for a $300 purse was on the program. There were four starters—Dictatus Medium, Lady Mac, Inferno and Dictatress. The last named won in straight heats without much trouble, her fastest mile being 2:17, nearly five seconds slower than her record.

There were two running events and all the races were called promptly and there were few delays, the races being finished at 5:30. Summaries:

The twenty-third annual exhibition of the Monterey Agricultural Association came to an end Saturday night. The attendance at the pavilion that night was a record breaker and that at the race track was the largest of any day's attendance in the past seven or eight years. In the afternoon the premiums for the stock exhibit were awarded at the track.

The racing was begun promptly at 2 o'clock with W. P. Harkey, C. Z. Herbert and Sam N. Matthews in the judges' stand, and Henry Struve, J. D. Kalar and F. M. Hammett in the timers' place.

The first race, the 2:20 class trot for a purse of $350, was very easy for Chas. E. Clark's bay gelding Cozad, that won in three straight heats as he pleased. After the race was over Mr. Clark sent Cozad around the oval once to show the crowd what a real trotter looks like. The mile was made in 2:11½, and was a very pretty exhibition.

The 2:20 pace furnished the hottest contest of the week, although but two horses contested after the first heat. Mr. Wm. Vanderhurst's bay mare Diablita was the favorite and had the hottest kind of a race with William Lierly's Chief. They went like a double team to the half in 1:07 and finished the mile with Diablita only a nose in front in 2:15½ amid much enthusiasm. Virginia had to be drawn after this heat on account of lameness. In the second heat Diablita made a break and Chief won, but the Diablo mare won the next two rather handily.

A novelty race at a mile and a quarter, $20 to be awarded to the horse in front at each quarter, was contested by four runners. Hercules won the first three and Sirdar the next two. The mile and a quarter was run in 2:15½.

The closing race of the meeting was a mixed trotting and pacing race for horses without records. Baby Blanco, a trotter, and Muldoon, Aunt Sally and Johnny Smoker, pacers, started. Muldoon won in straight heats and got into the list.

The fair and races were successful from every standpoint and reflect great credit on the Directors and Secretary Kelly. The summaries:

Last Three Days at Napa.

A very pretty card was arranged for Thursday's races at the Napa meeting, but at the last moment several horses were scratched leaving the races rather one-sided so far as the harness horses were concerned, but the runs were pretty and close from start to finish. The races carded were the green pace and a 2:19 trot, a four and a quarter furlong and a three-quarter dash. Petigru was the favorite in the trot and won each heat, at least came to the wire first although the judges decided he was not entitled to first heat on account of repeated breaks, placing him last; this heat was given to Puerto Rico who finished a close second. The second, third and fourth heats were won by Petigru as he pleased, trotting very fast in certain parts of each mile, going to the half in the third heat in 1:05, closely followed by the little mare Twilight. This heat was trotted in 2:15½, which is Petigru's record. In the fourth heat Puerto Rico made an unfortunate break which placed him behind the flag.

The green pace was easily won by the handsome bay mare Alone, driven by her owner and breeder, Mr. T. W. Barstow of San Jose, she being by his horse Nearest, a son of Nutwood Wilkes. Nearest being a full brother to John A. McKerron. This mare, Alone, won each heat as she pleased and will certainly take a very fast record before the season is over, she is fast, handsome and a good actor. Summary:

Alone, b m by Nearest-Goemetta.....	(T. W. Barstow) 1 1 1
The Mrs., b m by Derby Ash by Hawthorne.....	(Whitehead) 2 2 2
Alfred C., br g by Longworth.....	(C. Farrer) 3 3 3

Time by Quarters:

First heat	0:34	1:08	1:44	2:15
Second heat	0:33½	1:07½	1:41½	2:13½
Third heat	0:35	1:11½	1:45	2:16

The first run, a four and a half dash, after a long delay at post was won by Talma (115), Miss Culver (113) second, Lady Ella (107) third. Time, 0:57½. White Streak, Torilla, Nephew, Julia Thorne and Rafaelletta also ran. The second run, a three-quarter mile dash, was won by Young Morrello (117), Frog (114) second, Dwightway (107) third. Time, 1:15. Katherine Ennis Diamond and Tenrick also ran.

The program for Friday was indeed an excellent one and a large crowd was in attendance, the grand stand being well filled and infield as well. Up and down the home stretch were crowded rigs of all kinds and descriptions, from the farm wagon to the handsome and stylish city carriages. Each vehicle was full of interested spectators. The class for 2:40 trotters was the first on the program and brought out six very handsome green trotters. On account of his recent good performances, Mr. W. G. Durfee's brown stallion Coronado was installed favorite, but the field had many supporters, so that the buyers of Coronado end obtained even money for their investment. The first and second heats were won very handily by Coronado, Mr. Durfee seemingly having the heat at his mercy during any part of the mile, but in the third heat it looked as if a new one would fly the colors of a heat winner, for immediately after the word "go" was given, Briney K. rushed to the front, trotting the first half in 1:07½, and assuming a commanding lead of several lengths; a break, however, in the stretch spoilt his chances. Coronado showed his class by coming from the rear and winning quite handily. In my opinion, this stallion Coronado is a very high class trotter, and in appearance he should suit the most critical. The summary:

2:40 trot, purse $800.

Third heat	0:34	1:07½	1:42½	2:19

Next came a road race in which only two faced the starter. It took four heats to decide the race, because in the first heat one of the tires on Billy G.'s sulky came off, causing Dr. Taylor to pull up. The gelding Billy G. took second, third and fourth heats very handily, thus winning the race and showing that Dr. Taylor has a very useful as well as speedy road horse. Summary:

Billy G., ch g by Gaviota.....	(Dr R. F. Taylor) 2 1 1 1
Sable, br g by Sable Wilkes.....	(W. Splers) 1 2 2 2
Time—2:28, 2:23½, 2:23, 2:24½

Prior to the first heat the bay mare, Venus N., by Contention, dam by McClelland, owned by Albert W. Nolan and driven by H. R. Ward, started to beat 2:25 pacing. She paced in 2:20½ very handily, which is her record.

Mr. C. L. Griffiths' handsome stallion Bonnie Direct also made a couple of efforts to beat his record of 2:05½, but conditions were not favorable and he failed. This horse is looking in grand shape and when he strikes a day and track to his liking will pace a very fast mile. In sending in my previous report I neglected to state that Mr. Griffiths' black gelding Phoenix was given a record of 2:25½. The first run on the card Friday was a selling race of 4½ furlongs. Eight horses went to the post and finished with Zem Zem (113) first, Madge Simpson (105) second and Wileland (115) third. Hotchkiss, Foado, Col. Smith, Forilla and Julia Thorne also ran. Time, 0:59½.

The last race, a mile, special weights, brought out three starters.

Billy Lyons (121) came in first, with Lodestar (115) second and Flirtilla (112) third. Time, 1:42½.

Billy Lyons was disqualified on account of his jockey being short of weight, the horse was placed last and the judges decided it best to declare all bets off.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23.

The last day of the Napa meeting was, as with the preceding days, a very enjoyable one and the large attendance was a compliment to the good management of the directors. A special race for trotters and pacers was first on the card, in which four horses faced the starter. The favorite, Prince Howard, failed to satisfy his backers in the first two heats of this race, which was won by Mr. Smith's Gen'l Vallejo. About the time that Gen'l Vallejo was installed favorite Prince Howard made up his mind to trot, so the next three heats went easily to him. Summaries:

Prince Howard, br g by Dexter Prince-Nona Y.....	(B. O. Van Bokkelen) 2 3 1 1 1
Gen'l Vallejo, b g by Mumb. Chief Jr.-Daisy S.....	(Thos. Smith) 1 1 3 3 3

Time—2:29½, 2:31, 2:23, 2:23½, 2:22½

The second race was a pace for the 2:15 class. Four faced the starter, the favorite being Mr. Durfee's brs Silver Coin, but the winner turned up in Midnight, very nicely driven by Mr. W. S. Maben. Midnight took the race in three straight heats and apparently with something to spare.

Time—2:13½, 2:14, 2:13½

The first run, a four and a half furlong dash, went to an outsider, Tioleta (117) winning, with Dwightway (112) second and Wieland (119) third. Diamond, Searchlight, Boardman and White Streak also ran. Time, 0:56½.

The last race of the meeting was won by the favorite, this being the gray mare Miss Culver (115), Myrtle H. (110) was second and Madge Simpson (115) third. Hotchkiss, Nephew filly, Lady Ella, Rafaelletta, Julia Thorne also ran. Time, 1:02½.

In the New York Telegraph's account of the $15,000 Massachusetts stake decided at Readville August 21st, the statement is made that The Roman drew second position but got away behind in the first heat. He trotted very fast, however, on the outside of the track and rapidly passed one horse after another until half way up the stretch he was almost even with Major Delmar, the leader. The Roman broke, however, and finished seventh. As Major Delmar got away in front, had a clear track and trotted the mile in 2:08½, The Roman must have trotted at whirlwind speed to get up so close to him. It probably tired the California horse a good deal and the Telegraph states that the second heat was almost a repetition of the first except The Roman did not break but cried enough and dropped back a beaten horse.

SOME PECULIAR PERFORMANCES happen at the matinees given by gentlemen's driving clubs as well as at regular race meetings. There was one at New York last week which belongs in the farce comedy class. It seems that to make a horse eligible to start for the Boston Cup, that "laurel wreath" for amateur drivers, the animal must have been a starter in at least one matinee race given under the auspices of a regularly organized amateur driving club, in which race he must have been driven by an amateur. There are many ways to skin a cat however, and to technically comply with conditions that are in reality not carried out. We will let the New York Sun tell the story as follows:

A special matinee was held yesterday at the Empire City Park to enable The Monk 2:07, and Lord Derby 2:05½, to qualify for the $2500 Boston Challenge cup at Cleveland next month. As Lord Derby started here against Louise Jefferson a week ago it was currently supposed he had qualified, yet on that day Scott McCoy, a professional, drove the mare. It was considered necessary to make one undisputed start, hence the calling of the matinee. As a race, however, it was a farce. Owner Smathers was in Boston and asked that the clerk select some good, careful man to drive, and that Derby be sent merely a road gait, as he is entered ahead pretty well and no chances should be taken at this moment. The Hon. Dewitt C. Flanagan consented to drive and got up behind the horse even though Fred Spear had jogged him but one mile the reverse way of the track. Fred Gerken had an open bridle on The Monk and had him out half an hour ahead of time jogging him. Frank Jones added Battleton 2:09½, and the trio got away on the first score, Battleton out in front several lengths. As the timers had been told that only The Monk and Lord Derby were to start, Battleton was ignored and The Monk's time, 2:39½, was taken, he having the pole. It was so slow the limited attendance jeered and gave vent to catcalls. Starter Coleman explained why it was so slow. The Monk could have trotted in 2:07 to wagon had he been asked for a supreme effort.

Had a performance like that taken place at a "regular" meeting would it have been permitted to be recorded as a "qualification?" We think not. The conditions of the cup race were originally framed to prevent professional race horses from being taken out of the circuit after they had demonstrated free for all speed and pitted against horses that had only been driven by amateurs during the season. It is more than likely that the members of the Boston club who drafted the conditions of the cup race never for a moment thought that members of another club would get up a fake race between a couple of professional race horses to enable them to start in the great event for amateurs. Talk about "laying up heats" and "match races for records" being sharp practice! What is the proper term for a heat in 2:39½ between Lord Derby and The Monk with both horses fit?

THE LOS ANGELES PROGRAM of harness events will be found in our advertising columns to-day and horsemen will be pleased to find therein a number of additional purses, entries to which will close September 15th. Under the management of the Los Angeles Racing Association there has been new life infused into the sport of racing at the metropolis of southern California, and the meeting this year promises to be the greatest ever held there. The entry list of the harness races is the largest received by any association on the circuit thus far. Horsemen can depend on getting plenty of play against their horses at Los Angeles as it is a horse town and the people there enjoy playing the races at the fall fair and race meeting. More money can be wagered at Los Angeles on a horse race than at any other place on the entire circuit, the State Fair excepted, and one reason is that it is the last meeting of the year and everybody is trying. There are no less than ten additional purses announced in the advertisement this week for harness horses. For the pacers there is a green class, 2:21, 2:25, and 2:15 classes, and one for horses that have started and not won a heat in 2:16 or better in 1901 or 1902. For the trotters there is also a green class, and purses for the 2:12, 2:18, and 2:25 classes, besides one for trotters that have started and not won a heat in 2:20 or better in 1901 or 1902. These purses are all $500 each. In addition to these there will be six more harness races to be announced later, making twenty-six harness races to be decided during the Los Angeles meeting, all for good purses. No harness horse owner can afford to stay away from Los Angeles this year.

CALIFORNIA BRED youngsters will have a great chance to win money for their owners if the owners of stallions standing for service here will but name them in the seventh National Stallion Race, to which the Westchester Racing Association will add $5000 to the stakes. Nominations of stallions are to close and name September 9th, and foals of 1902, the progeny of these stallions, are to be nominated and entered on December 9th, this year. The race is to be run during the spring meeting at Morris Park, New York, in 1904 by then two year olds and will be one of the richest prizes of the year. On December 9th entries will close for The Sixth Matron, for mares covered in 1902, foals of 1903, to be run at the autumn meeting of 1905. Have entries in these two great stakes and be in line to win a fortune in one race with a colt of your own breeding.

THE MEETING AT FRESNO to be given by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association is the talk of all the horsemen and there is no question but more good harness horses will be quartered at the Fresno track on the opening day, September 30th, than will be seen on any other track in California this year. The big entry list for the $2000 2:24 class trot and the fact that it will be the largest purse trotted for this year in California, has aroused great interest in this event alone, but there will be fifteen additional races on the program, ten of which are still open and will close on Monday, September 8th, the opening day of the California State Fair. These races have been so classified that all the pacers and trotters in training will have a chance to compete with horses of their respective classes and all will have a chance. The Fresno Fair which is to be held the same week as the Breeders meeting will draw a very large crowd to the Raisin City in addition to the many that will be attracted by the races and the outlook is for a very large attendance. The program of the races still open will be found in our business column to-day. Remember that Monday, the opening day of the State Fair, is the date of closing for the Fresno events.

UKIAH, which held a most successful fair and race meeting last year, will be in line again this fall, the date selected being the week beginning October 7th. The entire program has been arranged and is published in this paper this week. There are purses ranging from $100 to $300 for the harness horses and from $75 to $150 for the runners. The Ukiah track is an excellent one and the people of Mendocino county turn out in large numbers to see the races. Don't leave Ukiah out of your itinerary for 1902.

THE FASTEST DEAD HEAT that is recorded was trotted at Pekin, Illinois, on the Fourth of July, this year. It was in 2:11½ and was between the stallion Solon Grattan and the gelding Dr. Spellman. Prior to this the record had been held by Phoebe Wilkes and Hamlin's Nightingale, whose dead heat in 2:12 at Washington's Park, Chicago, was made in 1894.

Answers to Correspondents.

T. B. M., Goldendale, Wash.—We cannot find a stallion registered by that name.

J. C. K., Susanville—While Goodwin's Turf Guide does not give the breeding of the horse Sleepy Dick that holds the record of 0:21½, 0:22½ for the fastest race at quarter mile heats, it cannot be Starkey's horse of that name by Ironclad, as he started in a race at Bay District track in this city November 29, 1888, and the record was made at Kiowa, Kansas, on the day previous.

Southern California Polo Club Races.

On September 9th, Admission Day, the Southern California Polo Club will hold its fourteenth annual races at the Ocean Park Country Club at Santa Monica. The committee named to take charge of the meeting, comprises the following gentlemen: W. H. Young, H. A. Winslow, J. B. Proctor, J. E. Hoy and G. L. Waring. The committee has invited Mr. J. W. Brooks, manager of the Los Angeles Racing Association, to act as presiding judge and that gentleman has accepted, addressing a letter to Secretary Waring in which it is stated that the Los Angeles association will recognize all rulings of the Polo Club, and all persons fined, suspended or ruled off by the latter organization will be barred from the Los Angeles race track. The program already issued provides for but one day's program, but Secretary Waring states that there will be two days in all probability. The events which have been opened and for which entries close September 4th, are as follows:

1. Five-eighths mile. For horses 11 lbs. above the scale. $50 to first. $2.50 entrance to go to second.
2. Three-quarters mile. For horses 11 lbs. above the scale. Winner of race No. 1 to carry 10 lbs. extra. $50 to first. $2.50 entrance to go to second.

To be entered by the owner and ridden by members of any recognized polo club. Top weight 170 lbs. 5 lbs. allowed for every one-half inch under the standard. $40 added. $1 entrance. 80 per cent to first, 20 per cent to second. Trainers' Methods.

Ed Geers shoes most all of his horses with short feet fore and aft. He likes their feet about the same length all around and uses a great many square-toed front shoes, even on horses that are double-gaited and inclined to single-foot or pace, writes a Memphis correspondent of the Horse Review. I overheard Clarence Kope, the blacksmith, say the other day, that there was only one man in the world that could train a double-gaited colt with a square-toed front shoe, and that was Mr. Geers. He never checks his horses very high.

Scott McCoy, on the other hand, likes a pretty fair length of foot and an extremely short foot behind on most of his good ones. I don't think he has a horse in his stable at present that is working in a square-toed front shoe. He has a few, though, that wear square-toed shoes behind.

McCoy does not believe in kicking straps and never uses one on a colt or horse. Another common article, around most training stables, that Scott does not use is a gaiting pole or side-strap. He believes in straightening up the crooked going things with shoes and skillful reinsmanship. I notice that the first thing he tries to do with a new one is to teach it to speed with a slack rein.

Mr. Geers never pulls his horses, but if one starts to go sideways or carry his head out of line he never hesitates to use a gaiting pole or strap on the horse's side or a stick on his head.

The fast chestnut mare Georgena 2:07½ that won the Charter Oak Stake in 1900, died at the Hudson Stock Farm, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on Wednesday, August 6th, where she had been sent to be bred to Oakland Baron 2:09½. She was foaled in 1891, was by Epaullet 2:19 out of the old Californian mare Ida Howe by Whipple's Hambletonian, was bred by Frank Ferguson of New York and was owned by James Gormely of Brooklyn, N. Y., who bought her as a green one, gave her her first record himself of 2:26½ in 1896, at the Parkway half mile track, and owned her during her short but brilliant racing career. Andy McDowell was behind her when she took her record.

Racing at Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 25—The track at Narragansett Park was lightning fast this afternoon and the grand circuit meeting opened with a carnival of record-breaking. Every heat winner broke its record.

2:20 class, pace, purse $2500—Gold Brick won the first, third and fifth heats in 2:08½, 2:10, 2:11½. Dandy Chimes won the second and fourth heats in 2:07½, 2:10½. Albert, King Charles, Dick Wilson, Free Advice, Deacon, Greenline, Fuzzy and Sister Hattie also started.

2:20 class, trot, purse $2500—Baron De Shay won three straight heats in 2:12½, 2:10½, 2:08¾. Patchen Maid, Maxine, Zephyr, Katrinka G., Invader, Betsy Tell, Oxford Chimes, The Quaker, Nanita and Alfred Starr also started.

2:08 class, pace, two in three, purse $1000—Nathan Strauss won two straight heats in 2:05½, 2:06½. Effie Powers, Billy H., Sphinx S., Terrace Queen, Louise G., Major Muscovite, Sir Albert S., The Bishop and New Richmond also started.

2:19 class, trot, two in three, purse $1000—Prince of Orange won two straight heats in 2:13½, 2:10½. Baron Dell, Austin Boy, The Rajah, Ralph Wick, M. M. D., Betsy Ross and Hall Fry also started.

Aug. 26—The climax of sensational pacing races was reached in the great Park Brew $10,000 stakes at Narragansett Park this afternoon. Ed Geers piloted Direct Hal to victory in three straight heats. The black stallion's race record was lowered from 2:06 to 2:04½.

The second heat was won by Direct Hal in the latter time. Scott Hudson made a rush down the stretch with Twinkle and would have beaten anybody but Geers. It was such a drive home that Twinkle went off her feet and broke almost under the wire. The last half was paced in 1:02 flat, with the last quarter in 29 seconds. Twelve thousand people saw the race and they went wild with enthusiasm.

There was a slight mix-up in the first heat. Twinkle's sulky wheel was smashed and she was left outside the flag. Hudson lodged a complaint against Geers, but the judges found the latter to be some distance away when the accident happened. They let Twinkle stay in the race, however. Direct Hal was driven out and won the first heat in 2:06½. His most formidable opponent was Prince Direct, formerly called Freddie C. They teamed to the half, but Geers drove in front when he wanted that place.

It was Scott Hudson who tried conclusions with Direct Hal in the second heat, but Twinkle could not hold the pace and broke almost at the wire. Twinkle broke again in the third heat and Direct Hal won handily in 2:05. Summary:

2:20 class, pace, purse $1000—Junius won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:12½, 2:07½, 2:08½. Josh won the first heat in 2:09½. Miss Willamont, Cubanola, Pan Michael, Orrin B., Sultana, Mary Ann, Gelatine Queen and Dora Bosie also started.

2:16 class, trot, two in three, purse $1000—Kelmont won the second and fourth heats in 2:13½, 2:14½. Silver Glow won the third heat in 2:15½. Alverder won the first heat in 2:12½. Axteloid, Eula Mac, Millard Saunders, Miss Johnson, Paxie, Kamares and Yadda also started.

The Park Brew, 2:10 class, purse $10,000, pacing—Direct Hal won three straight heats in 2:06½, 2:04½, 2:05. Prince Direct, Lou Vaughn, Twinkle, Daphne Dallas, Terral, John T., You Bet, Dandy, Sophie, Star Pugh and Donna McGregor also started.

2:13 class, trotting, two in three, purse $1000, unfinished—The King won the second heat in 2:11½. Aggie Medium won the first heat in 2:10½. Hawthorne, Darwin, Flash Lightning, A. J. D., Bessie Owens, Promise, Pug, Alcy, Ida Highwood, Henry S., Phoebe Onward, Red Princess, Mary D., Confessor, Monte Carlo and Maiborn also started.

Aug. 27—In the grand circuit meeting at Narragansett Park to-day the Roger Williams $10,000 trotting stake smashed all precedent. It is still unfinished, with five heat winners and all have broken their records.

Scott Hudson's blind horse Rythmic 2:09½ was picked to win the rich purse, but, after reducing his record to 2:08½, he had only one heat in six. Dulce Cor won two heats and took a mark of 2:08½, the new stake record. Alice Carr won the first heat in 2:09½, a new record for a mare. Rythmic came third and then won the second heat in 2:08½. The third heat went to Wentworth, who tied his mark of 2:09½. Dulce Cor won the fourth heat in the best time, 2:08½. Then Nut Bearer took the fifth heat, reducing his record from 2:13½ to 2:10½. The Roman won the 2:18 trot and entered the 2:10 list. Summary:

2:13 trotting, two in three, purse $1000—The King won the second and third heats in 2:11, 2:11½. Aggie Medium won the first heat in 2:10½. Hawthorne, A. J. D., Darwin, Promise, Henry S., Alcy, Flash Lightning, Pug, Ida Highwood, Phoebe Onward, Bessie Owens,

Aug. 28—Anaconda won the free for all pace at Providence to-day and paced the fastest heat in a race that has been recorded this year. It was in the second heat and the time was 2:02.

Rythmic, the blind horse, acted as the wise ones said he would when the season got well along, and was distanced in the Roger Williams $10,000 purse, which was won by Nut Bearer. Six heats of this race were trotted on Wednesday and two to-day. Summary:

The Roger Williams, 2:14 class trot, purse $10,000 concluded—Nut Bearer won the fifth, seventh and eighth heats in 2:10½, 2:10½, 2:12. Dulce Cor won the fourth and sixth heats in 2:08½, 2:12½. Wentworth won the third heat in 2:09½. Alice Carr won the first heat in 2:09½. Rythmic won the second heat in 2:08½. Re-elected, Consuelo M., El Milagro, Rowellan and Directum Spier also started.

2:20 class trot, purse $1000—William Tell won three straight heats in 2:13½, 2:12½, 2:11½. Kalevala, The Questor, Rusty, Roan Wilkes, Kitty Wilkes, Surprise and Guy Fortune also started.

Colusa Races.

The first day of the fair witnessed some very good racing with only a limited attendance. In the first race, a three-minute trot for a purse of $200, Sutter, owned by C. A. Arvedson, won the race and purse in three straight heats, the time being 2:30, 2:28½ and 2:30.

In the 2:30 trot for a purse of $500, Prince L., owned by J. R. Freeman, won in three straight heats, the time being 2:42, 2:42½ and 2:42. It did not require the eye of an expert to see that Prince L. could have closed the race in the first heat by distancing both of his competitors.

In the running race, a three-quarter mile dash for a purse of $125, Lode Star owned by V. Gilbert, won with hands down in 1:15½, as did also Nono B. in the half-mile dash in 50 seconds, in which she had seven competitors.

The racing was good all through, except that in the 2:30 trot better time should have been made.

The races Wednesday afternoon opened with a much smaller crowd in attendance than the character of the races warranted.

In the first race, a 2:30 pace, there were four entries for a purse of $400. Jennie S. was favorite and sold in the pool box at $10 to $6. The horses were sent off at the fourth trial, each owner doing his own driving, and Sonoma, a bay gelding, won the first heat in 2:24½. In the second, third and fourth heats Jennie S. won in 2:23, 2:25 and 2:28½.

In the second race, five and a half furlongs, Bud G. was an easy winner in 1:11, while in race No. 3, a seven-eighths mile dash, Mike Rice won with hands down in 1:29½. In the fourth race, five-eighths of a mile, Dwightway was an easy winner in 1:03½ and sold in the pool box at $5 to $2.

The first race Thursday afternoon was a 2:40 trot, free for all, three in five, for a purse of $500. It was won by H. B. D. in three straight heats, time 2:32½, 2:29 and 2:22½.

The second race was a mixed one for trotters and pacers for a purse of $200. The first two heats were won by Dot in 2:36 and 2:39 and the next three by Sutter in 2:28, 2:30 and 2:29.

The third race was a half-mile dash for a purse of $100. Idalum won the race in 48½ seconds.

The fourth race was a five-eighths mile dash for a purse of $100 and was won by Lode Star in 1:01½.

Friday afternoon there were four races, the first a 2:17 pace for a purse of $200. The first heat was taken by Peggy in 2:25 and the next three by Jennie S. in 2:20, 2:21½ and 2:21.

This race was followed by three running races, the first a half-mile dash for a purse of $100 was won by Idalum in 51 seconds. The second was a five-eighths mile dash for a purse of $125 and was won by Dwightway in 1:03½, while the third race, which was a three-eighths mile dash for a purse of $100, was won by Little Sister in 36 seconds.

One of the largest crowds that has attended the races during the week was present on Saturday afternoon. The first race was a 2:20 trot for a purse of $300 and was won by Lochinvar in three straight heats in 2:24, 2:21 and 2:24½. This was followed by a half-mile dash for a purse of $100 and was won by Mable Wood in 50 seconds. The third race was a three-quarter mile dash for a purse of $125 and was won by Little Sister in 1:15½. The fourth and last race was a six and quarter furlong for a purse of $125, and was won by Mike Rice in 1:24. Loyal S. was first at the wire but was set back last for fouling Mike Rice.

Professional horsemen are becoming greatly interested in the contest for the Boston challenge cup by the League of Amateur Clubs. At Buffalo last week Howland Russell, former owner of Mazette, now of the Billings stable, and Dick Roestwick, owner of David Harum and others, became involved in a discussion about the race, which resulted in their posting $1000 apiece on their favorites. Mr. Russell named The Abbot as his choice, and Mr. Roestwick took John A. McKerron. When it is considered that Lord Derby, Chain Shot, The Monk, and Lucille or Louise Jefferson are likely starters in the race, the bet is somewhat of an astonisher, especially as The Abbot has shown lameness in his recent work.

The Mosquito.

In the swamps where the bullfrog sings his strenuous serenade,
In the marshes, where squawks the heron, fitting in tulle's shade,
And the cheerful mudhen lurks within the everglade.

In the cistern where rainwater poured and trickled down the spout;
On stagnant pools, in grasses, and most everywhere about,
The bloodthirsty mosquito from the wiggler is sprouting out—

And once hatched, he comes among us with his pesky little bill;
And he settles on our persons, very much against our will,
And, inserting his ternal proboscis, he proceeds forthwith to drill—
When through our epidermis he has managed for to bore.
He fills up his pirate carcass to the bursting point with gore.
This is painfully true, though doubtless you suspected it before.

You think that you have got him—and find that you have not:
For he keeps one eye wide open to elude the sudden swat.
He knows just how long its healthy to stay upon the spot.

Sportsmen may smear themselves with greasy, sticky stuff
That is guaranteed by druggists on mosquitoes to be rough,
But they seem to quite enjoy it, though it does smell bad enough.

You screen up all your windows and hang netting o'er your bed,
It doesn't keep him out, because he stays inside instead.
And you wake up in the morning and find that you've been bled.

So he breaks our summer slumbers, robs us of our needed rest;
So he drives us from our camps and porches, which he doth infest,
And he spoils the fun of fishing, does this sanguinary pest.

But upon the fiend's demerits, we'd endeavor to be dumb;
We'd forgive him all his faults—no inconsiderable sum—
If he'd simply go about his bloody business and wouldn't hum.

Sporting Dogs at Work.

With the opening of the shooting season close upon us the exercising of dogs intended for use in the field will have to take a more decided form than is offered by mere chance opportunities in between times devoted to other matters. There is a vast amount of difference between this taking the dogs out for exercise and a proper preparation of the more serious work incident to long and continuous hours in the field such as the dogs will be put to in the coming early days of October. In shooting over dogs, it behooves everyone who values and appreciates the work of field Pointers, Setters and Retrievers to see that his charges bring out their best points and accomplish their best work when put upon game under the full conditions which obtain in the shooting season. Naturally the opening days must offer the cream of the sport, and where the all-devouring driving is not resorted to, but the infinitely more sporting practice of shooting over dogs prevails, every care and attention should be shown so as to bring the dogs into the field in the pink of condition, and in every way fit for the work on hand. It is but too frequently the case that the dogs have not received enough preliminary exercise, or that they have been neglected in this respect until almost the last few days immediately before October 1st; and in the hurry to accustom them to field work they are so far over-exercised as to bring them in a wholly or partially run down state to the serious work which the opening days of the season demand. Under these circumstances dogs may perform quite indifferently in the field which during exercise and training may have given every satisfaction. Particularly is the case with young dogs, who will exhibit a tendency to fall off in the afternoon and, what is not unlikely, refuse their game. As a rule, this is due to insufficient or ineffectual exercise. Of course, in the case of big kennels one set of dogs may be employed in the forenoon and another during the latter half of the day; but where, in every-day parlance, it does not run to this, then the necessity arises of making sure of the team you possess.

As a rule, irregularity of treatment as between exercise and actual work is the cause of dogs going off in the field. When being exercised they have their regular hours, every consideration is offered to them, and the first signs of weariness point the direction of the kennel. Upon the opening day of the season an early start is made, a long day follows, the dogs are worked for all they are worth, and even if they do not tire then, they will scarcely show to the same advantage upon following days. It naturally follows that sporting dogs should in their training beforehand be made accustomed to a hard day or two, and be worked with due consideration when the actual work in the field is on hand. At the same time they benefit by careful treatment as well as the man behind the gun, who makes provision for himself at the luncheon hour, and maybe later on as well, and the same reasons which suggest this for him should do similar for the dogs.

Sporting dogs which have had a hard day always benefit by a good rub down before being kenneled up. The mouth and nostrils should be washed, and the legs and back submitted to a little massage. An addition of stimulating food may be made, and if possible they may be allowed to benefit by a little extra time in the morning. Even if an hour be lost this way the dogs will make up for it by increased ardor and spirit during the day. Then, when the dogs are brought from their kennels, if to join and go with the guns, there should be no waiting, no "hanging about" for this, that, and the other; and in the same way if a relay of dogs be used for the afternoon work they should not be kept waiting for the guns. Men and dogs should be at the rendezvous together, and ready to start work as soon as they meet. The question of rest for the dogs and water are too important factors. It must not be forgotten that whilst a dog is panting it is not resting, and that sporting dogs require a spell of quiet after they have finished panting. When dogs are being rested they should also be given water and not be allowed to come up thirsty to a ditch or drain and drink to repletion, thus unfitting themselves for their work. Much more consideration should be given them in wet weather than in fine, and especially when bringing them to kennel after a wet day. Warm food and plenty of good bedding—there is nothing like well-dried bracken fern under the circumstances—should be provided, for dogs which dry themselves in good litter benefit far more than if they be rubbed partially dry and are left to complete the process on a sleeping bench. An eye should be kept open for instances of foot-soreness, from undue wearing away of the pad of the foot. Careful bathing with tepid water and the removal of all grit will generally ease a slight soreness, but serious cases must be kept in kennel and suitable embrocation applied.

It will be seen from what has been written that to a large extent the successful working of sporting dogs in the field is to be assured by considerate preparation beforehand, and care and husbanding of their powers when at work. Judicious handling and provision for their simple requirements will always get more out of the dogs than any undue pressure either before or after the opening of the season.—Moorman in the English Stock-Keeper.

Foot Soreness in Sporting Dogs.

At this period of the year, which comprehends the time immediately preceding and following the opening of the shooting season, sporting dogs, whether at full exercise as in the first instance, or in full work as in the latter, are more than likely to suffer from foot soreness. Dogs, both young and old, which have been regularly and fully exercised over some length of time, are far less likely to suffer from foot soreness than those suddenly put to exercise or work, and its occurrence is best guarded against by gradually bringing the dogs into full exercise. Old dogs suffer, as a rule, more frequently than do the young ones, and with the former the trouble lasts longer and is less amenable to treatment than with the latter. Foot soreness proper is due, in the first instance, to the quick wearing away of the thick cuticle of the pad of the foot. Under circumstances of regular wear, when daily exercise or work is in full swing, this cuticle grows as quickly as it is worn away, but when put to sudden stress it not only wears away more quickly, but is very slowly replaced, the sensitive portion of the pad of the hoof being exposed, and, beside becoming inflamed itself, sets up sympathetic inflammation and fever in the other portions of the dog's feet. This, however, will pass away when the chief cause is dealt with.

Footsore dogs should have their feet carefully bathed with tepid water, all grit, sand and the like being carefully washed away, and the feet carefully dried. A lotion of chloride of zinc and water (two grains of the chloride to each ounce of water), with a little essential oil of aniseed, should be applied to the injured and inflamed portions of the feet, and then they may be bandaged with linen bandages, well soaked with the lotion. A dog's boot or similar means must be employed to keep the bandages in place. This must be repeated daily, until the soreness goes off, and the dog be slowly brought back to work again. As a rule, a week or ten days should cover a complete cure if the dog be taken in hand at once. Glover's "Condition" pills are good for the early days of the work, while the Doctor's "Liniment" has been found to be most efficacious and quick for sprains, bruises and soreness.

Pointers are much more susceptible to foot soreness when working over hard, dry ground, especially where the cover is low and lying close to the ground, but all dogs that have not been regularly worked and examined over a period of time are liable to be affected, and frequently the redness showing between the toes and between the pad of the foot and the toes is taken to be the cause of the foot soreness, or leg weariness, as it is frequently mis-called, whereas this is only a symptom of the actual cause.

The remedies recommended are always beneficial to dogs showing slight signs of foot soreness, and should be kept on hand for use overnight upon the feet of dogs which may be liable to develop this simple but distressing ailment.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The Denver show has been postponed until a later date. The cancellation of the Texas show precludes a good entry list.

The Bulldog Ivel Damon, sent over by George Raper, will go to a Canadian fancier, instead of a California fancier, as previously reported.

It is reported that over $10,000 in prize money, distributed among 365 classes (66 winners), will be hung up for exhibitors at the Ladies Kennel Association Show.

"Toy Dogs," a new doggy journal edited by Mrs. Stennard Robinson, who is assisted by two clever lady writers, Mrs. Baker and Miss Holdsworth, is mentioned in very complimentary "pars" by the fanciers' press.

Mr. W. J. Baughn, of Ridgeville, Ind., and Mr. Thos. Guthridge, of Chatham, Ont., will judge the International Field Trials at Chatham, Ont. The trials will come off at Mitchell's Bay, about sixteen miles from Chatham.

The attention of our readers and fanciers is called to the list of classified announcements printed on the kennel advertisement page. This department is now open for the accommodation and patronage of sellers and purchasers.

A rumor is going the rounds that the Chicago Kennel Club will hold a one-day show in the open air during the pleasant weather season. The idea, if carried out, will do much to foster a friendly fancier spirit among the doggy people.

John L. Cunningham, one of our most successful breeders of Great Danes, announces the opportunity of securing some exceptionally fine puppies. The youngsters are sound, healthy and handsome, typical pups from prize winning stock for several generations back. These puppies are a bargain, see kennel advertisements for particulars.

William Ollard of Tacoma, Wash., is now on a pleasure trip to England. Mr. Ollard is a keen fancier and has a strong liking for the Irish "dare devils." It is not improbable but what he will bring back with him one or two good ones that will rub close anything we have now on the Coast. He is the owner of the handsome bitch Puget Pride, winners, first, limit and open, Seattle, 1902.

The article by "Moorman" in another column and given a slight local coloring, while it was written for English sportsmen is of that general nature that its application can be taken by any sportsmen and the practice of the suggestions as to the preliminary training prior to the first days of our fall shooting season will benefit both dog and master to an appreciable degree.

The recently organized French Bulldog Club of England is open for membership to those taking an interest in the breed in any part of Great Britain, the Continent and America. The officers are: Lady Lewis, President; Mrs. Bromwich, Mrs. Jeffries, Mrs. Romily, Mrs. Chas. Waterlow, Mr. Cozzens and Mr. Jeffries, Committee; Mrs. Romily, 5 Hobart Place, S. W. London, Hon. Treasurer, and Mrs. Cousins, 32 Eaton Terrace, London, Temporary Hon. Secretary, who will be pleased to give further particulars to fanciers interested in the breed.

Mr. Thomas L. Griffith, one of Seattle's leading merchants, is an enthusiastic Collie fancier and breeder. He is the owner of the rough coated golden, sable and white colored imported dog Lenzie Prince. Prince won forty-five first prizes in Scotland and has been in big demand by northern Collie fanciers since his advent in Washington State. Prince has sired a number of prize winners in Scotland and the United States.

Mr. Griffith's handsome Collie bitch Sable Plum II. (by Laddie Donald, he by imp. Chance III.) whelped early this month a litter of puppies that are, for so young a lot, of more than ordinary promise.

The naming of dogs and using as a prefix the kennel name of well known breeders has to a certain extent become a misleading custom and should be discontinued. Some breeders resort to the practice, for instance, if the dam or sire of their puppies has the kennel prefix, to continue the kennel appendage with the young dogs, these in many instances being generations removed from the original breeder and owner of the kennel name. In some instances this custom is amusing, particularly when a "mut" is tagged with a triple name, beginning with a trade mark for a line of dogs that are noted on bench or field. Sometimes a combination, ingenious or meaningless, is formed out of the name of dam or sire or coupled with the full name or a portion of that of an illustrious ancestor.

Take, for instance, the Bull Terriers and all the Woodcotes running about. In the same line, if some fellow who is trying to trade on another's reputation, would have the gumption to change the handle to Woodshed, it is to be hoped that some one of a practical turn of mind when he realizes the wonderful piece of dog flesh he is the proud owner or breeder of, will, in the words of Hark Comstock, have his imagination fired under a stress of similitude and name the "pup" after the small building that frequently is located next beyond the woodshed, though that would be more than carrying the bad side of an irregular system to its deserved ending.

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonade and be refreshed.

Incidents in Tiger Hunting.

The following account of a couple of successful days in those most enjoyable tiger hunts given by the late Maharaja of Darbhanga on his estates lying along the river Kosi during the dry months (February to April) is given more with a view of illustrating the persistency with which the cubs follow their dam until they are nearly full grown, rather than showing any peculiarity in hunted tigers continuing in beaten ground with other impenetrable cover lying close at hand.

A tigress with cubs had been reported in certain jungles for more than a year, which cover could not be negotiated for want of a sufficient line, by the average sportsman, but when the line of march of the Maharaja's annual shikar, with its mighty host of elephants, arrived near the locality, word was brought that the happy family had taken up their quarters in an oblong depression covered with dense arundo reeds, ejal (Wellingtonia) bushes and wild bramble about a mile long and possibly six to eight hundred yards wide. It was decided to try this ground on a hot March day.

An early start was made, a lagoon immediately below the camp had to be crossed to save a long detour, in which the elephants wallowed and sank a good bit, whilst several of the huge beasts barely escaped swimming. The oval depression was about two miles from camp and looked a delectable and snug place for family of tigers to take up their abode, with fine foraging in the grazing grounds of some villages not far distant. Operations were commenced by forming line at the western end of the jungle, whilst a pad elephant was sent "naka" or point, to the extreme outlet which connected with other and more formidable covers. The line proceeded, crashing through the hollow sounding reeds and tangled brambles, in a broiling midday sun, and though occasional false alarms were raised on "hot scent" that the "pussies" were afloat they managed to hide their skins until the very end of the cover had been reached, when a shrill whistle from the captain of the hunt and a cry of "Tiger!" down the line, showed one of them disappearing into an isolated though dense rose thicket, on the other side of which stood the elephant sent out "naka." To make a rush for the thicket was the work of a moment. The line became irregular in this hurried movement, and before we were half way through three tigers, rather than face the open portion of the nullah beyond, guarded by the elephant at point, charged the disorganized line simultaneously. They were met with a fusillade of shots from the people riding in the howdahs on the backs of the elephants, wherever "stripes" could be seen through the dense bramble. None of the tigers were stopped, but all succeeded in doubling back through the irregular line, two of them badly wounded, as subsequent events showed. The order was at once given to "right about face" and to beat back. Almost immediately on entering the main cover we put up one of the wounded tigers and after skirmishing and doubling, during which the second wounded tiger was started, we managed to bag both of them before we had beaten one-third of the jungle. They both proved to be young males.

It was late in the afternoon by this time, and an adjournment was made to the open ground for lunch—a meal always welcome after a hot and tiring beat—and to give the mahouts (elephant drivers) a rest and time to indulge in a welcome smoke after their arduous labors in the stifling atmosphere of the marshy depression hunted over. As for the elephants, in their slow progress through the thick reeds, they seemed to enjoy themselves feasting on tender succulent shoots of the arundo, with plenty of water around to assuage their thirst and to blow a cooling spray on their parched bodies. The day had waned when we resumed our search for the third tiger seen, but though we rebeat the entire ground this time, from east to west, we failed to start him, and got back when it was quite dark avoiding the crossing of the dangerous lagoon by going round the detour. Early next morning some cowherds from a village about a mile distant from the tiger ground, came to inform us that the tigers—for they declared there were two left—had been roaring in distress all the livelong night, and that they were still in the same cover. To make assurance doubly sure some of the mahouts in our camp declared that they also had heard the tigers roar at night, though it struck us that their vivid imaginations must have played a great part, in hearing the roar of a tiger two miles away. The cowherds however, had probably heard the tiger call whilst tending their flocks at night in the neighborhood of the jungle.

Though sceptical as to whether a hunted tiger would continue in ground that had been trampled down and gapped in all directions with denser and more unbeatable cover close at hand—especially as we surmised that we had shot the two cubs, and the mother alone had escaped—we determined, however, to try the ground again, on being assured by the cowherds that they had heard one tiger continue calling till grey dawn that morning, and the off-chance of its being wounded and unable to get away. As on the previous day, we experienced a tedious march up to the ground, which luckily had been so smashed up and trampled down that we had little difficulty in starting both tigers, for the cowherds were right in asserting that there were two left. The mother appeared savage at the loss of two of her cubs and charged about in defense of her remaining one, but with a dozen bowdahs out they had hardly a chance, and both had soon to succumb without having been able to inflict any damage. Neither had been wounded on the previous day. The cub proved another male, so the triplet were all males. The two shot on the first day measured eight feet one inch and eight feet respectively, whilst the third measured seven feet nine inches, and the tigress eight feet eight inches, all measured "sportsman style" as they lay on the ground. This was an instance of how cubs continue to accompany their mothers if circumstances permit and conditions are favorable, until they are full grown. It was the opinion of the assembled sportsmen that these cubs were about three years old, and in this connection I may relate the following incidents of another tiger shikar bearing on the subject:

Three years after the above hunt, in a ridge-shoot, a family of tigers were reported on a well known ridge where many a tiger had bitten the dust, close to an indigo factory, and in the hunt that ensued a tigress with two cubs were started. We shot the tigress one day and one of the cubs the following morning, but the second cub disappeared mysteriously and made good his escape. The tigress measured nine feet, two inches and the cub (a female) six feet, and we judged the latter to be well on in her second year. From the geographical position of the ridge, being surrounded for some distance by flood waters, the escaped cub could not wander far, but remained on the insular ridge killing stray calves and small cattle and was dubbed locally the "orphan." He eluded several other expeditions planned against him during the continuance of the floods that year, but his whereabouts and movements were watched by the neighboring planter all through the balance of the rains, and the following dry season, for he never went far afield from the spot where he had been reared, and when the following year's floods sent the "orphan" up into the same ridge to seek safety from drowning, a party went out from my factory and succeeded in bringing him home, having bagged him not far from the spot where his mother and sister fell. He proved to be a male and measured eight feet, three inches. Allowing for the robust build of the male he had added about two feet to his length during the year. Whilst on the subject of length of cubs, I may add some particulars of the length attained by a cub reared in captivity. A female cub estimated to be about two to four months old, caught by the gentleman who captained the above three hunts, and reared by him in captivity for three years, measured eight feet, four inches, when she died. Judging from the skull of the above male six-foot cub, which had acquired its permanent teeth, and other skulls of cubs in the writer's possession, which still retain the permanent ones in the jaw-bone, it would appear that cubs shed their milk teeth when about six feet long, or towards the end of their second year.

A rather curious incident had occurred some years previously in a small tiger hunt we had along the banks of the very river (Kosi) in whose vicinity we were encamped when we secured the above four tigers. It was a bit higher up the river at a spot where a long lozenge shaped island—locally termed a "tapra"—had been formed by the bifurcation and reunion of two branches of the stream, one flowing on either side and about a mile long. At the top end of the island was an important ferry plying between two adjoining districts, whilst the lower end for about a third of a mile was covered with tall grass and tamarisk, forming a snug retreat for a tiger, and report affirmed that one had actually taken up his quarters in it, though we had heard of no "kills" in the neighborhood. We had been searching the unburnt bits along the "dearas" on the main land that morning in quest of a reported tiger, failing to meet whom, we had some general shooting and made for the ferry where we lunched. We determined to try our luck at the lower end of the island where a tiger's presence had been vaguely reported, so crossed over at a lower ford directly into the jungle, which was the only portion of it green, the rest being pretty well burnt up. We thoroughly beat this part with our small line of elephants, by taking it up in sections, and came across fairly fresh prints and lairs, but "Tommy" apparently was not at home that afternoon, and a retreat was sounded after a tiring and fruitless beat. It was getting towards evening and we were far from our camp at an abandoned indigo factory, so a move was made towards the ferry along the clearer portion of the island, when we espied a gypsy encampment right up at the head of the island on the off side close to the ferry, and we directed our steps towards it in the hopes of obtaining some information about the whereabouts of the tiger, fresh signs of whom we had met with in such abundance. When we had nearly reached the gypsies, donkeys grazing not far from and around the camp, our surprise can be imagined upon suddenly hearing the cry of "Tiger!" being shouted by one of the mahouts, who perceived him first, and then we saw him plainly lopping away awkwardly in the short grass towards the ground we had already beaten and within rifle range. A distant fusillade was kept up as long as he was visible, which happened to disable him to such an extent that he pulled up rather sick in the first patch of unburnt grass capable of hiding him. He was too far gone when we came up with him to do any mischief and after a feeble charge we easily secured him. He must have left his stronghold at the lower end of the island for the more open portion where the gypsies were encamped, and was probably stalking a stray donkey when disturbed, as several of these intelligent animals were observed stampeding with tails erect, when the tiger first showed himself. We had crossed over to the island by a lower ford and firing had been strictly restricted to the tiger, and he thus remained at the upper end unconscious of our presence and search, until threatened by our approach, when he had no alternative but to expose himself. We came across him in the nick of time, fortunate in saving damage to the gypsies, who were profuse in their thanks, and informed us later that they had crossed over to the island from the adjoining district that very forenoon and had not been warned of the presence of a tiger, and fortunate for ourselves for seeing him before dusk, which enabled us to disable him before securing his retreat, for had he succeeded in re-entering the heavier cover so late in the evening the probabilities are that we should have lost him.—The Asian.

AT THE TRAPS.

The Golden Gate Gun Club members faced the traps for the final live bird shoot at Ingleside last Sunday. The interest of the shooters in attendance was centered in the race for the A. M. Shields' silver cup trophy. M. O. Feudner and C. C. Nauman at the beginning of the final club race at 15 birds were both tie. Each had grassed 72 out of 75 pigeons in the five previous monthly shoots. Throughout the club race each man shot steadily and unerringly until the last bird. Feudner lost his fifteenth pigeon, when Nauman stepped to the score right after him, even money that he would kill was not taken—to everybody's surprise he failed to connect with his bird. The tie was then shot off in a miss and out; Feudner met his Waterloo on the sixteenth bird, which hard hit with both barrels dropped "dead out," and Nauman was declared the winner of the trophy.

In the club race five shooters scored straight and divided the club added money; they were "Slade," A. M. Shields, W. R. Murdock, Jos. J. Sweeney and Ed Donohoe.

After the club match a pool shoot, $5 entrance, with six men in, was shot. Donohoe and Shields divided first and second money, $25. Feudner and Nauman split third money, $5.

During the day gold and silver bars for fifteen and twelve birds straight were won by "Slade," Murdock, Shields, Donohoe, Sweeney, Nauman and Feudner, gold bars; Nauman and Feudner, silver bars.

The scores in the club race at 15 birds, distance handicap, $20 added, were—

Clarence C. Nauman has joined the ranks of the Benedicts. He was quietly married last Sunday afternoon to Miss Martha Bates, a belle of Sonoma and a young lady noted for the double qualities of amiability of character and beauty.

Mr. Nauman was at the Ingleside trap shooting grounds and won a cup in the forenoon, fitting augury for a happy future.

Jack Fanning made high average for the two days' shooting at the New England Shooting Association's tournament, Auburn, Me., early this month. A large number of shooters from Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Massachusetts were present. Weather conditions were extremely bad the first day, Leaf Apgar was high gun with 213 out of 230 targets, Fanning second with 212 breaks. Fanning's score for both days was 407 out of 430. Apgar was second with 404. None of the other shooters reached the 400 mark.

English gun clubs have experienced much difficulty in securing suitable grounds in the vicinity of London. This is chiefly caused by the objection of owners to have their land strewn with the fragments of the broken saucers. Among the lists of new patents there is one specification which may have the effect of making all pasture owners and farmers clamor for the visits of clubs to their lands. The announcement to which reference is made is a patent of a new kind of clay bird, which is the invention of Messrs. T. F. and C. W. Pike of Birmingham. The particulars state that the inanimate birds are formed of a large proportion of such materials as will fertilize the ground, and which will in a short time be so acted upon by the atmosphere as to crumble away and thus make the shooting of inanimate birds a benefit instead of a possible nuisance to farmers or landowners. A composition for making inanimate birds, which is found to answer well in practice, is the following: Resin, 20 parts by weight; kieselsguhr, 20 parts by weight; lime, 20 parts by weight; basic slag, 40 parts by weight. The ingredients are properly ground and mixed and sufficiently warmed to make a plastic mass, so that the targets can be pressed in dies in the usual way. The following are some of the fertilizing materials which may be used in the manufacture of inanimate birds: Bone ash, superphosphate, linseed, seaweed, silica, silicates, coal dust, dried moss, sawdust, artificial manures, compressed feeding cake, chalk and many others. In any case the proportions of the resin to the other materials will be about 20 per cent, more or less, as stated above.

Although a gun is a very effective weapon, and rods, nets or lines in their way are also effective, jungles and waters abound with certain wild beasts or finny creatures that would forever go free if sportsmen entirely depended on bullets, etc., for their capture. A monster shark, for instance, which for many years was thought impossible to catch, was finally disposed of by the following ingenious method, which is now used constantly. A fish, a dog and a strip of bamboo are the implements used by the Malays. The bamboo is split in a strip measuring about four feet in length by one inch in width. Having been well charred at each end and pointed, it is coiled into the smallest possible space and sewn into the fish skin. The dog is next killed, trussed and his interior cavity refilled with the delusive fish skin. Forthwith Jack Shark swallows the dog at a gulp, and his doom is sealed. Three or four days later the bamboo flies apart and gradually penetrates the great brute's sides with fatal effect. It is not pretty sport, but it is marvellously effective and absolutely safe. The device is also in use by the Esquimaux, who coil a piece of whalebone pointed at both ends and place the tickler in a ball of fat, the whole mass being frozen solid. These "pills" are placed out for the special benefit of the polar bear and are potent in their effect.

The Fly Casters.

The local club members resumed their regular contests at Stow lake Saturday and Sunday last. The enthusiasm of the recent tournament was still apparent in the efforts made by the various contestants in maintaining a high standard of efficiency. The surprise of Saturday morning's meeting was sprung by Harry C. Golcher, who equalled the second long distance cast of champion Walter D. Mansfield, when he sent his braided silk out over the water to the distance of 134 feet. T. W. Brotherton was a good second with 125 feet. Out of eight entries in this event six scores of more than 100 feet were made, this is a very excellent showing. Eight out of eleven contestants scored over 90% in accuracy. Dr. W. E. Brooks, whose steady improvement is noticeable, tied Mr. Mansfield in accuracy. Mr. Mansfield's score in the delicacy event was the only one going over the 90% mark. The lure casters all raised the 90% standard. Mr. Mansfield and Mr. Brotherton both going over 95%. We believe, at first glance without going back over past scores, that the average of Saturday's contest work reached on the 23rd inst., is the highest yet shown. Taking into consideration the fact that the class contained several contestants, who were well up with the leaders, that have had but a season or two in which to practice, this is a most creditable table of performance in fly casting, we doubt much if it can be equalled anywhere.

Fourteen members entered the lists on Sunday. J. B. Kenniff, who has steadily come to the front in long distance made a grand cast of 133 feet. Brotherton and Golcher followed with 131 and 128 feet respectively. Mr. Brotherton is looked upon as able to hold his own among the long distance men with but little more effort. Mr. Kenniff is another member who shows wonderful improvement for the comparatively short time he has been in the game. The accuracy showing was about equal to the work of the previous day considering the slight change in the personnel of the list entered. In bait casting the showing was fair. C. R. Kenniff was a jot behind Mr. Mansfield's mark of the previous day, while Mr. Brotherton was a shade ahead of Mansfield. We notice an improvement in Captain Battu's bait casting score. The records for both days are the following:

Fish Lines.

Striped bass anglers have not had a strenuous time in catching these fish in the bay waters during the week. Al Cumming caught on Wednesday in San Antonio slough fifteen fish, running from two to eight pounds in weight.

Trout fishing is good but now only found in waters remote from the city. The experts, however, get out now and then and whip a pool or two in nearby streams and often basket some nice fish.

George C. Congdon, of Mariposa, caught last Sunday, in a creek near that mining burg, 105 trout. The fish were in splendid condition and ran from six to nine inches in size.

The time is said to be not far off when caviare will be as expensive as canvas back duck or diamond-bell terrapin. Though supposed to be a foreign delicacy, it is almost exclusively American. At one time all the caviare on the market was of European origin. European waters have been nearly fished out of sturgeon, however, and to-day the German and Russian manufacturers who have a practical monopoly of the finished product rely upon the United States for the sturgeon eggs out of which the finished delicacy is made. The same process of extinction is going on in this country at a very rapid rate, and thus far no steps have been taken by either the National or the State government to regulate the industry. At the present time the three centers of sturgeon catching are the Delaware river, the great lakes and the Columbia river. A limited number are caught in Puget sound, and, according to ship captains, there is still a vast and untouched supply in the waters of southern Alaska. The waterways which run from Vancouver northward along British Columbia are another field of considerable promise.

But the first quality, and the one which all epicures prefer, comes from the Delaware. That of the great lakes is inferior in flavor, while the Pacific article is altogether too rank and coarse for the most refined palate. It was the latter which was described by an Irishman as a shad roe dressed in cod liver oil. Up to the present century there were many sturgeon in the Hudson and Connecticut, in New London and Narragansett bays, as well as Long Island sound, but the number has grown steadily smaller and to-day is scarcely worthy of consideration. This fish, once so plentiful in San Francisco bay and the tributary sloughs and rivers, is almost extinct. For the protection of the few remaining fish it is now unlawful to catch them at all. Two decades ago the fish were exceedingly numerous in our waters; fish of five and six hundred pounds weight were not uncommon, to-day, a fifty pounder is a rare fish. The methods of the Chinese fishermen are responsible for the almost extinction of the sturgeon in local waters.

Just as in Norway, the fantastic oar-fish was believed to be the king of the herrings and cherished as such, so among the Indians of Puget sound another freak fish is held sacred as the king of the salmon, writes Prof. David Starr Jordan. The people about Cape Flattery believe that if one does any harm to this fish, the salmon will at once leave the shores. This fable led the naturalist who first discovered this fish to give it its name of rex-salmonorum.

In Europe a similar species has long been known by the name of deal fish or vogmar, neither of these names having any evident propriety.

The deal fish is one of the most singular of all the strange creatures of the sea. It reaches a length of three or four feet. Its body is thin as a knife and would be transparent were it not covered over with a shining white pigment which gives to the animal the luster of burnished silver. On this white surface is a large black blotch or two, but no other colors. The head is something like that of the oar-fish, to which animal the deal fish bears a close relationship. Both have small teeth and neither could bite if it would, and neither wants to, for they are creatures of the most inoffensive sort. On the head of the deal fish, where the oar-fish has its name, is a long, streamer-like fin. At the end of the tail, instead of the ordinary caudal fin, is a long, slim fin which projects directly upwards at right angles to the direction of the backbone. No other fish shows this strange peculiarity.

The deal fish swims in the open sea close to the surface of the water. It does not often come near the shore, but it is occasionally blown on the beach by storms. It has been recorded two or three times from Puget sound and twice from California. The finest specimen known, the type of the species and the one from which Miss Wellman's drawing is taken, was secured off the Farallones in 1895, by a fisherman named W. C. Knox, and by him sent to Stanford university. The specimen is perfect in all its parts, a condition rare with these fragile creatures, and its picture gives a good idea of the mysterious king of the salmon.

Two of these fishes have been obtained on the coast of Japan, and have been described and figured by the present writer in the annals of the Imperial university of Tokio. These are different from the California species and different from each other, but they show the same bright silver color, and the same streamers on the head and tail. Probably they, too, in Japan are kings of something or other, or perhaps silver swans from the submarine palace, for along such lines the Japanese fancy is more likely to run.

Oiling Harness.

Take a common sized sheetiron washing tub and fill two or three inches deep with oil, such as is generally used for oiling binders and mowers that will cost 20 to 40 cents a gallon and would require about two or three gallons to a tub. Dip all parts of harness, bridles lines and other leather, so as to cover well in the oil, allowing time to get well saturated, say five to ten minutes. After which hang up over the tub to drip and when dripped off rub well all parts with any kind of a coarse cloth, and the harness will be as soft and pliable as a cloth. No fears of mice ever eating harness oiled with machine oil. If leather is very dirty it should be washed and well dried before oiling, and what oil is left can be juggled up and kept to another oiling. It will be seen that the cost is little compared with the benefit in the leather saving. The tub can be washed out and be none the worse for the oiling.

For Quick Fattening.

The invention of John Kummers of Chicago is, according to the dispatches, likely to make considerable difference to the beef trust, and will doubtless be investigated by some farmers. This cattle-fattening device consists of a large case made of galvanized iron, and about three and a half feet wide and deep and five feet high. This case contains a number of shallow drawers, in which corn can be placed in layers about three inches deep. All around the outside of the case, on the top and four sides, is a layer of common wood moss, such as grows in the woods everywhere. This moss is about three inches thick and is compressed by wire netting, so that it forms practically a sponge, capable of absorbing water.

Corn is placed in the drawers and water poured into the moss. Almost immediately the process of sprouting begins that in three or four days converts the hard grain into a mass of tender young shoots, fed by the softened pulp. It is then ready for feeding and is taken out of the drawers, fresh corn being substituted and the process of sprouting repeated.

By this invention the best kind of beef is produced. It is firm, yet tender, and the fat is distributed throughout the lean in mottled form instead of being all together. In the ordinary feeding of corn to stock, not more than half of the grains are assimilated, whereas by the new method every bit of it is made tender and digestible. The grain in sprouting doubles its weight, besides becoming soft and nourishing. The cattle eat it greedily and fatten very quickly upon it. For horses it is also excellent, and it is of great value for swine and poultry; in fact, for all farm animals that consume corn.

"SAVE-THE-HORSE"
TRADE MARK

SPAVIN CURE

Can be Applied during the Hottest Weather
NOTE OUR CLAIM:—"IT IS INFALLIBLE."

Let there be no mistake or misunderstanding as to this point. It makes no difference how long standing, what the condition, or if all other known treatment has failed, this remedy will positively effect a cure. This statement will appear absurd to the sceptic, but it is absolute and inviolable truth, and we put it in no stronger words than facts, actual experience—results—confirm. It contains the great essential principle to promote the complex process of absorption. It will raise a scurf or mild blister, but it is not by blistering a cure is effected. The great potency of "Save-the-Horse" lies in its concentrated penetrating ab-sorptive power. It penetrates to the seat of the injury or disease, produces a physiological change,
absorbing all inflammatory exudate or deposit,
stimulating and diffusing vitality and strength
to the tissues and ligaments, producing a healthy, normal condition of the part.

POSITIVELY AND PERMANENTLY CURES
Bone and Bog Spavin, Ringbone, Curb, Thorough-
pin, Splint, Capped Hock, Shoe Boil, Wind
Puff, Weak and Sprained Tendons
and all Lameness.

Contains no arsenic, corrosive sublimate or other forms of mercury, or any injurious ingredient.
Work horse continuously if desired.
Cures without scar, blemish or loss of hair.

$5.00 PER BOTTLE.

Written guarantee with every bottle, constructed solely to convince, satisfy and protect you fully. The need of second bottle is almost improbable except in rarest cases. Guarantee covers effectiveness of one bottle.

Veterinary Pixine

Apply it. Rub it in on bare spots, inflammatory swellings old sores, scratches, grease heel or skin disease. It penetrates and soothes, and the horse grows well as he toils throughout the day.

SCRATCHES, GREASE HEEL,
MUD FEVER, HOOF ROT
AND SPEED CRACKS.

Cases where ulcerations extend with transverse
cracks which open at every step and often bleed,
no matter how complex, aggravated, deep seated or chronic, if treated according to directions as given on circular with every box, positively cured
with Veterinary Pixine.

After Blistering

Veterinary Pixine is the very best application
that could be indicated. It absorbs all inflammatory exudate and hastens the reparatory process. Will heal the most severe cases without scar and prevents loss of hair.

As a Preventive.

If a light application of Veter' ary Pixine be used before speeding, driving in wet, muddy or slushy weather, your horse will never have speed cracks, scratches or grease heel.

For Hoofs.

It will keep the hoofs healthy, soft and in perfect
form.

This penetrating, stimulating, soothing, absorbing, anti-septic, healing ointment heals from beneath the surface by disinfecting the parts, sub-
duing inflammation, and stimulating healthy
granulation, not by drying and scabbing.

Close of Pleasanton Fair.

Golden Gate District No. 1 closed its very successful fair at Pleasanton last Saturday with a large attendance. It will go on record as the best fair given by Golden Gate district in years, and will undoubtedly result in Pleasanton being again chosen as the place for the fair next season. The fact that there was a fine display of livestock and a splendid pavilion exhibit did much to interest the people in the fair and helped swell the attendance. The display of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs was most excellent and the exhibits in every department were meritorious.

Thursday was Livermore day at the fair and the attendance was the largest of the week. More than two thousand persons were at the track when the races were called in the afternoon.

In the 2:20 pace Robert I. by Hambletonian Wilkes won as he pleased in straight heats, not having to pace within five seconds of his Napa record of 2:10 in any heat.

The special race for roadsters greatly interested the crowd as the horses were owned by residents of Alameda county.

On Friday two harness races and three runs were on the program. The harness races were won in straight heats, Eagletta, the San Bernardino mare by Ketchum, getting the 2:24 pace and Echora Wilkes by Nutwood Wilkes taking the event for members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club. The running races were all well contested.

There was another big crowd on the closing day. In the forenoon hundreds of people were present to see the stock parade and in the afternoon standing room only was the rule by the time the first heat was called. The weather was quite warm, but ideal for racing.

The first race was for trotters of the 2:24 class. There were seven starters and there was not a poor looker among them. In the pools Coronado and Forrest W. divided favoritism, the first name being played the most by the wise ones. The son of McKinney would have made it three straight heats, but for an unlucky break on the far turn in the first mile. He finished fourth in this heat, but was in the lead in the remaining heats when he crossed the wire. Forrest W., the handsome gelding by Wayland W., took the first heat of this race in 2:21½, and was prominent at the finish in every heat. The Nutwood Wilkes mare Verona was also up close every time when the wire was reached and was separately timed in 2:20 in the second heat.

The novelty race on the Brighton Beach plan did not make much of a race as there were but four starters. The handsome little Dictatus mare Dictatress 2:12½ was best liked by the talent for the winner of the fastest heat and she made good by taking the first heat in 2:14½. Silver Coin took the next heat in 2:16½ and as Del Oro was behind the flag in the first heat Lady Mac walked over for third money.

Katherine Ennis ran five furlongs in 1:01 and took the five-eighths dash, and Maresa won the five and a half furlong running event. The last race at one mile and one hundred yards went to Lodestar.

There were three time records made during the week by youngsters from the Nutwood Stock Farm, Irvington, owned by Mr. Martin Carter. Two of these record breakers were by Nutwood Wilkes, the other by McKinney and out of a Nutwood Wilkes mare. The record of these events are as follows:

Pacing, to equal 2:35.

WOODLAND'S GREAT FAIR.

Splendid Racing, Fast Time, Big Crowds and No Bookmaking.

The Directors of Agricultural District, No. 40, have demonstrated that a fair and race meeting can be held in California without the presence of the bookmakers, and what the association is losing in the amount of revenue secured from its betting privilege, it is making up in attendance and in high class racing.

The Woodland fair opened last Monday. There were two harness races on the program, in the first of which Chas. A. Durfee drove his little twin, Cuate by McKinney, to victory in straight heats, giving him a record of 2:18. Another McKinney, Mr. W. H. Lumsden's handsome big colt McPherson, won second money and showed himself a game and fast colt.

The 2:12 pace on the same day was not a good race and from a fast first heat they went back to slow time.

The opening pools in the three year old race were McPherson $20, field $13.

In the 2:12 pace El Diablot sold for $10 and the field $5.

The second day saw a larger crowd and the racing was high class. In the 2:14 trot Richmond Chief, driven by W. G. Durfee, trotted a great race, reducing his record to 2:11½ in the first heat and winning the fifth, the deciding heat, in 2:13. Alta Vela reduced his mark to 2:12½ in winning the second heat and trotted the third, which he also won, in 2:13. Horsemen say it was one of the greatest races ever trotted in the State.

The 2:19 pace on Tuesday went to Robert I. in straight heats and he did not have to equal his Napa record.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3.

A big crowd that patronized the pool sellers very liberally, was at the track Wednesday to see one of the greatest programs ever pulled off over a race track. There were two races, both split heat affairs, that were exciting to a high degree and every heat winner was cheered to the echo.

W. G. Durfee had the honor of winning both races, but there were many who thought the trotting race should have gone to Chas. E. Clark's Cozad, as he trotted every heat squarely, while Petigru indulged in several running breaks.

The 2:15 class pace brought out six horses. Midnight sold for $10, Silver Coin for $5, and the field, $4. The field won the first heat and the mutuals paid two to one. Doc Wilkes was the fortunate horse. He got off well and through the bad acting of the others, managed to keep in front, although Midnight gave him a hot race in the stretch.

The second heat went to Midnight in the fast time of 2:11½, and then Silver Coin got his winning wiggle on and made it three straight, getting a mark of 2:11½ in the third heat. Midnight, well driven by Walter Maben, fought for every heat, but unfortunate breaks in the stretch beat him nearly every time.

The 2:19 trot was a contest from start to finish, and Petigru, the winner, was either first or second in all of the six heats. Forrest W. managed to win the first heat in 2:14½ as the two favorites, Cozad and Petigru, were neither acting just right. After this it was a horse race between Messrs. Clark and Durfee's mounts, and the field was working hard to save entrance or distance.

In the sixth heat, which was trotted five minutes before sundown, Cozad and Petigru were neck and neck turning into the stretch. Half way down Petigru made a bad break and ran quite a distance. When Durfee caught him he was a half length behind, but trotted like a whirlwind and landed at the wire a neck to the good. The judges deliberated long over the decision. Director Stevens thought Cozad was entitled to the heat but President Reith and Director Ruhstaller believed that Petigru out-trotted the Fresno gelding and awarded him the heat and first money. There was no question as to the honesty of all the judges but the righteousness of the decision was questioned by a majority of horsemen.

This race was one of the most exciting contests ever seen on a California race track and will probably be unexcelled this year.

There is no estimating the value of a good stallion to a community in the production of good geldings for market and better brood mares for future breeding. Grading up with the superior sire will improve each generation, and once this spirit of improvement is established in a community the horse buyers will soon find it out and keep a watchful eye upon the maturing colts, glad to pay big prices to get them.

A New York firm recently purchased seventeen trotting-bred stallions in Michigan which will be converted into coach horses.

The Hotel Rosslyn, European plan, with first class restaurant, is the place to stop at in Los Angeles.

Notes and News.

State Fair opens Monday.

Breeders entries close Monday.

Allerton 2:09½ gets a new 2:15 performer in the pacer, Allerson 2:11½.

Make your entries for the P. C. T. H. B. A. Fresno meeting, Monday, the 8th.

Tuberose by Falrose took a time record of 2:25½, trotting, at Woodland Wednesday.

Concord entries close September 10th. This will be one of the best county fairs held this year.

John Hussey says the easiest mile he ever drove a horse was a trial of Elastic Pointer in 2:04½.

Director A. C. Stevens of the Woodland association is giving excellent satisfaction as a starting judge.

Silver Coin 2:11½ is four years old by Steinway out of Jenny Mac 2:09 by McKinney. Why shouldn't he be fast?

Miss Whitney 2:08½ is the eleventh 2:10 trotter for the season and the initial 2:10 performer for Edgemark 2:16.

Kremlin 2:07½ gets his fastest trotter in Kwanon 2:12½, winner of the fastest division of the 2:21 trot at Readville last week.

Willie Osborne by Charles Derby reduced his record to 2:16½ in the third heat of a race at Goshen, New York, August 20th.

The absence of bookmaking at the Woodland fair has caused a scarcity of touts and there is general satisfaction thereat.

Mr. H. D. Myers, of Vallejo, has turned his mare Easter D. over to Samuel Hooper, owner of Alta Vela, who will probably start her at the State Fair.

Two of the get of Nutwood Wilkes were put in the list at Pleasanton last week, and the produce of one of his daughters took a standard record there.

Eula Mac, the California-bred mare by McKinney, was a good second in the second heat of the 2:16 trot at Providence last week, which was trotted in 2:13½.

Dan Leiginger will probably pilot Imp by Diablo in a race at Stockton. He thinks the Diablo gelding ought to win where the heats are not faster than 2:18.

Mary L. by Maine Hero is seventeen years old and had not taken a record until she started at Seattle last week, where she won a third heat in 2:23½ and took second money.

The sorrel pacer Sandow that made his mark of 2:19 at the Breeders meeting in Sacramento last year is offered for sale, as will be seen by the advertisement in another column.

I Direct 2:12½ has gone lame and was not able to start at Woodland. Had this handsome little pacer's legs stood the work he would have had a record well below 2:10 this year.

The Strathway horse, Briney K., will surprise the wise ones some day with a heat below 2:15. He has a world of speed and when he steadies down a very fast mile is within his reach.

California trotting blood is quite well represented in Virginia, as will be seen by a very interesting letter from Mr. W. J. Carter ("Broadrock") which appears in another part of this issue.

Don't forget that entries for the additional races of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association's meeting at Fresno, close Monday, September 8th—the first day of the State Fair.

The stallion Delmar 2:16½, sire of Major Delmar, winner of the $15,000 stake at Readville, is a full brother to Boydel, sire of Boydello, that was campaigned on the California circuit last year.

Auctioneer William G. Layng informs us that the proposed sale of standard-bred stock from the Palo Alto Stock Farm, which was announced to take place at the coming State Fair, has been declared off.

September 18th, which falls on Thursday, is the date for closing ten purses offered by the Los Angeles association. There are five of these for pacers and five for trotters, and they have a value of $500 each.

Lady Fair by Gossiper trotted to a mark of 2:17½ at Pleasanton under the pilotage of George Gray, superintendent of the Meek Estate, and can take a mark several seconds lower. She is out of an Anteeo mare.

In the 2:18 trot, won by The Roman at Providence, Benson, his driver, was fined $100 for laying up the first heat. The Roman finished fourth in this heat, which was in 2:11½, and then went on and won in 2:10½, 2:09½ and 2:10½.

Cash, the diving pony at the Woodland fair, is a great attraction. He makes a graceful and beautiful plunge of thirty feet into a tank of water and the hot weather makes him enjoy it.

Senator J. W. Bailey, of Texas, has given up his breeding farm at Lexington and sent all of his horses to the Elmwood Stud of W. W. Estill. These include the stallion Prodigal 2:16 and twenty-five broodmares.

Verona, the good-looking bay mare by Nutwood Wilkes owned by F. Gomet of this city, is a trotter of much promise. She was only a length behind Coronado when he won the second heat at Pleasanton last Saturday in 2:19½.

Cuate 2:18, winner of the three year old trot at Woodland last Monday looks like a good one for the Occident Stake at Sacramento next Monday. Zomboyette by Zombro should be up close, however, as she is said to have 2:15 speed.

Mr. S. Christiansen has turned his mare Simone by Simmons over to W. G. Durfee. Simone came the last half of a mile in 1:09 at Pleasanton in the race in which she was distanced. She has speed and should get a record below 2:20 when right.

Volita by Beau B. won a good race at Newburg, Ohio, August 20th. She won the 2:23 class pace and her positions were 2-2-1-1-1. Her fastest heats were the third and fourth, both in 2:16½, a new record for the Santa Rosa Stock Farm mares.

L. R. Palmer, of Contra Costa county, captured the blue ribbon at the Pleasanton fair with his team of roadsters. They are a particularly handsome pair of horses, one by the thoroughbred stallion Major Ban, the other by a standard bred horse called Loeber.

An instance of horse "souring" on the track was witnessed at Columbus, when Captain Sphinx absolutely refused to come on the track and had to be blindfolded. This has happened more than once with horses that have been worked beyond endurance on a single track.

Jos Neal, the Pleasanton Nasby, acted as one of the race judges during the Golden Gate Fair at the horse center last week and was the right man in the right place. His campaigns on the Grand Circuit with the Salisbury stable taught him the racing game from start to finish.

The description of the first race in which Sir Albert S. started this year over East, as given in another part of this issue, would lead one to think he was a little short of work. Private advices say that he stepped the first mile in 2:06½, which was a wonderful mile for the first time out.

E. H. Harriman's brown mare Elsie S. by Stamboul 2:07½ trotted a mile in 2:13½ over the Goshen half-mile track recently, driven by W. J. Andrews. This is the fastest time by an Orange county trotter on the "historic half-mile track." Mr. Harriman bred Elsie S. at Anden Farms.

It is expected that during the week of the Fresno fair and P. C. T. H. B. A. race meeting, an excursion will be run from Los Angeles and that a large number of the prominent business men of that city will avail themselves of this opportunity to see the fair and races and to visit the orchards and vineyards in the vicinity of Fresno.

It is said that the crop of young sucklings in Sonoma county sired by Rose Dale Stock Farm's stallion Washington McKinney, comprised the handsomest lot of youngsters ever seen in that horse breeding section. Washington McKinney did a heavy season this year and more will have to be turned away next year from the present outlook.

During the week of the Fresno fair and P. C. T. H. B. A. race meeting, Fresno merchants and business men will give a holiday when all banks and business houses will be closed. The program for Fresno Day will include the California Stake, $2000, for the 2:24 class trotters, besides two other events and a race for the Fresno Driving Club.

The advertisement of the Twenty-fourth Agricultural District Fair and Kings County Association races appears in another column. The fair will be held at Hanford, September 22d to 27th. The district comprises Tulare and Kings counties, and with the vast resources at these counties' command, a great agricultural and horticultural showing should be made.

The Contra Costa County Agricultural Society is busily engaged in putting the new track and fair grounds in order for the fair and race meeting at Concord. Owing to the great amount of work that has to be done the directors have postponed the fair and races to October 15th to 18th inclusive, and as will be seen by the advertisement have also postponed the date of closing a number of their races to October 5th. The Concord fair is one of the most popular of the district fairs and receives a large local attendance.

Those who attended the Pleasanton fair last week were agreeably surprised at the big change for the better that has been made in the Rose Hotel, which has long been horsemen's headquarters. It has been renovated and newly furnished throughout and the dining-room has been handsomely fitted out with new china and silver ware. Mr. A. S. Olney & Son are the new proprietors. Olney senior is well known to all California horsemen, having been a trainer and driver for several years. He will make the Rose Hotel one of the most popular resorts in California.

On Saturday, September 27th, there will be sold on the ranch of W. A. Shippee, at Nelson, sixty large well-broken mules and a number of choicely bred, handsome trotting horses. Wm. G. Layng of the Occidental Horse Exchange will conduct the sale, and catalogues will soon be out.

Full brothers in the equine, as in the human family, are sometimes very dissimilar. Charley Herr 2:07 has always been one of the most reliable of trotters. His full brother, Bert Herr, is a fast trotter, but has been started in eight races and was distanced in the first heat of every one of them.

As will be seen by the advertisement in another column, on Friday, October 3d, at the Occidental Horse Exchange, there will be sold a select lot of grandly bred trotters from the Aptos Stock Farm. The horses offered are by such sires as Aptos Wilkes, Cupid, Dexter Prince, Secretary, Eros, Abbotsford and other noted horses.

Secretary A. J. Hudson has issued the premium lists for the Fresno fair. About $3000 is offered for live stock, agricultural, horticultural and industrial exhibits. Provisions are being made for the biggest fair ever held in central California and leading breeders throughout the State have already declared their intention of taking this opportunity to show their stock in one of the most prosperous sections of California.

Richmond Chief, the "little blue horse" owned by Mr. T. H. Fogarty of Bakersfield, is one of the grandest trotters of the year. Two years ago many thought he would never get to a race again. He was put in charge of Mr. R. E. Toll, however, and is now as sound as any horse in California and his races at Pleasanton and Woodland are evidences of his game-ness and ability. W. G. Durfee is driving him in a masterly manner.

Active preparations are going on at the Fresno track for the Fresno fair and the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association's race meeting. The track belongs to the city and the Board of Supervisors have ordered that the present stalls be improved and a large number of additional ones constructed, besides provisions for a big live stock exhibit. The track is fast and safe and no pains will be spared in providing every accommodation for visiting horsemen and exhibitors.

Secretaries should realize the importance of sending to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN for publication, as soon as possible, a complete list of the entries in the races that fill, and as soon as the program is arranged, giving the days on which the various events take place. This paper is looked to as a source of information for these things, and the publication of the program would frequently add to the receipts of the meeting by letting people who are interested in the different horses know on what days they race.

Evelyn by Nutwood is the dam of W. H. Lumden's colt McPherson, that was second in the three year old stake at Woodland, and is entered in the Occident Stake to be trotted next Monday at Sacramento. Evelyn is one of the greatest broodmares in California. She is the dam of four in the list as follows: Roblet 2:12, Tietam 2:19, Ole 2:20 and Maud Fowler 2:21½. Another of her produce, the handsome horse Nick Russell, trotted a trial in 2:18 and there are two or three more of her get that will go in the list. McPherson has worked in 2:20 and was second to Cuate in 2:18 at Woodland.

Thos. H. Williams, Jr., President of the New California Jockey Club, and Truxton Beale, a prominent wool merchant of San Francisco, called at the residence of Fred Marriott, Jr., publisher of the San Francisco News Letter, last Wednesday evening to obtain the retraction of a slanderous article which appeared in that publication attacking the character of a very estimable young lady. The interview, which took place in the hall of the Marriott residence, soon came to blows, to escape which Marriott fled up the stairs and was shot at five times by his assailants, three bullets taking effect, one each in the thigh, hand and lower part of the leg, the latter one fracturing both bones and proving the most serious. On account of the scurrilous nature of the article referred to, Williams and Beale have the sympathy of a large part of the community.

Major Delmar, winner of the $15,000 Massachusetts stake, is a bay stallion foaled in 1897, bred at the farm of the late W. E. Spier, Glens Falls, N. Y., and was sired by Delmar 2:16½ (son of Electioneer and the great broodmare Sontag Dixie), dam Expectation, by Autograph 2:18½ (son of Alcantara 2:23, and Flaxy, by Kentucky Clay). He is owned by George Van Dyke of Boston, Mass. Major Delmar was not started in 1901, his former record of 2:15 being made as a three year old. As a two year old he started three times without winning, but was close up in 2:18. As a three year old he started first in the Horse Review stake, in which he was second three heats in 2:20½, 2:19½, and 2:16½. Next at Readville he was third, first, first in 2:15, 2:15, and 2:16½, followed at the same place with a walk-over for a $2370 stake. In the Kentucky Futurity he was sixth, fifth, seventh in 2:12½, 2:10½, and 2:12, since which time he has not been started until the present season. This summer he won at both Detroit and Cleveland without being extended, which may also be said of his Readville victory, hence the great-grandson of Electioneer must be set down as one of the sensations of this sensational year.

California Blood in the Old Dominion.

Among recent additions of note to the ranks of Virginia trotting sires is that of the brown horse, Burlingame 2:18½, the son of Guy Wilkes, that was selected by the late John A. Goldsmith to head his stud at Washingtonville, N. Y. That famous reinsman looked upon him as a great prospect and stocked his court with richly bred mares, but for various reasons expectations were never realized and a couple of months since, Mr. Goldsmith's widow, low the Countess Kohsel, disposed of the brown stallion at auction in New York city and the purchaser was Dr. J. B. Hopper, Ridgewood, N. J., who sold him a few weeks ago to Robert Tait, of Norfolk, by whom the son of Guy Wilkes will be given a chance in the stud at Spring Garden Farm, near Lynchburg, Va. By a famous sire from the great broodmare Sable, dam of Sable Wilkes 2:18, and others of note, I look for Burlingame to do well in the Old Dominion. Among Mr. Tait's broodmares are Helice by Norval, out of Grenada, by Onward; Flora McC., by Red Wilkes out of Missie Wilkes, by William L., and she out of Fanny H., who bred to Director 2:17, produced a crack performer in Evangeline 2:11½, and Sweetstakes, the aged daughter of Sweepstakes. Referring to the latter, Sweetstakes, I may add that by your California sire, Billy Thornhill, she produced Great Stakes 2:20, now owned by W. H. Nelson of this city, and who with limited chances has sired speed in Captal 2:16½, pacing, this season, Foxhall 2:19½, and others.

McZeus 2:13, the full brother to Coney 2:02, son of McKinney 2:11½, and Grace Kaiser who was brought here from Los Angeles in 1896 by W. K. Mathews, the musician, is now in the stud of Judson H. Clark, Elmira, N. Y., who will breed him to good mares and develop his get. The brown stallion made some six or seven seasons in this section, but left not more than a dozen foals all told, among them being the bay colt Maxie K., now three years old, who has been reserved for the stud by Mr. Mathews. Maxie K. is out of Miss Bird by Jay Bird, second dam Fanny Swope 2:30, by Young Jim, and she out of the great broodmare Roan Fanny, dam of Fanny Swope 2:19½, and three others in the list. Of the California trotting blood, however, in Virginia none is more highly thought of than that from the loins of Kelly 2:27, the full brother to Expressive (3) 2:12½, by Electioneer from the famous thoroughbred Esther by Express. He heads the stud of James Cox at Belgravia Farm, which is near Mt. Jackson and right in the heart of the rich Shenandoah valley. Breeders of the valley, however, are great fanciers of draft horses and this richly bred and elegant looking son of Electioneer has never been properly thought of in that fertile section. When owned jointly by Mr. Cox and John E. Madden, the latter now of running horse fame, several offers going beyond the ten thousand dollar mark were refused for Kelly. The handsomest yearling in all Virginia, I think, is Mr. Cox's chestnut filly Helen Wilmer, whose dam is Erena 2:19½, the gray daughter of Alcyone that produced Allercyone 2:17½, and two others in the list, all by Allerton 2:09½. Erena is now owned by Henry G. Harrington, of Harrisonburg, Va., and her foal of 1902 is a chestnut filly by Supremacy 2:29½, by Bell Boy, the ill fated son of Electioneer. Supremacy is owned by Dr. D. D. Carter, of Woodstock near Harrisonburg, and in 1901 he served 110 mares, while during the present season he will reach his limit of one hundred. Leonidas Triplett, who also resides near Mt. Jackson and close by Belgravia Farm, owns the Palo Alto bred mare Libby Whips by Whips, out Amrah, of dam of Electwood 2:29½ by Nutwood. She was bred to Kelly this season and appears to be in foal. Mr. Triplett is partial to the get of Kelly and owns a number of them, including Napaline, bay mare, 5, and Kerchival, chestnut colt, 3, both of whom are out of Aconite by Tremont.

Another Palo Alto bred mare that was brought to Virginia and placed in the stud by W. N. Wilmer, the New York lawyer, at his Plain Dealing Farm near Scottsville, was Aebina by Alban, out of Violet, dam of Version 2:14½, by Electioneer. By Mr. Wilmer's horse Virginia Chief, son of Kentucky Prince, she threw several foals, among them being Aebineer, winner of the blue ribbon in the class for harness stallions at the recent Charlottesville horse show.

W. J. CARTER.

The handsomest horse at Pleasanton last week was the stallion Welcome 2:10½, owned by the Meek estate of Haywards. When he was led out in the stock parade he received the plaudits of all, and when the blue ribbon was put on him it was plainly to be seen that he won "hands down." Welcome is one of the grandest specimens of the trotting bred stallion in America.

Bertina, the chestnut mare by Directum, started in a race at Springfield, Ohio, August 20th, and after finishing second in the second and third heats, had to be drawn. The time was slow, around 2:25.

California Horse Wins Futurity.

The richest running event of the year, the classic Futurity for two year olds was run at Sheepshead Bay last Saturday and fifty thousand people saw a California bred colt come under the wire first. Sheepshead never before knew such a crowd. At noon the lower tier of the three-deck grand stand was crowded. Long before the bugle sounded the first race, all of the three tiers were filled with a mass of moving colors. Women were everywhere, costumed in brilliant gowns and bedecked with colors. Almost as far as the eye could reach down over the lawn and through the field was a swaying mass of humanity. Twenty thousand surged in the field, and within and beyond the track rails were thousands more.

Thirty-one horses were carded to go, but Sovereign, Sir Voorhies, Dalesman, Love Note, Royal Summons, Bounding Beauty, Merry Acrobat and Medal were scratched. There were twenty-four left to fight it out in a contest where only the stoutest-hearted might hope to live. The call to saddle was trumpeted at 4 P. M., and the long thin line filed out and cantered slowly past the stands.

It was difficult work to keep the line straight before the final word. For twenty minutes they see-sawed to and fro. Then came a swish of the flag, and a burr of the bell in the judges' box. Instantly there was frenzy among the multitude. There was a sudden flash, and then a cloud of dust.

Lord of the Vale was among the first to break, with Savable and Hurstbourne and Dazzling right at his heels. Fire Eater, with Doggett up, the only one that failed to go, was left standing at the post half turned around. Though it was a ragged start, it was better than had been expected.

They flew like the wind down the hill, stretched out completely across the track, twenty-three in what seemed to be almost a straight line. Now and then the sharp wind would lift the veil of dust, and as they neared the turn those on the outside of the rail and those on the inside closed in, until saddle-girths appeared to be touching.

Up the hill they went, with white-faced boys bending over their necks, ready with whip and spur for the final struggle. Fully a dozen, as they mounted the hill, were bobbing up and down with perfect rhythm and within reaching distance of each other.

For a moment, as the racers straightened out, there was crowding in the center of that flying cavalcade. There was hardly a sound in the stands, but a mighty shout went up when Dazzling, carrying the spotted white of the Keenes, came first into the straight stretch.

McCue touched Lord of the Vale with the whip, and the gallant son of Hastings sprang out to the front. Perhaps he made his run too soon, for he began to falter when hard challenged, a moment later, but recovered. The goal was well within sight, and McCue began to ride like a fiend. The Whitney and Keene candidates were pushing him hard.

Through the cloud of dust everyone's eyes made out his own favorite. There were cries of "Irish Lad" and "Golden Maxim!" and "Flying Prince!" and "Mizzen!" and a half dozen others.

Savable was never thought of. Yet one small group that came from the West had their strained eyes set for a glimpse of turquoise blue that seemed far back in the rear. Lyne was ready, too, and Savable answered the tip of the spur and the swish of the whip. He came out of the bunch like the thoroughbred that he is. Lyne lifted him with every leap, and inch by inch, in the last sixteenth, he wore down the single length between him and victory.

McCue tried desperately to stall off defeat, swinging his whip mercilessly, and with flaring nostrils Lord of the Vale, the pride of the Belmont stable, responded to every cut, but all in vain! Savable had his sire's indomitable courage—he had his sire's speed and his great heart. He poked his nose in front of Lord of the Vale just as they flew under the wire.

August Belmont, who watched the contest on the roof of the stand, said:

"With another week's work, Lord of the Vale would have won!"

The value of the Futurity was, to the winner, $45,400; to second, $5250; third, $2750—in all, $53,400.

To J. B. Haggin, breeder of Savable, $2000; to August Belmont, breeder of Pride of the Vale, $1250, and to James R. Keene, breeder of Dazzling, $500; in all, $57,150.

John A. Drake, owner of Savable, is credited with having won the largest bet ever made by a turfman in this country. His winnings amounted to more than $100,000. Summary:

The Futurity, for two year olds, Futurity course—Savable (Lyne), 15 to 1 and 6 to 1, won; Lord of the Vale (McCue), 7 to 1 and 5 to 2, second; Dazzling (Shaw), 16 to 5 and 6 to 5, third. Time, 1:14.

Dan Patch Beats 2:00.

At the Narragansett Park track, at Providence, Rhode Island, Dan Patch paced a mile on Friday of last week in 1:59½, thus coming within a quarter of a second of Star Pointer's record and being the second horse to enter the charmed two minute circle.

Myron McHenry drove the famous brown stallion and his owner, M. E. Sturgis of New York, watched the performance from a box in the grand stand. An immense throng saw the exhibition. The track was lightning fast. The trial was made about 4 o'clock. A slight breeze was blowing up the home stretch, but the stallion finished strong. The fastest quarter was the second, in 0:29 flat. The first half was in 0:59½ and the last in 1:00. The middle half was in 0:59½.

Dan Patch was paced by a runner and scored down twice before Myron McHenry nodded for the word.

The horse was going fast in a long stride and a thousand watches snapped when he flashed under the wire. In an instant he was down at the turn, leaning in on the curve, and the runner was galloping hard to keep up. They were at the quarter in 0:30½ and the runner was even. Then the gallant horse made his supreme effort and the way he shook that runner was worth going far to see. He was squatting low in a long stride and cutting through the air so his ears were bent back and his mane was straight out.

The runner was doubling in great leaps, but Dan Patch got away and he went along the back stretch, the second quarter, in 0:29 flat, making 0:59½ for the half. The runner caught up again and they made the third quarter in 0:30½, or 1:29½ to that distance. Down the stretch he came in the greatest dash of his life. The last quarter was in 0:29½.

The pioneer fair director and exhibitor in California is undoubtedly Mr. George Bement, of Melrose, Alameda county, who has been exhibiting live stock, winning premiums and acting as director of fair associations in this State ever since it was admitted into the Union. Mr. Bement acted as superintendent of the cattle exhibit at the Golden Gate Fair at Pleasanton last week and had everything in proper shape.

A Race that Mr. C. A. Durfee Finished First and Won, but Failed to Collect Any Money.

It is not often that my friend Durfee complains of riding too fast or that he can be accused of "putting on the brakes," but there is one ride that he took which he acknowledges was a little too fast for him, and says that he put on the brakes not only once but several times, finally taking a double wrap and pulling for all he was worth. To appreciate this little ride of the former owner of "The Great McKinney," the sire of Cuate 2:24½ as a three-year-old, one must hear the gentleman tell the story himself. It would be more interesting to see him take the ride again, but to this several objections would be raised.

On Thursday, August 28th, Mr. C. A. Durfee had the pleasure of driving his gamelittle three-year-old Cuate to the wire a winner three times, doing it in impressive fashion and giving him a record of 2:24½. After removing his working clothes and preparing to visit his friends so as to tell them how it happened and why this diminutive trotter had a right to be the best, Mr. Durfee decided to go to town. FRESNO'S GREAT FAIR AND RACE MEETING—The approaching race meeting of the Pacific Coast Breeders Association at Fresno is attracting attention all over the State. The admirers of the harness horse are talking about it in all quarters. The people of Fresno are thoroughly in earnest about it and are determined to give the horsemen a welcome that they will not soon forget. The Board of Supervisors of Fresno county and the citizens generally have taken the matter up and are doing all in their power to make the meeting worthy of the great San Joaquin valley. Fresno, on account of the enterprise and push of the people, has been aptly called the Chicago of the West. It well deserves it, because it never does anything by halves. The people of all classes are enthusiastic about this race meeting and the agricultural fair held in connection with it, for which the 21st Agricultural District has offered liberal premiums. The newspapers of the city have taken hold of this matter in earnest, and it goes without saying that what the newspapers support will become a success. Excursions will doubtless be run from Los Angeles, San Francisco and other important points to show the people of the State what Fresno can do in the agricultural, horticultural, breeding and racing lines. In fact, it will be a great agricultural fair and a rousing race meeting. The citizens of the entire country about are fully determined to make this event one long to be remembered and in every particular worthy of "IMPERIAL FRESNO."

This race meeting will be given by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, whose directors are among the leading horsemen and business men of the State. Every member of the Board is a representative man in his community, and the public can be assured of honest racing and clean management. The fair will be given by the directors of the 21st Agricultural District who are among the leading horticulturists, breeders and business men of Fresno and Madera counties.

Every agriculturist and all lovers of the horse should attend this meeting and help to make it a success in appreciation of what the Breeders Association and the people of Fresno are doing for them. Every horseman should make liberal entries in all classes, not only to help along a good cause but also for his own personal benefit. The purses are liberal and the horses on the circuit have become so classified that all have a chance to win some of the money. The directors of the Breeders Association thought that the greatest good to the horsemen as a whole, would be conserved by delaying the closing of most of their races until the very fast horses will have to race in the classes in which they properly belong. This has now been accomplished and the slower horses will have a chance to win. This will be their opportunity and we believe their owners will be too wise to miss it. After training his horses for the season, it is only right that every owner should have a chance to win something. This is necessary, if interest in the breeding business is to be maintained and the small owners encouraged to work their horses.

Another good opportunity will be afforded the horsemen to earn something with the slower horses at the two weeks' meeting at Los Angeles, the entries to which close on September 18th. These late closing meetings are in the interest of the horsemen as a whole and they should be liberally supported. All of the racing stables will want to go to Los Angeles because there are so many races to pick from that everybody can be suited. Fresno being directly on the way to the City of Angels will afford a profitable and pleasant place to horsemen en route.

No association can give good races unless they have the support of the horsemen. Liberal entries make good purses and insure attractive racing. Heretofore the Breeders' meetings have been liberally supported because the horsemen realize that it is their own venture, the profits, if any there be, belonging to them. If a surplus is accumulated one year, it is given back to the horsemen the next season in the shape of more liberal purses.

Again we appeal to the breeders and horsemen of California to show a proper spirit of appreciation of what is being done for them at Fresno. By making liberal entries they will help the breeding interests of California, they will help the people of Fresno to make the meeting a memorable one, and lastly they will help themselves by winning some of the attractive purses offered.

NEXT MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8TH, is the date for closing the entries in five trotting and five pacing events to be decided at the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association's meeting, which is advertised to open September 30th. As will be seen by reference to the advertisement which appears in this issue, the classes are so arranged that horses that have no records and those that have made records will all have a chance to race at this meeting. There are two clauses in the conditions that are especially liberal. In the first place, nominators have the privilege of naming two horses from the same stable or owned by the same person on one entrance fee, and need not name the horse to start until the night before the race. In the second place, nominators in any race that fails to fill can transfer their nominations in such race to any other of the classes closing on the same date to which they are eligible that have filled. These conditions are liberal and were inserted for the benefit of the horsemen, who will certainly appreciate them. The Fresno meeting will be the only strictly harness meeting given in California this year and the track will be especially prepared for the harness horses. The Fresno Agricultural Society will hold its district fair on the same week, which will aid in drawing a large crowd to the racin city and help materially to make the meeting a big success. The Fresno track is one of the best on the Pacific Coast. There should be a very large entry list to these ten purses, which close next Monday, September 8th.

THE SEVENTH ANNUAL STALLION RACE, with $5000 added, given by the Westchester Racing Association, is in every respect a gilt edge event. As will be seen by the advertisement on another page of this issue, entries close next Tuesday, September 9th, and the starters are limited to the produce of stallions nominated on that date. The race is for two year olds and will take place during the spring of 1904. As will be seen by the conditions many advantages are offered to nominators, and every possessor of a high class thoroughbred stallion on the Pacific Coast should not fail to have him entered in this race. The owner of a broodmare bred to any good horse should see that the owner of the horse nominates his stallion and if he does not the owner of the mare is privileged to do so. The value to the winner in 1902 was $10,887.50, which in 1904 will naturally be heavily increased. The Sixth Matron, for 1905, also closes December 9, 1902, for the produce of mares covered in 1902, foals of 1903. All entries to be made to H. C. Crickmore, clerk of the course, 571 Fifth avenue, New York.

AN ERROR occurred in the advertisement of the Los Angeles race meeting in this journal last week. The dates of closing some of the harness events was given as September 15th, instead of the 18th. The advertisement, which will be found in another column, reads correctly now, and horsemen should remember the date, Tuesday, September 18th, on which date the seven rich running stakes offered by the Los Angeles Racing Association will also close.

Mr. W. F. Young, OPECHEE, MICH., May 5 1902.
Dear Sir: I noticed and used your Absorbine for my horses, and recommend it highly for horses' feet and all soft bunches.
Yours truly, JOHN KLINTE.

Sir Albert S. Had Great Speed.

The details of the 2:08 pace at Providence on the opening day of the meeting there last week, have reached California. This was the race in which the unbeaten California champion of last year, Sir Albert S. 2:08½ made his first start and there has been much speculation as to how he performed. The telegraphed summary of the race simply stated that he was eighth in the final summary and consequently outside the money. The race was a very fast one, the heats being in 2:05½ and 2:06½ and had ten starters. The New York Telegraph correspondent described the race as follows:

Owing to Ed Geers' grand victory last week with Terrace Queen, she was made favorite for the fast pacing race, selling for $200, to $125 for The Bishop, $110 for New Richmond, $40 for Effie Powers, $20 for Billy H., $15 for the unbeaten California pacer, Sir Albert S., and only $5 for the field.

Millard Sanders did not dally with Sir Albert S. the initial heat, as every score he had his head slightly in the lead each time down, and was fortunate in getting the word with that advantage. He at once crossed over to the pole and led the field a merry chase to the quarter in 0:31½ and the half in 1:02.

Around the upper turn Billy H., Sphinx S., Louise G. and Effie Powers moved to the flying leader, and all were lapped to his sulky wheel at the three-quarters in 1:33½, and they swung into the home-stretch lined across the track.

Here Sir Albert S. hung out his flag of distress, and dropping back gave Curry, with Nathan Straus, the opportunity to rush through at the pole from the second tier division. In a whipping finish Nathan Straus won by a head over Billy H., that was the same distance in front of Sphinx S. Time, 2:05½.

The second heat Larry Gray went out from the word to cause trouble with his mare, Effie Powers, the heroine of nearly a hundred winning races. He had the pole in the turn. Up the backstretch the entire field raced, bunched at her heels, about an open length in the rear.

Jack Curry began to close the gap at the five-eighths, and half way down the stretch had Nathan Straus on even terms with Effie Powers, who was getting the goad unmercifully. Geers looked dangerous with Terrace Queen fifty yards from the wire, rushing at a runaway clip past three of the field and almost getting the two horses in front.

Nathan Straus won by a saddle girth in 2:06½. The winner is the property of the prominent New York road and matinee driver, David Lamar. The result of the race was a startling surprise to the circuit followers, who had not reckoned that Nathan Straus had even a chance to get a piece of the money, he selling in the field all the time for $5, in pools averaging $570.

Racing at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 1.—The Charter Oak Grand Circuit meeting opened here to-day with the Hartford $10,000 Futurity for three year olds first on the program. There were eight starters. Gail Hamilton, an inbred Baron Wilkes, was the winner, and his best time was 2:15. It was a great race, heart-breaking finishes characterizing a majority of the heats. John Mc. was the favorite in the betting, selling with Gail Hamilton $50, Wig-Wag $35 and the field $25. John Mc. and Gail Hamilton fought it out in a royal battle. It took six heats to settle the question of supremacy, the Pennsylvania horse being beaten by a nose in the final. Red Robe, from Macon, Ga., put up a spirited race, taking third money. This horse beat out John Mc. in the fifth under the whip, making a sixth heat necessary.

In the 2:30 trot, Wilque, after a stubborn contest, took first money, with Rhythmic, the blind stallion, second. In the first heat the watches of the judges went astray, consequently no time was taken. The track was remarkably fast. Summary:

Hartford Futurity, foals of 1899, purse $10,000—Gail Hamilton, blk f by Oakland Baron—Jennie Hulse, by Baron Wilkes (Hudson) won the first, fourth and sixth heats and the race. Time, 2:15, 2:17½, 2:18½. John Mc. won the second and third heats in 2:17½, 2:18½. Red Robe won the fifth heat in 2:19½. Belmore was drawn in the fifth. Direct View, Kentucky Wilkes Jr., and Wig Wag were ruled out in the fifth, and Sister Collete was distanced.

Trot, 2:30 class, purse $3000, three in five—Wilque won the third, fourth and sixth heats and the race. Time, 2:09½, 2:12½, 2:13½. Rhythmic won the second and fifth heats in 2:10 and 2:11. Zephyr won the first heat No time taken. Horace Wilson, Alfred Star and The Quaker also started.

Trot, 2:19 class, purse $3000, three in five—The Roman won in straight heats. Time, 2:12½, 2:11½, 2:10½. Masseto, Patchen Maid, Austin Boy, Baron Bell, Authress and M. M. D. also started.

Pace, 2:07 class, purse $1500, three heats, one mile each—Carl Wilkes won the second and third heats. Time, 2:06, 2:06. Dumont won the first heat in 2:05 3-5. You Bet, Nathan Strauss, The Bishop, Sphinx S., Annis Dross, Lottie Smart, Riley B. and Martha Marshall also started.

SECOND DAY, SEPTEMBER 2.

Anzella is the bright particular star from the Pacific Coast this year. She is not only a great mare but is lucky. To-day she captured the Charter Oak $10,000 event for the Santa Rosa Stock Farm winning the third, fourth and fifth heats. The race was marred by a bad accident in the last heat when Idolita and Hawthorne came together with a collision, both horses going down. Fortunately neither of the horses or drivers were injured. Idolita had won two heats and held a good position in the last heat which gave Anzella the race. In the first heat, Anzella broke at the start and again in the backstretch, Metallas crowding Idolita to the wire. Ozanam broke badly in this heat. In the second heat Metallas lead to the backstretch, but was overhauled by Idolita who won the heat. The third heat was easy for Anzella with Ozanam coming fast and getting second place. The fourth heat looked good for Hawthorne until he broke at the wire and although Anzella had broken twice she made up her distance and came in a winner. The fifth heat was an easy one for the favorite. The summary:

Trotting, 2:11 class, Charter Oak $10,000 purse, three in five—Anzella won the third, fourth and fifth heats in 2:09½, 2:12, 2:11½. Idolita won the first and second heats in 2:09½ and 2:10½. Metallas, Ozanam, Hawthorne, Antezella, Colonel Cochran and Confessor also started. Confessor was distanced.

Pacing, 2:11 class, $1500, three in five—Don Riley won the second, third and fourth heats and the race. Time, 2:07, 2:07½, 2:09. Billy H. won the first heat in 2:08. Prince Direct, Onota, Betonica, Donna McGregor, Evolute and Annie Leyburn also started.

Trotting, 2:16 class, $1500, three in five—Prince Zelma won the first, second and fourth heats in 2:11½, 2:11½, 2:13½. Silver Glow won the third heat in 2:13½. Hal Fry, Kelmont, My Chance, Alabrieve, Charles D. Jacobs and Eula Mac also started, Eula Mac being distanced.

Pacing, 2:30 class, $3000, three in five—Direct Hal won in straight heats in 2:06½, 2:07½, 2:09. Greenline, Albert, Cubanola, Free Advice and King Charles also started, the last two horses named being distanced.

THIRD DAY, SEPTEMBER 3.

Drivers Geers, Hudson and Snow were each fined $100 for "laying up" heats at the Charter Oak Park races to-day. In the first race Hudson laid up Twinkle. In the second race Geers laid up Prince of Orange in the first and second heats. Snow laid up Fannie Dillard in the 2:04 pace. Summaries:

Pace, 2:09 class, purse $3000, best three in five—Dan

R. won the third, fourth and fifth heats and the race. Time, 2:08½, 2:07½, 2:05½. Terrace Queen won the first and second heats in 2:05½ and 2:06. New Richmond, Twinkle, John T., Star Pugh, Cinch and Sophia also started.

Trot, 2:13 class, purse $1500—Prince of Orange won the third, fourth and fifth heats and the race. Time, 2:10½, 2:12½, 2:10½. Monte Carlo won the first and second heats in 2:09½ and 2:09½. The King, Nut Bearer, Aggie Medium, Consuela, A. J. D., Invader, Henry S., The Charmer and Limerick also started.

Pace, 2:04 class, purse $1500—Audobon Boy won in straight heats. Time, 2:05½, 2:05½, 2:06½. Fanny Dillard, Connor and Indiana also started.

Trot, 2:25 class, purse $1500—Dulce Cor won in straight heats. Time, 2:11½, 2:15½, 2:12½. William Tell, Anna Held, Oxford Chimes, Juanita, Handspring and Guy Fortune also started.

Anzella Again.

To show what our Eastern contemporaries think of this great mare we clip the following from last week's Kentucky Stock Farm:

"Just how great a mare Anzella is can best be appreciated by a review of the great races of the past, and while it is true that the time test is not the crucial one, it is the one by which the capacity of a trotter is usually gauged. The Monk showed his capacity at Detroit, and continually winning has established himself among the very front rank of trotters, yet this mare fairly out-stayed him and beat him on his merits, trotting the most remarkable race of any mare that has been seen for years. A contender in the first two heats, she wore out The Monk and won by virtue of her tremendous gameness and rare staying powers. Had she been reserved in the first two heats, her victory would not have been so meritorious, but as she contested every inch of her ground from the time the word was given in the first heat until the race was over, she fairly earned her laurels.

"When one stops to consider that this race compares favorably as regards the time of the first four heats with those of the race in which Cresceus defeated Charley Herr and others at Readville in the stallion race, some idea of the capacity of the horses can be had. Such time as was made requires a great effort on the part of the contenders; it is the pace that kills, and to live through such a race and continue their best speed stamps both The Monk and Anzella as extremely high class trotters. Lord Derby in all his career has not trotted such a race, although he doubtless could have done so on at least one occasion, namely, the race at the Empire City track in which he founded his reputation; nor has Boralma ever duplicated this contest, although he has been a participant in many brilliant races. It was not alone the fact that the time was very fast but rather because every foot of the journey was a contest that makes these two trotters stand out so conspicuously, for while it has been possible for other trotters to work miles correspondingly fast, the fact that there was a game trotter at the throat latch of each contender makes the task a more difficult one and nothing short of the highest class can endure such a strain.

"While The Monk was defeated, he was glorious in his defeat, as it is unquestionably true that he has suffered during his career hardships and misfortunes that the mare has escaped. The Monk has been in his life a cripple; he has been raced continuously, and may now feel the effects of his work. His owner has been free in his assertions that the horse had not recovered entirely from a slight cold. Yet with all that can be said by way of apology for the gelding nothing must be said to detract one whit from the stunning performance of the mare. Her victory was clean-cut and entirely free from even a semblance of sharp practice. She raced with The Monk, contesting every inch of ground, and finally won by reason of her superiority. She out-last-ed him and out-stayed him and at the finish, out-trotted him, and consequently she deserves the greatest credit for her superb performance.

"This race both from a spectacular standpoint and as an exhibition of speed and gameness outranks any other of this year. It came as a refreshing change from the series of irregular races that have been seen through the Grand Circuit. In it no heats were laid up by the winners, the best horse won, and thus far in the season's racing this is a bright example of fair and clean-cut racing between two horses very evenly matched, the victory of either not being apparent until the race was at an end. Anzella comes rightly by her gameness. Her grandsire, Aberdeen, was himself out of one of the most wonderfully enduring mares ever seen, and his get were uniformly game, and Anzella having such an inheritance as well as possessing such a tremendous flight of speed, should have before her a very bright future, if indeed she does not become a champion."

A Phenomenal Two Year Old Pacer.

Whenever the railbirds at the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association track want a sensation these days, they pin their eyes to the two year old pacing filly, Her Grace by Austral, dam Lottie Lee by Young Jim, in the stable of Clem Beachy. This sweet little miss has paced a mile in 2:13½ and at her last workout Beachy stepped her a mile in 2:15 flat, evenly rated all the way. When he got down out of the sulky he remarked: "She did it like she was pacing at a forty clip. Whether she will start in the pacing Futurity, to which she is eligible, is a question, but if she stays out there are many persons here who hope that her owner, Robert Aull, of St. Louis, will send her an exhibition mile during the October meeting, as they are convinced that she is capable of showing a mile better than Extasy's world's record of 2:10½ for two year old pacing fillies. Her Grace worked a second heat in 2:18½ after showing the fast mile mentioned above.

The Aisles of the Woods.

He is not wise who would shun the joy
Of the life that is called alone—
To roam the wood, with the heart of spring,
Soft beating against his own.

To watch the clouds as they form or fade,
By the breath of the wind-tide kissed,
On the ocean blue of boundless sky,
With its filmy veil of mist.

To hear the minstrels of high degree
Outpour from their eager throats
In lyric rapture, divine and deep,
Their current of golden notes.

To touch the blades of the keen, soft grass,
And flowers that star the sod—
Children of bloom who can only speak
In the vernal tongues of God.

He is not wise who would shirk his part
In the master gardener's plan,
And shun the aisles of the ardent wood
To follow the ways of man.

William Hamilton Heard in Harper's.

Reports from Verdi indicate a great improvement in fly-fishing. In fact, from this time on anglers should enjoy much sport on the Truckee. The fishing toward the end of September is usually at its best on this famous stream and generally lasts till the end of October or until the beginning of the winter causes the initial freezing that is followed by the snows and ice of the winter-bound months.

Trout Fishing at Pelican Bay—Klamath Lake.

This enchanting spot has been annually the resort of many local sportsmen. The fishing in some portions of the lake and in the vicinity, notably the Williamson river and tributary creeks is all that the most ardent angler could desire. At this time of the year one may also enjoy some good grouse and quail shooting and also a chance at other acceptable small game. In the timbered nearby hills a buck can be bowled over by the hunter who will take the trouble to put in a little work for his venison. At Pelican bay itself the angler will find a comfortable hotel and he can get good boats for fishing or shooting on the lake—for one can find rare duck shooting there. Horses and vehicles can also be procured.

The possibilities for the angler are aptly described by an Eastern sportsman who enjoyed a short outing at Pelican bay several years ago.

During the brief study of the southern part of the Cascade forest reserve in Oregon, I spent half a day last summer at Pelican bay, an arm of Klamath lake. One of the members of the forest commission had been delayed and those of us who had gone ahead were waiting for him. And it was a fortunate thing for me that he was late, for it gave me much the best trout fishing I have ever had.

Klamath lake is a great body of water in process of losing its character. The streams which fall into it are wonderfully clear, yet the fine silt which they carry is gradually changing the lake into a marsh. At its upper end there are already great meadows, miles in extent, built by the water, and enormous stretches of bulrush (tule, in the local phrase) show where the next meadows will appear. Some miles to the north of Klamath lake are the great Klamath marshes, which foreshadow the future of the present lake. This lake is said to have an average depth of but ten feet, and forms an incomparable breeding ground for trout. These fish are reported to reach a weight of fifteen or twenty pounds, and in their shape and color, and the quality of their flesh, they resemble salmon more than any lake trout I have yet seen.

At the head of one of the little arms of Pelican bay is a great spring, sending a strong gush of water three or four feet in diameter straight to the surface through the clear depths which surround it. When I saw it first, strings of huge silver trout were swaying about in the rushing water almost as if alive—a sight to stir any angler to the deepest depths of his enthusiasm. More beautiful fish there can hardly be. About the spring there has arisen a shanty or two, and the chance to fish and dine. Here come the Oregonians with their families to spend a holiday in the open air, camping socially together on a few acres of ground, fishing from daylight to dark, and altogether contented. Nowhere in America, except on the Pacific slope, so far as I know, is it the custom for whole families to move into the woods for weeks or months at a time, in the summer and fall, to rest and grow happy and strong in the open air. Small farmers, storekeepers, and mechanics join the clergymen and college professors in these most delightful and least expensive of vacations, and the women and children are not less enthusiastic than the men. I wish so good a habit might spread through all the States.

There were boats near the spring, and after dinner I made sure of one of them. Then, at the rough shop where repairs of every kind were done, I had a dented ferrule of my rod made straight. This rod was a four-ounce lancewood affair which had cost me only four dollars, and although my confidence in it had been growing through the course of the summer, I confess that I joined in the general attitude of scornful amusement with which the onlookers learned of my proposed attack on the giant trout of the lake. They themselves trolled with codfish lines. A trout had no sooner struck than he was hauled into the boat or jerked loose from the hook by main strength, and the episode was ended. The advantages of this sort of thing over the real cod fishing lie wholly in the surroundings, not in the fishing.

As we follow the little arm down to the bay itself, trout began to appear in marvellously clear water. At first these were few in number and small in size. The sun was shining, and they paid no attention to my fly except to run from it, as was to be expected. Farther down larger fish began to hurry through the depths until in the bay itself great shoals of them swam by, from one to ten pounds in weight, and here and there solitary individuals of what seemed to be even larger size. Nor were they the only matters of interest in the water. On its surface ducks began to appear more and more plentifully as we approached the bay.

An old Indian woman passed us in a dugout, with a fat pappoose contentedly chewing a white tule root in the bow. She came for the fish heads discarded daily by the white man, and gathered daily by this Klamath squaw. Live fish are harder to catch. On the bay, surrounded by its endless level shores of tule, were ducks in multitudes, making a deafening clamor in and out of the rushes, and in the distance stately white pelicans fished, or dozed on the glassy water, or, spreading their huge white wings and rising slowly far ahead of the boat, sailed lazily far into the hazy distance. But nowhere could I get a rise, although I whipped the water patiently and in many places, and at last it was plain that it was a choice between trolling and no trout. I chose the latter with alacrity.

I fastened a small spoon from my flybook to the end of my line, and let it float behind the moving boat. For some time nothing happened, but at last there was a strike. After that nothing happened again, for my rod had been too weak to hook the fish. But the next time the luck was better. As I struck in answer to the tug, a beautiful silver fish, like a salmon, rose two or three feet from the water, far astern, shaking his head savagely. Again and again he broke and rushed, until there was little strength left, and I could draw him within reach of the gaff after not more than ten minutes. The little rod was doing wonderfully well.

Then came strike after strike until a second, and then a third trout was hooked. The last one did not break, and I saw but the flash of his tail as he sank after taking the spoon. At first he came straight towards the boat, and I should certainly have lost him if we had not pulled away vigorously to tighten the line. Then followed a few moments of inaction, and then a fierce rush, which was repeated over and over again, until it seemed sure that I must lose him. This went on for perhaps three-quarters of an hour, and all this time the fish had resolutely refused to show himself. I began to wonder what it was I had hold of. But there was little time for speculation. We were now near the mouth of the bay, where it was over a mile wide. The wind began to rise and it was not long before it had raised a sea which we were obliged to face. No sooner was this condition established than the trout began to make runs on one side and the other, which bid fair to force us broadside to the swells and fill the boat. My rod was too light to check him and where he chose to go we had to follow. Soon heavy clouds covered the sunset and the night began to fall. I had not yet seen my fish, but just before black darkness came upon us he rose to the top. At that first sight he looked small, although his behavior seemed to indicate incalculable size.

As the minutes went by gradually I gained line, until I had him within a comparatively short distance of the boat. He was still far beyond the reach of the gaff, but at intervals his silvery belly flashed as he surged to the top and we could see he was there. The fight was now evidently nearing its end. It was soon so dark that his back was invisible even when close to the boat, and the man with the gaff, as the fish came nearer, could not see to strike. But the wind fell a little, and finally, more by good luck than good management, the iron was in him and he lay at the bottom of the boat. Violent hands were speedily laid upon him to keep him there, and then we broke into more or less tuneless and vociferous celebration of the victory. We could not dance, for the boat was not big enough, but the other signs of joy were not wanting. One hour and forty-seven minutes! I dream of it yet.

There is a warmth and satisfaction when such a fight ends as it should, which glows, more and more gently, it is true, as time goes on, but still for months and years. I am deeply thankful to that trout and shall always be, for he has given me the chance to tell this story, not once, but many times, although more often to myself than to any listener.

My three fish, in the order of taking, weighed, on the spring scales of the boatman, eight, three and a half and nine and a half pounds. I have always thought those scales were wrong.

Salt water angling these days has had rather an uncertain phase. Results have not been at all favorable, indications for much improvement are many however.

Samuel A. Wells is a fisherman of fortitude and resources. Last week, Wednesday, he went over to Tiburon and fished for striped bass, trolling about the favorite grounds of the Straits, Angel Island and California City without getting a single strike. Returning to the city he proceeded across the bay to Lake Merritt and tried his luck on new ground. He was successful in landing five fish that turned the scales at forty-five pounds. The largest bass weighed almost twelve pounds, or an average of over nine pounds each for the catch. The fish were taken with trolling spoons and also with clam baited hooks.

The Bassio Club outing at Sears Point last Sunday was a jolly one. There were present Ed Donohoe, Clarence A. Haight, James Maynard, Jules Bruns, Jack Karney, Charles Breidenstein, Ed Schultz and Jerry Suich. Some of the sportsmen left the city Saturday and returned Monday evening. On Sunday the party landed twenty-five fine striped bass, the largest, a ten pounder, was taken by Breidenstein, who by the way, showed the boys great skill as a chef. Donohoe and Haight came back to the city with about as much fish as they could comfortably carry.

At the "Sons of Rest" rendezvous nearby, Theodore Rothschild, Chas. Linn, F. Dolliver, Attorney Kallock and others put up. Rothschild landed a good fish, Dolliver was high hook, he caught several fat and heavy fish. The anglers in the Midshipman slough bass fishing grounds use both bait and spoon with about equal results.

J. S. and Will Turner, Louis Rondeau, J. Lynch and others trolled Raccoon straits without results.

Despite the enthusiastic reports of Captain Walker anglers have not had much success for a week or ten days fishing in San Antonio slough. W. F. Shattuck and the "Parson" did not land a fish from the slough on Sunday.

Floyd S. Judah and A. W. Washburn left last Saturday evening for a two weeks' sojourn at Pelican bay. The fishing in Klamath lake at present is reported to be very good. In that vicinity good grouse, quail and deer hunting can now be had. The season will be open in Oregon on the feathered game after the first of September.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

Four Seasons in the Career of a Buck.

A wonderful panorama of the life of the common deer of America was installed in the Field Columbian Museum, Chicago, recently. Deer mounted amid surroundings which are so natural that the visitor can in fancy see the graceful animals quiver with excitement are the illustrations in this panorama. The groups are said by those familiar with museum exhibits to be among the finest achievements of the taxidermist's art which have ever been put on public exhibition. Money was spent lavishly in securing the materials. No pains were spared in having every detail true to life. The setting of every group is an exact reproduction of a certain natural spot. C. E. Akeley, the taxidermist who mounted the collection, made more than a score of visits to the natural haunts of the deer which are reproduced, and spent more than five years in the preparation of the series. Rarely has the mounting of animals ever been carried out in such an elaborate manner. In this life series of the American deer there are four groups, each one for a different season of the year. In each group are four animals, a full-grown buck, a grown doe, a yearling buck and a fawn. Each one with the varying changes of growth is taken through each of the four seasons, illustrating as from life the growth of a deer from a little spotted fawn to a great buck.

The country which is reproduced by the four different scenes is in the neighborhood of Channing in northern Michigan. The original spots duplicated in the museum cabinets are within a half-mile of each other. In that neighborhood even now a few deer are to be found, but the search for those necessary for these mountings was not confined to that district. Every locality where deer might be found was drawn upon for the sixteen deer, each one of which had to be of a definite size and killed at a certain season of the year.

So scrupulous were the officials of the Field Museum in observing the exact details of the natural nooks reproduced that the larger timbers necessary to the foregrounds were actually brought to the museum. Even the burned timbers which go to make up one of the groups are the same ones which stood on the lonesome home of the deer in Michigan. Then from photographs taken before nature had been despoiled they were put into place in the museum cabinet. The photographs were reproduced with the addition of the mounted deer.

The green leaves and shrubbery of the woods are reproduced in wax and so natural are these that the light shines between the ribs of the leaves and drops of imitation water glisten on the surface of the water lilies. In the first group, where the deer is shown in its summer pelage, 17,000 wax leaves are used. Others have fewer leaves and mosses and bare tree trunks make a background for the slender animals. Such backgrounds are not artificial, but have been taken bodily from nature, and the mosses have been bleached and dyed their natural colors.

In each group the animals appear to be standing on the edge of a piece of wood which stretches away in the distance. It is hard to distinguish where the reproduction of the scenery in wax and wood terminates and where the reproduction in paints and colors begins. So perfectly do the colors and perspectives of the two harmonize that as the visitor stands a short distance from the groups and looks at the deer and foliage in the foreground he does not consider that there is a back to the cabinet and the illusion is complete, as he imagines himself looking across miles and miles of forest and plain.

The first group shows the deer during mid-summer. They are standing on the edge of a swamp, where the animals have come in the dusk of the early evening to nibble the soft herbage of the water plants. In the foreground is the old buck, his fore feet in the water and his head and ears erect to catch the slightest note of danger. Behind him in the shadow of the shrubbery is the yearling or spike-horned buck. He is considered an inoffensive member of the party by the old buck and for a year longer he will be tolerated. But when the young buck changes his straight horns for branching antlers the old buck will treat him as an enemy and the fight will come to decide which one of the two must find a new mate.

The fawn in the summer scene is two weeks old. It stands by the old doe nibbling at some moss which the mother holds in her mouth. The baby deer is red and its coat daintily spotted with white. Its thin legs and delicately shaped head also are white. The other animals have their sleek summer coats of red. These are smooth and glossy and the animals have lost the emaciated appearance which characterized them in the spring.

The antlers of the old buck in the summer time are covered with a furry coating, which is extremely sensitive and bleeds profusely when lacerated. The velvet horns are soft and are just growing into shape. During this season the old buck does not care much for the companionship of the other deer, but spends his days in shady and secluded spots, and only in the evenings comes with other deer to the shores of some lake or creek to drink and browse.

In the stagnant pool at the feet of the buck the dark green leaves and blossoms of the yellow water lily spread themselves on the surface. In the distance across a point of the lake can be seen the trees of the opposite shore. Partly hidden in the green foliage a pair of tanagers, bright yellow and scarlet little birds, make more vivid the dark green of the surroundings.

It is September when the autumn scene is cast. The fawn has begun to lose the white spots on his coat and his hair is turning to a darker hue. He has grown in size and confidence and no longer stays close to the old doe, but looks for his own grazing spots.

A fire has swept over the forest, burning up the herbage and small shrubbery, before the autumn scene comes. A second growth of wild cherry has sprung up and its leaves, touched by the early frost, are beginning to fall. It is the red and yellow of autumn. Tufts of brown moss are on the scorched ground. The soil is dry, and the hot sun, shining through the burned trees, has scorched the moss from stones and logs, leaving them bare and brown. The scene is somber, and in contrast to it is the gay plumage of two bluejays perched on the branches of the wild cherry bushes.

The mating season is depicted by another group; the old buck is losing the velvet from his horns. He is rubbing his antlers against a tree to scrape off the summer covering as rapidly as possible. The coats of the animals have changed from red to the dark blue which will remain with them through the winter.

In the winter scene the hair of the animals has become long and thick. It is darker in color. The fawn of the other seasons is now the same color as his companions. To him the snow and winter are a new experience, and he huddles down into the white covering as much as possible for warmth. Over his eyes are two little tufts of hair, where his first pair of horns are just sprouting. The old buck has lost the ferocity of the mating season, and though he still holds his head as proudly erect he will tolerate the presence of other bucks.

The animals are feeding on the sparse herbage which they are able to find when the ground is covered with the heavy snow of winter. Their tracks show how they have wandered through the deep snow searching for food. The young buck is nibbling a ground hemlock which lies close to the surface, while the doe pulls the lichens from the trunk of a cedar tree. A gray Canadian jay has just perched on a pine twig, the green spikes of which sparkle from the snow just shaken from them.

In the spring scene the bucks have lost their horns. The old buck has also lost the thick neck which stood him in such good stead in the fighting season and when he carried the weight of a pair of antlers. Unless one looks closely he cannot distinguish the animals whose growth he has followed through the other four seasons. Their hair looks worn and shabby and is falling out in patches preparatory to the growth of the brighter covering of summer.

Dead leaves and logs soaked with the melting snows of spring are on the ground. The moss on the trees is just beginning to turn green and as yet there are no traces of the vegetation of the coming summer. A little chickadee perched on one of the bare twigs is the one bright spot of color in the scene.

The deer have passed through the four seasons of development and are ready to begin the year again.

Thus the exhibit follows the life of the fawn from the time of its birth to the period when it becomes able to take care of itself. Experts who have seen the display say it is one of the finest of its kind ever constructed and is indeed a notable addition to the Jackson Park institution.

A Pioneer Grizzly Bear Gun.

A curious relic of early days, when big game was plentiful in this State, was recently brought to this city by Mr. F. W. King. The curiosity was a ponderous double barreled rifle and had been the unerring and trusty weapon of "Jack" Wilborn, a pioneer and noted bear hunter of Trinity county. With this cumbersome but effective arm he had laid low many an ugly grizzly and had downed elk and fat bucks galore. Wilborn, however, finally tackled the wrong bear and was seriously disabled and his favorite hunting piece put out of commission.

The rifle is a double one, the barrels being soldered together. On one barrel an ordinary buckhorn sight was fixed, on the other the sight was arranged with a notched slide, so that a long range shot could be made. The barrels are octagonal and the ramrod was held in place on the side, where the two barrels were joined, by a couple of ordinary brass bands, similar to those used for the old muzzle loading shotguns. Two firing tubes, into which were screwed nipples, were fastened to the breech. An ordinary back action lock was set into the stock, which is a typical old style Kentucky rifle stock ornamented with inlaid figures roughly engraved or outlined in german silver. The rifle has a set trigger, the barrels are 36 inches long and about a 44 calibre. It weighs sixteen and a half pounds and bears upon the barrels the firm name of J. & D. Little, who, it is presumed, in the absence of anything more definite, may be considered the builders of the cannon.

The method of reversing the barrels was simple and ingenious. The barrels revolved on a steel pin that set into the stock; the breech of the stock is faced with a steel disc a sixteenth of an inch thick. On the top of the stock is a long slender lever held down by a spring. This lever fitted a notch in each rifle barrel. To substitute the lower for the fired upper barrel, a touch of the lever with one thumb and a twist of the heavy barrels with the other hand gave the required change of ordnance with dispatch and the howitzer gave way for the siege gun.

The rude emblems set in the stock were typical of the men and the times—on the right side of the wood, where usually the spring lid covering the greasepatch box was located, is an oval piece of metal about the size of a dollar, and upon which an eagle, with beak open, wings partly extended and talons ready for work, is engraved—this design possibly is suggestive of courage, keenness of vision, etc. On the opposite side of the stock a fox is rudely outlined in metal and set into the wood—here is a suggestion of cunning, woodcraft and speed. On the top side of the grip down near the comb is inlaid a pointed arrowed—deadly and true is the flight of the bullet exemplified by the rather clumsy totem.

The rifle is rust eaten and the metal parts tarnished, the lock has long since refused to perform its work, while the wood is beginning to decay. The heavy steel breech pin is awry—in fact the rifle never was repaired after it was put out of commission by the blow of the grizzly's paw that placed old man Wilborn on the mourner's seat.

The gun is a most curious weapon in these days of modern sporting rifles. One wonders at the hardihood of the old pioneers who carried these ponderous and deadly rifles and then can readily understand the indomitable qualities that the old frontiersmen made prevail over the almost insurmountable obstacles of nature and the elements when they led the way for and carved out the foundations of the Western Empire.

CARTRIDGE AND SHELL.

The gamelaws on quail and deer in certain of the adjoining counties shorten the season to some extent. These changes so far as known are listed in the Coming Events.

Game law violators are nearly always ingenious in making excuses or offering reasons for their infraction of the statute. For making a pot of "quail broth" a fine of $25 was imposed upon, and paid in Justice MacDonald's court at Madera by a Mr. Cornelius, who killed quail in close season. His defense was that quail broth was needed by a sick member of his camping party. But the excuse did not impress Game Warden Guard, nor the justice, and the delicacy cost an epicurean sum.

A good story is told of a local hunter who was informed, when he became enthusiastic over deer hunting, that it was easy to kill a buck near Antioch; they were so plentiful in that section that the farmers' wives had to continually drive them out of the door yards. The city deer hunter took the river boat last Saturday for Antioch. On the boat he was told, in answer to numerous inquiries, that W. Remfree, an up-river sportsman and a great practical joker, was the man in Antioch to put him on the right track of the fattest bucks in the State. The hunter went forth early on the following morning and hunted over the stubble fields all forenoon. He finally gave up his quest for venison and went back to town. On being questioned he said that deer signs were very plentiful; their tracks were all over the fields, but he was much puzzled, however, as to how the deer could get through so many barbed wire fences and keep so completely in hiding. He stated that his reason for quitting the hunt so soon was the peculiar actions of the country people. He could not make out whether they regarded him as a suspicious character or were intensely amused at him. He concluded by stating his belief that they were not up to the latest style of hunters' equipments and were possibly bashful about asking for information. Antioch is a quiet farming community and there has not been a deer within many miles of the place for years and years. However the amateur Nimrod may have made a discovery, it is not possible that cattle tracks were mistaken for "deer sign."

Canker of the Ear.

The ear is the most complicated structure in the body and subject to a variety of disorders, the largest number of which are generally considered under one head of canker.

In a consideration of these ailments, the intimate relationship and sympathy which exists between the skin and the digestive tract cannot be too strongly impressed upon dog owners.

The membrane lining the ear and its passages is made up of what is known as epithelial cells. The entire skin of the dog, as well as the membrane of the mouth, throat and stomach, is made up of these same cells.

The digestive tract, as well as the passages of the ear, is nothing more than an invagination of the integument or skin covering the body, and, strictly speaking, the food in a dog's stomach, or the worms in his intestines, is as much outside of his body as the collar around his neck or the fleas on his back.

These facts are mentioned so that the dog owner will understand why it is that mange or skin diseases will produce digestive disorders, affect the bowels and appetite, and that worms, or indigestion, will produce an irritable condition of the skin, resembling eczema, and an unhealthy coat, etc.

It is this disordered condition of the stomach and digestive tract, affecting the skin and extending to the ear flaps and ear passages, that produces most of the cases of canker of the ear.

Water dogs are, of course, most frequently affected, not only by water gaining entrance to the ear, but by the shocks to the system following the exposure they undergo, and bringing on an unsettled condition of the digestive system, skin and blood.

Thorns, injuries, pulling the dog's ears, accumulation of wax and foreign substances entering the ear are also responsible to a degree for these ailments. I am firmly convinced, however, that by attention to the dog's general health and condition, judicious selection of food and the treatment of all intestinal disorders, with attention to all those details that will keep the blood pure and the stomach healthy, will be found the real secret for the prevention as well as cure of affection of the ear.

Canker of the ear is divided into internal and external canker.

There is also a condition of the ear confounded with canker in which the edges of the ear become hot, dry and scaly and the roots of the hair are covered with a whitish scurf. The dog is continually shaking his head or scratching at his ears to relieve the irritation. These cases should be treated for what they are, which is a form of eczema, and the scurf is the eggs of lice. The ears should be carefully washed and soaked in warm water with plenty of dog soap until all scurf and scales are removed. The ears should then be carefully dried and some of the numerous mange cures applied.

There is another class of cases when, as a result of injuries or inflammation, the entire flap of the ear becomes greatly swollen, very feverish and tender and a quantity of fluid forms between the cartilage and the skin of the ear. These cases are difficult to treat. The swellings are easily lanced and the fluid drawn off, but the ear fills up again in the course of a few hours. The best way to treat them is to insert on the inside of the flap a seton of tape, from above downward which will keep the wound open until the discharge ceases, when it can be withdrawn and the openings treated by dusting iodoform over them twice a day.

When the membrane lining the internal passage of the ear is inflamed and otherwise affected we have internal canker of the ear. At first there is simply a redness and slight swelling, which is seldom noticed, or no importance attached to it. The dog will shake his head and show uneasiness, and this is followed by ulceration and suppuration. A black, offensive discharge develops, which may extend both ways. Sometimes it runs back into the head and involves the ear drum and the small bones of the ear. More often it runs outward and involves the outer passages, and we have external as well as internal canker; the ear will be found red and swollen, the exudation dries and forms scabs, pus is generally present and there are numbers of bright red spots on the inside of the flaps and along the ear passage. The dog holds his head on one side and shakes his head violently, as though to get something out of it. He will slide along the floor on his ear or dig at it with his paw. The flaps of the ear become bruised and ulcerated and the tips become cracked and split and are very sore.

In the treatment of canker the general health should first be attended to. If the disease is chronic, but the animal's digestion is good, cod liver oil emulsion four times a day is useful. If the digestion is deranged, pepsin, in doses of from one to five grains, combined with the citrate of iron and quinine in doses of from three to six grains three times a day. If the dog is troubled with worms, means should be taken to secure their expulsion.

In acute forms of the disease the following prescription can be used with good success: Pot chloral, 3 drams; tinct. ferri mur, 4 drams; glycerine, 2 oz.; water, 8 oz.

Dessertspoonful after meals, three times a day. Feed on a light, easily digested diet, viz.: boiled rice, meat, broth, well boiled mutton, etc.

Cleanliness, of course, of importance, but too much washing and neglect to dry the ear properly will retard healing. The ear should first be carefully washed with lukewarm water and castile soap, and, if necessary, use a small syringe so as to soften and remove all hardened wax. After washing, dry the ear carefully and do not wash again until it is necessary to do so from an accumulation of wax or purulent discharges. It must be borne in mind that too much washing is, at this stage, very harmful. The ear should be carefully dried with soft cotton.

If the outer passages and flap of the ear are affected apply the oxide of zinc ointment twice a day. If it does not yield to this take ten grains of the yellow oxide of mercury to one ounce of lanolin and apply twice a day.

For internal canker of the ear a solution of nitrate of silver, five grains to one ounce of water, injected three times a day is useful. A lead lotion is also useful, prepared as follows: Goulard's extract of lead, one ounce; sulphate of zinc, one-half dram; carbolyzed glycerine, one-fourth ounce; pure olive oil, five ounces. Mix the first three ingredients carefully together in a mortar and gradually add the olive oil. The bottle must be shaken well before using, so as to keep the ingredients well mixed, and it should also be slightly warmed.

In treating canker of the ear an assistant is necessary to hold the dog, who should take him between his knees and turn the head to one side, and then pour a little into the ear passage, allowing it to run slowly into the affected parts.—Field and Fancy.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

We have a purchaser for an Irish Water Spaniel six or eight months' old puppy. Send particulars to the kennel editor.

W. A. Baldwin, prominently identified with large sugar interests in the Hawaiian Islands, has purchased of J. L. Cunningham a stylish blue Great Dane puppy out of the King R.—Carmencita litter.

Ben Lewis and George S. Thomas arrived at Boston on August 25th. They brought over a string of fifty-eight dogs on the Devonian. A consignment that will foot up, possibly, about $15,000 when they are distributed. High art surely has its reward.

W. H. Deming of this city, recently became the owner of two Bostons, the bitch Dixey D. No. 68,152, by Sullivan's Punch out of Fred A. Bearse's Druid Veda. The other is Lord Rushie, 68,151, same breeding.

Woodlawn Novelty, a striking young son of Champion Woodcote Wonder, has been picked up by Col. Forsyth, of Fresno. This puppy is closer in resemblance to his noted sire than any other Wonder puppy we have yet seen. It is to be hoped he will bear out the promise of his youth at stud in the near future.

It is evident that the value of good field dogs is well appreciated by owners and breeders throughout the United States. Thirty field trial meetings, including two beagle club trials, will be the means of demonstrating the practical working qualities of a large number of dogs. There has been a steady and growing interest along these lines, that is shown by the increased number of clubs. Should the same proportionate increase of clubs and enthusiasm prevail next season, two or more circuits will be necessary.

Ivel Damon, a Bulldog bought by George Raper is on his way to this city and will be installed in the Wandee Kennels. We noted the purchase several weeks ago, but was not so sure of the identity of the local purchaser. The "switch" of destination of the dog to a Canadian fancier, mentioned in a "par" last week was potent in making the telephone divulge the name of the new owner of a good "Bull." It is possible, if Damon shows a proper disposition that he may be installed as a home companion for Mrs. Harley.

A letter from Gabilan Kennels, Hollister, this week offers a choice of the following young puppies: One One liver and white Pointer bitch, three months, price $5; one red Cocker Spaniel dog, one year old, $20; six black Cocker Spaniel dogs, six weeks old, $7.50 each; one parti-color Cocker Spaniel dog, five months, $25; English Setter pups from Rodfield Gladstone, Roderigo, Cincinnatus Pride, etc., $30 to $40 each. English Setter pups from Count Danstone (Count Gladstone-Dan's Lady) out of Gabilan Lady (Luke C.—Nancy Hanks), price $15 to $25.

The Virginia Field Trial Club has gone back to one of the old rules and adopted retrieving as a part of their rules. Years ago this rule was eliminated from the regulations of nearly all field trial clubs. As the entries to the Virginia trials are confined to residents of that State, this innovation will not make any great inconvenience, more than to delay the trials. This rule was abolished years ago on that account principally. Where game is plentiful and the sportsmen present good shots there is usually little delay, but if game is scarce and a dog not a good retriever, it takes a lot of valuable time to get a bird down.

A circulation note may be of some little interest to our advertisers and readers; it is to this effect: During the month of August, the newstand sales of this journal, through the medium of the San Francisco News Company, reached nearly 1500 copies. A remarkably good showing for a class weekly paper. Possibly this demand was for the reason that this paper is the only weekly published on the Coast devoted to rod, gun and kennel affairs. The fact that the paper has been published in this city for the past twenty years may also have had something to do with the increasing circulation—by subscription and single sales.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Roi met with an unfortunate loss recently, in the, it is believed, theft from their kennels of the rattling good little Yorkshire brood bitch Daisy A. The dog was evidently taken from the premises within a few minutes. Mrs. Roi had just stepped into the house for not more than five minutes and upon coming out again immediately missed the dog. Quick search of the neighborhood and unremitting efforts since for the recovery of the dog have been unavailing. Daisy is three years old, is quite dark in body color, with decided tan colored head, legs and breast, and is long in coat. At the last show here she won first open and winners. She was taken away from three puppies, about weaned. Any information tending to her restoration may be left at this office or forwarded to 429 Castro street, this city. A reward will be paid for the return of the bitch.

At the last Oakland show a dog entered in the miscellaneous class as a Kangaroo hound, proved to be a well known but very large black Greyhound. Considerable interest was created, however, as to what a Kangaroo hound really was, in fact, by a number the breed was believed to be non-existent as a distinct type.

The Kangaroo hound is usually a cross between a Greyhound and some other large and powerful but comparatively slow dog. What speed it possesses is due to the Greyhound. Many fanciers are altogether in the dark respecting this type. A good hound is worth looking at and is an exceedingly handsome animal, speedy and courageous. The best product is possibly derived from crossing a Greyhound with the Deerhound. A really good specimen will excel either breed in size (this has been supposed by some to be due to climatic influence) and more resembles a massive Wolfhound. Their colors are blue, sandy, cream, brindle and grizzly. For their size and build they are remarkably swift, and clever jumpers. Good specimens of the breed in Australia easily bring $100 or more. Their coats are in texture similar to that of the Wolfhound but perhaps a bit coarser. A good specimen is a grand looking dog, perfectly proportioned, of immense strength and pace, grand loin and beautiful muscles and perfectly straight legs of great bone.

We have this week been honored by a visit from Mr. G. Gordon Hammill, who was accompanied by Mrs. Gordon Hammill. They came to England in May and are, they told Our Dogs, remaining until November, when they return to the States in time for the fall shows. Mr. Hammill is interested in Irish Terriers, and takes back with him one of the best bitches in England in Ch. Mile End Vixen, which he has induced Mr. Frank Clifton to let him have for a pile of dollars approaching £100 sterling in English money. This bitch came out under Mr. Marples at Coatbridge Show, where she won in every class in which she was shown, and got very near the special for best dog or bitch in the show. She was shown subsequently at the Liverpool Show, where Mr. G. R. Krebl fell in love with her, and, we believe, arranged for the bitch's purchase. Mr. Clifton coming on the scene, to whom she was ultimately transferred. Vixen, who is by Hennessy, is a lovely headed bitch, and beautiful in conformation, with a natural hard coat, and has done a lot of winning under our best judges. She is still a young bitch and a prolific breeder, having recently presented Mr. Clifton with a very good and level litter of nine by Ch. Mile End Mulder. A combination of such traits makes Vixen a very desirable acquisition to the breed in America.

Mr. Ben Lewis has not been letting the grass grow to his feet. We understand he came prepared to give a big price for the crack English Setter, Rumney Rock, if he suited him. To be candid, Ben told us that Mrs. Hopkins' successful dog was not quite as good a Setter as he expected to find. Every man is, of course, entitled to his opinion. "Ben" is manager of a Mr. Thomas' kennel in America [agent and handler for George S. and George C. Thomas Jr., Philadelphia—ED.] which contains, amongst other good Setters, the well known English dog, Ch. Mallwydd Sirdar, so that he has at least one reliable model to guide him in his judgment on the breed. Failing Rumney Rock, Lewis secured Ulverston Rap, a very nice dog, which won in a good class at the Merthyr Tydfil Show. The Brecon winning Welsh Terrier, Gorchfgrw—however that name may be pronounced—we have already referred to as having been captured by this wily Americanized Taffy. Another important purchase Lewis has made is that of the Deerhound, Laird of Glengarry, winner of first Edinburgh, etc., and a fine upstanding young hound, which he bought from that very successful exhibitor, Mrs. Armstrong.

Lewis and Thomas recently paid a visit to Paris and bought a string of six carefully selected French Bulldogs, which they shipped to the States right off. The team contains a lovely bitch, which we understood Lewis to say won at the Crystal Palace Show, and another bitch better still. They are, of course, of the fashionable, but hideous bat-eared persuasion.

Ben Lewis is a Welshman, and hails from the district of Fishguard, in Pembrokeshire. He has served a long and eventful apprenticeship to the dog breaking and "handling" profession, and was, in fact, nearly born in a kennel in "wild Wales." The association of his early youth with Mr. Llewellyn, the great Welsh breeder and founder of a strain of Setters, which took his name, and more particularly with the immortal Ch. Count Wind 'Em, will never be effaced from Ben's memory. He delights to descant on these early experiences, and to relate the incident of Mr. Moore, an American millionaire, offering Mr. Llewellyn $5000 for Count Wind 'Em, which he refused.

THE FARM.

Use for Russian Thistles.

In the recent unique volume entitled "Russian Thistle Forage," issued by Secretary F. D. Coburn of the Kansas Board of Agriculture, is contained much interesting and entirely new information relative to the use of the thistles as feed for livestock, giving the experiences of individuals who have so utilized them. Emphatically disclaiming any intention of encouraging or even countenancing the growth of these thistles for any purpose Mr. Coburn says in part:

Of the many parties interviewed upon their experience with it, most agree that the so-called "thistle hay" quite favorably corresponds in feeding value with that from native grasses, and some even assert that it is equal to alfalfa, which it is said to resemble in some respects when properly cured and handled. At all events, from a general survey of the reports, thistle hay is considered by those who have used it nutritious and fattening, and cattle and sheep with no other feed, can be sustained throughout the winter in as fair condition as when other ordinary forage is used. It is also indicated that horses and mules do not seem to care so much for nor do so well on thistle hay as does other stock, and hogs will not eat it at all, although they relish the thistles when cut and fed green. When used with sorghum, millet, alfalfa, etc., the general experience has been that cattle made no apparent distinction between them, and if any preference was shown it would likely be in favor of the thistles. The hay is generally all thistles owing to their habits of growth, as where sufficiently numerous to justify harvesting they have usually choked out other vegetation, even other weeds, and in the majority of cases no cultivated crops were grown; as if attempted they more often than otherwise came to naught. Small grains, such as wheat, rye and oats, are easy victims of the thistles. Crops that can be frequently cultivated, like corn, can be successfully grown, other conditions being favorable, in spite of the thistles, as the frequent cultivation necessary for the best development of the corn greatly retards and dwarfs the growth of those not killed by it. But lands badly infested with Russian thistles are at best much depreciated for general farming.

The thistles are cut for hay with mowers, ordinarily when 8 to 12 inches high, and blooming, before the stem becomes hardened and woody. The methods of handling after cutting are various. Some rake and stack immediately; others let them cure as they lie, afterwards stacking; while still others let them wilt, then cure in shock, and haul from the field as used, or stack at convenience; whatever way they are handled seems to give satisfaction, provided the hay is not rain-washed after cutting, which discolors and may make it distasteful to stock. To prevent this possibility in a measure it is suggested that thistle stacks should be topped with something that will turn rain, as at first the thistles lie very loosely and will not shed water, although later settling quite compactly. Some report that thistles can be cut two or three times during a season, when conditions are favorable.

Wherever livestock has access to thistles it is observed that the young plants are greedily eaten, and they are found excellent for increasing the flow of milk. Their early growth give succulent grazing in the spring some time before other vegetation is advanced sufficiently to be available and is likely to be abundant on infested tracts, regardless of weather or soil conditions.

It is generally reported that all live stock relish the pasturage afforded by thistles for the three or four growing months each year, but that sheep and cattle particularly like it, abandoning other herbage in its favor, and even break through fences in their eagerness to graze upon it, rather than be confined to the prairie or buffalo grass. Thistles, of course, are most valuable for pasturage when young and tender, but live stock will eat apparently with relish the matured plants in the fields, when damp and soft, sometimes even preferring them to the green grass. When intended for hay thistles preferably should not be grazed upon. Whether grazed or cut for hay they will in the course of the season produce abundantly of seed and their existence is in no wise threatened by either. It is also reported that the very young plants are excellent for human food as "greens." Montana Stockman and Farmer.

Milk Cow in Heavy Flesh.

It is a stock argument among many dairymen who believe in the special purpose cow that it is extravagant to use animals that will place part of the food in the milk pail and part of it on the carcass in the form of beef. That part, which is converted into meat, they claim, is of no value whatever, owing to the fact that it is necessary to kill the animal in order to make any use of the meat. There is more philosophy in this statement than is generally admitted by those who use a dual purpose cow. However, it is possible to find profitable dairy animals among those that are inclined to lay on flesh during the milking season. This, of course, means a division of the products of the food, which necessarily lessens the milk flow.

Because an animal is inclined to lay on flesh during the milking period is good reason why some effort should be made to prevent this. This is accomplished by the introduction of the better system of feeding. Animals of the beef type that are fed heavily on fat producing foods naturally tend to store up fat in the body, and it is but reasonable that this should be guarded against in compounding the rations for milk animals. During the period when cows are on pasture little can be done to alter the ration unless some supplementary foods are given. To feed such supplementary food may be most profitable indeed, and may prevent the laying on of flesh, which is by few considered to be of any particular advantage. A little bran mixed with oats, fed twice a day, will do much toward increasing the milk flow without inducing animals to convert it into fat. In addition to this it may be advantageous to allow such cows as are inclined to beefiness to have access to a clover pasture. Legumes of all kinds are high in nitrogen, or what is commonly called flesh-forming constituents, so that a ration composed of legume roughage may greatly favor the production of milk rather than the formation of fat on the animal's body.

Some cows naturally carry a wealth of flesh during the entire year, and when the returns at the pail are satisfactory there is no reason why any particular effort should be made to reduce this flesh. In such a case if the supplementary food that we have mentioned is fed and there is reason to believe that it is converted into milk, there can be no advantage in reducing an animal to a poverty-stricken appearance.—Ex.

We cannot understand why some of the papers which maintain departments devoted to Angora goats so often publish statements that mohair sells regularly at from forty to sixty cents a pound or some such figure. For the last ten years the average price received by growers of mohair in the United States has ranged between eighteen and thirty-five cents and but a small percentage of fine hair has been sold for higher figures. There are all kinds of bunco games and this Angora goat fake is being worked to the queen's taste.

The coveted $9 mark was paid for cattle on the open market at Chicago last week, the highest price since the Civil War. Breeders of fancy stock will doubtless be glad to know that the only cattle sold at such a price were well bred steers. No mixed cattle or scrubs brought that price or anywhere near it. The fates decreed that two bunches of magnificent steers, one of Shorthorn and the other of Angus, were the ones that secured the distinction of reaching the high water mark.

Skim Milk as a Food for Hogs.

The Tennessee Experiment Station has just completed a hog feeding test which demonstrates the importance of making good use of the by-products of the farm. One lot was fed water and corn meal alone for a period of sixty days. During the first half of the feeding period each hog received four pounds of meal per day, and six pounds in the second half, from which he made sixty-two pounds gain or practically one pound per day. The pound in this case was made at a cost of 39 cents.

Each hog in lot two received twelve pounds of skim milk and four pounds of corn, per day, during the first thirty days, and twenty-seven pounds of skim milk, together with five pounds of corn, in the second half. From this the gain was 138 pounds per head during the sixty days, or a daily gain of 2.3 pounds per head, made at a cost of 4.2 cents per pound. It must be remembered, however, that the cost per pound in the latter case was reckoned on the basis of skim milk, being worth twenty-two cents per hundred pounds.

The item of greatest importance is that while 4.6 pounds of corn alone were required to make a pound of pork, it only required 2.1 pounds of corn, together with 11.2 pounds of milk, to make one pound of gain. Considering corn to be worth forty eight cents per bushel, skim milk had a value of 28.3 cents per hundred pounds. Not only were the gains made much more rapidly when skim milk was fed, but the slaughter contest revealed the fact that these had the most useful carcasses, dressing 78.5 per cent compared with 73.6 per cent, as was the case in those fed corn alone.

In every herd where a large number of swine are raised each year there are some good pigs that are technically defective from a breeder's standpoint. For instance, one of the best made and best type of pigs may have a large swirl upon its back. This is no injury to the farmer and because of this technical blemish the hog is likely to sell at a low price. It may also have an injury to the ear or the color may be bad from a breeder's standpoint or quite a number of defects in sentiment that are unimportant to the farmer. Quite a number of good farmers have found the best opportunities of securing these animals at their own prices at public sales. In some instances strong competition has prevailed among farmers for these really good animals.

The general introduction of the rural mail route is working a great change in the status of the American farmer. He is writing more letters, reading more papers and is brought thus more closely in touch with the busy world outside, which to him before has been little save a market.

Veterinary Pixine

Apply it. Rub it in on bare spots, inflammatory swellings, old sores, scratches, grease heel or skin disease. It penetrates and soothes, and the horse grows well as he toils throughout the day.

SCRATCHES, GREASE HEEL,
MUD FEVER, HOOF ROT
AND SPEED CRACKS.

Cases where ulcerations extend with transverse cracks which open at every step and often bleed, no matter how complex, aggravated, deep seated or chronic, if treated according to directions as given on circular with every box, positively cured with Veterinary Pixine.

After Blistering

Veterinary Pixine is the very best application that could be indicated. It absorbs all inflammatory exudate and hastens the reparatory process. Will heal the most severe cases without sear and prevents loss of hair.

As a Preventive.

If a light application of Veterinary Pixine be used before speeding, driving in wet, muddy or slushy weather, your horse will never have speed cracks, scratches or grease heel.

For Hoofs.

It will keep the hoofs healthy, soft and in perfect form.

This penetrating, stimulating, soothing, absorbing, anti-septic, healing ointment heals from beneath the surface by disinfecting the parts, subduing inflammation, and stimulating healthy granulation, not by drying and scabbing.

2 oz. 25c; 8 oz., 50c; 5 lb. pkg., $4. At all druggists and dealers, or sent prepaid.

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR.

The 49th Annual State Fair opened at Sacramento last Monday with a very slim attendance, as has been the case almost invariably since the exhibition was extended to two weeks instead of one. During the week there has been an increase in the size of the crowds, however, and the gate receipts will probably be up to the usual amount by the time the fair closes.

The live stock display is the best seen at the fair for years, and the pavilion exhibit is also excellent.

The weather was sultry and hot on the opening day, and while there were not more than a hundred persons in the grand stand the betting ring was comfortably filled. There was no bookmaking permitted on the harness races, but three or four books were doing business on the running events. There can be no complaint as to the size of the program each day, which has consisted of two harness events and from four to five runs.

The judges' stand on the first day was occupied by President A. B. Spreckels, and Directors B. F. Rush and A. W. Barrett, the latter starting the harness races. William Fieldwick held the starter's flag for the running events. Messrs. J. C. Wolfskill and P. C. Jones acted as timers.

The Occident Stake, worth this year the neat sum of $1977 to the winner, $988.50 to second and $329.50 to third, was one of the biggest surprises that the circuit has furnished thus far. Owing to the fact that Chas. A. Durfee's little colt Cuate had started and won two races this year, getting a record of 2:18 at Woodland, he was made favorite at $20, and L. H. Todhunter's Zombowette filly, trained by Walter Maben, was picked for second choice at $17, while many thought that W. H. Lumsden's grand looking colt McPherson might land the money. The other starters, Aristo, Gertie H., Flora Russell and Larken W. were not considered by the talent, except as a possible help to a field ticket with McPherson in it, for which $11 was paid.

Everybody knew that Cuate could beat 2:20 rather easily on a good track, as he had done it several times and his record was two seconds below that notch. Zombowette, the daughter of Zombro, was credited with a half in 1:07 in her work at Napa, and McPherson had trotted several heats around 2:20 in his exercise and been second to Cuate when the latter won in 2:18. Aristo was known to be fast, but he had been attacked with distemper about the middle of July and had only been given one workout in six weeks, so it was not thought his chances could be very rosy. But the wise ones do not always pick the winners, and this proved true on Monday last. Aristo went to the front in every heat going round the first turn, and won in three straight heats without being headed. The last heat was the fastest, 2:17½, and he was at least two lengths in front of Cuate at the finish, although the little son of McKinney had trotted the last half of this mile in 1:06 in an endeavor to win. Aristo is one of the best gaited, most level headed and fastest three year olds ever bred in California. He is owned and was bred by that popular gentleman, Alex. Brown, proprietor of Walnut Grove Stock Farm, Sacramento county. Aristo is a large bay colt, getting a combination of Wilkes and Director blood from his sire, and a double cross of Electioneer from his dam. The following short tabulation of his pedigree will interest breeders:

ARISTO	Sable Wilkes.....	(Guy Wilkes by Geo. Wilkes)
	Nushagak.....	(Sable by The Moor)
	Fidelia.....	(Director 2:17 by Dictator)
	Langton.....	(Alfred 2:25 by Gen. Benton)
	Nosegay.....	(Laura by Electioneer)
	Wild Bud.....	(Nephew 2:20 by Hambrino)
		(Wildflower by Electioneer)

When the race, which was the opening event of the State Fair racing program, was called, the seven three year olds named lined up for the word. Zombowette had the pole. None of the drivers tried to score fast, and all seemed anxious to get the word quickly at a fair start. Larken W. and Gertie H. were unsteady, however, and spoiled several nice chances by breaking badly. Starting judge Barrett finally got them away to a good start for all except Gertie H., who was two or three lengths back, but trotting. Maben immediately took Zombowette out in the lead and was about a half length in advance of the bunch at the eighth, but Charley Spencer loosened up on the lines at this point and the colt from Walnut Grove marched right past everything and had a lead of three lengths at the quarter, which he reached in 35 seconds. Aristo had so much speed that the others could not keep up with him over the slow track, although all were trying hard even though distance had been waived. At the half, which was reached in 1:11, Aristo was still leading with Zombowette second and the Santa Rosa Stock Farm's handsome mare, Flora Russell, third. They turned into the stretch in this order and finished that way, Aristo winning by two lengths, pulled up. The time was given as 2:22½ but the majority of outside watches were stopped fully a second below that figure. The track was heavy and the colts all trotted a long mile, the drivers avoiding the ground next the rail, which was cut up to a width of ten feet or more for the runners. The heat was a surprise and the time slower than anyone had figured on, and while the field jumped into favoritism there was better than even money against it, as Cuate brought $10, Zombowette $12 and the field $20 in the pools.

The second heat was almost a repetition of the first, except that Cuate beat Zombowette for place, and Flora Russell was fourth. It was a foregone conclusion that Aristo would win the race unless he fell down and pool selling languished, few caring to pay $8 for the field against $20 for Aristo.

In the third heat Durfee and Maben began to realize that the only way to beat the Nushagak colt was in the stretch as he could lead them all to the three-quarters, no matter how hard they drove. At the half in this mile, which was reached by Aristo in 1:09, Cuate was fourth and here Durfee called on the little son of McKinney. The twin pinned his ears back and began to dig. He had second position after turning into the stretch but although he trotted this half in 1:06, he was two lengths behind Aristo when the latter reached the wire amid a chorus of cheers from a large delegation of friends and admirers from Walnut Grove who occupied a section in the grand stand. The deciding heat was in 2:17½ and was fully equal to 2:15 on a good track.

The 2:13 pace, which was the remaining harness event on the program for Monday was a very tame affair and not a pleasant one to witness. El Diablo was the favorite at $20 to $5 for all the others. He started out by getting beaten in 2:17½ by Alone. As El Diablo was not over six lengths behind Miss Logan when she paced the Woodland track a few days previous in 2:06½, this looked bad, especially as the three year olds had just trotted a mile in 2:17½. The next heat the Diablo horse showed signs of life, however, and won easily in 2:13½. All knew that he could play with his field in this race as Alone had not recovered from her seven heat race at Woodland on Friday, and the others were clear out of his class. El Diablo won the third and fourth heats and the race as he pleased. In the first heat, John A. broke his hoppers just as the word was given and was distanced.

The running events were four in number and are described in the summaries which follow:

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9.

The crowd was much larger at the track on the second day, and the many close finishes in the racing made the program highly enjoyable. In the opening race there were six starters. Arketa sold favorite at $20 in the auctions, with Vi Direct bringing $5, and the field comprising Briney K., Zambra, Ole, and Trilby, $5. The horses scored repeatedly before the flag dropped, but finally got away to a fair start. At the quarter Ole was well in the lead with Vi Direct well up, Briney K. third, and the favorite well back. On the back stretch Vi Direct left his feet and Arketa passed him and went out after Ole, but was unable to overhaul him, and he finished an easy winner, Arketa second and Vi Direct, who was coming fast, third. Time, 2:18½. Trilby distanced.

The horses came out promptly for the second heat and got an early start. Ole broke on the first turn and was badly distanced. It was afterward learned that he threw his shoes and boots. Zambra led to the back stretch, broke and was passed by Vi Direct and Arketa. Passing the half Vi Direct left his feet and was passed by Arketa, who won by lengths, with Zambra second, Vi Direct third. Time, 2:20.

In the third heat the five contestants got away and traveled well bunched to the back stretch, where Arketa and Zambra went out in a very pretty team race, in which the mare outfooted Zambra to the stretch. Nearing the one-eighth Arketa left her feet and was passed by Vi Direct, which won the heat, Zambra second, Arketa third. Time, 2:19½.

The horses went away together in the fourth heat. Up the back stretch Zambra and Vi Direct made a pretty race of it to the half, Arketa falling back on a break. Nearing the stretch Arketa came fast and nearing the wire was closing on Vi Direct, but could not head out and the heat went to Vi Direct, Arketa second, Zambra third. Time, 2:18½.

In the fifth heat all the horses except Arketa and Vi Direct went to the stable for failing to win a heat. The pair went away like a double team, but Vi Direct left his feet at the quarter and Arketa gained a lead of twelve lengths, an advantage that Vi Direct could not overcome, and the heat went to Arketa in 2:25.

The sixth heat and race was won by Arketa, Vi Direct breaking at the quarter and losing all chance. Time, 2:27.

The second race, pacing, 2:25 class, had but five starters. In the auctions Alford C. and The Mrs. sold at $15, with the field at $9. The start was excellent. Harry J. cut out the work in the back stretch, with the others all well bunched with the exception of Enoch, his break on the first turn having put him far back. Past the half the four leaders went in one of the prettiest contested races that one would care to view. Coming into the stretch Alford C. slowly forged to the front and won in a drive from Harry J. by nearly a length. Time, 2:12½.

In the second heat, The Mrs. went to a break on the first turn and trailed all the way. Harry J., Alford C. and Rita H. made a beautiful three-horse race of it up the back stretch, traveling neck and neck. Passing the half, Rita went out in front a length with Harry J. a slight lead over Alford C. Coming into the stretch they closed up and made a grand race to the finish, where Bunch made a great drive with Enoch and pushed him under the wire half a length in front, Harry J. second, Rita H. third. Time, 2:15½.

In the third heat the horses got away with the field selling at $10, and Enoch bringing $5. It was a pretty contest up the back stretch, with The Mrs. and Harry J. doing a double team act in the lead. Nearing the half Harry J. went off his feet and The Mrs. had things her own way to the three-quarter, where she was overhauled by Enoch, who took the heat, The Mrs. second, Rita H. third. Time, 2:16½.

In the fourth heat they got away together on the first trial. Rita H. and The Mrs. contested for the lead to the half, with Enoch laying well up behind them. Coming down the stretch Bunch forced Enoch to the front and won in a drive from The Mrs., who came second, with Rita H. third and Alford C. distanced. Time, 2:20.

Five well contested running races completed the day's program. The summaries:

The premium list of the Fresno Fair is very liberal. Good prizes are offered for all kinds of live stock and farm produce.

Direct Hal 2:04½ and Prince Direct 2:07½ by Direct 2:05½ are two about as good pacers as have ever been out during one season.

A. C. Pennock, of Cleveland, O., has sold the pacing gelding Frank 2:10½, by Secretary, to Barney Demarest who represented a New York man.

Twelve grandly bred mares, stunted this year to the great McKinney 2:11½, are offered for sale by Palo Alto Stock Farm. See advertisement.

Entries for the Sonora meeting close next Monday, September 15th. There are $3000 in purses for harness horses. See the list in our business columns.

John A. McKerron seems to have completely outclassed both Lord Derby and The Monk, and many think he could give Cresceus 2:02½ the race of his life.

Eight splendid mares that were bred to Nutwood Wilkes (sire of the champion John A. McKerron) this year are among the horses catalogued for sale by Palo Alto Stock Farm.

The Transylvania will be trotted on the third day of the Lexington meeting, Thursday, October 9th. The Kentucky Futurity comes on the day following, Friday, October 10th.

Anzella 2:07½, who is about the best trotter on the Grand Circuit this year, was bred way up in the northwest corner of the United States by Thos. Ronan of Dayton, Washington.

The rule against laying up heats has been either ignored or else enforced so spasmodically at all of the important meetings this year that it has become the laughing stock of race-goers.—Boston Courier.

Star Pointer was the first and only horse of the nineteenth century to beat two minutes. Dan Patch is the first of the new century, and is two years younger than Star Pointer was when he made his record.

"Drive an honest race and try to win," said Deacon Partridge to his trainer, "but don't be too honest and try to win every heat; we may be obliged to walk home if you do."—Western Horseman.

Millard Sanders started Nora McKinney in the 2:17 class trot at Pimlico track, Baltimore, last Wednesday, and she won in straight heats, lowering her record in each heat. The time was 2:15½, 2:13½ and 2:12½.

Mr. C has. W. Bennett, of Marysville, claims the name Fasig-Tipton for a colt foaled January 1, 1902. His sire is a son of Gilt Edge and his dam by Elector Jr., second dam by Brigadier and third dam by St. Clair.

The pacer Junius 2:07½ by Online, which won both at Readville and Providence, is out of Maple Leaf, the granddaughter of Hambletonian, who also produced Goldleaf 2:16½, Theodore 2:18½, Ingot 2:26½ and Red Leaf 2:29½.

Among the new records made at the Woodland Fair last week are the following: Pacers—Miss Logan 2:06½, Alone 2:09½, Topsy 2:11½, Midnight 2:11½, Eagletta 2:11½, Silver Coin 2:11½, Doc Wilkes 2:12½, Harry J. 2:13, King Cadenza 2:15, Belle Rose 2:18, Dick Russell 2:22. Trotters—Petigru 2:10½, Vic Schiller 2:11½, Richmond Chief 2:11½, Alta Vela 2:12½, Cozad 2:13½, Lijero 2:14½, Forrest W. 2:14½, Cuate (3) 2:18, Tuberosa 2:25½, Lord Kitchener 2:29½. A pretty good showing for one meeting.

The descendants of Baron Wilkes 2:18 made an excellent showing at the Readville meeting. Five of them were among the money winners: Baron de Shay 2:10, Prince of Orange 2:11½, Baroness Powell (3) 2:16½, Chesko (3) 2:18½ and Dulce Cor.

Lady Thisbee has not won a heat this year, but second money in the $15,000 Massachusetts and the $10,000 Bonner Memorial has placed $6250 to her credit, which, with $600 won in other races, places her high on the season's list of breadwinners.

Prince Alert defeated Anaconda at Bethlehem, Pa., on Wednesday last in straight heats, in the two fastest heats ever paced on a half mile track. The time was 2:05 and 2:05½ and the last half of the first mile was in 1:01. There were thirty thousand people present.

The Calaveras District Fair will open October 7th at San Andreas. A program of four running races each day has been issued, the purses ranging from $75 to $150. The meeting will continue for five days. C. L. Burns is president of the association and Henry Weston secretary.

The Los Angeles running stakes, seven in number, close next Thursday. Six of them have $400 added, and the seventh, the Los Angeles Derby, $500 added. The complete list with conditions, appears in our advertising columns. Send your entries to Capt. Thos. B. Merry, Secretary.

Two good pacers are offered for sale by James W. Bonney, whose advertisement appears elsewhere. One is the Nutwood Wilkes mare Echora Wilkes 2:17½, record made this year. She is a large fine animal and can put in six heats in 2:20 or better. She is worth more than Mr. Bonney asks for her.

Andy McDowell, the American trainer, who went to Russia to try to identify a horse thought to be Oslund L. 2:16½, that has been raced in that country under another name, has written to his wife that the suspicions of the racing authorities were correct. He says he arrived in Moscow all right and identified the horse as Oslund L., whom he formerly owned and drove. There was no question of a doubt in his mind as to the identity of the horse the moment he caught sight of him. The case has been dragging along with the Russian authorities for some months, but they were unable to fasten the crime of "ringing" on the suspected parties until the horse was identified. McDowell was well paid for his trip.

There have been several surprises at the State Fair. Prince L., the handsome trotter by Escort, furnished one by winning the 2:30 trot on Wednesday. He was piloted by the veteran driver, Rowley, who received an ovation when he landed the third and deciding heat, beating a field of eleven horses.

Direct Hal's remarkable race at Providence stamps him second alone to Dan Patch among pacers. There are few horses able to pace the last half in 1:00 and the last quarter in 29 seconds and make up several lengths lost because of a break going away, yet Direct Hal has twice performed this remarkable feat.

Horsemen will never tire of discussing the contest in the Roger William stake at Providence. Trainer Golden said in regard to it, "I never saw a trotting race before in which there were eleven starters, every one of which could beat 2:10. Every one of them did show 2:10 speed in the race, and not one was distanced."

It was the same old story at Pimlico last Thursday. Anzella won her race and reduced her record a half second. It is now 2:07½. The Roman was second in this race. It looks as if Anzella had every race in which she is entered at her mercy this year. She is the only unbeaten trotter that has gone through the Grand Circuit.

The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association has made a new departure for the meeting this fall. Secretary Elliott W. Shanklin has just issued the complete program and in the list has included five events for cups by amateur drivers. They are for the 2:10 class pacing, free for all trotters, 2:11 pacing, free for all pacing and for 2:13 trotting. A large number of the events have been changed from the old three in five to two in three heats.

Henry Helman, who is called "Senator" Helman by the horsemen up north, secured both the trotting and pacing records of the Kings County Fair Association track at Seattle during the meeting there last month. He set the trotting record at 2:18 with Mack Mack by McKinney, and the pacing record at 2:12 with Myrtha Whips 2:10½.

Bedworth Jr., who dropped from the clouds and won the 2:14 pace at Providence, doing two heats in 2:06½ each, made a record last season of 2:14½. His sire, Bedworth 2:22½, trotting, is Palo Alto bred, a son of the dead Wildnut (who was by Woodnut 2:16½, dam Wildflower, 2, 2:21, by Electioneer) and Julia Benton, by Gen. Benton.

Secretary Horace W. Wilson of the Empire City track says that the match race between Dan Patch 1:59½ and Prince Alert 2:00½, which takes place at their meeting next month, was not made to settle the question of speed between the two pacers, but in reality with the hope of having a harness horse cover a mile in two minutes or better over Empire Park. A $5000 purse is offered, winner to take all, and will be decided on the second day of the meeting, September 16th, which falls on Tuesday next.

Last week M. E. Sturgis paid J. E. Hubinger $4000 for Baron de Shay, son of Jacob Ruppert's $15,700 stallion Oakland Baron 2:09½. At Providence on Monday McHenry won a $2500 race and marked the gelding 2:08½ in the concluding heat, a fast performance, and as first money was $1250, the winnings doubtless paid for the newcomer in full, as Zephyr 2:11, the unbeaten Zombro filly, was played hard by the educated bettors supposed to be in touch as concerns race form. McHenry has a light stable, yet no driver has accomplished more.

Says Kentucky Stock Farm: "Millard Sanders started Sir Albert S. 2:08½ at Providence, the first race the California pacer has had to date this season, owing to sickness. Prior to it he had never lost a race. He showed the way to the half in 1:02, and was prominent to the head of the homestretch, but lack of staying-up work showed and he was hopelessly out of it. Sanders leased the horse to race the Grand Circuit 2:08 classes, and is out of pocket not a little because obliged to lay the fast horse off and pay entrance fees everywhere with no start."

The privileges (betting, etc.) of the Breeders meeting at Fresno are advertised in another part of this paper. This will be one of the big meetings of the year and Fresno people say it will break all records for attendance. As the county owns the fair grounds, no alcoholic liquors will be sold, but this will make the privilege of selling soft drinks and ice cream still more valuable. It is a very noticeable fact that the crowds that attend fairs in California do not drink one-tenth the amount of strong liquor that was their custom years ago, but iced lemonade and mineral water are sold in large quantities.

Alex. Brown of Walnut Grove Stock Farm, who owns the stallion Nushagak (sire of this year's Occident Stake winner, Aristo), says he has seven three-year-olds by his horse, all of which have shown speed enough to trot in standard time, but only two, Aristo and The Boquet, have been trained to any extent. The latter is as fast as Aristo, but is now suffering from an attack of distemper. Mr. Brown has no yearlings or two-year-olds by Nushagak, as he has bred nearly all his mares to outside stallions for the past two years, but says that he will quit this next season and patronize his own horse. It looks as if he had a great speed sire in Nushagak.

This is by far the best year for light harness sport in the history of the turf. The trotters and pacers are becoming more popular every year. The Readville meeting, although bad weather cut down the attendance considerably, was the best since the association became a member of the Grand Circuit. One thing noticeable at both Readville and at Providence was that the crowd came every day instead of picking out one day and staying away the rest of the week. At Readville there was very little difference in the attendance on the three big days and not a light crowd any day of the meeting and at Providence the grand stand was crowded all five days.—Boston Courier.

R. E. Toll, the well known trainer, who took Richmond Chief, a crippled horse, and made a campaigner out of him for Mr. T. H. Fogarty of Bakersfield, is entitled to great credit for the condition in which he has brought this steel gray fellow to his races. It was about two years ago that Mr. Toll induced Mr. Fogarty to give Willard Stimson of Los Angeles, $250 for Richmond Chief, and when Mr. Fogarty got the horse home to Bakersfield he thought Toll had handed him a gold brick. Mr. Toll asked for a little time with the trotter and began giving his legs plenty of hand rubbing every day. Richmond Chief was jogged and used on the roads, but not moved fast at any time. A mile in 2:40 would be the limit of the speed asked of him and bandages would never be kept on more than a half hour or so after his jogging exercise. Mr. Toll would spend twenty minutes hand rubbing each leg and soon had them as smooth and hard as bone and sinew can get. After the five heat race in Woodland on Tuesday of last week, which Richmond won and in which he took a record of 2:11½, his legs showed no signs of lameness and were not fevered in the least. On Saturday of the same week he again won and reduced his mark to 2:11½, and the next morning there was no evidence of fever or swelling. Richmond Chief is fourteen years old, has had many a hard race and two years ago it was thought he was hopelessly broken down. Mr. Toll says he does not believe in the firing iron as time and patience will accomplish better results in most instances.

WOODLAND'S GREAT FAIR.

Agricultural District No. 40 Sets a High Standard of Excellence.

The first held in the State for years. It is the general verdict of those who attended the fair and race meeting given by Agricultural District No. 40 at Woodland, Yolo county, last week. The harness racing was high class in every respect, the stock show excellent and the pavilion exhibits the best ever seen at a district fair in California. Energetic and intelligent management, endorsed and assisted by the people of Yolo county, made the fair a success, and a first class track, good starting and the absence of bookmaking were all conducive to the magnificent racing furnished by the harness horses. The Woodland association has shown that a high class fair and race meeting can be successfully given without bookmaking and it is to be hoped that other associations will profit by its example.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 4.

Thursday's attendance at the Woodland fair beat all former records, and the receipts exceeded by nearly a hundred dollars the largest amount previously taken in at the park gate. The horses caught the record-breaking fever and in the free-for-all pace the track record was reduced twice from its former mark of 2:07½ set by Little Thorne in 1900, and Miss Logan now holds the record of 2:06½, which was also a record breaking performance for her, as she reduced her previous mark a quarter of a second. It was a great day for Woodland, and the local favorite and Yolo county product, Kelly Briggs 2:10½, covered himself with glory and proved himself one of the greatest pacers in the 2:11 class in America, as he was lapped on Miss Logan when she crossed the wire in 2:06½ and his separate time was 2:06½.

The day was hot, but by one o'clock the grand stand was completely filled and four or five hundred buggies and carriages occupied the infield from the last eighth pole to the first turn. Woodland only has a population of about 3000 people and it was estimated that there were nearly that many persons at the track.

The free-for-all pace had four starters: Miss Logan 2:06½ by Gen. Logan, Kelly Briggs 2:10½ by Bayswater Wilkes, El Diablo 2:12½ by Diablo and Toppy 2:11½ by Delphi. Miss Logan ruled favorite at $25 to $13 for the field, and a few pools were sold at $10 for Miss Logan, $6 for Kelly Briggs and $3 for the other two.

When Starter Stevens gave the word in the first heat Kelly Briggs went right to the front, with Toppy and El Diablo close alongside. Miss Logan was a length behind as she turned into the curve, with her driver and breeder, Dr. Boucher, using his utmost strength to keep from running over the leaders as he was close to the pole. Just before they reached the eighth pole El Diablo, who was attired in a new pair of hoppers that did not fit him, went to a break and it was almost a miracle that Miss Logan did not pace over the top of Farrar and his sulky. By an extra exertion and a cool head, Dr. Boucher succeeded in checking Miss Logan, however, a collision was avoided and set sail for the leaders. The mare paced up the back stretch in 30½ seconds and caught Kelly Briggs at the half. The steady going son of Bayswater Wilkes was not to be shaken off and kept close up all the time, and when Miss Logan crossed the wire in 2:07½ he was only two lengths away and his separate time was 2:08. Toppy was third and El Diablo fourth.

It was now considered by the spectators that Miss Logan rather outclassed her field and the pools were sold on the other three for place, Kelly Briggs being the favorite at $10 to $6 for the other two, El Diablo admirers taking most of the short end. When they got the word Miss Logan took the lead and kept it till the end. Down the stretch there was a horse race that was worth seeing. El Diablo made a wonderful rush at the three-quarters and closed on the mare. Kelly Briggs seemed to come just as fast, but the handsome granddaughter of old Alexander Button would not be denied and she completed the circuit in 2:06½ amid tremendous cheering, with El Diablo second, Kelly Briggs third and Toppy fourth. El Diablo and Kelly Briggs paced this mile within a quarter of a second of each other and not more than a half second behind the mare's time.

It was now thought that the mare was invincible and she was, but Kelly Briggs made her pace the heat of her life to land it. Mr. Hoy, the breeder, owner and driver of Kelly Briggs, and owner of his sire, said to the writer before the race: "Miss Logan ought to beat my little horse to-day on class, but she will have to lower her record to do it." This was about as accurate a prophecy as we ever heard on a race track. The third heat began with a good start and Boucher and Hoy went to the front and were lapped all the way. Around the far turn they were side by side, Kelly Briggs having the longest road to travel as he was on the outside. El Diablo made a break on the back stretch which put him behind several lengths. When the two leaders turned into the home stretch, they were nose and nose, and the people in the grand stand were cheering excitedly. At the eighth pole Miss Logan had a half length lead, but Hoy called on his little horse for another effort and he responded with a burst that called forth a wild cheer of enthusiasm as he was at the mare's throat latch in the new three or four strides. Dr. Boucher was driving hard and Miss Logan seemed at her limit. Kelly Briggs put on another pound or two of steam and his dilated nostrils were even with those of the mare. Fifty feet from the wire it looked as if he would have an inch the best of it at the end but he broke and lost a yard or two and it was Miss Logan's race in 2:06½ for the last heat with Kelly Briggs second in 2:06½. Yolo's pride was beaten, but not disgraced and the unanimous opinion of the leading horsemen at the track was that Kelly Briggs is the best horse on the turf to-day in the 2:11 class. Throughout the race he had acted like a veteran, made but one break, paced three heats faster than ever before in his life, with each succeeding heat faster than the preceding one. It was a great race made possible by a first class track and four high class pacers. El Diablo showed a wonderful burst of speed after recovering from his break on the back stretch and was close up to the leaders at the finish. He will surely get a mark of 2:08 or better this year if no accident befalls him. The race was the fastest three heat contest ever seen on this coast.

The pacing race for horses driven by local drivers which was on the card for the same day, was a split heat affair and was won by a handsome son of Diablo that has had but a very limited amount of work. The second heat in this race was a very close finish, Nick Russell being in the lead by a head, but the judges awarded the heat to Belle Rose on her driver's complaint that Nick Russell interfered with her on the back stretch when he swerved and tried to jump over a shadow. Belle Rose was distanced in the third heat and Nick Russell won the next three. There was no question about his being the best horse in the race.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5.

After the record breaking attendance of Thursday it was natural that there should be a falling off in the attendance on Friday, but there was a crowd present that would have been considered large at any other district meeting in California. The racing was up to the high standard set on previous days. It was Sacramento day, a race for members of the Sacramento Driving Club being on the program. This was not an exciting affair, Mr. F. E. Wright's mare, Margaretta by Direct, winning in straight heats, the best heat being the second in 2:16½.

The 2:25 pace furnished a horse race, however, and when sundown came, six heats had been paced and Alone, Eagletta and Harry J. had won two each, Yukon, the favorite, acting very badly and being sent to the stable for not winning a heat in five. In the first heat Yukon and Eagletta both broke almost as soon as the word was given. Alone went to the front and led until she reached the half where she lost her feet and was passed by The Mrs. and Rita H. Alone recovered from her break and set sail for the lead at a two-minute clip. She passed the leaders in the stretch and won the heat in 2:11½, a new record for her. Harry J. was second. Alone paced the last quarter of this heat in 30½ seconds.

In the second heat Alone took the lead and kept it, but Will Durfee brought Eagletta up very fast in the stretch and Alone was only a neck in the lead as she crossed the wire in 2:09½, the fastest heat by a green pacer in California this year and the first below 2:10 by any but the free for all class the day previous. It was also an honor for her sire, Nearest, as it was a 2:10 performer for him at eight years of age.

Before the third heat the field brought $10 in the auctions to $9 for Alone. The start was straggling, and Harry J. broke immediately after passing under the wire. Alone led all the way around to the head of the stretch. There she was challenged by Eagletta, The Mrs. and Rita H. It was a driving finish, but Eagletta had a little the best of it, and won by a neck. The time was 2:11½. Rita H. was drawn after this heat.

Eagletta now sold for $10, Yukon for $8 and the field for $3.

At the word Harry J. went to the front and was never headed. Eagletta made a supreme effort on the homestretch, but died away fifty yards from the wire. Yukon lost all chance for the heat by a bad break on the first turn. Alone, with two heats to her credit, laid up this heat. The time was 2:13.

Pools now sold Yukon $10, Eagletta $5, field $7. When the horses got away for the fifth heat Alone was behind, but her driver nodded for the go. Harry J. held the lead all the way around, but on the homestretch Alone made a bid for the heat but failed. The time was 2:15. Yukon and The Mrs. were sent to the stable for not winning a heat in five.

It was getting close to sundown when time was up for the sixth heat, and Alone was slow in coming on the track, her owner going to the stand and asking a few minutes' time to tighten a loose shoe on his mare. Starting judge Stevens had the sundown calendar and his watch in hand and succeeded in giving the field the word before the sun had set. There being only three horses to start they were not long in getting away. Alone assumed a slight lead. Down the stretch Harry J. and Eagletta were in easy reach until the latter broke and lost a distance. At the head of the stretch the race seemed to be over. Alone had such a commanding lead that it hardly seemed possible that she would be headed. But she quit half way home and was passed by both Eagletta and Harry J. Time, 2:18. It was now almost dark, and the finish of the race was postponed until 1 o'clock Saturday.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6.

The closing day of the Woodland fair brought out a very large attendance. Every seat in the grand stand was occupied and at least five hundred rigs were in the infield. Although it was Saturday every business house in Woodland was closed during the afternoon that everybody might attend the fair and races.

The deciding heat of the 2:25 pace was called promptly at 1 o'clock. There were but three starters and each horse a winner of two heats. All showed the effects of the hard race of the day previous. Eagletta won the heat in 2:13 and took first money. Harry J., by one of his unfortunate breaks, was distanced, thus giving third money to The Mrs. and fourth to Yukon, non-heat winners. This race was one of the best betting contests seen on the circuit this year.

The special trot for Richmond Chief, Vic Schiller and Alta Vela was also a hotly contested race. In the second heat of this event Will Durfee drove "the little blue horse" a mile in 2:10½, but owing to the stallion having a sore mouth he swerved in the stretch and crossed in front of Vic Schiller, and the judges awarded the heat to the latter, whose time was 2:11½. Richmond Chief won the next two heats and the race, however, and the contest was voted an excellent one.

In the 2:30 trot Lijero was the favorite and won in straight heats, reducing his record to 2:14½ in the second mile and giving McKinney his twenty-second 2:15 performer. Vi Direct by Direct was second in each heat and made Lijero trot his best to win.

During the afternoon Bert Webster drove Bonnie Direct an exhibition mile, making the circuit in 2:07, which shows that he is in fine fettle at the present time, although he has not had the work necessary to put him in racing form where the time is likely to be close to his record of 2:05½.

H. H. Dunlap also drove his pacer King Cadenza an exhibition mile. He made the circuit in 2:15 flat, a half second below his former record.

The running races during the week, while all at distances under a mile, resulted in excellent contests in nearly every instance, and on two occasions there were nose and nose finishes between three horses.

JOHN A. McKERRON WINS THE CUP.Defeats The Monk and Lord Derby in Straight Heats at Cleveland.

A California-bred horse has proved himself the greatest wagon trotter of the year by winning that coveted prize, the Boston Challenge Cup, and out-trotting The Monk 2:05½ and Lord Derby 2:05¾, the two great race winners of the Grand Circuit in the free-for-all class.

Twelve thousand people saw the race, which was trotted on Friday, September 5th, at Cleveland. Strange to say, it was rather an easy race for Mr. Devereux's great stallion by Nutwood Wilkes, and stamps him as the highest-class trotter that has appeared for years. Lord Derby drew the pole and rushed to the half in 1:02½, but McKerron trotted the third quarter in 30 seconds, a two-minute clip, and overhauled the son of Mambrino King. It was an even thing half way down the stretch and then Lord Derby went to a tired break, the clip being too much for him. McKerron jogged in and the time was 2:07¼, the fastest mile ever trotted in the three cup races. The Monk had given it up after passing the half, and was pretty well back at the finish.

In the second heat Messrs. Billings and Smathers allowed Mr. Devereux to set the pace until the half was reached in 1:04, and then they set sail for him with the idea of beating him in the stretch. Lord Derby was the first to catch up with him, which he did before the three-quarter pole was reached; but, as before, McKerron's pace was too fast for him and he broke again in the stretch and his chances were gone, as McKerron again jogged home a winner in 2:08.

The twelve thousand people present went wild with enthusiasm as the result of the race made the challenge cup the permanent property of the Cleveland Driving Club, of which Mr. Devereux is the honored president.

John A. McKerron was bred by Mr. Martin Carter, owner of the Nutwood Stock Farm of Irvington, Cal. He is by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, son of Guy Wilkes 2:15½. His dam is Ingar by Director, and his grandam Annie Titus by Echo. Both are in the great broodmare list. As has been well said by a member of the Cleveland Driving Club, since Mr. Devereux has owned John A. McKerron the horse has done everything that has been asked of him. He has won all his races handily, trotted the last part of his miles the fastest whenever necessary, and is game to the core. He was named by Mr. Carter for Mr. John A. McKerron, the leading harness maker of the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Thurman of Ohio Gives an Opinion.

The following extracts from a letter written by Allen W. Thurman of Ohio to Hamilton Busbey, editor of the New York Turf, Field and Farm, will be read with interest by all, and fully agreed with by many California horse owners:

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 22, 1902

My Dear Busbey: The enclosed from the Turf, Field and Farm, and the great lot of talk which is being indulged in upon the subject of laying up heats, prompts me to write you concerning this alleged great evil.

Now, if it is such an evil, there must be better reasons given why it is so than can be given why it is not, and if the present heat system is to be continued I fail to see how this can be done.

The principal reason given against the practice is that it is so manifestly unfair and wrong for a horse that may not be able to trot quite so fast as some other horse in the race, not to endeavor to win for a heat or two, that, therefore, there must be something dishonest about it and it should be stopped. Now, why is it unfair? What is so wrong about it, and why is it said to be dishonest? Do those who enter horses in these different races do so only for the purpose of winning a heat or so, or do they enter them for the purpose of winning the races? Evidently if we are to have honest racing it should be for the latter purpose. Besides, those who enter their horses are compelled to pay large entrance fees. In other words, they are in reality compelled by the rules to wager so much of their own money that they will win, not any particular heat or heats, but that they will win the race. This being so, on what grounds can it be said that they must so handle their horses that all chances of winning the race will not only be practically destroyed, but all the money they have been compelled to pay to start substantially confiscated? If it is dishonest for a driver not to try to win the race, is it not equally dishonest for him to follow that course which will make it almost certain that he cannot win it? And more, is it honest on the part of officials, either toward him or toward the public who bet on the race, to compel him to do that which will most seriously jeopardize, probably destroy not only his chances for winning the purse or premium, but the money he has paid for the privilege of contending and the public's money besides?

If there is either honesty or common sense in such a proposition I fail to detect it.

To punish a man by fines and penalties for using his best judgment to accomplish that which the rules say he must accomplish, if possible, and if he doesn't accomplish it he will probably be charged with dishonesty, is about the most nonsensical kind of a law that can well be conceived of.

Why, from reading the comments and hearing the talk we are compelled to do on this subject, we are driven to the conclusion that the men who are engaged in the breeding, training and racing of trotting horses are not so engaged from any pecuniary interest, but simply for the purpose of letting the public see their horses driven around some speed ring. Now, is this the purpose and aim of those who are engaged in this business? Not by any means. The breeding, rearing, training and racing of horses has become an immense commercial industry, and as such it must be conducted on sound financial lines if it is to be continued.

If no heats should be laid up because it is dishonest to do so, then those who urge it should be compelled to show toward what class or what part of the public that this is the case. I think I have shown that it is not necessarily so in the case of either the owner or the driver, but on the contrary that by doing this they may be only exercising their intelligence to protect both themselves and the public against loss. If this is true, then the dishonesty must come in with some other portion of the public. Now, who compose this other part of the public? Why, as a rule, I believe it consists of a set of "pikers" who follow the practice of betting in the books on heats. And is this the class, even of the betting men, who keep up racing? Not by any means. On the contrary, the large bettors and the general public lay their wagers not on the result of heats, but on the result of the race. Only greenhorns and the dishonest horsemen and drivers play heats.

Are we then to destroy what is simply an alleged evil to promote a real one, viz., bookmaking on heats? No, this should not be done, but instead this last form of betting should be driven from the trotting turf, for it is a continual incentive to fraud, and will continue to bring disgrace until it is abolished. When it is, we will hear very much less about dishonesty in connection with our trotting races. Why, you can well remember when we used to run heat races. Did we bet on the heats? No, this was done on the race. And did you ever hear of Mr. Alexander or Mr. Clay or Dr.

Warfield, Colonel Bruce, Major Thomas, General Buford, Uncle Walter, and a score of others you will recall being accused of dishonesty and called cheats because they did not run for every heat? What then has brought all this cry up about this practice in connection with the trotting races? There are hundreds of men who are now engaged in the breeding and racing of trotters who are just as high-minded and honest gentlemen as those I have mentioned, so it cannot be here where the trouble lies, but it is, I most firmly believe, principally in the system of bookmaking on heats. One thing to my mind is certain, if the system of heat racing is to be continued, and I believe it should be, and that is, if the practice of fining and imposing penalties upon those who best use their brains to win racers, not heats, is not stopped you will soon drive all honest men out of the business.

You must pardon me for the imposition of such a long screed as this. It may seem entirely out of place, for I have no trotters and the only excuse I can offer for this infliction is my desire to see all racing conducted upon such a basis as will always have a tendency to promote honesty in it, and to let nothing be done that will have a tendency in the other direction.

Yours sincerely, ALLEN W. THURMAN

The Tranter-Kenney Company.

In the Kentucky Stock Farm brief mention was made of the recently incorporated horse sale firm under the name of The Tranter-Kenney Company. Since the organization of the new firm the members have received many congratulations and offers of cordial support. The senior member of the firm, E. J. Tranter of Buffalo, has been a most successful horse auctioneer. He has for several years been secretary of Village Farm. He has had much experience among horsemen, having successfully managed several important trotting meetings, and is now President of the Lake Erie Circuit and a member of the executive committee of the Buffalo Driving Club. He has a wide acquaintance among the trotting horsemen of America. He has brains, energy, pluck, the confidence of horsemen, and, what is equally as important, sufficient means with which to carry out his business plans. The younger member of the firm, Frank P. Kenney, needs no introduction to the trotting horsemen of America, having been conspicuously before them by reason of his connection with the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association in his capacity as assistant secretary, as manager of the trotting horse department of the Montana Racing Circuit, as secretary of the Louisville Trotting Association and as secretary and business manager of the Kentucky Stock Farm. Mr. Kenney has the faculty for making friends and is an astute horseman. Mr. Tranter is known to California horsemen, having managed the dispersal sale of the stable of Milo M. Potter at Los Angeles last December, a sale that ranks among the most successful ever held on the Coast.

PALO ALTO STOCK FARM advertises at private sale a list of producing stallions and mares that cannot be equalled on any one breeding farm in the world. They are all standard bred trotters and the list, which will be found in our advertising columns, contains the names of three stallions and twenty mares that would make in themselves one of the grandest aggregations of animals that could be selected to start a breeding farm to produce the highest class race winners and record breakers. The list of stallions is headed by Mendocino, one of the grandest muscled stallions in America, and the sire of Idolita 2:08½ and Monte Carlo 2:11½, two of this year's fast trotters. The next is Monbells, the last and probably the greatest of Beautiful Bells' magnificent family. He is by Mendocino and has a record of 2:23½ that is not within ten seconds of his speed. The other stallion is Ex-ioner, and there is not another like him in America. He is only five years old and is untried, but is a magnificent individual and is by Boodle 2:12½ out of the greatest of three year old trotters, Expressive 2:12½ by Electioneer. The twenty broodmares catalogued are nearly all producers of speed. There is Helena 2:11½, the dam of Wild Nutting 2:11½, Elden 2:19½, dam of the great Eleata 2:08½, Liska 2:28½, dam of Lunda 2:25½, Lucyneer 2:27, dam of Lucrativa 2:13½ and Minnie B. 2:15½, Rosemont, a daughter of Beautiful Bells and the dam of two in the list, Sweet Water 2:26, a daughter of the great Stamboul 2:07½ and the dam of Adabella 2:25½ as a two year old. These are only a few of those advertised for sale, but the list is sufficient to show the quality of goods that is offered. Of these mares, twelve are bred to McKinney 2:11½ and eight to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, two of the greatest stallions that have ever stood for service in California. There could be columns written of these mares and their blood lines, and the great combination of speed producing blood that will flow in the veins of the foals which they will produce next spring, but space will not permit. We ask all those who desire to secure the very best there is in the way of standard bred trotting stallions or broodmares to open communication with the Palo Alto management. Superintendent Covey will furnish all the particulars with pleasure, and every word that he writes may be depended upon as a clear statement of the facts.

NO FURTHER EVIDENCE than that furnished by the Woodland meeting last week is needed to prove that races at the California fairs can be successfully conducted without bookmaking. Not only did the Woodland meeting receive a larger patronage from the public than ever before, but the racing was of higher class and the contests were closer and more exciting. The revenue derived from the betting privilege was not more than one-third the amount that could have been had from a bookmaker granted the exclusive right to control it, but the loss from this resource was more than balanced by the increase in gate receipts and the high class character of the racing. At no meeting in California for years has there been so few "touts" in evidence. This fact was remarked on all sides and favorably commented upon. The Board of Supervisors of Yolo county made an appropriation to aid the fair. There are several members of this Board who fully realize the evils of bookmaking as conducted in California on the syndicate plan, and they secured the adoption of a proviso to the resolution of appropriation whereby the money would not be available if bookmaking on the races was permitted. The taxpayers and people generally endorsed the plan and to show their endorsement turned out in large numbers and made the attendance at both park and pavilion larger than ever before. The Yolo county people have established a precedent that can be followed with profit by every district in the State.

THE SHIPPEE SALE, to take place at Nelson, Butte county, on Saturday, September 27th, will be one of the greatest sales ever held in the interior of this State. The well known auctioneer, William G. Layng, will conduct the sale. There are sixty handsome trotting bred horses, mares and geldings by Hawthorne, Ha Ha, Director and Dexter Prince, sixty large, well broken mules and two very fine jacks. Write to Wm. G. Layng, 246 Third street, San Francisco, for catalogues and all particulars.

Aptos Farm Sale.

The sale of trotting horses from Mr. A. B. Spreckels' Aptos Stock Farm, which is to be held at William G. Layng's Occidental Horse Exchange, on Friday, October 3d, will give buyers an opportunity to get something extra choice. They are all young horses thoroughly broken, single and double, and have been especially fitted for this sale by Sandy Smith, who is an expert at teaching horses good manners. There are several that show promise of great speed. Besides the twelve head from Aptos Stock Farm, there will be four consigned by Mr. W. Ford Thomas, two of which are handsome broodmares, one in foal to McKinney, the other to Nutwood Wilkes. The horses consigned to the sale are as follows:

PROPERTY OF A. B. SPRECKELS.

Holiday Racing at San Mateo.

The San Mateo Athletic Club gave a very successful program of sporting events at the Hobart track on Tuesday of this week in honor of the fifty-second anniversary of the admission of California into the Union. Mr. Walter Hobart very kindly donated the use of the track and grounds and the club arranged a program of athletic sports of all kinds as well as several harness and running races. It is estimated that three thousand people were present, the many handsome turnouts from Burlingame adding much to the picturesqueness of the scene.

Messrs. J. H. Coleman and William Brown acted as judges, and the timing was done by Messrs. E. A. Husing and Jas. Wisnom. Mr. Frank G. O'Kane of San Francisco, performed the arduous duties of starter with credit to himself and entire satisfaction to all. The racing was held on the three-quarter mile track, and the results are as follows:

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR.

$10, Rosalind $5 and Tom Smith $5. The large field was a hard one to handle and the start was much delayed. The bunch eventually got away with Faust and Walling in the rear.

At the quarter Iloilo led, with Prince L. close up and Swift Bird following. At the half Swift Bird was in front, Prince L. next and Iloilo in third position. Coming down the stretch Prince L. came to the front and won in a jog, with Cicero second and Cornelius D. third. Time, 2:21½. Princess was distanced.

In the second heat Prince L. took the lead at the quarter and was never headed. Rosalind followed with Iloilo third. Time, 2:19. Prince L. won easily. Delia McCarthy and Cornelius D. distanced for running.

In the third heat Prince L. was crowded out of the pole before the quarter was reached and Rosalind, Iloilo and Cicero went to the front, trotting a beautiful triple race to the half, with Prince L. and aged driver in sixth position, but coming fast. In the head of the stretch Cicero was leading a length, Rosalind a length in front of Prince L. Coming down the stretch and nearing the wire Prince L., superbly driven, took the outside route and won in a hard drive; Cicero second, Rosalind third. Time, 2:21½. Rowley, the driver of Prince L., whose heavy, white beard attested his advanced years, was roundly cheered when he saluted the judges.

The pace in the 2:15 class brought out six starters with Silver Coin selling in the auctions at $10 and the field $5. After scoring a few times they got away well bunched. At the quarter Doc Wilkes led with Silver Coin and Gaff Topsail well up. Doc Wilkes held the lead to the opening of the stretch, when Silver Coin came up and in a hard drive won the heat. Doc Wilkes second, Gaff Topsail third. Time, 2:15. At the turn into the stretch Diablita flew the track and crashed through the fence, coming down in a heap on the exercise track. She was apparently but little injured, and was led to the stable bleeding slightly from the mouth and nose. Dwain, her driver, escaped with a few scratches on the face.

The second heat all the horses went away ahead of the pole horse. At the quarter Doc Wilkes was leading, with Gaff Topsail next. Silver Coin and Eagletta contesting for the third place. Down the stretch Doc Wilkes had it all his own way and won in a jog. Eagletta second, Silver Coin third. Time, 2:15. Gaff Topsail and Dakin D. distanced.

In the third heat Doc Wilkes and Silver Coin did a double team contest to the head of the stretch, where Eagletta came up and won the heat in a hard drive from Doc Wilkes with Silver Coin third. Time, 2:16½.

In the fourth heat the horses got away well together. At the quarter Eagletta and Doc Wilkes got together and made a double team trip to the stretch, where Doc Wilkes drew away from the mare and won in a jog by ten lengths in 2:16, Silver Coin being distanced.

In the fifth heat Doc Wilkes went into the lead before reaching the quarter, and led handily all the way, winning in a jog. Time, 2:19½.

Four running races completed the day's program.

"Worth Its Weight in Gold."

MITCHELL, ONT.
The Lawrence-Williams Co., Cleveland, Ohio:
I must congratulate you, gentlemen, on your Gombault's Caustic Balm. It is one of the best blisters in the world. It is worth its weight in gold. I have a valuable mare that had a lump on her knee, and it took it clean off. It was a good-sized lump and got hard. I tried ———, but it failed to do its work. It is taking the run here with horsemen. It has done good work.

The Old Hunting Coat.

A thing of stiff canvas, dirt spotted and torn;
Soiled corduroy collar; huge pockets that tote
The game; and its fabric is crumpled and worn;
Yet memories cling to the old hunting coat.

Its color of tan with the ground smoothly blends
And frights not the timid and sharp-sighted game;
By delicate thread its lone button suspends,
Untouched by the hand of the unseeing dame.

On the sleeve a light feather seems destined to stay;
And its pockets conceal but a motley array
Of pipe and tobacco shells, matches and string.

And many a night it has pillowed the head
That rested in peace 'neath a sheltering tent
That on some stream's banks, tree-protected, was spread,
Where few but Dame Nature's wild creatures e'er went.

Ah, if it could speak! It would eagerly tell
Of long, breathless chase through the thicket and thorns
In pursuit of the elk that fought nobly and well,
But whose antlers the old hunting coat now adorns.

Or perhaps it would whisper of morning's sharp chill
And rush-hidden boat in some lake at daylight,
And speak of the silence; and e'en of the thrill
That it felt when the canvasback started the flight.

Or yet it could speak of the favorite camp
Where the brook makes sweet music and soft breezes blow;
And the odor of firs and of wild flowers, dew damp,
And the leaping of trout where the slender weeds grow.

The broadcloth may scorn it, the woolen may sneer,
Aristocrats they, keeping always remote;
Yet none of them offers the comfort and cheer
And happiness found in the old hunting coat.

The Blazed Tree.

No hunter, woodsman, guide, forester or camper-out needs to be told the meaning of "blaze"—he knows it as he knows the alphabet. And should we turn to the latest and best dictionary we should find it to mean: "To indicate or mark out, as by cutting off pieces of the bark of a number of trees in succession, as to blaze a path through a forest." In the early days when the Eastern States were nearly all woods, when clearings were being made and there were few or no roads, travel from place to place or from neighbor to neighbor was by means of the blazed paths through the forest, and so has it been in the Western and Coast States, in due course following the pioneer settling up of the country. Hunters and woodsmen are in the habit of blazing their course through the deep woods in order that they may not become lost, but at any point can retrace their steps, and by means of the blazed trees return to their place of starting or of entering the woods.

To blaze is to clip off from the trees by an axe or hatchet, or to hack with the hunting knife, for lack of better implement, a portion of the bark of the trees, cutting sufficiently deep to take off a small portion of the wood beneath the bark. In general the custom is, in blazing for a path very small trees are cut, while in blazing for the bounds of a lot or a town or a farm line, larger trees are selected, the blaze being usually breast high. When, however, as is often the case, lines are blazed upon deep snows in winter on snowshoes, the snow being some seasons four to six or more feet deep, the blaze is high up on the trees. After such blazes have grown over and his lines are hunted for in after years, it is often necessary to look high up upon the trees for them, which failing to do often gives surveyors much trouble in locating or following lines.

In running a line or establishing bounds through a forest the surveyor blazes in this manner: If the line goes to the left of a tree designed to be blazed, the tree is blazed upon the right side; if to the right the tree is blazed upon the left side; if the line strikes the tree "plump" it is blazed upon both the front and rear sides. In running a boundary line at a corner where two lines come together either a monument is erected—a stake and four boulders being usually regarded as such a monument—or a tree is blazed on all four sides, or, as is sometimes the case, three or four trees are scarred so as to indicate as nearly as possible the turning point in the line, or, in other words, its corner, around which they grow. In some states the surveyor registers the distance from one of these posts or monuments at every even mile, thereby establishing his line with absolute certainty at that point and giving a secondary basis for the written description of the boundary required in title deeds and abstracts of claims.

The permanency of the record made by blazing trees is quite remarkable, and it is a matter of fact that in many cases of disputed lines or boundaries of lots in forest land, the courts have held the record of the blazes where carefully drawn plans and formally attested title deeds have been set aside as containing possible errors. The wound of the blazed tree heals over, but never so completely that the scar will not be readily recognized by the experienced woodsman. Therefore so long as the blazed tree escapes the axe of the lumberman, so long such tree is an ineffaceable record to the truth of the line. The surveyor's recorded figures may be in error, and his written description may not coincide with the line he has traced on the tree trunks with his hatchet, but blazes are unchanging, and in a court of law they are undisputable evidence. They cannot be made to lie, no cross-examination can confuse them, no argument can confuse them, they fix dates as accurately as they preserve inscriptions. The outer shell which has grown over the scar is sawed away and the rings in the wood beneath the bark testify to the date.

This whole subject is most interesting. Whether taken as an early landmark in the history of a state or district before roads were common, as establishing bounds of farms, or settling disputed points in town or great lot lines in cases before courts, the blazed tree is a factor of historic and legal importance that can hardly be overestimated.

A Bulldog is rather an expensive piece of dog flesh to start with, but when the dog has a fancy for diamond jewelry as a diet, then it is time to draw the line. Mrs. W. McMaster Mills of Greenwich, Conn., was much put out by the loss of her diamonds which her pet bulldog Sport swallowed. The dog was placed in durance vile and dosed, plentifully, with unendurable vile stuffs. The jewels were finally recovered and the dog gained his freedom. Mrs. Mills told her friends that she had the three rings again and that the dog had truly swallowed them as she surmised. The dog had been under a veterinary's care and X-rays were used on him to see if the rings were really there. Their location was discovered and then the dog was made to disgorge.

Interstate Commerce in Birds and Game.

The United States Department of Agriculture, through Hon. James Wilson, Secretary, has issued a circular, which will be, to sportsmen as well as others, of much interest in giving information regarding the shipment of birds and game, dead or alive, and laws affecting the plumage traffic. We reprint the circular here for the benefit of such of our readers as may not have received a copy of it.

"In order to secure a more general observance of the act of May 25, 1900, entitled 'An act to enlarge the powers of the Department of Agriculture, prohibit the transportation by interstate commerce of game killed in violation of local laws, and for other purposes,' the Department invites attention to the provisions of the Federal and State laws relating to shipment of birds and game. These laws are intended to preserve for the common good certain animals and birds that are valuable as food, for sport, or as destroyers of pests. They are generally supported by public sentiment but are frequently violated through ignorance, as comparatively few persons realize the rapid increase in protective legislation or the numerous restrictions which have been imposed on the trade in game. Sportsmen, market hunters, game dealers, commission merchants, railroad and express agents, and all other persons concerned should familiarize themselves as far as possible with the regulations now in force. Copies of State laws may be obtained from fish and game wardens or secretaries of state, and a summary of the Federal State and county laws (published as Farmers' Bulletin No. 160) may be had on application to this Department. The most important provisions of the various laws may be briefly stated as follows:

(1) Shipment—It is unlawful for any person to deliver to any common carrier for transportation from one State or Territory to another, or for any common carrier or consignee knowingly to receive any wild animals or birds killed in violation of local laws. This prohibition applies not only to game killed out of season but to that captured in an illegal manner (by traps, nets, etc.), or for illegal purposes, as, in some States, for sale or shipment.

(2) Packages must be marked—Every package containing game or birds, or any parts thereof, when shipped by interstate commerce, must bear a statement of the contents and the shipper's name plainly marked on the outside. Inattention to these details render the shipper liable not only to loss of his game, but also to heavy penalties for violations of the law.

(3) Evasions—Shipping game in trunks, butter boxes or egg cases; concealing it among other goods; marking it 'butter,' 'dressed poultry,' or 'household goods,' addressing it with a tag made specially to hide the shipper's name and statement of contents; or resorting to any other device to conceal the nature of the shipment—are all evasions of the law and subject the shipper to the same penalties as for its direct violation. False marking of packages is treated as a serious offense under some State laws and is punishable by special penalties.

(4) (Special) Restrictions—Four-fifths of all the States and Territories prohibit export of deer at any season; all those in which quail occur, except three in the South, prohibit export of these birds at all seasons; and practically every State where prairie chickens are found prohibits their export. As a result of these restrictions, it is almost impossible in the West to ship quail or prairie chickens to market outside of the State without violating some law.

(5) Western game—All the States and Territories west of the Mississippi river except six prohibit export of all game protected by local laws. Of the six exceptions, Louisiana and Texas prohibit export of all game except a few birds, while Arkansas, Missouri, Montana and Wyoming either prohibit export of certain species or practically cut off export trade in game by means of other restrictions. Eastern dealers in ordering or receiving such game from these States encourage direct violations of local laws and may render themselves liable to the penalties provided for violating the Federal law.

(6) Alaska game—Under the act of June 7, 1902, the shipment from Alaska of any hides or carcasses of deer, moose, mountain sheep, mountain goats, or parts thereof, or any wild birds, or parts thereof, is prohibited at all times. Trophies, specimens for scientific purposes, and live game may, however, be shipped under permit from the Secretary of Agriculture.

(7) Game for propagation—States which prohibit export of dead game frequently allow shipment of live birds intended solely for propagation, in some cases under permit from State authorities. Persons contemplating shipment of live birds should inform themselves fully as to all local regulations. No permits for the shipment of game from one State to another are issued by this Department.

(8) Game for private use—Some States, especially those which issue non-resident hunting licenses, permit sportsmen to carry a limited amount of game out of the State for private use. In some cases this game must be tagged, carried openly, and accompanied by the owner. To insure safe transit of game, careful attention should be paid to such local regulations.

(9) Insectivorous birds—Robins, swallows, cedar birds, meadow larks, flickers, night hawks, or bull bats, and a few other insectivorous species, as well as such birds as longspurs, snow buntings and shore larks, which are useful in destroying seeds of weeds, are occasionally killed as game. They are, however, generally protected, and under no circumstances should they be sent to market or shipped out of the State.

(10) Birds for millinery purposes—Statutes even more stringent than those protecting game birds have recently been enacted by many States for the preservation of birds which are not included in the game list. Under these statutes birds which are in demand for millinery purposes are protected throughout the year, and sale and possession, as well as killing, are prohibited. It should be remembered that the princial centers for millinery supplies are nearly allocated in States which have such laws, and the purchase of native song birds, as well as of herons, pelicans, gulls, terns or sea swallows, grebes, or other plumage birds, should be avoided. The shipment of these birds or any part of their plumage is prohibited by the provisions of the Federal law. Ostrich feathers are not subject to these restrictions and their use should be encouraged."

Kennel Suggestions.

I am glad to see the writers hitting up the arsenic habit. There is nothing more destructive to the health of a kennel and I might add the morality of the kennelman. Peter Return gives some very sensible remarks on the habit. It is, as he says, a good tonic and a brief use of it is justified in the care of a dog recovering from sickness, though we would rather take Miss Hulte's advice and give its antidote, milk and eggs, three times a day. But once used in a kennel the temptation to use this easy conditioner is too much for the lazy kennelman.

For there is nothing so quickly puts a bloom on a poor doer. Fowler's solution of arsenic is given in cumulative doses beginning at two or three drop doses.

Feeding is an all-important routine of the well-conducted kennel.

On the question of raw flesh, against which some are foolishly prejudiced, Peter Return is not certain that it should not always be given in that state. The drawback, however, is that if a dog's meal consisted of raw meat, vegetables and bread, he would probably gulp the former and decline the residue, consequently the whole has to be cooked together.

I emphatically believe that dogs do better who have a feed of raw flesh once or twice a week, which remark applies to pregnant and suckling bitches, and even the youngest puppies. Certainly, for a dog who has turned the corner in distemper you can give him nothing more to his liking, nor anything which will do him so much good as a little scraped raw lean beef.

Some fortunate animals are regaled with legs of mutton and ribs of beef, and, of course, nothing can compare with such a diet; but the great army of dog keepers can hardly run to it, nor is it necessary, though commendable for incorrigibly bad feeders. Tripe and cowheel are invaluable, the former, apart from its nutritious properties, being more digestible than perhaps any other form of food; the latter is one of the best possible for stamina, and largely used for training purposes. Both are strongly recommended for invalids. Paunches are excellent things, most nutritious and digestible, either raw or cooked, and need not be too carefully cleaned; dogs relish clean filth occasionally and also acquire more pep when in the raw state. If cooked, the liquor should not be wasted, but used to soak other food—biscuits and such like. Sheeps' heads boiled to rags and thickened with bread, biscuits or oatmeal and vegetables make an agreeable meal. If horseflesh, a splendid food in itself when sound, be patronized, see that it is delivered raw, whatever its ultimate form, when you can to some extent know what you are getting. Needless to say, if the animal has died of disease you may, and probably will, have no end of trouble.

Fish is a palatable change, with plenty of stay. Cods' heads are a good form, fresh, well boiled, and all the bones removed; the liquor may be thickened. If you like to fry your dog a flounder, he will, no doubt, be gratified, otherwise never give a dog fish, fowl or rabbit bones; they are brittle, and splinter with sharp points, which stick in the teeth and throat far too frequently.

Of vegetables, onions, carrots, turnips, beet root and potatoes are the most nutritious and fat forming. Cabbages and similar kinds are good for the blood, but contain few positive properties. Oatmeal is fattening, but heating; rice forms an ideal food for toys, being very easily digested, satisfying, but not too stimulative; pearl barley, sago, tapioca and semolina may all be made use of as changes.

Milk is a complete food in itself, only suitable, however, unassisted in the earliest stages, but in combination with other material it may and should be used freely in a kennel. Only note that it is fresh, and boil at once, which goes far to preserve it, and destroys most impurities it may contain.

Eggs are much on a par with milk, and especially useful when nourishment has to be given with a spoon. The deductions then from the foregoing are that a dog's food should consist of a mixture of flesh, vegetable and farinaceous food in the proportions which his requirements of health, condition and work seem to indicate.

Though many are of a different opinion, in practice I incline to the belief that a light breakfast and a heavy meal at night time give the best results in a kennel under normal conditions.

The treatment of bitches suckling and young puppies has been dealt with. In the former case they should be fed according to the tax on their system, three good meals a day and a little over at night being about the mark; for puppies the rule should be little and often.

Invalids and individuals have to be studied in a manner which only experience can decide, but if a kennel is conducted in a systematic way and the inmates, bred on the premises, gradually predominate, both will be rare. It is generally the stranger who gives the trouble.

Cooking operations are to be carried out with the utmost cleanliness, if without the detail necessary for the human being. Let all your food be fresh, your culinary implements clean and kept exclusively for that purpose. Of these last, many specialties are advertised, but a small gas stove and saucepans of various sizes will meet most demands.—American Stock-Keeper.

Trout Fishing in Colorado.

A district which has in recent years attracted much devoted attention of the angling guild is the Gunnison country in Colorado. This is owing to the large numbers of big rainbow trout taken in its waters in past seasons. Gunnison is reached by two railway routes from Denver. Accommodations and outfits of the very best character are at the command of the sportsman; in the town can be found some jolly fellows who are reckoned as among the most expert fishermen in the State. Competent and trustworthy guides can be secured, who are familiar with every pool and hole in the Gunnison river, they have the reputation of knowing just where to go to get what is sought. If a mess of breakfast trout is desired, the guide will put the angler en rapport with a stretch of water from which he can get a mess. If the sportsman wants some of the large rainbows to take home or to hang up for a picture—and later on a good fish story to tell his cronies, the old timers know just where to locate him. If the visitor is not a good angler, the local Walton will get for him just the fish he wants—for a nominal sum. Exactly as is the good old custom at many other resorts, and a practice which without prejudice, doubtless a few of our readers, have at least heard about.

For the angler who knows how to handle a rod and tackle, the Gunnison is all right. The amateur is not usually successful, which condition will apply to other good waters as well. But, it is said by those who have enjoyed fishing in the Gunnison there is the charm about a trip to that district that is breezy and warms up the blood of a sportsman to a high degree. Along in 1893, the rainbow trout, planted by Commissioner Sisty, some years previously, began to make themselves in evidence and created much enthusiasm by yielding, rather plentifully, to the allurements of the angler, so much so that the stream has won a fishing reputation second to none in Colorado. In 1895, a number of trout were hooked which weighed over seven pounds, several were caught that reached over nine pounds. The Denver anglers went wild over these big fellows. In 1896, the trout had multiplied and flourished for some were landed that scaled ten pounds, one fish, weighing eleven and a quarter pounds when hooked, was shipped in to Denver. The previous season among the catch, about 300 trout of more than five pound size was recorded.

Gunnison has two railways—The Rio Grande and the South Park. By the Rio Grande the distance from Denver is 290 miles; by the South Park, 203 miles. Both roads skirt the river above that city, and the Rio Grande follows the trend of the stream below Gunnison to and through the Black canyon. On reaching Gunnison the usual trip is to Jack's Cabin, up the stream seventeen miles distant, toward the mountains. The juncture of the Taylor river is in the vicinity, and conveyances can be had if desired. All kinds of trout are found in the stream, and the principal flies used are the coachman, brown and gray hackles; for bait fishing in the deep holes live minnows are best. Fishing is good all the way down the river to Gunnison and many miles below. Strong tackle is required, as the trout are stout and work a line very hard. Good success may be obtained for a distance of two miles up or down the Gunnison, near the town. Anywhere below, it is equally as good at any point, as far as Sapinero, twenty-five miles below. It is superb up the river for twenty miles.

Accommodations can be had all along the stream among the well-to-do ranchmen. It is almost absolutely useless to fish except in the morning and in the evening. Late in the evening white miller flies are used sometimes with success. The usual fly used is the coachman and gray hackle.

The Lake fork of the Gunnison used to be excellent fishing ground, as did Black canyon. But, owing to the operations of a large concentrator on the Lake fork, the fishing has been nearly destroyed in those places. The large trout have been driven out of the holes and are now being caught in the Gunnison.

In the Gunnison are found rainbow, Eastern brook and native mountain trout, each being well represented, and large for its kind.

In fishing on the river above Gunnison, large numbers of camping parties go to the smaller tributaries which head up in the mountains, and are delightful places for casting the fly. Anthracite creek, on the South Park line, is one of the best of that class of resorts, and is the favorite camping place for many of Denver's best fly-casters.

There is a certain inducement for fishing in the Gunnison river not suggested elsewhere, for it has a reputation for big fish and the true sportsman takes the same interest in this that a mighty hunter might in invading the sacred hiding places of the moose, elk or bear, and bagging game that would make town talk. When an adept arm casts a fly out into the Gunnison, where the big ones are expected to "turn," the eye gleams in watchfulness, the breath is withheld, and the heart almost stops beating, in the suspense waiting for the moment when the slight shock of the strike is conveyed along the line to the quiet hand holding the slack of the silken cord. At that delightful moment the man becomes another being. Every muscle, every nerve, is directed toward the disturbance in the running stream, and the battle in landing the monster trout without accident is a pretty sight and one of complete satisfaction.

To be able to bring your trout home nicely, first clean them carefully, taking pains to remove the eyes and that little dark blood streak along the backbone. Then after wiping them quite dry pack them in ferns, grass, leaves or dry hay, and be careful to keep them separate. Never let any of your trout touch ice. An old packing trunk is a handy thing to put them in. In this you can also store your coarse outfit, such as wading boots, oilskins and the landing net.

Fish Lines.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Haight returned from Verdi last week after a ten days' sojourn on the Truckee. The fishing is improving daily. Both spoon casting and fly fishing are good. The latter style of the art will be best toward the end of the month. Plenty of two pounders were caught by Mr. Haight. One lot of eighty fish tipped the scales at thirty-two pounds. Another lot of fifteen ran from one and three-quarter pounds to two pounds in weight.

The first contingent of the annual exodus to Eel river started last week. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maskey and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lees. On Tuesday last, by steamer to Eureka, a party consisting of Sam A. Heller, David Sachs, Clarence Ashland, A. M. Sutton and Charles Okell were off for the river. Later on the pioneers will be joined by Dr. Bull and wife, Theodore Rothschild, John Butler, Judge Dunne, Dr. Oliver and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner. The run of steelhead in Eel river commences each year, almost without fail, from the 1st to the 10th of September. The fish frequently run as heavy as fifteen or more pounds in weight. Salmon are also often taken in the stream. The fish take bait (salmon roe, shrimps, etc.), the spoon, the best being the all-copper No. 3 Wilson spinner. The most killing flies are the royal coachman, blue rail, light caddis and Dewey tied on No. 8 sproat hooks.

Stream fishing close to the city is not without its charms in lucky catches, and is also at times invested with a humorous smatch that adds a keen zest to the sport. The Paper Mill creek in Marin county, is daily, particularly Sundays, resorted to by a sturdy band of split bamboo experts, who know every pool, rock, nook and cranny in this favorite stream and its picturesque tributaries. It not infrequently happens that the hiding place of a big trout is discovered, and the cunning fish will successfully defy all attempts at capture for the time being. Such being the case, the discomfited angler, keeping his own counsel, will make trip after trip until he lands the prize—that is, if some fellow angler does not get there first and clean out the pool. A case in point is the following: Two weeks ago "Billy" Shad and "Midnight Miller" fished the Paper Mill between Camp Taylor and the dam with but meager results. They discovered a big fish, however, in a pool and made every effort to land him. The fish was once well hooked, but broke away, much to the fishermen's disappointment. They had finally to leave, and came back to the city with the intention of making another attempt last Sunday; in fact, they left the city for that purpose. In telling the story to their fellow anglers the identity of the fish hole was, as they believed, jealously guarded. This precaution was futile. The big fish story was overheard by Theodore Rothschild and W. E. Stevens. Rothschild shrewdly guessed where the magic pool was located and the following Thursday afternoon Stevens and he left for Camp Taylor. Taking a shortcut trail, with the aid of the lantern, the two anglers were soon at the suspected pool. After a brief rest they commenced operations, the big fish was hooked, but after a vigorous fight he broke away. They stopped operations for an hour and fished again. Once more the big fish was hooked.

He could not resist the fresh shrimp used for bait. Again did the monarch of the pool regain his freedom. The commotion made put a quietus on further fishing. The anglers returned to the hotel for a few hours' sleep, and were at the pool again at 4 o'clock in the morning. To their surprise and disgust the big fellow again took hold and escaped. This broke up the fishing and the two returned to catch the train, but with enough small fish to enjoy a trout breakfast on the boat.

Nothing daunted, and determined to get that big steelhead and have the laugh on the other fellows, the two went again on Friday night to the stream. Mr. Rothschild tells the story of the taking of one of the finest trout caught in the Paper Mill this season as follows: "We went out again Friday evening and remained at the pool until 9:30; no bite and then walked back to Camp Taylor. At 4 o'clock Saturday morning we left the hotel, reaching the stream at 4:45, and at 5 o'clock Mr. Trout took the treble gut No. 2 hook and at last, after two weary nights, we landed a most beautiful fish, weighing three pounds ten ounces and in fine condition. He had two spoon treble hooks and one No. 4 sproat hook fixed in his jaw. It was a battle royal, well worth the fatigue and expense."

Mr. Miller and his partner had the same fisherman's trick played on them last year, when Will Cooper caught a big one they had saved up. Miller fished the empty pool all day without result, and afterward upbraided Cooper for not leaving a note so that he could have saved the day for fishing other waters. Mindful of last year's joke the "poachers" left the following note, which probably, to their chagrin, Miller and Shad came across later in the day, the billet having been first found by other fishermen:

"You are on a wild goose chase. I am here no more. Two wide-awake chaps were here Saturday at 5 A. M., September 6th, and unceremoniously hustled me out of this hole against my will. Go home and sin no more. You misrepresented my hiding place last Monday and your cruel spoon ulcerated my two wisdom teeth. I decided there and then to cast my lot with people who treat me with more consideration.

Yours, MR. TROUT."

On the return Saturday morning to Taylorville along the railroad track Rothschild and Stevens met a big buck between two fences near the "Three Cottages." They were within twenty feet of the animal, and it is a tossup which was the most frightened in the dark railroad pass, the men or the buck, the latter after several frantic attempts finally jumped over the fence and bounded away up the hillside.

Rubber boots and macintosh trouting trousers are the popular wading affairs, but after the warm weather sets in a comfortable and efficient substitute is a pair of old shoes and a pair of common trousers, with the bottoms tied over the shoe tops. In the shoes cut holes large enough to let the water in and out freely, so that the shoes will not be heavy, but be careful not to have the holes large enough to let in gravel and sand. An expert angler who has tried this scheme says: "I never experience any bad results in the way of catching cold from wet feet and limbs, and, on the other hand, I find rubber boots and macintosh wading trousers in warm weather altogether too hot for real comfort."

For anglers who have experienced discomfort from perspiring feet in so-called water-proof boots, it will be found that a good way to get rid of the dampness is to cut out of thick gray paper every day a pair of soles and put in the boots just before going out for the day.

In the early part of the season worm bait is the most killing, but in June and July and later the artificial fly—the only legitimate bait of the true angler—cannot be excelled, providing the smallest and best made ones are used. Cheap, coarse, large flies are of no service in most waters. But, in the opinion of many, the highest priced flies are the only proper ones to use in the waters of any region.

For the early part of the season on the streams use all the hackles—black, brown, gray, etc., and on both pond and stream all the midges, and the flies known by name as the grizzly king, professor, March brown, coachman, black gnat, alder, green drake, gray drake, blue dun, and a lot of others. Later on use king of the water, queen of the water, yellow bodied flies, black gnat, coachman, yellow-and-black May, great dun, red spinner, governor, and all the flies mentioned for the early part of the season, and as many more as you can afford. You can never carry too many of the precious little things. Fill your fly-book and stick them all over the crown of your hat besides. David Foster & Sons' fluttering fly is a killing pattern on still water, but has not reached perfection in America. Hooks from 8 to 10 should be used on the general fly, and from 12 to 16 on the midges.

"If any one desires a dash of excitement I can recommend the fishing of Alaska," said a returned Klondiker. "I had been fishing above Sitka this spring, when one day I found myself near a camp of Indians. As I had some game I divided with them, and forthwith was invited to a feast of their own providing. We sat around a big wooden dish, in which was something that looked like frogs' legs, but frogs so gigantic that I knew it was something else. It required some courage to eat this dish, but hunger gives a man a stamina of a certain kind, so I shut my eyes and began the feast. The article was not so bad as it appeared. It tasted like crab, and some of it had the consistence of the rubber rings which babies chew on. Altogether it was not to be despised, combining food with exercise.

"It was a 'sea spider,' so the natives told me, a member of the cuttlefish or octopus family. As they were going out on the following morning to fish for more, I persuaded them to take me with them. We dropped anchor in the lee of a little point of rocks, where we began fishing. It is a famous country for fish, and it was nothing but pull in for the natives, while I did not have a bite.

"My time was coming, however. I had on a heavy sinker, so that every time the boat lifted I felt a sharp jerk, which deceived me. But once, when the boat rose on a high wave, my line did not give, and I shouted to the Indian next to me that I was foul. He took the line, gave a tremendous jerk and received one in return; then, bracing himself back, he began to pull and scream; then all hands screamed, and I understood that a 'sea spider' had the line and also the bottom. I expected every minute to see the canoe go over, as the men went from side to side, now forcing the rail down so that the water poured in, now lifting with a mighty yell, then slacking off so suddenly that they fell in a heap.

"One man armed himself with a long knife, while a companion held a keen, short-handled case-knife between his teeth—movements suggesting the coming of an enemy. Suddenly one of the crew seized a sharp boathook, which, after another look, he jabbed into the unknown and invisible. In response a long, slender tentacle shot into the air and formed a weird interrogation point, then it grasped the pike; then three more appeared, creeping insidiously over the edge of the canoe, at which the natives struck wildly, some shouting to slack the line, others to haul in.

"In the midst of the confusion the sea spider concluded to come aboard. Torn from the bottom, it had come up easily; then, seeing the canoe and possibly thinking it a vantage ground, it grasped the gunwale and slid over the side, a mass of living, slimy, reddish-brown snakes. When they were raised I could see rows of suckers, each of which was a veritable air pump, and as there were seemingly thousands of them, the sucking power of this spider of the sea was apparent. Blows were aimed at it whenever opportunity offered, but the weird creature fairly slid over the rail, winding one of its arms around an oar. Its head or body hung on the rail—a brown mass the size of a man's head—from which gleamed two greenish-yellow eyes. The uncanny visitor changed color like a chameleon; flushes of red, brown and gray followed one another over it, while from its lower portion oozed a stream of ink, which splashed in our faces as the tentacles flew about. It was fifteen minutes before they had the life hammered out of the frightful looking thing, and then it was a question who had won.

"The canoe was now half full of water, as a hole had been knocked in the side, which was finally stopped by a piece of skin. It was five miles to camp, but I preferred walking, and had the men put me ashore. I got to the camp in time to meet them and see the 'sea spider' taken out. It had a spread of nearly twenty-five feet, measuring from the tip of the outstretched tentacles."

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The attention of our readers is called to the announcement of the Polk-Miller Drug Company and Sergeant's Dog Remedies on the opposite page.

Bostons are evidently a coming fad here. There is considerable activity among those who fancy the breed. As we go to press, there is a deal on for the purchase of two local bitches. Several breedings recently should bring a crop of good puppies. Dr. Kendall was, at last accounts, enjoying himself at Catalina island.

Leon Greenbaum's Boston, "Toughy," since his arrival has developed splendidly. It is safe to say that he can be regarded as among the best of the breed here. A white head, however, is not exactly in line of fashionable marking. Eastern breeders put such a dog to dark colored bitches with satisfactory results in getting a brindle headed progeny. "Toughy" is by Sullivan's Punch.

The Field Trial Handlers' Association have suggested to field trial organizations the following list of judges:

J. M. Avent, Hickory Valley, Tenn.; John L. Barker, Racine, Wis.; W. S. Bell, Pittsburg, Pa.; Henry L. Betten, Alameda, Cal.; G. B. Borradaile, Winnipeg, Man.; James Cole, Kansas City, Mo.; Theodore Fernkas, Kansas City, Mo.; Zell Gaston, Greenville, Ala.; George E. Gray, Appleton, Minn.; J. A. Graham, St. Louis, Mo.; George R. Haswell, Circleville, O.; Norvin T. Harris, Lydon, Ky.; Thomas Johnson, Winnipeg, Man.; W. C. Lee, Winnipeg, Man.; James Pease, Chicago, Ills.; J. M. Taylor, New York and N. Wallace, Farmington, Conn.

Now that the Los Angeles show is a fixture, the fancy are craning their necks and looking afar (rubbering) to locate the dim judge speck on the doggy horizon. This matter is properly in the hands of the Southern kennel club. These gentlemen are to a unit enthusiastic over the coming show, and will no doubt make satisfactory selections. Local judges are not acceptable to some intending exhibitors, who would rather see a small show handicapped with the heavy expense of an Eastern judge. To those fanciers we would say—in a kindly spirit—if you do not like it, stay out; but if you are a good sportsman and have the interest of the game at heart, send your dogs down for exhibition anyhow; give the southern fellows a good send-off and they will reciprocate. There is a large circle of people in the southern part of the State who are interested in doggy affairs, and also—what is more important—a big following of amateur fanciers and others who can easily, if treated properly, be won over to dogdom. Recruits are necessary. This should be apparent to every breeder, and ought to urge individually and collectively a unanimous support of all shows on the Coast. It will be noticed here that we do not discriminate in favor of A. K. C. or P. K. L. shows. What we need is shows and plenty of them. The factional coloring will regulate itself eventually.

In discussing the coming show this week with one of our leading local fanciers, the gentleman expressed considerable reluctance to putting his dogs in the show to be judged by a local judge. He made several telling points in favor of his argument, too. But, in conclusion, he added that he would send a crack kennel down anyhow, if only for exhibition. This is the spirit and has the ring of the true sportsman.

Wandee Kennels will in a short time be located in the western part of this city, on 25th and Lake streets near the ocean beach. Mr. Charles K. Harley has a fancy for and owns some crack road horses as well as a strong liking for Fox Terriers. The kennels and stables will be commodious and conveniently appointed in every respect. Among the dogs in stud will be Wandee Blizzard (formerly Lithian Blizzard) by Blizzard out of Pop. This dog was a signal winner at a number of English shows and was selected for Mr. Harley by George Roper. The knowing ones say that he will go over anything on the Coast. Wandee Revelry (formerly Saltscar Revelry) by Saltscar Gambler out of Saltscar Cheerful, is another imported English high bred dog who was a good winner in the old country before he came across. He was first puppy and novice and second open here last May, he is a well bodied, nice headed young one with plenty of character and terrier quality. Vibo has a long record of Eastern wins, his performances here are too well known for a lengthy description. He has proven his quality as a sire and was bred by Mr. R. Vicary, the prominent English breeder. Wandee Jester and Wandee Be Be fill out a quintette of Fox Terrier stud dogs that would be hard to beat anywhere.

Queen of the brood bitches is Eclipse Blanche (Ben d'Or-Bedford Birch), a terrier from the ground up and one we consider about the best brood bitch of her breed on the Coast. She is the dam of Dictator, Bar None and Two Spot, three dogs that have shown their quality by winning repeatedly.

Vagetha, the grandam of Norfolk True Blue, won first in Oakland. Queen Dance (Ch. Norfolk Victorious-Norfolk Valse) has a good string of Eastern wins; won the special for best bitch at Sacramento and won in this city. Carmencita is well known to the local fancy and has proved herself a consistent bench winner. Wandee Tantrum (Norfolk Trueman-Eclipse Blanche) has just been bred to Blizzard. Taking it all in all, Wandee Kennels have not only some grand dogs in the stud, but a string of brood bitches that are unequalled in quality, style and performances by any other kennel on the Pacific Coast, and this without reflecting upon the good ones located in a number of other less extensive kennels.

The Hotel Rosslyn, European plan, with first class restaurant, is the place to stop at in Los Angeles.

Bench Show for Los Angeles Next Month.

A bench show will be one of the features of the Sixth District Agricultural Fair in Los Angeles during October. This will be pleasing news to the local and Coast fanciers. Following this show it is not at all improbable that a show will be held in this city later on, possibly in November.

President E. T. Wright, of the Los Angeles Association, was in this city last week and arranged with Mr. John Bradshaw to superintend the southern show. This selection is a good one; Mr. Bradshaw has had the experience and training to fit him for the position. His administration of the Oakland dog show was a satisfactory and successful one.

The selection of the judges will be made by the Los Angeles Kennel Club, under whose immediate auspices the show will be conducted. Advices from Messrs. Eigholz, Erkenbrecher, Mitchell and others are enthusiastic and promising for an excellent show.

The dates fixed are October 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th. The premium list will be issued next week if possible. Entries will close Monday, October 6th. Entry fees will be $2 for each entry. F. G. Teed is the secretary of the association; his address is 226 South Spring street, Los Angeles.

The kennel club will meet, probably next week, and arrange the preliminary details for the show. A number of prominent local fanciers have expressed their intention of making kennel and single entries.

Striped Bass Club Banquet.

The San Francisco Striped Bass Club members and invited guests met Wednesday evening at a downtown restaurant and passed a couple of pleasant hours around the banquet board. After a splendid dinner had been disposed of, a business meeting of the club was held, during which arrangements were made for the holding of a bait-casting tournament here. It is the opinion of many of the festive clam jugglers that the material can be found among local salt water fishermen to surpass the present records in that line of sport, and also to retain the high record marks among the coast sportsmen.

The club will soon, it is believed, have erected at a favorable spot a comfortable club house near good bass fishing waters.

The club outing will be held at Schultz' slough on Sunday, November 12th, under the management of Captain A. C. Cunningham. George Walker and I. Freeman were elected to membership.

Among those present were: F. E. Daverkosen, chairman; J. S. Turner, Wm. Ashcroft, W. S. Turner, C. B. Hollywood, Nat. Mead, W. E. Stevens, James Lynch, Wm. Shad, W. A. L. Miller, Chas. Breidenstein, Dr. G. Gunn, A. C. Cunningham, Sam Wells, R. Haas, George Walker, W. E. Hillegass, J. Boswell Kenniff, J. X. De Witt, Theodore Rothschild, Prof. D'Arcy, Charles H. Kewell and George Walter.

AT THE TRAPS.

The club blue rock season will be closed at Ingleside on the 21st inst. by the Union Gun Club.

The U. M. C. Company have issued three booklets containing a fund of information pertaining to trap shooting rules, the game laws of the United States and Canada and a record of ammunition in shooting contests in the United States with the rules governing the different departments of shooting. Either of these publications can be obtained by addressing E. E. Drake, 86 First street, this city.

The California Wing Club closed the club live bird season at the Ingleside grounds last Sunday, the occasion being the final shoot of the club for this year. The club race was at twenty-five pigeons. The main interest in this race was the disposition of the club high average cup for the year. M. O. Feudner and C. C. Nauman were high guns, the latter shooter being one bird in the lead. He missed his first bird; a tail-ender from No. 2 trap and finished out the string twenty-four straight. Feudner shot in good form and made a straight score, which tied Nauman. In a shoot-off at ten birds, Feudner killed straight, Nauman missed his third and ninth birds and lost the club's high average cup to Feudner. Straight scores in the club race were made by Ed Donohoe and W. J. Golcher. Following the club shoot ten and six bird pools were shot. The scores made were the following:

Alfalfa the Sole Food.

The food of a dairy cow must be of a milk-producing quality and at the same time it must not cost too much. At my dairy the alfalfa grown on the place is the only feed used. As soon as the alfalfa is far enough advanced I cut with a mowing machine and feed the cows both night and day, giving them all they will eat. For the feeding place I use two small fields near the milking corral.

Each morning after milking, the cows are driven into one of these small fields and the green alfalfa is fed them there by putting the feed onto the ground. To avoid the waste of feeding on the ground I have just completed making fifty large feed mangers for this field feeding, but have not as yet tried them. The freshly cut alfalfa is allowed to remain in the field a few hours before feeding, otherwise it would bloat the cattle. If the alfalfa is in bloom it may be fed the same hour the proper allowance is cut, providing of course it has not been dampened by rain.

The first feed the cows get in the morning is from 9 to 10 A. M. The first feeding finishes them. An afternoon feed is brought from the field to the feeding lot before noon, but is distributed at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. This constitutes a light feed before milking time. The feed for the night is put into the night feeding lot each day before noon—between 10 A. M. and noon. The men who do the milking also do all the feeding of the dairy cows, completing everything by noon time each day, except unloading the afternoon feed.

The men take this task by turns, two doing it one day; then these two men do not help until their turn comes again, say once every three days. During the day of twenty-four hours a cow, as near as I am able to estimate it, will consume 100 pounds of this green alfalfa and each cow drinks 100 pounds of water. This subject of water for cows is of so much importance, and in fact a necessity, that it is difficult to form even a faint idea how often it is overlooked or neglected. About eighty-seven per cent of milk is water and if this supply of water is limited the milk yield is proportionately reduced.—D. Stephenson in Field and Farm.

Profit in Cattle.

The present high value of cattle ought to make the farmer smile. It ought to teach him that there is money in cattle—more money than anything else that the farm produces. Especially is this true if he is located where his cattle can feed during the summer on the wild grass of the prairie at practically no expense to himself. Hundreds of cattle raisers have grown rich during the last decade upon the profits of the business, though the price has ranged as low as three dollars a hundred. Nothing grows into money so fast as a small herd that can be kept up without cost during the summer, and for a long time in winter, upon the natural resources of the great west. It will be a great many years yet before the available wild lands will be exhausted for grazing purposes, and in the meantime there is opportunity for making fortunes with a very small investment. An illustration is given of a young farmer who started with twelve head of cattle and half a dozen pigs. He made up his mind not to sell any of his stock for three years. His crops were fairly successful and he was able to provide for his stock during the winter. At the end of three years he sold eighty hogs for one thousand dollars and had twenty porkers left. He then had seventy-five head of cattle, fifty of which he sold for $1750. Since then he has been on the up grade and is rated as a rich man.—E.E.

The ability of the mutton breeds to sustain themselves on the range has been tested quite thoroughly and generally with indifferent results. Conditions here are the opposite to those under which they have been developed and it will require time to change them from the well-fed occupants of a highly cultivated farm to hustlers on the ranch. Those who have introduced the blood of the English mutton breeds into range flocks through the use of rams the original flock being largely of merino blood, got along all right unless they carried the crossing too far and bred out the merino characteristics almost entirely. In cases where this has been done the fleece becomes more open and consequently less resistant of rains and snow. Then, too, the disposition to keep together in a flock and tramp all day in pursuit of feed was bred out with the merino blood. An eastern flock of shropshires for instance will soon deteriorate into scrubs on the range. They have been carefully fed and housed and everything done to make them comfortable. To put such a flock on the short-grass would not only be foolish but absolutely cruel.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

Short Course in Agriculture and Horticulture.

A ten weeks' course for practical farmers who wish to learn about the best modern methods of farming in the ranch to apply them has just been announced by the University of California. This short course in agriculture and horticulture will extend from Tuesday, October 7th, to Thursday, December 18th. A short course in dairying is offered for the same ten weeks.

The short course is open without examination to anyone seventeen years of age or over, provided only that the applicant should have had sufficient schooling to profit by instruction. As accommodations are limited the number of students will have to be restricted, those being experienced in farm work being given the preference.

No charge will be made for tuition, and only for those students who wish laboratory work in butter and cheese making will there be any laboratory fee. The students' only expense will be for board and lodging, which may be obtained in Berkeley for from $18 to $30 a month, and for books and class room material.

Lectures on agricultural topics, work in the laboratories and reading in the library will constitute the tasks of the short course. All the resources of the University equipment will be at the disposal of the students.

Professor Hilgard, head of the Department of Agriculture, will lecture for the short course students on the nature, classification and treatment of California soils. Professor Wickson will discuss the growth of grasses and forage plants in California, the adaptability of various species to different regions and the methods necessary for their successful culture. Professor Shaw will give instruction in sugar beet culture, and in the rational use of fertilizer—the different kinds of plant food needed for various California conditions. Mr. Stubenrauch will describe the best hothouse and nursery practice. Professor Woodworth will lecture on the insects which affect the fruit interests of California, and teach how to collect, preserve and identify insects, and how to use a microscope in their study. Professor Wickson will lecture on California horticulture, discussing the commercial products of fruits, vegetables and flowers, their varied requirements, culture methods, and promise as lines of investment.

In animal industry, there will be lectures by Professor Leroy Anderson on milk and its products, breeds and breeding, and the feeding of farm animals; by Professor Shaw on dairy chemistry; by Dr. Ward on dairy bacteriology, the anatomy and physiology of domestic animals, and the diseases to which they are subject, with special attention to the methods of prevention and control of tuberculosis, Texas fever, anthrax, hog cholera and other important ailments of farm stock.

Edward J. Wickson, professor of agricultural practice, is in charge of the short course in agriculture and horticulture. Any desired information may be obtained by addressing him at Berkeley.

The Uses of Corn.

Until recent years there were but two or three methods of using corn. Besides feeding it to live stock, it was used in a limited way for human food, though that was confined chiefly to this country. Now, the uses of corn and its products are limited only to civilization, and it is exported almost everywhere. The crop has come to be regarded as the leading one of the United States, and the place of corn is reaching up near that of wheat. The recent statement of the Department of Agriculture in regard to the number of articles that are the products of corn is interesting. The list is:

Meal, pearl hominy, hulled corn, canned green corn, canned hulled corn, maizena samp, degerminated samp, cream meal, self-rising pancake flour, quick malt, brewer's grits, husks for packing cofferdams of battleships, alcohol, degerminated brewers' meal, paper stock prepared from the shells of the cornstalk, bolted corn blades with stalks and cobs, varnish, cob pipes, lager beer, British gum, fancy table syrup, popcorn, table grits, salves, laundry starch, corn starch for cooking, frumentum, flaked hominy, gum paste, corn oil, vulcanized feed, glucose, confectioners' glucose and confectioners' paste.

Jackson's Napa Soda untangles the feet

Stick to the Cow.

It will pay to stick to the cow and not get excited over the price of beef. It doesn't cost much more to produce a pound of butter than a pound of beef, and one sells for three times as much as the other. It costs money to change about. Dairy cows are not adapted to the production of beef, and the beef cow has no business in a profitable dairy. Don't sacrifice good dairy cows. Though beef is high, it should be remembered that feed is also high, and further, that it is only the very best class of beef cattle that command high prices — Exchange.

Horses With Sore Necks.

Every farmer knows what a source of trouble it makes when a horse gets a sore neck. This can be avoided largely by using deer-skin pads on top of the collars and not checking the horse too high. It is the horse that carries a high head that usually gets a sore neck on top. Sore shoulders can largely be avoided by raising the collar occasionally and wiping off the sweat and accumulations that gather, several times during the day, particularly soon after you start in the morning. If from some cause your horse should get a lump on top of his neck, if it is noticed immediately it can usually be cured in a short time if the cause is removed, by an application of oil of epike. A bunch has been taken off a horse's neck as large as a hen's egg, with two applications, without leaving a sore. The application must be made, however, as soon as the bunch is made and before it breaks. As a rule, an ounce of prevention, however, is worth a pound of cure.—Exchange.

A manure spreader to take the manure right from the stable and stock yard, as fast as made, and scatter it on the farm, is almost a necessity on every farm. But few farmers properly appreciate the value of such a self-spreader, or the increased value of the manure, if taken as soon as made and put at once on the field, so the soil may receive the benefits of the leaching caused by the rains. Farmers who appreciate the value of manure should post themselves as to the advantages of the manure spreader.

Let there be no mistake or misunderstanding as to this point. It makes no difference how long standing, what the condition, or if all other known treatment has failed, this remedy will positively effect a cure. This statement will appear absurd to the sceptic, but it is absolute and inviolable truth, and we put it in no stronger words than facts, actual experience—results—confirm. It contains the great essential principle to promote the complex process of absorption. It will raise a scurf or mild blister, but it is not by blistering a cure is effected. The great potency of "Save-the-Horse" lies in its concentrated penetrating absorptive power. It penetrates to the seat of the injury or disease, produces a physiological change, absorbing all inflammatory exudate or deposit, stimulating and diffusing vitality and strength to the tissues and ligaments, producing a healthy, normal condition of the part.

POSITIVELY AND PERMANENTLY CURES
 Bone and Bog Spavin, Ringbone, Curb, Thoroughpin, Splint, Capped Hock, Shoe Bull, Wind Puff, Weak and Sprained Tendons and all Lameness.

Contains no arsenic, corrosive sublimate or other forms of mercury, or any injurious ingredient. Work horse continuously if desired.

Cures without scar, blemish or loss of hair.

Veterinary Pixine

Apply it. Rub it in on bare spots, inflammatory swellings, old sores, scratches, grease heel or skin disease. It penetrates and soothes, and the horse grows well as he toils throughout the day.

SCRATCHES, GREASE HEEL,
 MUD FEVER, HOOF ROT
 AND SPEED CRACKS.

Cases where ulcerations extend with transverse cracks which open at every step and often bleed, no matter how complex, aggravated, deep seated or chronic, if treated according to directions as given on circular with every box, positively cured with Veterinary Pixine.

After Blistering

Veterinary Pixine is the very best application that could be indicated. It absorbs all inflammatory exudate and hastens the reparatory process. Will heal the most severe cases without scar and prevents loss of hair.

As a Preventive.

If a light application of Veterinary Pixine be used before speeding, driving in wet, muddy or slushy weather, your horse will never have speed cracks, scratches or grease heel.

For Hoofs.

It will keep the hoofs healthy, soft and in perfect form.

This penetrating, stimulating, soothing, absorbing, anti-septic, healing ointment heals from beneath the surface by disinfecting the parts, subduing inflammation, and stimulating healthy granulation, not by drying and scabbing.

EXCUSE BOOKS have been taken from the shelves since the great cup race at Cleveland and the fellows who were sure Lord Derby or The Monk would win have been quoting excuses No. 65 and No. 69 from Murray Howe's famous list every time they have spoken of the race since. The truth of the matter is the California bred stallion simply outclassed his rivals. In the first heat McKerron trotted the second quarter in 2:06.1 and the third in 30.1, separately timed, overhauled Lord Derby, carried that horse to a break and went on and won pulled up in the last few yards. In the second heat McKerron was in the lead and Mr. Smathers tried to do as Mr. Devereux had done in the first heat. He stepped his horse a two-minute clip, but Lord Derby could not stand the pace and broke. Lord Derby is a great trotter, but he has a habit of breaking when the supreme test comes. John A. McKerron has as much or more speed, but sticks to his gait when called upon for his greatest effort and can finish the last quarter in 30 seconds when the mile is in 2:06 or thereabouts. I would not detract in the least from the greatness of Lord Derby and The Monk. They are two wonderful trotters and great horses, but when they met John A. McKerron they found one that was still greater, a horse whose class enabled him to carry them to the very top of their speed and keep up the clip longer than either of them could. It is class that tells and the son of Nutwood Wilkes outclasses any horse he has so far met.

The Roger Williams Stake at Providence was another knot in the requiem of the three-in-five system for here was an exhibition calculated to convert the firmest advocate from the old plan. Eight heats were required to end the race, the first six of which were extremely fast; more than one horse was defeated through sheer exhaustion, and the result did not necessarily prove that the best horse had won. The public, and by the public is meant that part of the spectators that is interested in the spectacle of a race, and is not entirely dependent upon the pool-box for excitement, becomes wearied of long drawn out races; the race loses its charm, its dash and spirit, and becomes merely a struggle between a lot of tired horses in which the least tired wins, as a result of which the intent of the race is lost, for it neither interests the spectators nor does it prove which is the better horse. The only result being that pool-sellers reap a harvest and the horses themselves not infrequently become incapacitated from doing themselves justice in the future. —Kentucky Stock Farm.

I read the above editorial last week and naturally turned over the pages of the paper in which it appeared to look over the summary of a race that was "calculated to convert the firmest advocate from the old plan." To my surprise I found that had the Roger Williams Stake been trotted according to the modern two-in-three plan the race would still have been drawn out to six heats and even then, according to the views of the Stock Farm editor, "not necessarily proven that the best horse had won," as in the race, Alice Carr took the first heat in 2:09½, Rythmic the second, in 2:08½, Wentworth the third, in 2:09½, Dulce Cor the fourth, in 2:08½, Nutbearer the fifth, in 2:10½, and not until the end of the sixth heat won by Dulce Cor in 2:12½, did any horse have two heats to his or her credit. Let us look at the summary of this race:

Nutbearer.....	7	5	5	3	1	3	1	1
Dulce Cor.....	11	8	8	1	2	1	3	3
Wentworth.....	6	3	1	6	7	4	2	2
Alice Carr.....	1	2	7	8	8	2	4	4
Rythmic.....	3	1	3	10	2	5	ds
Re-elected.....	4	10	3	2	5	ro
Consuelo S.....	2	11	9	7	4	ro
Mobel.....	10	6	6	4	3	ro
Rowellan.....	5	4	11	9	6	no
Directum Spier.....	8	7	4	5	dr
	9	9	10	11	dr

Time: 2:09½, 2:08½, 2:09½, 2:10½, 2:12½, 2:10½, 2:12.

From the above summary what horse proved himself as good or better than Nutbearer, the winner, and what system other than the dash race would have been any more satisfactory to the advocates of shorter races? On the race-ended in-five-heats plan Rythmic would have stood ahead of Dulce Cor in the summary and yet the latter would have beaten Rythmic for first money had the race been two best heats in three. In the plan whereby the horses take position at the close of five heats according to the totals of their places in each heat, Nutbearer would have been awarded first money with a score of 21, Wentworth second with 23, and Mobel, a non-heat winner, third with 24. In this particular race it looks to me as though the old reliable and popular three in five system showed which horse of the lot was the best on that day. I do not think the single dash plan will ever be popular where there are as many as eleven starters in a race unless the tracks are straightaway and wide enough to permit all the horses to line up in one row.

For many reasons the State Fair has not drawn the crowds it should this year, and it has taken many strong boosts from the various fraternal organizations that have had special days set apart for them to bring the crowd up to anything near what it should be. The lack of interest manifested by the public is not due to any lethargy on the part of the Directors, as they have all given their time to the fair and worked very hard to make it a success. The cattle show this year has been very meritorious, and Prof. Carlisle of Wisconsin, who did the judging, has been a teacher as well as a judge and done much to instruct breeders as well as the general public. The poor part of the fair this year has been the racing, and there are several reasons for this. In the first place, there is so much running racing in California during the winter that the public get enough of it and will not visit the country fairs during the summer in any great numbers to see the "skates" and "left overs" compete for small purses, as they know nearly all the first-class thoroughbreds are racing on the Eastern tracks during the summer months. Syndicate booking is another drawback to the attendance and tends to lower the tone of all racing where it is the rule. But the principal cause of the poor racing, to my mind, is the endeavor to spread a program over two weeks which is hardly large enough for one. When a State Fair is compelled to arrange a lot of specials and overnight events for the poorer classes of horses, in order to fill up its program, it is time it cut down the number of days—or, in other words, cut its garment according to viously been difficult, as he is a rather slow beginner. After a couple of miles in about 2:50 and while only jogging, Cuate suddenly went lame and held up one of his hind legs as if in great pain. Mr. Durfee was so certain he had picked up a nail that he dismounted from his sulky immediately and examined the foot, but could find nothing the matter with it. Cuate walked on the toe of this foot to the stable, and Durfee was compelled to withdraw him from the stake. Mr. D. told me last Wednesday that he had not yet positively located the trouble, but thought it might be the whirlbone, but more likely a strained muscle. At times the colt will put his foot to the ground and rest his entire weight upon it, and soon after will only touch his toe when walking. He is getting better rapidly, however, and the lameness is doubtless only temporary.

Los Angeles Meeting.

There is no doubt but the race meeting and fair which opens at Los Angeles, October 11th, to continue 13 days, will be one of the best ever held in Southern California.

Mr. J. W. Brooks, formerly of the California Jockey Club, who will manage the racing part of the two weeks' entertainment, states that the entries which closed Thursday of this week contain the names of all the best horses, trotters, pacers and runners, that are NEAREST 35,562 (full brother to John A. McKerron 2:06 3-4).

its cloth. With those trotting and pacing events that filled well, the stake races for runners and a few additional races, a week's program of racing could have been arranged for the State Fair this year that would have been a credit to all concerned. There are many reasons why the State Fair should not continue longer than one week, and very few in favor of the extension to twelve days, and it looks as if the Directors will be compelled to go back to the old plan of a one-week fair next year if they would see the grand stand filled as it was a few years ago. Few visitors to a State or district fair, except the exhibitors and horse owners, spend more than two or three days enjoying the sport. There would probably be just as many admission tickets sold at Sacramento for a six-day fair as for one of twelve days, and the expenses would be greatly lessened. The shortening of the State Fair to one week would give another district an opportunity to get into the main circuit, and this would be a help also. Two weeks is too long to drag out an ordinary racing program. Five days is considered sufficient by most of the leading fair associations over East.

C. A. Durfee was so certain his little three year old Cuate would make a good showing in the Stanford Stake last Monday, that he made a wager that if Aristo won he would lower his record made in the Occident on the Monday previous. When warming up before the race Cuate seemed to be better than ever in his life and it was easy to drive him the first quarter better than 35 seconds, something that had pre-now on this Coast, and there will be quite a number of runners from the East on hand and ready to participate when the meeting opens. The association has selected Horace H. Egbert as presiding judge and Fred E. Mulholland as starter. Both these gentlemen are well and favorably known to all race-goers on this Coast, the former having been race reporter on the Examiner for years, while Mr. Mulholland has held the same position on the Call. They have had experience in the positions they will occupy at Los Angeles. The Board of Stewards will be composed of Messrs. Willard Stimson, G. L. Waring and J. W. Brooks.

Mr. A. L. Cohen, of Fruitvale, will preside in the stand and do the starting for the harness events. Mr. Cohen has the confidence of the horsemen and as he has a thorough knowledge of the rules and is fair and prompt in his decisions, his presence in the stand will do much to aid the success of the meeting.

The Los Angeles track is said to be in superb condition, and as the entry list is very large, two weeks of high class racing will certainly result.

It is Mr. Devereux's intention to take John A. McKerron to Lexington, as he intends attending the meeting there and at Memphis next month. It is very unlikely, however, that the horse will be a starter in the McDowell Stake for 2:10 trotters, at Lexington, or in the race for the Billings cup at Memphis. The objection Mr. Devereux has to starting McKerron for the gold cup at Memphis is that the conditions governing the contest make it necessary that the same be competed for at Memphis each year.

Notes and News.

State Fair closes to-day.

Stockton races begin Tuesday.

Breeder's meeting opens at Fresno September 30th.

The free for all pace will be the attraction at Sacramento to-day.

Charles Jeffries is presiding judge at the Oregon State Fair races this year.

Cresceus has trotted thirteen miles better than 2:05½, the former record for trotting stallions.

A party owning a fine upright piano desires to exchange it for a driving horse. See advertisement.

Prince L. by Escort won three races at the State Fair. Escort is a son of Guide 2:16½, he by Director.

Hudson & Gatcomb would like to match Audubon Boy 2:03½, against Direct Hal 2:04½, for $20,000 a side.

The Oregon State Fair opened on Monday of this week. There was an attendance of four thousand persons.

It is announced that Harry K. Devereaux has refused an offer of $80,000 for his noted stallion, John A. McKerron.

Privileges for the Bakersfield meeting are for sale. Bids will be received up to Wednesday next. See advertisement.

It is not likely that the records made at Woodland this year will be lowered during the present season by the same horses.

Stockton has a splendid program for its opening day, next Tuesday. The 2:14 trot and the green class pace are on the card.

The demand for first-class trotters and pacers has not been so brisk for years as at present, and prices still have an upward tendency.

The Messrs. Hamlin got full value for their money when they bought Direct Hal 2:04½ as a colt for $10,000, a price which they themselves set.

Only nine trotters have secured records of 2:06 or better, and four of the nine were bred at Village Farm, three of the four having been sired by Chimes.

A high class road mare that can show a mile in 2:15 is offered for sale in our advertising columns this week. She is perfectly sound and gentle and afraid of nothing.

Alone 2:09½ by Nearest 2:22 is the fastest four year old pacer of the year, and Zephyr 2:11 by Zombro 2:11 is the fastest four year old trotter of the year. Rah for California!

The two year old pacing stake was won by King Alexis at the Oregon State Fair, Monday. This colt is by Alexis and is owned by Charles Naylor. His best time was 2:26½.

What's the sense of letting a horse limp around for two or three weeks when Vita Oil properly applied will cure him of lameness in two or three days and sometimes in two or three hours?

Director 2:17 stock has gone up several points this season. His son Nathan Strauss 2:05½ and his grandsons, Direct Hal 2:04½ and Prince Direct 2:07½, are chiefly responsible for the advance.

There were seventy heats at the Hartford Grand Circuit meeting and the average time is 2:10½. The average time of the pacers for 32 heats is 2:07½. This is the fastest in the Grand Circuit to date.

There are already many inquiries in regard to the Palo Alto stallions and broodmares offered at private sale. It is the best opportunity ever offered breeders in this State. Read the list among our advertisements.

Allerton 2:09½, now but sixteen years of age, has five of his get in the 2:10 list, he having added two already this season. McKinney, one year younger, has six in the 2:10 list, and thus the race is pretty close between them.

The trotter Hobo 2:14½ that was converted to the lateral gait this year, took a pacing record of 2:12½ at Whatcom two weeks ago. He is by Arthur Wilkes, that good son of Guy Wilkes owned by L. H. McIntosh of Chico.

Everybody that went to the Concord fair last year is going again this year. Entries close October 5th and the meeting opens October 15th. The fair will be held on the new track this year, which is one of the best in the country.

Agricultural District No. 45 will hold its second annual fair and race meeting at Ukiah this year and has prepared an excellent program. Entries close Wednesday next, September 24th. There will be five days of racing with purses ranging from $100 to $300. The meeting begins October 7th.

A correspondent of the American Horse Breeder, writing of the Vallejo meeting, calls Alta Vela, Yukon and Forest W. black horses, Echora Wilkes a roan mare and Petigru a 'black sorrel.' This is the most severe case of color blindness on record.

The date for the annual fair and stock show at Hollister has been changed to October 8th to 11th, inclusive. This will be the week following the Breeders Fresno meeting, and the change will result in a large attendance at Hollister. The stock show and parade will be held at the race track Friday, October 10th.

Lord Kitchener, the son of Zombro that took a record of 2:29½ in a race against time at the Woodland meeting this year, was shipped to Salem, Oregon, and started there in the 2:27 trot at the State Fair last Monday. He got second money. The bay gelding Placer won the race. Best time, 2:30½.

Democracy 2:07½ by Happy Partner made his record at the Poughkeepsie, New York, track in 1900. He was brought across last year and has been starting up north since the racing and fair season opened. He secured the pacing record for a Pacific Coast half mile track at the Whatcom, Washington, meeting, by turning the track in 2:08.

Anzella met her first defeat of the year at the Empire City Trotting Club's meeting last Monday in the 2:11 trot. She could win but one heat and that was in slow time for her—2:12. Ozanam was the winner and her best mile was 2:09½. It falls to the luck of few horses to get through the Grand Circuit unbeaten, and this was one of Anzella's off days.

At the close of 1892 the whole number of trotters that had made records of 2:10 or better was fourteen, including Stamboul 2:07½ and Guy 2:09½. There have since been added 139, making the total number to date 154, and seventeen of these have already been added to the list this season. This year's crop promises to be the largest ever produced in any one season.

A dispatch from Cleveland to the New York Sun, dated the evening after the great cup race, stated that just before the race Mr. Devereux received an offer of $60,000 for John A. McKerron, which offer was to be increased to $80,000 if he won the cup. Mr. Devereux refused both offers, and said there was no amount of money that could induce him to sell the son of Nutwood Wilkes.

The free-for-all pace at Sacramento to-day should draw a large crowd. There are five entries—Miss Logan 2:06½, El Diablo 2:12½, Kelly Briggs 2:10½, Clipper 2:06 and Topy 2:11½. If they all start it should be a great race. On class Miss Logan should win, but her lameness has been quite noticeable since her great race at Woodland and it may prevent her pacing to her best form.

The following is from Spirit of the West, published near the former home of Tom James' stallion Barondale 2:11½: "The four year old Barondale filly, owned by W. E. Small, of Brooklyn Ia., won the 2:50 trot last week at Eldon, Iowa, in straight heats, taking a mark of 2:20½. The Barondales are beginning to drop into the list. There are five or six this season that have the speed to beat 2:25 easily."

Frank Turner, superintendent of the Santa Rosa stock farm, is owner of the five-year-old stallion Frank S. Turner by Valotta 30,840, that took a record of 2:28 at the Napa meeting this year. His first, second, third and fourth dams are all producers of standard speed. This stallion has four crosses to the great sire, Geo. Wilkes, and is a very handsome horse, as well as one of the best bred ones in the country.

Up to the close of the Hartford meeting Millard Sanders had won $10,543 with the Santa Rosa Stock Farm horses on the Grand Circuit. Nearly the entire amount was won by Anzella. Of 2:20 drivers that got any part of the money, Mr. Sanders ranks sixth in the list. Scott Hudson is first with $47,320 won, Geers second with $44,610, A. P. McDonald third with $21,805, McHenry fourth with $14,965 and George Saunders fifth with $12,875.

Owing to protracted illness, Chas. E. Needham, of Farmington, Cal., has decided to sell all his trotting bred stock in Stockton, October 11th. William G. Layng, the well known auctioneer, will conduct the sale, which will be held at Adam's Salesyard in that city. There are many choicely bred broodmares and many fine teams and single drivers in the consignment. The fame of Needham's horses extends from Shasta to San Diego and from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

Two of the get of the Palo Alto stallion Mendocino by Electioneer entered the 2:10 list at the Hartford meeting this year. They were both trotters—Idolia that took a record of 2:09½ and Monte Carlo that got a mark of 2:09½. The last named is one of the horses that several of the wise ones in California passed up as a "has been" and refused to take at any price. He is winning money, however, since Monroe Salisbury took him East and is considered quite a horse. There are few better gaited ones than this fellow.

Sandy Smith is getting ready for the sale to be held at William G. Layng's sale stables on the 3d of next month, a carload of Dexter Princes, Cupids and Aptos Wilkes colts. They are broke to drive single or double, perfectly gentle having been driven on the county roads, near trains, etc. They are all young and while they have not been tried for speed they all show that they have it. Anyone wishing information about these horses can obtain same by applying to Sandy Smith at the Aptos Stock Farm, Aptos, Cal. The horses are the property of Mr. A. B. Spreckels.

Do not forget the sale at the Occidental Horse Exchange of the A. B. Spreckels' trotting horses on Saturday, October 3d. There are choice single driving horses perfectly broken, handsome and bred to trot and can trot fast. Some very promising pacers and producing broodmares in lot to McKinney 2:11½, Stam B. 2:11, Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, etc. This a sale worth attending, as every one has been carefully selected and there is not a "weed" in the lot. Quality, not quantity, will be offered at this sale.

A gentleman who must soon leave for the East advertises for sale a fine large horse with docked tail, that is perfectly gentle and sound, as well as being a good looker. He also desires to sell a handsome two-seated break and a rubber tired runabout, both new and in fine condition. He has also a splendid new silver mounted heavy harness for use with the break and a light harness for the runabout. Also whips, robes, etc.; a complete outfit thoroughly up to date in every particular. Here is an opportunity for someone to secure a bargain.

S. L. Kerr, assistant trainer to Millard Sanders, the California reinsman, is still located at Glenville with Bonsilene 2:14½ and the three year old trotter Bavard by Directum 2:05½. He recently shipped the pacing gelding B. S. Dillon 2:25, Nora McKinney 2:12½ and the fast green trotter Lou Dillon to Mr. Sanders. The latter started Nora McKinney in the 2:17 trot at Baltimore yesterday, and he won it in straight heats, reducing the mare's record to 2:12½. Lou Dillon trotted a mile in 2:11 at Glenville in July and is being kept over for the stake events next year.—American Sportsman, Cleveland.

The San Francisco Chronicle of last Wednesday speaks as follows of the betting arrangements at the State Fair this year: "There is naturally very much complaint about the pre-ent betting arrangements, and the falling off in interest is due to this regrettable state of affairs. Syndicate betting is surely proving the undoing of California fairs. As a matter of fact the only really successful meeting in California this year was at Woodland, where syndicate betting was barred. Some of the directors of the State Fair Association have worked very hard for the success of the 1902 fair and are at a loss to understand the moderate patronage and the indifference of the public, especially of Sacramento county. But syndicate betting tells the story."

The Ukiah track has been regraded this year and an eight inch coating of clay added, which makes it one of the best and safest tracks in California. For the past six week it has been thoroughly sprinkled every day and worked with the idea of having it in perfect condition for the fair and race meeting which opens there October 7th. A large number of new box stalls have been erected and there will be accommodations for all who attend. The indications point to the best race meeting and fair ever held in the district. Ukiah citizens have already subscribed about $1000 to the meeting and subscriptions are still coming in. Entries to the harness races will close Wednesday next, September 24th.

Charles Marvin, the noted driver of trotting horses is in a critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital, Lexington, Ky. He was taken home September 5th, from the East, suffering from inflammation of the bladder and has made no headway toward recovery. He had been racing Grace Eldrid and others of his this year's string at Boston and other Eastern tracks, when he became ill. He shipped his horses home also. Marvin is a trainer of the old school, gaining a national reputation while at Palo Alto Stock Farm in California. Several years ago he was employed by the Pennsylvania firm of Miller & Sibley, who, when they decided to give up the sport, gave him their horses. Last year he was successful, winning a number of the best events in the West, but this season he has been unfortunate.

The catalogues for the W. A. Shippee sale at Nelson, Butte County, will be issued Monday. Among the trotting horses to be sold is the grand looking stallion Moses S. 2:18½ by Hawthorne, several well-matched teams and a number of handsome horses by Temescal (son of Palo Alto 2:08½), and Telie (dam of Truman 2:12), Hawthorne, Rajah by Sultan 2:24, Ebon Thorne, Dictator Wilkes, Richards Elector, Campaign, Prince Nutwood. The work horses are all well proportioned, and are just the kind seekers after fine serviceable horses are looking for. The mules are of a superior class and are sired by the celebrated prize-winning Jacks which were imported by the late L. U. Shippee. This is a complete closing out sale and everything offered must be sold. Lunch will be served during the sale. Carriages will be in waiting on arrival of all trains at Nelson and Biggs.

Santa Rosa Stock Farm's track at Santa Rosa is to be greatly improved. A corps of painters and white washers are to be put to work on the grand stand, stables and other buildings next week, and a surveyor is to lay out an inside track for winter training. This track will be covered with sandy soil so that horses can be worked during the rainy season, and the outside track covered with a foot of loam and made as perfect as possible for racing and training purposes during the dry months. Messrs Henry and Ira Pierce, the proprietors, have one of the finest collections of broodmares in California, and are actively engaged in breeding. They will send a string of campaigners East again in 1903. Last year they sent Dolly Dillon 2:07 and Janice 2:08½ to the Grand Circuit and this year Anzella 2:07½, the best trotting mare of the season and winner this year to date of over $13,000, has been carrying their colors to victory.

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11.

But one harness event was on the card for the fourth day of the fair, and it was not much of a contest. There were six starters in the event, which was the 2:17 trot, and Prof. E. P. Heald's Lady Rowena by his stallion Pilot Prince was the winner, losing one heat to the McKinney gelding Hopper, whose dam is the famous old Steinway mare, Cricket 2:10. In the auctions Lady Rowena sold for $10, Trilby $3 and the field $7. Swift Bird drew the pole, but lost it before the first turn, Lady Rowena going out in front with Swift Bird, trailed by Faust, following closely. The heat was devoid of interest, as the bunch traveled the route in their relative positions without the slightest symptom of a brush throughout, finishing in the slow time of 2:22½.

In the second heat, to a good start, Lady Rowena led off and was never headed, although when nearing the half Faust went after her and was closing fast, but broke near the opening of the stretch. He made a quick recovery, however, and finished second, with Hopper third, in 2:22. Walling was distanced.

In the third heat Lady Rowena led past the quarter with Trilby following her. On the back stretch Trilby left her feet and fell to the rear and Faust went after the Lady. At the half it was a neck and neck affair and coming down the stretch Faust gave place to Hopper, who was coming fast. Nearing the wire the brown gelding sent Lady Rowena off her feet and won the heat, the Lady second and Faust third. Time, 2:21½.

The fourth heat was won by Lady Rowena with but little difficulty, although Hopper gave her a race from start to finish and was never more than a length or two behind on the route. Nearing the wire Bunch, who was guiding Hopper, tried to lift him out in front, but it was not in the gelding and he finished in second place, with Trilby third. Time, 2:21.

There were five running races on the program, among them the Grove L. Johnson selling stake at one mile for three year olds and upwards. There were but four starters and the race had little interest, Mechanus leading all the way. The day's summaries are as follows:

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12.

This was Drummers' Day at the State Fair and the knights of the gripsack were out in large numbers. The trotting race with drummers as drivers was not very exciting, except for the joshes and shouts of those on the grounds.

A special trot was on the program which had six starters. Lady Fair sold at $20, with the field at $11. Shelby led the way to the back stretch in the first heat, where the Lady went to the front and won by lengths in a jog from Zambra, with Shelby third. Time, 2:21.

In the second heat Lady Fair sold in the auctions at $20, with the field $5. To a fair start, Lady Fair led all the way, although Zambra gave her a very pretty race to the opening of the stretch. Nearing the sixteenth pole Zambra left his feet and the favorite jogged in, Shelby third. Time, 2:20½. Simone was distanced for running.

The third heat proved a surprise, Lady Fair and Zambra trotting a double to the half, where Zambra flew up and was passed by Puerto Rico. Coming down the stretch a pretty race developed between four of them and the pace proved too warm for the Lady, who finished fourth, Shelby taking the heat, Zambra second and Puerto Rico third. Time, 2:22.

In the fourth heat to a good start the field traveled to the quarter, where Lady Fair and Shelby trotted side by side to the opening of the stretch, with Zambra and Puerto Rico doing likewise, a length behind the leaders. Coming down the stretch Zambra came out in front and won the heat; Shelby second and Prince Howard third. Time, 2:23½. Prince Howard and Puerto Rico were sent to the stable as non-winners of a heat in four.

The fifth heat proved an easy win for Zambra, with Shelby second and the Lady third. Time, 2:23½.

The last heat and the race went to Zambra, who took first money, Lady Fair second money, and Shelby third money. The last heat was traveled in 2:23½.

Four running races completed the program. The summaries:

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13.

The first week of the State Fair closed Saturday with a card which furnished good racing although no fast time was made in the harness events, and the class of horses starting in the runs was, with a few exceptions, mediocre. The weather on Saturday was perfect for racing and the attendance fair though not large.

The 2:24 trot brought nine horses to the post. Prince L. on account of his win on Wednesday was made favorite at $10, with Lady Rowena bringing $2 and the field in which Cornelius D., Faust, Sutter, Iloilo, Trilby and Dolly N., were bunched, selling for $5. There was but little delay in scoring and they were soon sent off to a fair start for the first heat. Lady Rowena went out in front as soon as the word was given leading until she was well up the back stretch, where she made a break and the Nutwood Wilkes mare Verona took command, getting to the wire first in 2:18½, a new record for her. Iloilo was second and Prince L., the favorite, third.

Verona was now made favorite and she looked like a winner of the race when she took the second heat in 2:19½, with Iloilo and Prince L. in the same positions as before.

The third heat caused a change in the situation, for in a hot drive through the stretch Prince L. with his white whiskered driver guiding him in a masterly manner, beat Lady Rowena to the wire in 2:21½, while Verona, who had indulged in a very bad break, was just inside the flag.

Prince L. won the fourth heat without a struggle, and then all the horses but the two heat winners had to go to the barn under the State Agricultural Society's special rule which sends all non-heat winners off the track for not winning a heat in four.

Prince L. won the deciding heat rather easily in 2:24½.

There were six starters for the 2:18 class pace. Harry J., the uncertain, had Hi Hogoboom behind him, and was picked as favorite at $10, with the field bringing the same figure. Mr. Hogoboom handled the son of Reavis Steinway in a manner that brought him many compliments from the horsemen, and he won the race in straight heats, with The Mrs. taking second money and N. L. B. third.

Of the running race The Vincter Stake was the attractive feature, but there were only four starters which detracted some from the usual interest in this event. Vincter's time of 1:40 for the mile was not beaten, so the stake will still bear the name of the son of Brutus that fixed his name to it six years ago. The Fretter won in a drive from Divina in 1:41. The summaries:

Trotting, 2:24 class, purse $600.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15.

The second week of the State Fair opened with a much larger crowd than was in evidence on the preceding Monday. The Stanford Stake with a value of $1060 was down for decision, but there was a great disappointment in the race as both Cuate and Flora Russell were scratched, the first named on account of lameness. In the auctions Aristo, winner of the Occident Stake was favorite at $30 to $7 for the field in which were Zombowette, Gertie H., Larkin W., and Harry B. Aristo so completely out-classed his field that there was not the semblance of a contest in any of the three heats, and he did not have to equal his record of the Monday previous by four and a half seconds. Zombowette was as easily second and Gertie H. third, Larkin W. and Harry B. getting the flag in the first heat.

The 2:17 pace was won by Monroe B. owned by Frank Ruhstaller of Sacramento. The race was a poor one, the Steinway-McKinney colt, Silver Coin, giving up after winning two heats and being beaten in ridiculously slow time, the last heat being paced in 2:27½.

Before the first heat in this race Silver Coin sold for $10, Peggy $7, and the field consisting of Smuggler and Daken D. $2. Peggy took the lead when the word was given with Monroe B. second. Going up the back stretch, Monroe B. made a break and Smuggler took second position. Silver Coin began to close up space very rapidly around the far turn and passed the leaders in the stretch winning in a jog in 2:15½. Dakin D. was distanced.

Silver Coin now sold for $10 to $6 for the field and the heat was much like the first, Silver Coin pacing very fast in the stretch and winning in a drive from Peggy in 2:16.

These two heats so tired the son of Steinway and Jennie Mac 2:09 that Monroe B. beat him handily in the next three heats in slow time.

Four running races completed the program. The summaries:

Stanford Stake, 1902, for three year olds, trotting, mile heats, three in five, value $1060.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16.

The first race on the card for Tuesday was a consolation race for trotters entered in the 2:30 class trot decided on the Wednesday previous that failed to win first or second money. In this event six horses started: the McKinney stallion Tom Smith being made favorite at $10 with the field in which was Princess, Rosalind, Iloilo, Swift Bird and Walling, selling for $6, and it was a good investment for the short enders as Tom Smith could do no better than save his entrance. The race went to Princess, a bay mare by Eugeneer, owned by Mr. J. B. Iverson of Salinas. She won handily in straight heats, well handled by Vance. The first of the get of the handsome stallion Stam B. 2:11½ to start in a race, got second money in this event. This was the good looking mare Rosalind, a four year old. She was second in each heat and in the second heat gave Princess a race through the stretch that was an exciting one, Princess reaching the wire but a short nose in front of the Stam B. filly.

Hi Hogoboom drove the pacer Harry J. to another popular victory in the 2:21 class pace, taking but three heats to put first money to his credit. There were but four starters in this race and the Diabolo horse N. L. B. was so unfortunate as to be distanced in the last heat, thus putting him outside the money.

In the five running events that followed the harness program, Jockey Ransch finished in front five times but was disqualified for a foul in the first race and got but four wins for his mounts, which is the record for a jockey at Sacramento. In addition to these five races there was a walkover by St. Winifred for the Bella Vista stake for two year olds. The summaries of the day's events are as follows:

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17.

After Prince L. driven by the veteran Rowley, and Zambra driven by Delaney had each won two heats of the 2:22 class trot at Sacramento on Wednesday, there was more life enthused into the crowd than had been aroused by any previous event during the fair. It looked to an outsider as if there was a combination, offensive and defensive among the other drivers in this race to keep Mr. Rowley from landing first money, but the wise rule of the State Agricultural Society which sends all horses to the barn that do not win a heat in four, came to his rescue, the Helping Hand society was sent to the barn, and he won the fifth and deciding heat. It was a good betting race, Prince L. selling for $20, Arketa for $11, and the field which consisted of Zambra, Briney K., Hopper and Prince Howard, bringing $7. Prince L. took the first two heats and Zambra the next two, all these heats being trotted as fast as the winners could go and both reduced their records. Many thought that Arketa won the third heat, the finish being so close between the mare and Zambra that only those right at the wire could decide correctly as to the winner.

When the two heat winners came out for the fifth heat, they sold even in the pools. Zambra took the lead at the word and kept in front until the half-mile post was passed, when Rowley brought his horse up on nearly even terms. It was nip and tuck through the stretch until the seven-eighths pole was reached, when Zambra made a tired break and Prince L., amid the greatest chorus of cheers heard on the Sacramento track this year, crossed the wire winner of his third race at this meeting.

The second race for members of the Sacramento Driving Club went to Frank Ennis, who got his horse John I. to the front three successive heats. It was not a very exciting contest, three of the six contestants getting a wig wag signal in the first heat from the man with the red flag.

Four running races concluded the day's program. Summaries:

FRESNO COUNTY, by reason of its wonderful productivity and almost marvelous transformation within a few years from an immense grain field to the leading raisin and fruit section of the world, has been more widely advertised than any section of California. It is one of the most prosperous sections of the Pacific Coast to day, and is enjoying a year of splendid crops in all lines that are being disposed of at good prices. There is no place in California where irrigation has been brought to such a complete and triumphant success, and by reason of the practical conservation and use of nature's water supply, land that went begging at $10 per acre is now readily sold at $200. The county seat of Fresno has jumped in a few years from a village to a thriving city of about twenty thousand souls. No Californian can say he is acquainted with his State unless he has visited Fresno and looked upon its magnificent farms, fields, orchards, vineyards and factories. The fair to be given by the Fresno Agricultural Society, in connection with a splendid program of harness racing under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association during the week beginning September 29th, will give those who visit Fresno at that time an opportunity to witness a fine display of the county's products, enjoy five days of good racing and see for themselves the wonderful development of the country. The Breeders meeting gives every promise of being the best held by this association in years. The California, a new stake for 2:24 class trotters that it is proposed to make a fixture for each annual meeting, will be trotted for the first time this year. The stake is guaranteed to be worth $2000 and is the richest one for aged trotters given in California for many years. The Raisin City Stake for 2:20 pacers will be another attractive race, and the free for all pace, in which Kelly Briggs, El Diablo, Topsy and Clipper are to contest for supremacy, will be one of the great races of the year. The racing program will begin on Tuesday, September 30th, and those who enjoy harness racing on a good track prepared especially for harness events, should be on hand

THE SENSATION in auction sales this year fills a page in our advertising department to-day. It is an announcement by the Fasig-Tipton company of three dispersal sales, at which three of the most famous thoroughbred breeding farms in America will be closed out. Gen. William H. Jackson & Sons consign the nine stallions and one hundred and fifty broodmares that have given wealth and fame to Belle Meade Farm; Charles and A. J. Reed send the eleven stallions and one hundred and twenty-seven mares from Fairview; Messrs. A. H. and D. H. Morris and Messrs. Morris & Walden send thirty-eight head of stallions, mares, horses in training and yearlings. The Morris Stud will be sold first on October 1st. On Monday, October 6th, the Fairview Stud will be offered, and on Wednesday and Thursday, October 29th and 30th, the Belle Meade Stud will be sold. The list of stallions contains the names of sires that have been sold for a king's ransom. There is St. Blaise, sold for $100,000, Knight of the Thistle that brought $30,000, Galore that sold for the same figure, The Commoner, the great son of Hanover, that could have been sold for almost any sum his owners had fixed on him, Compute, The Friar, Filigrane, Imp. Loyalist, Inspector B., Longstreet, and many others of royal lineage. Among the broodmares are some of the greatest matrons in America, daughters of the best stallions in the world. The advertisement gives a few particulars but the breeding and history of these great horses will be more fully set forth in the catalogues to be issued soon, and which can be had by addressing Fasig-Tipton Co., Madison Square Garden, New York.

SULPHUR SPRING FARM, which is situated in Contra Costa County, and is a model country home as well as an ideal breeding farm, is for sale and all the standard bred horses on the ranch are also offered. This is the farm that produced the great gelding Who Is It 2:10½, and his half brother What Is It 2:16½, the best horse in the 2:17 class in California at the present time, and among those offered for sale. Direct Filis, a 1200-pound black stallion that is a great road horse and has trotted a heat of 2:28, Nellie Fairmount, dam of Zambra 2:18½, and a number of mares, colts, fillies and geldings by McKinney, Nutwood Wilkes, Diablo, St. Nicholas, Grover Clay and other high class stallions are in the list of those to be sold. Mr. A. G. Gurnett, proprietor of this beautiful farm desires to close out all the stock and dispose of the farm immediately as he is a non-resident owner and cannot spare the time from his business to visit the place and attend to it. The stock is all in good condition and as Mr. Gurnett says, your price is his. Look over the list advertised in this issue and write to the owner for further information. There are some great bargains to be had.

PURSES PAID FROM JUDGES STAND at conclusion of every race, is the attractive announcement made by the San Benito County Agricultural Association in connection with its advertisement of a generous lot of purses for its meeting to be held at Hollister from October 8th to 11th. There are $3000 in purses for the harness horses, about equally divided between trotters and pacers. The purses range from $250 to $400, there being no less than three of the latter amount. Hollister holds a good fair and race meeting each year, and the races are arranged by practical horsemen. Mr. Robt. I. Orr is President and A. D. Shaw, Secretary. Both gentlemen are well and favorably known to the breeders and owners of harness horses throughout the State. The Hollister meeting will be held during the week following the Breeder's meeting, and will open on Wednesday, which will give those who race at Fresno an opportunity to reach Hollister in time to start on the opening day. Entries close October 1st.

STOCKTON will be the next place on the circuit and the harness racing there next week promises to be excellent. There is a good list of entries in every event, some having very large fields. The Gas City, as Stockton is called, is enjoying a regular business boom, and there is every reason to believe that the Stockton Driving Club will hold one of the most successful fairs and race meeting since its organization. The pavilion display promises to be very large and the building has been beautifully decorated for the occasion. The Stockton track was never in better shape and some fast miles will be trotted and paced during the week.

Lochinvar 2:20.

But for several unlooked for and unfortunate incidents, the stallion Lochinvar that won at Colusa this year in the 2:20 class, would have gone through the California circuit and trotted to a low record. When his driver and trainer John D. Blamey arrived at Marysville he found his partner and father-in-law, James Brown, at the point of death. Mr. Blamey was at the bedside of the sick man until the latter died on August 30th. Soon after Lochinvar was taken down with the pinkey, which prevented him being taken to the State Fair and other places where he was entered. In his Colusa race he showed more speed and was steadier than ever before. He trotted the first half of the second heat of this race in 1:07 and could have finished the mile in 2:15 had it been necessary. Lochinvar has now completely recovered from his illness and unless something unforeseen happens will be out again on the circuit next season.

Mr. Blamey has not yet decided just where he will make the season of 1903 with his horse as there are several localities where breeders are anxious for him to locate. Lochinvar is a handsome black stallion fifteen hands, two inches and a half high, is sound, level headed and a pure gaited trotter. He is a member of the great family founded by Director 2:17, being by Director H. 2:27, a son of that great race horse that is out of Esmeralda, the dam of Don Lowell 2:14½. The dam of Lochinvar is Venturess by Venture 2:27, the thoroughbred horse with a trotting record that sired the dam of the great Directum.

Bakersfield Entries.

The Bakersfield Association, 15th Agricultural District, got rather mixed in its dates for closing entries to its advertised races to be decided at its fair this year, and at the last meeting of the board of directors an attempt was made to straighten matters out. It seems that entries were originally announced to close August 5th and owing to the fact that one or two classes failed to fill the board advertised that the time of closing would be extended to August 20th. The board at its last meeting came to the conclusion that all entries received after the original date of closing, August 5th, are not legitimate and have thrown them out, leaving the entries as they were received, prior to the extension of the time. This leaves the following list of entries, the official one for the meeting which opens October 4th and continues until October 11th:

2:15 Trot, $600—Richmond Chief, Alta Vela, Cozad, McKenna, Vic Schiller.

2:30 Class, Trotters and Pacers, $300 Ginger Beer, Robin, May Horgan, Ferndale.

Scarcity of Draft Horses.

It is absolutely wonderful how great is the demand for draft horses and how woefully inadequate the supply is to meet it. It is impossible not to make frequent comments on the peculiar conditions uppermost in this branch of the market at this time. All summer long, when as a usual thing the inquiry drops off very largely and buyers take only enough horses to replace those accidentally destroyed or rendered worthless for the time being, orders have kept pouring into the Chicago market from East, West, South and North for heavy drafters.

And these orders have been of no ordinary sort, some of them, of course, have called for an inferior grade, for horses with size and weight but slightly blemished, but for the most part the cry has been for the best, with the result that competition has been very keen for all the desirable offerings. To meet this unparalleled demand the feeders were utterly unprepared. It is not the custom of those who fit heavy horses for the wholesale market to have them ready for midsummer trade. Therefore, the most of the really good lots that have come to hand have been shipped in mixed lots, only a few head at a time.

This has led to a very general complaint of lack of size sufficient to do the work that is now required of drafters. Much the same complaint is voiced by the men who have been on the market to buy feeders. Prices up to $265 have been paid in the Chicago auctions for thin drafters with weight and quality, but even this unheard-of demand has stimulated no great rush of the right sort.

Naturally these conditions prompt this question: "Where are the heavy ones?" A very well known dealer replied a few days ago in this wise: "They are not in the country. It will take ten years to get up a decent supply again. There are no heavy mares from which to breed them. We must first breed a new supply of mares." And from general appearances it looks very much as though the farmer could do little better than get in line to supply part of the demand for the heavy draft horse.—Chicago Breeders Gazette.

As a financial investment the Saratoga track is making great money. Last year it earned $78,000, but this year it has paid $130,000. The directors have declared a dividend of six per cent, the same as that of last year. The surplus will be used to pay for improvements.

The breeder who buys a first-class stallion or broodmare seldom gets cheated, no matter what price he pays. On the other hand, the man who is always looking to buy a $10,000 horse for $500 generally finds his investment a poor one.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

A Co-operative Plan for Farmers.

CHICAGO, September 15.—The Farmers' Co-operative Association, known as the "Farmers' Trust," has opened offices in the Royal Insurance building. The officers of the new concern say that they do not intend to attempt any co-operation in the running of farms, as that plan has been tried and has failed several times. It is their idea to do away with the middlemen and to control prices.

The company was recently incorporated at South Pierre, S. D.; its officers are: President, Robert Lindblom; first vice-president and general manager of the grain department, H. H. Carr; second vice-president and general manager of the produce department, George W. Linn; secretary, O. W. Clapp; general counsel, Joseph W. Burton; general financial agent, Hamilton White.

The benefit to the farmers will come mostly from the fact that the entire crop will not be thrown on the market at once, officials claim, but will be disposed of in such manner that the highest prices can be secured to the producer.

Those back of the plan assert that within a year it will be in control of the entire agricultural output of the United States. Stock, it is said, is being rapidly disposed of.

The above dispatch appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle of last Monday. A correspondent of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN offers the following original plan for a combination between producer and middleman which he believes is entirely practical and not difficult to put in operation:

"To obtain satisfactory prices the farmer must make sales of all of their products through one agent, they should also make all of their purchases through one agent in order to avoid the penalty of high prices brought about by labor unions and trusts in other lines of industry. They should also do all of their banking business and insurance through one agent, in order to lower the rates of interest and make loans and existing mortgages less burdensome. And should the daily and weekly press of the country be antagonistic to the farmers' plans and interests they should obtain all statistical, telegraphic and news matter through their own press and news agent.

Agriculturists who refuse to make sales of their products through the one agent designated by the association, should be denied the privilege of making purchases from the associations' agent at the reduced prices obtained by those who sell only through the agent of the association.

The one agent to whom the farmers make sale of their products can sell in the open market at whatever price he chooses to accept, can make satisfactory rates with transportation companies and, failing to make satisfactory rates along certain lines of transportation, he can make arrangements in the matter of rebate to farmers for suspending production along such lines of transportation. The same arrangements as regards rebate and suspension of production of certain products of which there is an over-production could easily be made by the one agent who would have the handling of all the farmers' products. This agent could thus direct the agriculturists for any year to produce what he could profitably handle in the local and foreign market, thus avoiding over-production of any one or more articles of agriculture.

Of course the agent to whom members of the farmers' organization would make sale of all their products for any one year or for any number of years, should be the person who would give the highest price or would outbid others for the privileges obtained, or he should be one who would give a guarantee of taking all products of members of the association at prices designated in advance by the association.

Perhaps the matter of price should be agreed upon before the seed is placed in the ground. The same agent would doubtless seek the privilege of furnishing the members of the association with all purchases that they require, so that less capital would be required by him to handle the wheat, his business with the farmers then becoming one of exchange, the wheat and other products being exchanged for merchandise required by the farmers, only balances being settled with cash.

By making all of their purchases of one agent, who could buy in whatever market of the world would sell the cheapest and who perhaps would not purchase merchandise from any person antagonistic to the interests of the farmers the association would have within their ability the power and means with which to crush any trust or combination that could be organized to increase their cost in production.

The only thing that would be required to accomplish these objects on the part of the farmers would be simply organization upon a proper plan. The amount of capital required by the association would be simply enough to maintain the offices required and for each member it would not amount to perhaps more than one dollar per annum, the association neither buying nor selling wheat nor engaging in merchandise, all of such business being conducted by an agent who has secured this privilege from the association. Any agent obtaining from the farmers of the United States the privilege of purchasing all of their wheat and other agricultural products at prices agreed upon, and also having the privilege of making sale to them of all their purchases in merchandise, could perhaps easily persuade the agriculturists in other wheat producing countries to organize upon a similar basis and secure for himself a sufficient quantity of wheat and corn to fix upon these articles the price for the entire world."

Training a High Jumper.

After taking a horse to train it must be bitted and made thoroughly light in the mouth. I use a dumb jockey twice daily in the stable for half an hour at a time and ride from three-quarters to an hour at a walk and slow trot. When the mouth becomes light so the horse will guide by the neck the next thing is to teach it to jump. I have a panel of fence made stiff and strong with wings twelve feet long. We fix the top rail two feet six inches high. We use a snaffle bridle with a long lunge-line to it. Then lead the horse up to the jump and let it hop over. I pat it and repeat the jump two or three times but not more. If the horse refuses to come have some one with a whip behind drive it over. Never let the horse turn its head away from the jump. Let it understand that it must go straight and much future trouble will be avoided. After a few lessons over the low bar put on another six inches higher but do not let the performer rush jumps, which it will be inclined to do as the bars are laid higher and it gets to like the fun, as does every horse that is schooled properly. Make it walk up to within three feet of the jump and take the rise out of its body. Gradually increase the height of the hurdle until it is five feet high and the horse jumps in good form—always remembering to practice it at the low jumps as well as the high and continue the bitting, as on the lightness of the mouth depends the pleasure of riding. When the horse does five feet then put the bar down to the low jump and ride over it, dropping the hands on its neck at the time it takes off. It must have a free head to make the effort. This is the reason one sees so many horses hit with their hind feet; they cannot get the head free and both ends cannot be up at the same time. I have seen very few persons with hands fit to ride a properly-bitted horse. Most men ride altogether with their arms and in this way hold themselves in the saddle and are the ones who blame the horse when they receive a bad fall. Gradually increase the height of jump and also the speed but as the speed is increased be careful to make the horse bring its legs well under and jump but not stride over like a steeple-chaser. If a horse once gets to striding over fences the play is not only dangerous but the habit is very difficult to break. After getting the horse to jump in good form three feet six inches it can be taken out across the country if so desired. A horseman will always look for the low places and not pick the highest to show off, but in the shows the hurdles are of uniform height and if he has not a good horse well in hand he had better use discretion by keeping out of the arena.—C. B. Walker.

A Great Wagon Race.

The Monk and Lord Derby trotted the greatest race to wagon last Wednesday, at the Empire City track, New York, in the contest for the $3000 gold cup offered for amateur drivers. The race was free for all trotters and the cup was specially made for a championship trophy. Both horses have the same record, 2:05½, and were driven by their owners, Mr. C. K. G. Billings and Mr. E. E. Smathers. In the first heat The Monk had the pole and Mr. Billings lost no time in sending him to the front. He led by two lengths up to the head of the stretch, when Smathers sent Lord Derby for one of those electric finishes for which he has become famous. He was just a little late, however, and though The Monk was tiring he just managed to win by a nose. The finish brought the occupants of the grand stand to their feet and both horses were loudly cheered. In the second heat The Monk again led to within fifty yards of the wire, when Lord Derby, in a superb drive, won by a neck. The pair were off to a perfect start in the third heat, going like a team to the back stretch, where The Monk broke and Lord Derby came on and won by five lengths. This is the fastest race of three heats to a wagon ever trotted. Summary:

Grand special, $3000 gold cup, for the amateur wagon championship of the world, owners to drive, two in three.
Lord Derby, b g by Mambrino King.....(Smathers) 2 1 1
The Monk, b g by Chimes.....(C. K. G. Billings) 1 2 2

Organization of the National Gun Club.

With the increase in the number of gun clubs, as well as in the number of trap shooters recorded within the past few years, it has been growing more and more apparent that there should be some governing or controlling body to take charge of the sport, eradicate whatever unpleasant features there might be connected with it, formulate shooting rules, and in fact, generally to do all that could be done to foster the sport. One or two attempts have been made to organize and carry on such a governing body, but the country seems to have been found to be too large to admit of this, or else the shooters themselves have been too apathetic, for every such scheme promoted to date has fallen to the ground.

The nearest approach to any recognized governing body that has met with complete success is the Interstate Association, an organization composed of gun, ammunition and sportsmen's supply houses of New York and other cities. As the result of holding tournaments at different points throughout the country the good work this association has done has met with absolute approval, and its trap-shooting rules and its definitions of what constitutes a profession, and, per contra, an amateur, are so well thought of that they have been adopted by probably 90 per cent of all gun clubs. The Interstate Association, however, does not control any clubs; neither does it profess to do so. It was organized for business reasons solely—to stimulate public interest in trap shooting—and has reached out no further.

Within the past year, however, Mr. John M. Lilly, a well-known and popular citizen of Indianapolis, has been devoting much thought and time to a scheme for a "National Gun Club," an organization which, according to its constitution, has been formed "to increase the national and State protection of fish and game, and to urge the establishment of national and State game preserves; to foster and promote the sports of trap and wing shooting, and to extend the acquaintance and friendship among shooters throughout the United States; to establish local associations in every State and territory in the Union; and to familiarize the youth of the country with the use of firearms, to the end that they may be prepared for their country's needs."

The headquarters of the organization are permanent and are located at Indiana's capital, but local branches will be formed in different States just as quickly as any one State furnishes the requisite number of members—twenty-five. These branch organizations will have control of trap-shooting affairs as far as possible in their respective States, but will refer all difficulties of any nature which may arise to the main office, where they will be decided by the "General Council," a body which, with the president and the secretary-treasurer, forms the real governing power in the club.

As members of this general council Mr. Lilly has associated with him such capable men as Hon. T. A. Marshall, of Keithsburg, Ill.; E. H. Tripp, of Indianapolis; John Parker, of Detroit; J. A. R. Elliott, of Kansas City; H. J. Lyons, of Louisville; Rolla O. Heikes, of Dayton, O.; John J. Hallowell, of Philadelphia; Chas. W. Budd, of Des Moines, Ia.; Richard Merrill, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Edward Banks, of New York City. The general council has power to add to its number, but in addition to those named above it has also as "members-at-large" Messrs. Emil Werk and Du Bray, of Cincinnati; E. Waters and D. F. Pride, of New York; C. P. Richards and Emmerson Hough, of Chicago; W. R. Hobart, of Newark, N. J.; Harvey McMurchy, of Fulton, N. Y.; Col. A. G. Courtney, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Will K. Park, of Philadelphia.

The fee for membership, which clears all indebtedness of each member until Jan. 1, 1904, is $2, after which date the annual fee will be reduced one-half, making it $1 only.

While the National Gun Club is unquestionably the outcome of its president's hard work, and while it is to his unceasing labor in its behalf that the successful launching of a trap-shooters' governing body must be credited, it is President Lilly's wish that the fact should not be lost sight of that the scheme as now laid down first originated with Jack Parker, the famous trap shooter of Detroit, who has held so many wonderfully successful tournaments on Des Chrechoskee Island, and who is known in the "Indians" as Chief Des Chrechoskee. Mr. Parker, feeling he had no time to devote to the work, urged Mr. Lilly to take hold of the scheme and carry it to a successful conclusion.

Beginning with the year 1904, it is proposed to hold in various parts of the country, under immediate control of the National Gun Club, two tournaments annually, in the spring and autumn.

The attractions for the trout fishermen are still strong enough to find many devotees of the fly rod seeking favorite streams for indulgence in their selected sport. Generally speaking, one must make quite a long trip now to find anything like an acceptable day's fishing. The Truckee, since the recent hot weather, is now in fine shape and yielding many fish to the lucky outsiders who can pass a few days on this grand trout river.

Fish Lines.

Striped bass anglers are ever on the qui vive for new developments in the sport of fishing for the wary and game roccus linneatus. The wrinkle newest in the increasing list is a live smelt for bait. Catches made with a small live smelt, carefully hooked under the dorsal fin have been numerous enough lately to warrant a general use of this particular bait, especially when schools of the little fellows are running in the bay waters and those tributary. The fish is hard to keep alive, however; the best success in this line has been found by using a minnow bucket and keeping it in the water outside of the boat. At best the fish does not live very long on the hook; a dead bait seems to be on the "not wanted" list of the bass.

James Watt, is one of the devotees of bass fishing with the live bait. Last Sunday, at Lake Merritt, he had, he relates, one of the best day's sport he has had the good fortune to enjoy for some time. He used an eight ounce split bamboo trout rod and a reel without a break on it. His line was a twelve thread cutty-hunk. One fish, a five pounder, took the bait and on being hooked started away on a savage run, taking out 100 feet of line so rapidly that the angler thought he was going to be cleaned out. Mr. Watts believes the lighter tackle for the smaller fish enhances the sport to a great degree.

Another live bait fisherman is Sam Wells. Friday, last week, also at Lake Merritt, he landed a sixteen pound bass. He states that the fish strike best just after very high water, just after the floodgates have been closed and the tide is receding.

A few fish have been taken in Raccoon straits and Tiburon cove during the week. Last Sunday, one angler, fishing with a hand line from a boat in the straits, was "cleaned out" by a big striped bass.

Charles Breidenstein was presented by the Striped Bass Club with a fine split bamboo rod on Wednesday evening. The rod was awarded as a prize for catching the largest striped bass taken by a club member during the month of August.

John Butler, the "Duke of ayden," has been given the reputation, whether deserved or not, of being a desperate and confirmed bait fisherman. John resents the imputation indignantly and is out with a challenge in defense of his angling skill and tastes. He went away yesterday on the steamer, bound for a few days' steelhead fishing in Eel river.

Mr. Butler is out with a "defi" to the effect that he can, for a wager of $20 a day, beat at fly-fishing, any angler he will meet at Weymouth's Grizzly Bluff resort on the river. Something should surely come out of this when the anglers now on the stream and expected there shortly are appraised of this sweeping challenge.

The Paper Mill creek in Marin county is not entirely fished out. Last Tuesday Theodore Rothschild and a friend caught thirty-eight nice trout in the Lagunitas, a tributary of the Paper Mill. They claim to have seen an immense steelhead, an eight pounder at least, in a pool of the creek. This fish broke loose from a No. 3 Wilson spoon that he was hooked on.

Recent advices from Sissons are to the effect that the fishing in that vicinity is excellent. Many of the streams in that locality are stocked with Eastern trout. About Castella the angler can now find plenty of good fishing.

Mr. Floyd Judah and L. A. Washburne last week caught 150 trout at Klamath Hot Springs. The fishing in the river and adjacent creeks is inviting.

Notes for Novices.

A great deal of trouble is experienced sometimes with puppies at the time of cutting their permanent teeth. This is at the age generally of about five months, and lasts until about ten months, the time of development varying in different animals. It is important that the temporary teeth should be removed when the others make their appearance if they do not fall out properly. It is no uncommon thing to find temporary teeth remaining in old dogs attached to the permanent teeth. Puppies, if supplied with plenty of good bones to gnaw and play with, will, as a rule, shed their milk teeth without any assistance, but they need to be examined from time to time to see that all is going right. During the time of the development of the permanent teeth there is always more or less constitutional disturbance, and puppies are liable to have what are known as "teething fits." This is a likely contingency to arise if they suffer from constipation or from worms during that period, and shows the importance of keeping them in good general health by a little occasional medicine.

Not only puppies, but old dogs, need to have the condition of their teeth attended to from time to time—especially dogs which are kept in-doors and treated as family pets. Their teeth are very liable to an accumulation of tartar, which can be readily chipped off in the same way as a dentist scales the teeth of a human patient, and if care be taken not to hurt the dog's gums, he will generally allow the work to be done without much fuss. If this accumulation of tartar be not removed it will cause the gums to become inflamed, and the teeth will work out of place and become loose, and the dog will be in a generally unhealthy condition, and most undesirable as a household companion. It is an unfortunate thing that people who have pet dogs too often feed them on all sorts of dainties, which tend to make them lose their teeth at an early age and cause the mouth to be generally unwholesome.

The best way to keep a dog's teeth in good condition is to give them plenty of work to do, and this is just what family pets' teeth do not have. They are fed on all the different dainties of the table—sweet cakes and custards and things of that sort—and never have any really hard work to do. It is a great mistake, and if those who treat their dogs thus could only be brought to realize that they would be companionable for more years, and live to a hearty and healthy old age if they were only fed in a reasonable way, matters would be much happier both for dogs and owners. The best thing to do for a dog which has bad teeth and sore gums is to obtain from the local chemist a bottle of tincture of myrrh and borax, which the chemist will supply in a suitable form, so that a few drops of it can be added to a teacupful of water and be used with a sponge for dressing the gums. A little medicine internally at the same time is also desirable.

Small bones are often a cause of mischief to dogs' teeth, as they are apt to splinter, and the splinters become fixed in the interstices of the teeth, and set up inflammation. They are also liable to lodge themselves in the back of the mouth. When a dog shows symptoms of distress, and begins to paw his mouth an examination should at once be made to see whether any accident of this kind has happened, and the offending substance, if present, should be removed. There is another reason why small bones, such as poultry and fish bones, should not be given to dogs, and it is this, that the dog, having a habit of swallowing things without mastication, will often bolt down small bones of this class, which subsequently become imbedded in the intestines and cause stoppage. The sort of bones that dogs ought to have to gnaw—bones that will keep their teeth clean and healthy—are large shin bones, and others of that sort, which are too large to be crunched up and swallowed.

Indigestion or dyspepsia is a very common disease amongst dogs, and it is curious to notice that in their case it arises in a rather different manner from that in which it arises in the human family. The dog is possessed of very powerful digestive organs, and these become disordered more frequently from want of hard work than through the consumption of what are termed "indigestibles." A piece of bone swallowed by a human being would cause indigestion at once, but the dog's stomach is formed differently, and is capable of dealing with substances of that kind, and except in the case of a dog swallowing an awkwardly shaped piece, which becomes lodged in one of the passages, there is no doubt that some crunched-up bone is a very good thing for him. No; what gives dogs indigestion is constantly feeding them on soft foods and dainty foods. Outdoor dogs ought to have hard biscuits given them to crunch up before they are allowed to stuff themselves full of sloppy food—then their digestive organs are provided with some work to do, and, besides this, the crunching up of the biscuit means that the teeth will be kept clean and the enamel of the teeth will be hardened.

The surest way to keep a dog's teeth in proper form is to let them have plenty of work of this kind, for that tends to harden the enamel, which loses its hard, bright appearance if a dog be constantly fed on soft food that imposes no work upon the teeth. It is remarkable how great a difference there is in the condition of the teeth of pet dogs, which are constantly pampered with dainties indoors, and those of an animal kept out of doors, and subjected to a more rough-and-ready course of life. You do not often meet with a shepherd's dog with a bad set of teeth—some of the oldest of them have splendid teeth, and good digestion as well, and live to a good old age, without any of the derangements which are common to high bred dogs kept under more artificial conditions. In conclusion, we should like again to emphasize the importance of giving constant attention to the teeth of dogs—whether they be pet dogs or workers; this attention will often save the animal a great deal of pain and its owner a great deal of trouble by acting indirectly upon the general health and condition of the dog.—Our Dogs.

Not as Good as Painted.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15, 1902.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Dear Sir: The advertisement of Endcliffe Resist in a contemporary is altogether misleading and calls for comment, it states that he is the best smooth Fox Terrier on the Coast. Will his owner please enlighten the fancy as to how he earned the title? He was defeated at Victoria by Ch. Niola Daddy and Wandee Jester; at Seattle by Bar None, Wandee Jester and Ch. Niola Daddy; at Portland by Wandee Jester and Norfolk Rustic.

Has Endcliffe Resist ever defeated Wandee Blizzard or Raby Elver, both winners in England and now owned in this city? Notwithstanding the fact that he has not met these two dogs, it is stated that Resist has only lately defeated every smooth Fox Terrier of note on the Coast.

The placing of Resist at San Francisco and Sacramento was certainly a surprise to the fanciers. This dog has four or five of his upper front teeth gone, which should handicap him in the ring and evidently the judges, Messrs. Davis, Mansell and Davidson, who acted at the Northern shows, considered this a serious fault for the best he could do under them was third. Resist is far from being the best smooth here. There is at least six dogs that can defeat him. If his owner believes his advertisement states the truth and is willing to back Resist against the best of the Coast dogs, I think he can be accommodated for any reasonable amount.

PACIFIC.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

The San Francisco Kennel Club is under suspension for nonpayment of prizes won at the May show in this city.

This aftermath of a show that was heralded far and wide as a charitable affair is truly a ridiculous contretemps. We will, however, exonerate the bench show committee and the club members from the odium attached, so far as we can, for we believe they are entitled to favorable criticism.

These gentlemen did what they could to make the show successful and before and afterwards went down into their pockets to keep things going. The suspension will be lifted in a few days, as the amount necessary to fill the club's obligations has been subscribed and placed in the hands of the secretary-treasurer, who is settling all demands and giving out awards upon application. The club officers might be under the ban of mild censure, however, for allowing themselves to be induced to run the show upon the system so plausibly advocated. A dog show run in the interest of charity is usually an exhibition advocated on the undignified lines of importunity—which opens the avenue for numerous side lines of ingenious effort to corral the elusive dollar, whether in the interests of the show or otherwise. Otherwise this time, in one respect at least, if an unctuous letter, which we have in our possession, from the superintendent to the manager of a business house in this city, soliciting a small sum of money in the name of charity in voluntary payment of the unauthorized insertion of an advertisement in the catalogue is any criterion. The joker herein lies in the fact that the catalogue privilege was purchased by the manager, who was assisted in his charitable (?) compilation by Mr. Schuyler C. Hodge; the latter, if we are not mistaken, is known to the New York fancy as one of the officials of the Pet Dog Club, all of whom were disqualified by the A. K. C. several years ago in consequence of the financial fiasco resulting from the show given by the club. Possibly that show was also conducted for sweet charity.

The most charitable feature of the last show, it has been claimed, was the suppression of many ugly rumors and some very caustic comment upon the management of the exhibition.

The "nigger in the woodpile" was a deficit of $350 we are informed by a member of the bench show committee. This deficit or shortage was covered by a bill of expenses turned in by the superintendent. Such showing was not acceptable to the club, for the reason that charges, items of expense, etc., were listed that were not, it was insisted, in accordance with the agreement made to carry on the show. The charges were, it is alleged, to a great extent personal and not consistent with the understanding and advertised statements that personal services were to be voluntary. However this may be, in the light of investigation and upon legal advice, the matter became to a certain extent a question of veracity and opinion and resulted finally in the suspension muddle. So dissatisfied with the returns and vouchers were the bench show committee, that an expert investigation of the accounts was made. Had there been any ground for such action, a criminal prosecution would have been instituted.

The career of the San Francisco Kennel Club has been a rocky one financially. It is to be hoped that the sea of troubles has been at last crossed and the old craft may be patched up and made staunch and strong, for there is among the membership a number of good fellows and enthusiastic fanciers.

We notice among other good things in an exchange the announcement that the Wirral and Birkenhead show, England, prizes exceed £2500. We will suggest to some of the disgruntled that emigration might be profitable.

Never was there a better chance here to get good Fox Terriers or to have the choice of some of the best studs in the West, we refer our readers to the Kennel advertisement column.

A Marin county Dogberry pronounced recently the astounding judgment that a dog was "judicially dead" after forty-eight hours' detention in the public pound. A dog had been taken by the Ross Valley poundman, who subsequently sold the animal, a valuable hound, to a third party, alleging that the dog had not been reclaimed within the proper time and that the owner's title was forfeited. This view was held by the judge who tried the case, wherein suit for recovery was brought by the rightful owner. The case will be repealed to a higher and more intelligent tribunal.

As a matter of law a dog is personal property and the owner's title does not lapse by reason of his delinquency in regard to a pound ordinance or in fact any other laws passed for the regulation of ownership in dogs or their control. Forfeiture of a dog for non-redemption is illegal. The only recourse a municipality has against an owner is by civil process. The poundmaster has no right to seize a dog running at large or at any time or place if the owner pays taxes on the animal.

A police judge or any other official has not the power or authority to order a dog killed, which has been frequently done, for alleged cause or otherwise. An owner is as secure in his title to a dog as he is in his title to his watch or his clothes. Arbitrary action of the authorities is only sanctioned by a too general acquiescence founded on ignorance of one's rights in the premises, or where a suit would entail greater expense or loss of more time than it would be worth.

The catching and disposition of stray dogs by humane and other societies, or private corporations, however much good these measures may in the aggregate do for the community, is illegal and not founded upon any process of common, civil or statutory law that will hold water before a legal tribunal.

An effort will be made to secure Dr. G. W. Kendall of Boston, who is at present enjoying the fishing at Catalina Island, to pass upon the merits of Bulldogs and Bostons at Los Angeles. Dr. Kendall is a prominent Eastern breeder, and is an apt on the subject of under shot jaws, masks, screw tails and other necessary elements of the grotesque that make individual dogs of the two breeds mentioned pass as "beauties." A. Russell Crowell has been mentioned as a judge for St. Bernards and the large breeds.

Following the Los Angeles affair a bench show is proposed to be held either in this city or Oakland in November. An effort will be made to secure Mr. George Raper or Theodore Marples to come out here and do the judging.

Bench show enthusiasts are not alone in the enjoyment of their peck of troubles. A row is on among the members of the Pacific Northwest Field Trial Club members. John W. Considine, a prominent field trial promoter, has resigned from the club. Secretary Atkins of Seattle has written W. B. Coutts, who was shortly to go North with about a dozen Pointers and Setters owned in this city and vicinity, to stay at home with his dogs until further advices.

W. H. Deming's Boston Terrier bitches, Endcliffe Lita and Dixey D., will be bred to Tremont this week.

Albert Joseph sold two Boston bitches, Endcliffe Lita and Bunnie, to W. H. Deming, of this city, last week. Lita is a nicely marked brindle bitch and has done some winning East and here, enough to win her a championship. Bunnie is also a nicely marked bitch and since winning here in puppy class has developed finely. Mr. Deming has now the crack kennel of Bostons on the Coast and will send a quartette from his kennel to the Los Angeles show.

Charles Dresser will enter Great Danes and take down a string of dogs to the Los Angeles show. Thomas Blight will also be on hand with a string of dogs.

Mr. J. Bradshaw informs us that all dogs sent by express to the Los Angeles show will receive his personal attention.

Leon Greenebaum will enter his team of Bulldogs, J. H. Dorian will send his St. Bernard Grand Master II. and a few Cockers, just to let people know Naird Kennels has some good ones.

All prizes, medals, etc., won by exhibitors at the last May show of the San Francisco Kennel Club, will, we are informed by Mr. N. H. Hickman, secretary-treasurer of the club, be paid on demand at his office, corner of Sixth and Channel streets, this city.

On page 15 among the kennel "ads" will be found the announcement of Mt. Ida Kennels. This will be of much interest to those who fancy Bostons. This breed is coming to the front on the Coast. For the breeder the Boston is a money maker, as a companion it has an enviable reputation. Mt. Ida Kennels has had the pleasant experience of doing a big business with Boston fanciers for some time past. A letter from Mr. Simpson received this week, says: "To give you an idea of the business for the week closing I submit the names and addresses of purchasers and the price paid. Will also enclose a clipping from St. Louis paper that was written up. I am one of the oldest breeders of Bostons in the business and have sold heretofore to handlers and dealers, and last year in the two shows, namely, Ladies' K. C. and W. K. C. Show, sold more dogs for more money than all the other benches combined. This certainly speaks in the highest of the stock handled by this kennel. Here are the recent sales: Boston Terrier bitch Beauty by Twister ex Miss Phoebe to Th. Wilke, 457 W. Broadway, N. Y., $100; the prize winning brood bitch Hope, to be bred to Little Dan Patch, to Mr. H. W. Coons, 24 Elder street, Brooklyn, N. Y., $250, and the brood bitch Midget to same party, $100; five months old pup by Twister ex Pink, to Mr. Geo. L. Pratt, Buffalo, N. Y., $50. Some of these Eastern people can tell you what kind of goods they handle but these are actual figures paid for good A No. 1 stock and in one week. I will also state that these two dogs, Twister and Little Dan Patch, have no peers in stud in this or any other section. "Patch" is the shortest headed dog of this stamp in stud." Bumps is also in the stud of Mt. Ida Kennels.

James Hervey Jones, of the California Cocker Club, will send two Cockers down to the southern show next month.

Mr. Tudor J. A. Tiedeman has been, we regret to note, confined to his residence recently by illness.

Communications for Mr. John Bradshaw can be addressed care of the kennel editor, this office. Premium lists and entry blanks can also be procured at this office. Mr. Bradshaw will go to Los Angeles on the 23d inst. In the absence of Mr. Bradshaw down south, information, etc., concerning the show will be given out in the business office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

Mrs. W. W. Sweeney of Los Angeles sent her handsome Japanese Spaniel Za Za to this city, in care of Wallace Moore. The visitor was bred to Miss Hatje's well known Jap H. on the 10th inst.

The idea of taking care of dogs as a living is no longer attended with a suspicion that it is lebasing. All this sort of work is much what one chooses to make it. If one considers the care of dogs in the light of an honest occupation attended with a natural love for animals and especially dogs, one may raise the tone of the occupation far out of the reach of reproach, says The American Stock-Keeper. At the same time it may be allowed to become a very common, dirty, slovenly occupation. It depends much upon the individual and environment. As a work for women there are many breeds which afford a field for energy and do not require too much physical labor in their care. Of course a kennel of Great Danes or Mastiffs would scarcely be considered a woman's sphere, though we know one or two ladies who successfully manage St. Bernard kennels. But any of the Terriers, Setters, Pointers and the various pet dogs are promising fields for feminine endeavor. It is possible to make dog breeding on one own's account remunerative, though it requires in this country and in fact anywhere, exceptional experience and a natural talent or "way with dogs," for except in a few breeds like Toys, Bulldogs and perhaps one or two other breeds, the field is restricted far more so than in England where many women make a good living out of dogs. But we are speaking more particularly of kennelwomen, women who, for some reason or other have to earn their own living. While of course, compared to England, there are comparatively few kennels where a woman could be employed, there is still plenty of work ahead even here for reliable and conscientious workers of either sex. It is essentially a woman's work, much of this kennel business, and especially in the raising and care of puppies. In this part alone of a kennel's work, women should prove invaluable, if, as we remarked above, they have a natural bent that way. If a woman, or man either, looks upon the occupation as merely a medium to earn dollars and cents because she or he has to, their success is almost surely out of the question. To become a kennelwoman one must be to the manner born, and in this connection we endorse the writer in The Queen when she says: "The work of kennelwoman would be very suitable to those women who have been brought up in luxury, who are used to horses and dogs and to riding to hounds, and who, through misfortune, have unexpectedly to earn their own living. This work would be much more congenial to them than teaching, nursing, or any other indoor occupation, and if undertaken in a business spirit should be both interesting and profitable." Of course this applies to England where conditions are very much different for there are hundreds of girls who ride to hounds—aye, a thousand probably, to one in this country or who are "used to horses and dogs." Still with the great love for country life, and horses and dogs, and country sport in general, now growing up with the rising generation, conditions will perhaps not be so much at variance ten or twenty years from now if the pace of the past score of years is kept up. The worst of it over here, much of our "sports" indulgence is born of the fad of the hour and not from the love that is bred in the bone, as it is with older countries or rather older leisure classes.

The Hotel Rosslyn, European plan, with first class restaurant, is the place to stop at in Los Angeles.

Guns and Fire Arms Tabooed in the National Parks.

It would be well for tourists, camping parties and sportsmen who intend visiting any of the national parks, particularly the Grant, Yosemite and Sequoia reservations, which are located in this State, to procure a copy of the rules and regulations relative to taking fire arms within the limits of these national parks. They are to the point and very plain and there is no necessity for anyone getting into trouble with the superintendent if the printed instructions are observed. To show how the present superintendent is enforcing the regulations on this point, we publish below the correspondence between Captain Barton and a gentleman who lives in San Francisco, who recently had his guns taken from him:

"Capt. Frank A. Barton, 3d Cavalry: Dear Sir—When I passed through the Sequoia national park, your sergeant, I think his name was Fields, took my guns and gave me a receipt for the same; as I was not coming back through the park, I asked him if he would send my guns and a package I left with him by the stage to Visalia, he told me everything would be all right and he would give them to the stage driver,

Mr. Bennett. I then made arrangements with Mr. Bennett to ship my guns by Wells, Fargo & Co. to the city. Yesterday I received a letter from Mr. Bennett that my order was not good and that they would not return the guns until he presented the receipt from the sergeant; in my trip through the mountains, I lost the receipt so it will be impossible to send it.

You people holding the guns has caused me a great deal of expense so far and every day counts more as they are hired guns. If any references are needed, I can give you the best of them. Kindly give this matter your earliest possible attention and oblige. Yours truly,

(Signed) EUGENE E. CERF,
1155 Octavia St., San Francisco."

Office Acting Superintendent Sequoia and General Grant National Parks. Three Rivers, Cal., July 28, 1902.—Mr. Eugene E. Cerf, 1155 Octavia Street, San Francisco, California—Sir: Your letter of July 23, 1902, came duly to hand and I would respectfully inform you that I hold in my possession the two guns and box of ammunition taken from you by Sergeant George M. Field of my troop at Old Colony Mill for the reason that you had them inside of the park limits unsealed and without a pass. In order to reach Old Colony Mill you must have passed my camp at Kaweah and made no attempt to obtain a copy of the rules and regulations of the park nor did you present your guns to me to be sealed or ask for a pass to carry them into the park.

I enclose a copy of the rules and regulations of the park and have the honor to call your attention to paragraph 6 which provides for the confiscation of the arms found with persons in the park and to the last part of that paragraph which reads: "Fire arms will only be permitted in the park on written permission of the superintendent thereof." Kindly allow me to quote you also from my instructions from the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, dated, Washington, D. C., June 12, 1902, as follows: "You will take up all fire arms in the possession of any persons or persons within the metes and bounds of the park, unless they have a permit from the Secretary of the Interior or from you, authorizing the carrying of the same. These fire arms should also be returned to their owners, upon application, at the end of the season."

My soldiers have no guns in the park, neither have the Forest Rangers or the employees on the Grant Forest road, and so long as I am superintendent, I will see that none are brought in by them, or by tourists or anyone else whomsoever.

The rules and regulations of the park are not printed for formalities' sake as so many persons seem to think, but are meant to be obeyed and will be obeyed so long as I am superintendent here and the sooner this is understood by the tourists and visitors to the Sequoia national park, the better it will be for all concerned.

In your letter to me you stated "you people holding the guns have caused me a great deal of expense."

Kindly allow me to state that to cause you or any other person violating the rules and regulations of the park all the expense in my power is exactly what I desire to accomplish.

Acting under the letter of my instructions from the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, I shall hold your guns until the end of the season when they can be returned to you upon application at your expense. Very respectfully

FRANK A. BARTON.

Captain 3d Cavalry.

Acting Superintendent.

That Captain Barton is the right man in the right place is apparent upon perusing his reply to Mr. Cerf. This case is a good one for illustrative education. Another confiscation, followed by arrest and conviction of the law violators, was the case of Anthony Sawyer, who was arrested and convicted at Oriso for killing a doe in the park, on or about August 4th. With Sawyer were camped in the park W. S. Johnston, a San Jose druggist, Chas. H. Johnson, Mack A. Beasley and Leonard Ellis, of Visalia, the latter was the guide for the party. W. S. Johnston was apprehended by Captain Barton's men for killing a buck within the park limits. As the open season for deer was on, he could not be prosecuted for killing the deer. He and his companions were expelled under guard from the park confines and their guns were confiscated. Ellis, the guide, who was undoubtedly cognizant of the wrongdoing of the party, made a clever attempt at self protection by swearing out the warrant for Sawyer. This did not save him from having his license as guide revoked.

An Alleged Statement of Thomas A. Marshall on Live Bird Shooting.

The sport of live bird shooting in the East and Middle West has attracted the attention of the public press in a manner that has put a quietus on the game in several States. The feeling against live bird trap-shooting has been fomented from year to year by many fanatics and bigots who deem it their mission in life to meddle with other people's business, particularly so when the other fellow's doings are on the lines of any kind of amusement or sport. In Chicago the matter was taken up by one of the dailies, which used its thunder and prestige and also the moral support of six ministers (who attended the Grand American Handicap at Kansas City) in crying down the brutality and cruelty of the sport. The same journal, by the way, as an evidence of sincerity in its grand stand play for the plaudits of the public at the expense of the comparatively few sportsmen, ignored many requests to investigate and help suppress the notorious and open cruelty of the commission dealers on Water street in Chicago, who daily subjected market pigeons and poultry in crates to a thousand-fold more cruelty than ensues at the few and far between pigeon shooting matches. So far as the cruelty of pigeon shooting will stand the test of proof and investigation, the writer has repeatedly seen birds fall to the ground with a wing broken, and as soon as they got balanced on their feet, after one or two looks about, would commence pecking and feeding on the ground, broken wing trailing after them—all this to the utmost astonishment of many spectators and pitying horror of some—all of them putting the pigeon on the same plane of nerves, feeling and susceptibility to the effects of a charge of shot that would ensue had it been fired into themselves, which is a natural feeling, but a mistaken one, we believe. This is the same stimulus that actuates most of the fanatical opposition to the sport. The sentiment of the public at large, who in the main do not care a particle one way or the other, is, of course, when put to the challenge and test, for appearance's sake as much as anything else thrown in the scales to stand weight with the alleged plea of humanity. Right or wrong, it is the safe side of an open question.

There is another view to be taken concerning the newspaper attacks of the big dailies of New York and Chicago. As a matter of fact, there is not a business in the country, wholesale or retail; an occupation, pursuit or sport that has greater newspaper mention and more free advertising in the aggregate than the firearms and ammunition business, wholesale and retail. Representatives of manufacturers in every department, individual shooters, all over the country are, figuratively speaking, "breaking their necks" to get into the papers, and often with purely advertising matter under the guise of sporting news. Of course, there are many exceptions to this seemingly harsh statement. Some of the "boys" are very clever in handing stuff to the papers, particularly country weeklies. Why all this good stuff should go without an equivalent is a problem easily solved by one side and carelessly overlooked by the other. Another phase of the matter is niggardly support of the press by many agents and representatives. Taking it all in all, the big dailies "are on" and exacting interest on past overdrafts. They always got plenty of "glad hand" and lots of stories, at least their representatives did. The latter gentry being usually on "space" always did the right thing for themselves and incidentally for the other fellows. The publishers' pockets were neglected, and now they are out with a club.

As one method of attack the story below, taken from an exchange, is a good sample:

"The following was published in the Chicago American of June 8th as an authentic interview from Mr. T. A. Marshall. It is not presented by us as authentic. In fact, we are not disposed to give it any credence whatever. We are sure that if Mr. Marshall held such beliefs, he would not have shot pigeons from the traps through the past years, thereby violating his own sentiments and also misleading others in their judgments. In a way such expressions as those subjoined would be a rebuke to the 'Indians' and to all other trap shooters. The interview, therefore, does not seem to us to be genuine. It is as follows:

"No sane man will advance the statement that it does not hurt a pigeon to break a leg or wing with a charge of shot. It does, and every trapshooter knows it.

"If public sentiment or the laws are against the shooting of trapped birds, it should cease at once. There is no argument which can be advanced which will uphold it under such conditions.

"After the Chicago American secured the arrest, conviction and punishment of some local wing shots, the shooters down in the State realized the sport was dead, so far as Chicago was concerned.

"The Chicago members of the State Sportsmen's Association asked the boys down in the country to aid them in their local fight. This we declined to do.

"The State meet was postponed from May 20th until June 3d. If the advice of the shooters outside of Chicago had been followed there would have been no meet this year. The local men assured us they could put off the shoot. We came up here, learned existing conditions and declined to have anything to do with live bird events.

"There is absolutely no need of using pigeons at the traps and the fact that 'the Indians,' the professional shooters, have used clay targets at all of their tournaments, where $1000 added money is an incentive for a man to do his best, should show the feeling of the 'circuit chasers.'

"The clay pigeon is swifter in its flight and harder to hit than the live bird. It gives a shooter better practice, costs less—say two cents, as against the live bird's thirty—and is just as keen sport. There is no cruelty about breaking a target, so there is nothing inhuman in having it used at races.

"I take it that a little while will see all shooters abandoning the use of live birds for the clay targets.

"In our races with the teams of the United Kingdom last year, all of which we won, nothing was used but clay targets. King Edward assured me personally he was deeply interested in the sport, and he believed trap shooting was one of the means of educating the young men of the country to become proficient in the use of firearms.

"I think this training was pretty well demonstrated in the small row we had with Spain. There is no question but what trap shooting educates the eye, brain, nerve and muscles to act in unison; imparts a knowledge of distance, velocity, wind, light and all of the things a man must know to become a good shot.

"Personally, I believe that there is more cruelty in the field shooting than in killing birds at the trap. In the latter case you know the distance of the bird and are ready to kill. In the open you will take long chances, shooting at a bird seventy-five yards away with the hopes of getting it. It may be wounded and escape you, only to die a lingering death.

"Public sentiment in Chicago and throughout the State for that matter, is against the shooting of trapped birds. I am glad of it, for it will make the boys use clay targets and may bring many into the game who do not approve of pigeon shooting for humane reasons."

Rot of the rankest kind for sportsmen, but it goes every time with the general public which has a kick coming if the daily supply of press "gold bricks" is curtailed.

Strike!—if they don't give you Jackson's Napa Soda

Awards to Butter Makers.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 17.—The State Fair awards to butter makers were made today. There were fifty-one competitors. The following were the highest five: Danish Creamery, Eric Larsen, Fresno, 99 1-16; Woodland Creamery, Warren Meyers, Woodland, 98 7-16; Mailliard's Creamery, Wallace Stevenson, San Geronimo, 97 7/8; Isleton Creamery, S. N. Nash, Isleton, 97 11-16, and Cold Brook Creamery, P. Wortman, Loleta, 97 7/8.

The oleomargarine manufacturers send out white oleomargarine. It looks pale, pasty, lardy, repulsive, unbutterylike. With each pound of lifeless looking grease they give a capsule filled with butter color, with instructions to mix it with the unattractive white grease before eating it. Moral: It would be quite as satisfactory to give a pair of butter color tinted goggles with each pound of the grease, to be worn by the fool oleomargarine eater while consuming his indigestible grease.

A remarkable feature of the inspection of sheep during the present year has been the small number of scabby sheep found among the shipments to various markets. So far this year only 5432 scabby sheep have been found at the Kansas City market, compared with 36,455 the whole of last year. The reason for this falling off in receipts of diseased sheep is due to more conscientious dipping on the part of owners in the range country. Most sheepmen have learned a trick or two and are dipping their sheep before marketing. This was not done in previous years and it naturally results in much cleaner stock going to market.

Some large orders for feeding lambs have already been placed in the Chicago market by the Indiana and Michigan feeders who did so well in the feeding business last season. The prices for desirable flocks have ranged from $4 40 to $4.65.

Nature placed horns on animals for their fighting in a wild state, but we are dealing with the domestic animals where there can be no attack from other species, and depriving them of horns is their best protection against each other.

Dairy Association Directors.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 17.—The California Dairy Association to-day elected the following Directors for the ensuing year: Judge P. J. Shields, Sacramento; W. N. Sherman, Fresno; Thomas J. Stephenson, Courtland; B. F. Walton, Yuba City; William Johnson, Courtland; G. K. Swingle, Davisville; W. H. Roussel, C. E. Hill, W. H. Saylor, San Francisco; S. N. Nash, Clarksburg; Samuel D. Watson, Alameda.

According to the official organ of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association upwards of 1,000,000 head of cattle have been shipped from the Lone Star State to the Canadian Northwest. Some ranch owners have shipped as many as 15,000 head.

Every vender of milk in British Columbia is required to take out a license. If he does not wash his hands and the cows udder and keep the barn clean and observe the most cleanly practices he is published in the dirty list.

Beef is selling in Berlin for around 44 cents a pound as an average price for all but the very poorest cuts. Much complaint is being voiced by the poorer classes which cannot afford such prices.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

The Farmer's Pork.

Happy the farmer that to-day can produce the pork for his own family and not have to depend on the open market for it. He can produce the kind of pork that suits him best and he can save all the expenses of shipping, freight, commissions and profits of wholesalers and retailers. Moreover, he can produce a pork that is healthy. He can feed foods that will produce a hard instead of a soft pork. In the production of hogs for market the objection to producing a high class hog is that such a one costs the farmer some more in the way of feed, and that he gets no more for him. When the farmer has himself as a customer he can afford to produce this first class hog, for he knows that he will get the right price for him. The aim of the breeder when producing pork for his own table should be to produce a pork that contains a very large proportion of lean meat and a very small proportion of fat. This will be in the interest of health. Pork and potatoes will be then more of a balanced ration.—Exchange

Certain alfalfa districts in Nebraska are sending hogs to the Chicago market that have never eaten corn. They have been grown and fattened on alfalfa, some of the lots being considered good enough to top the market. Clover is the natural food for hogs; they like it, and it agrees with them. Clover-fed hogs, finished on peas, make the best bacon in the world. It is this bacon, cured in Canadian packing houses, that is so much in demand, and that commands such high prices in England. Our corn-fed bacon has never met the fastidious requirements of the English epicure. The development of this new departure will be watched with considerable interest. Alfalfa yields so abundantly in semi-arid sections that have heretofore produced very few hogs, and its area is extending at such a rate that this new addition to our pork supply will probably lead to important results, both in quantity and quality.

"SAVE-THE-HORSE"
TRADE MARK

SPAVIN CURE

Can be Applied during the Hottest Weather
NOTE OUR CLAIM:—"IT IS INFALLIBLE."
Let there be no mistake or misunderstanding as to this point. It makes no difference how long standing, what the condition, or if all other known treatment has failed, this remedy will positively effect a cure. This statement will appear absurd to the sceptic, but it is absolute and inviolable truth, and we put it in no stronger words than facts, actual experience—results—confirm. It contains the great essential principle to promote the complex process of absorption. It will raise a scurf or mild blister, but it is not by blistering a cure is effected. The great potency of "Save-the-Horse" lies in its concentrated penetrating absorptive power. It penetrates to the seat of the injury or disease, produces a physiological change, absorbing all inflammatory exudate or deposit, stimulating and diffusing vitality and strength to the tissues and ligaments, producing a healthy, normal condition of the part.

POSITIVELY AND PERMANENTLY CURES
Bone and Bog Spavin, Ringbone, Curb, Thoroughpin, Splint, Capped Hock, Shoe Boil, Wind Puff, Weak and Sprained Tendons and all Lameness.

Contains no arsenic, corrosive sublimate or other forms of mercury, or any injurious ingredient. Work horse continuously if desired.

Cures without scar, blemish or loss of hair.
$5.00 PER BOTTLE.
Written guarantee with every bottle, constructed solely to convince, satisfy and protect fully. The need of second bottle is almost improbable except in rarest cases. Guarantee covers effectiveness of one bottle.

At all druggists and dealers, or sent prepaid.

Veterinary Pixine

Apply it. Rub it in on bare spots, inflammatory swellings, old sores, scratches, grease heel or skin disease. It penetrates and soothes, and the horse grows well as he toils throughout the day.

SCRATCHES, GREASE HEEL, MUD FEVER, HOOF ROT AND SPEED CRACKS.

Cases where ulcerations extend with transverse cracks which open at every step and often bleed, no matter how complex, aggravated, deep seated or chronic, if treated according to directions as given on circular with every box, positively cured with Veterinary Pixine.

After Blistering

Veterinary Pixine is the very best application that could be indicated. It absorbs all inflammatory exudate and hastens the reparatory process. Will heal the most severe cases without scar and prevents loss of hair.

As a Preventive.

If a light application of Veterinary Pixine be used before speeding, driving in wet, muddy or slushy weather, your horse will never have speed cracks, scratches or grease heel.

For Hoofs.

It will keep the hoofs healthy, soft and in perfect form.

This penetrating, stimulating, soothing, absorbing, anti-septic, healing ointment, soaks beneath the surface by disinfecting the parts, subduing inflammation, and stimulating healthy granulation, not by drying and scabbing.

2 oz., 25c; 8 oz., 50c; 5 lb. pkg., $4. At all druggists and dealers, or sent prepaid.

The Only Unbeaten Horse This Year on the Grand Circuit.

AT STOCKTON.

The Stockton Driving Club is holding a great fair and race meeting this week, and demonstrating to the public what four or five energetic and intelligent young business men can do in this particular when they pull together in a work in which all are interested.

On the opening day, Tuesday, September 23d, there was a tremendous crowd, the grand stand being filled and hundreds of buggies, traps and carriages occupying the space reserved for them in the infield.

The officials in the stand when the first race was called were as follows, and they will continue to act during the meeting: Judges, Dave Young (presiding), J. Simonds and Frank D. Cobb; clerk of the course, Fred Arnold; starter, Dick Havey.

The first race was the 2:14 trot, in which a small but high class field lined up for the word, Petigru, Alta Vela and Vic Schiller being the contestants. Petigru ruled favorite, but he had to strike his colors before the day was over to the fourteen year old Electioneer stallion Alta Vela, and the latter reduced his record to 2:11½. The first heat went to Vic Schiller in 2:12, and then Alta Vela got the next in 2:11½ and the third in 2:13. Durfee got Petigru going steadily in the next heat and won it in 2:14, but the little Palo Alto bred trotter was game as a pebble and won the fifth and last heat in 2:14½.

The track was in perfect shape for the harness horses, and comparisons were drawn on all sides between the Sacramento and Stockton race courses, much to the detriment of the former. It was also remarked frequently that the runners seemed to like the track as they ran well over it.

The green pace, which had quite a big list of original entries, brought out but three starters, with Eagletta the favorite, but the champion four year old pacer of the year Alone 2:09½ trimmed her sails in three straight heats, The Mrs. getting second money.

There were three running events, all with good fields and they furnished good contests. The summaries:

Alta Vela, b s by Electioneer..... (Hooper) 2 1 1 2 1

Running, five and a half furlongs. Hercules won, Troy second, The Miller third. Phlegon, Royal F and Coming Event also ran. Time, 1:37½.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24.

Another large crowd was present on Wednesday and the local people were highly pleased when Toppy, a Stockton horse, owned by Charley Whitehead, captured the first heat of the 2:12 pace in 2:10 flat, a magnificent performance, as there was a gale of wind blowing up the stretch. Another excellent performance during the day was the showing made by Prof. E. P. Heald's McKinney stallion Tom Smith, that took the 2:30 class trot in straight heats and getting a record of 2:16½. This race opened the program. There were four starters—Iloilo, Swift bird and Briney K. being the other three, with the last named as favorite. Tom Smith, since his sickness of last year, has not been worked much, but has been gradually improving since he started on the circuit this season, although few thought he was up to such form as he showed in this race. The time made was at least two seconds slower than it would have been had the weather been calm.

Three pacers, El Diablo, Toppy and Dictatress, started for the $500 purse offered the 2:12 class. It was conceded by all that El Diablo could win, as he was on edge and could have beaten 2:10 had it been necessary. But Charley Whitehead was at home and wanted to mark the handsome little son of his stallion, Delphi 2:12½, and he went out after the first heat like a streak of greased lightning. He got Toppy to the front at the half in 1:02 and then he ran into the gale that was blowing down the stretch and it took all the strength he had to get to the wire in 2:10, but it was a new record for Toppy and the beginning of a 2:10 list for Delphi.

The next three heats went to El Diablo in straight order in 2:12, 2:12½ and 2:13, the first being a reduction of a quarter of a second in the record of this son of Diablo.

The three running races on the card resulted in good sport and the crowd took quite a sum from the bookmakers when Windward, the favorite, won the last race. The summaries:

Trotting, 2:30 class, purse $500.
Tom Smith, b s by McKinney-Daisy S.... (Van Bokkelen) 1 1 1

Running, six furlongs—Aunt Polly won, El Karn second, Great Mogul third. Nomadic, Wieland, Boardman, Jennie Miller, Quidado, Collis, Phlegon and Theron also ran. Time, 1:15.

Running, seven furlongs—Windward won, Mike Rice second, Lode Star third. Bernota, General Cronje and Rio Chico also ran. Time, 1:38.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25.

In spite of the strong north wind, which continued to blow, there was good racing at Stockton on Thursday and the large crowd present grew enthusiastic at times over the close finishes. Presiding Judge David B. Young, who is the right man in the right place, took cognizance of everything and had several drivers and jockeys before him with good results. He is not one of those judges who inflicts fines first and investigates afterwards, but is ready to give everyone a chance to square himself on investigation. But once convinced that crooked work is being done, fines and punishment are certain to follow.

The day's sport opened with the 2:40 class trot for a purse of $500. There were four starters in this race, Princess, Cicero, Vi Direct and Donnybrook. Princess took the first and second heats rather handily in slow time, neither Cicero nor Vi Direct acting steadily, while the big stallion by Don L. did not have the necessary speed. For the third heat W. G. Durfee was asked to pilot Vi Direct and in a nicely driven mile he landed the Direct horse first in 2:18, and the talent was sure he could win with him, but Vi Direct resumed his breaking habit in the fourth heat and in spite of all Durfee could do, was behind the flag when Princess crossed the score a winner.

The event of the day was the 2:20 class pace for $1000, which however had but four starters. Enoch, the gelding by Sidmore, owned by the Meek Estate of Haywards, was favorite and Farmer Bunch had little trouble in landing him first in straight order, pacing the last heat in 2:15½ in the high wind and it could have been faster. Mr. Ivey Borden's Diablo pacer N. L. B. made an excellent showing in this race. He has not been right at any time this year, but is rounding to and improving right along. He was only beaten by a slight margin in every heat and paced one of his miles, separately timed, better than 2:16. Cranky Thorn showed speed also, and the judges asked Charley Whitehead to drive him in the third heat thinking he could get more speed out of him, but he could not improve his position.

The three runs were well contested and ended an excellent day's sport. The summaries:

Trotting, 2:40 class, purse $500.

A Street Fair for San Francisco.

Arrangements for San Francisco's first Street Fair seem to be very elaborate. The Woodmen of the World under whose auspices it is to be given, October 6th to 18th, are to enclose five acres of ground, bounded by Market and Mission, 11th and 12th streets. There is to be an industrial street made up of manufacturing and mercantile displays and a Midway in which there will be twenty different shows—all for one general price of admission.

The various fraternities are to join in making the fair a success, and separate days have been designated in their honor. There will be, besides a carnival which is to run throughout the fair with masquerades, confetti nights and other Mardi Gras features.

The voting contest is now in progress for the selection of the Queen of the Carnival which is limited to San Francisco. Twenty maids of honor are to be selected by vote from the Woodmen Camps of the State outside of the city.

Strike!—If they don't give you Jackson's Napa Soda

The Driving Club.

At a meeting of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association in the Palace Hotel, Tuesday night, the members decided to go back to the principles on which the club was originally organized.

Instead of promoting events which attract the professional drivers and trainers they will bend their energies to the development of amateur racing on the park speedway. The club has nearly a thousand dollars in its treasury. Some members wanted to devote this to a race meeting on Thanksgiving day, with four events on the card, and liberal prize money hung up.

After some discussion this was abandoned. In its place will be held matinee races on Golden Gate Park speedway on October 11. There will be two half mile races, best two in three heats, owners to drive. The horses will be driven to cart or road wagon, racing sulkies being barred.

It is the intention to develop the club along lines which will draw to its support all the men who own and drive fast road horses. This sport has attained enormous proportions in New York, Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland and other Eastern cities in recent years. Fabulous prices are being paid for suitable horses.

If the Golden Gate Park Driving Association can change its plan of racing back to the plan outlined above the club can look for more rapid and healthy growth in both membership and popularity. The idea of a gentleman's driving club hanging up purses and having racing for its members in which the horses are all driven to sulky instead of wagons, and the drivers are dressed in regulation jockey suits, has never been in harmony with the accepted ideal of a driving club. Because there is $1000 in the club treasury is no reason why it should be used up in giving purses. It should rather be set apart as a nucleus for a fund with which to build and maintain a track and club house for the members. Racing for purses, with bookmaking on the heats, will demoralize the best club of gentlemen drivers ever organized. We are glad the G. G. P. D. A. is to resume the speedway brushes and hope there will be a large crowd at the Park October 11th to see the sport.

The Spreckels Sale.

There has never been a sale of poor horses from the Aptos ranch of Mr. A. B. Spreckels. The sale which is to be held at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city on Friday, October 3d, of horses from this farm will not differ from its predecessors in this particular. There are about sixteen head of young horses from three to five years of age and they are a choice lot as regards looks, size, soundness and breeding. Sandy Smith, one of the best horse breakers and trainers in the country, has been handling this bunch of trotters and pacers for the past four months to shape them up especially for this sale. They have not been worked for speed, but have been taught good manners, and fearlessness. Sandy has driven them about the cars and on the country roads, introduced them to automobiles, bicycles, etc., etc., and they are now ready to drive in the park and on the boulevards or any other place a horse may be asked to go. There are sons and daughters of Aptos Wilkes (brother to Hulda 2:08½), Dexter Prince and Cupid 2:18, out of producing mares by Speculation, Eros, Gen. Benton, etc. They are all from three to five years of age, and are broken single and double.

Besides these, Mr. W. Ford Thomas, one of our most successful horse breeders on a small scale in this city, consigns several very good trotters and pacers besides three fine broodmares safely in foal to the great McKinney 2:11½, Stam B. 2:11½ and Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½. This sale appeals to every class of horse seekers and a large crowd will undoubtedly attend for no other sale like this will be held this year in San Francisco.

Directum 2:05 1-4 An Attraction.

It seems that all of the many thousands that daily visited last week's Minnesota's State Fair managed to visit the exhibition horse stables and find the stall where owner M. W. Savage had the former champion trotting stallion on exhibition. From early morning till late at night each day there was a crowd surrounding the great black stallion to get a glimpse of him or a chance to touch his glossy coat, either through the slats of the stall or by begging the attendants and owner to open the door so that they might satisfy their desire to pay tribute to the hero of many battles.

Mr. Savage also exhibited several yearlings and two year old sons and daughters of Directum which he has purchased within the last year at long prices. All of them came in for a generous share of attention. Pictures of the new International Farm, which is being established near Lake Minnetonka, were also an attraction and foreshadow a model and very extensive establishment, to rank with the very best, even Dreamworld or Walnut Hall.—Horse Review.

Notes and News.

Charles Marvin is reported as improving.

Effie Powers 2:08½ holds no less than 27 track records.

Hanford has been holding a very successful fair this week.

Hollister's fair will open October 8th and continue four days.

Direct Hal, 2:04½, the first year out. This is a world's record.

The Rajah, 2:14½, is the fastest three-year-old trotter of the year.

That much discussed pacer, Elderone 2:05½, has been laid up because of lameness.

The Aristocrat, by Athanio, dam by Prince Regent, recently took a record of 2:19½.

Stockton's fair and race meeting is a complete success. The Stockton Driving Club is all right.

Miss Logan 2:06½ will be sent to lower her record at Stockton to-day if the day and track are suitable.

California's list of new standard performers will make quite a respectable showing by the close of the season.

A. H. Cohen will preside in the judge's stand at the Breeders Fresno meeting next week, and will act as starter.

The Minnesota State Fair was a big success. The attendance was 230,000, while the profits will amount to about $75,000.

Dan Patch has for a pace maker a brown mare called Carrie Nation. She should be able to aid Dan in his smashing tour.

The stallion Ananias, by Patron, beat all the crackt when he started in the cup race for wagon pacers, as Cleveland, last week.

In our next issue we will give a resume of the horses to be sold at the C. E. Needham closing out sale at Stockton, October 11, 1902.

Twinkle by Mercury now divides honors with Fanny Dillard in holding the year's record for pacing mares, she having lowered her record to 2:05½.

Bay Star 2:08 is now in the breeding ranks. She was purchased for $6100 by William Simpson, but George Starr could not get her to a race.

William Penn 2:07½ got his first standard performer when his son Silver Penn took a record of 2:15½ in the first heat of the 2:25 pace at Pottstown, Pa.

Horsemen will be glad to know that trainer Charles Marvin, who has been quite ill, was improving at last accounts and was thought to be out of danger.

Concord's fair opens October 5th. Entries close October 5th. It will be one of the best attended and most successful fairs held in California this year.

McKinney 2:11½, Asbland Wilkes 2:17, Baron Wilkes, Chimes and Gambetta Wilkes 2:19½, each has to his credit six new standard performers so far this season.

Arketa knocked two seconds from her record at Hanford this week and it is now 2:18. This is a pretty good heat on a half mile track for a trotter in the 2:20 class.

Wm. G. Layng, the auctioneer, says he will hold several sales of choice thoroughbreds in November and December. Due notice of which will be published in these columns.

Don't miss getting a mare or two with Electioneer blood in her veins from Palo Alto farm before they are all sold. These mares will be paying investments for any progressive breeder.

Terre Haute has a mammoth entry list, having received no less than 253 to the twelve class events that recently closed. The smallest number in any class is twelve in the 2:06 pace.

If Cresceus 2:02½ beats his record this year he will surprise the majority of horsemen. He is a wonderful trotter, however, and no horse ever lived that could trot a heat in 2:05 as easily as he.

Some fast pacers are to be disposed of at the sale of A. B. Spreckels horses next Friday. Seekers after first class roadsters and perfectly pure gaited "trotting prospects" should attend this sale.

The New Hampshire bred stallion Greenbrino 2:10½, in America, won the European championship and a new record of 2:10 at Vienna recently. He, sold for $5000 in the Garden two seasons ago.

The new fair grounds and race track at Concord will be opened this year for the first time. Entries close October 5th and the racing begins October 15th. See the program in our advertising columns.

The special illustrated edition of the Chicago Horseman, issued September 9th, was a very handsome affair and brilliantly illustrated. The pictures of the great cup race at Cleveland were especially fine.

Seth Griffin is busily engaged putting the Memphis track in shape for the October meeting. He will put a three-inch layer of clay on the inside all the way round and a little more than that on the outside.

There has been some newspaper talk about Cresceus starting in the race for the $5000 gold cup at Memphis, driven by Edwin Gaylord of Denver. This, however, will not be possible under the conditions of the race.

Lemonade 2:27½, by Kentucky Prince is now the dam of three trotters with records better than 2:12, viz., Bessie Wilton (4) 2:09½, Petigru 2:10½ and Lady Wilton 2:11½. The last named is a broodmare at Dreamwold Farm.

Norval 2:14½ is the leading son of Electioneer as a sire of pure gaited trotters. He now has sixty-two trotters to his credit with records of 2:30 or better. Sphinx 2:20½ comes next with fifty-seven and Chimes next with forty-six.

Millard Sanders won first money in the 2:17 trot at Baltimore last week, and Millard Sanders won third money. The former is the well known driver, and the latter is the almost equally as well-known horse, which was named after the former.

Gambetta Wilkes has over one hundred trotters and pacers with standard records to his credit, yet he gained his first 2:10 trotter at Providence in the black mare Alice Carr 2:09½, winner of the first heat in the Roger Williams Stake of $10,000.

"Here is another can for the dog's tail," writes H. J. Kline in the Kentucky Stock Farm. "At the beginning of the month of September fourteen trotters had entered the 2:10 list in 1902, and only two of the lot were produced by mares with records."

The catalogues of the A. B. Spreckels sale are issued and everyone who attends the sale next Friday at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city will be pleased with the appearance of those to be sold. A finer lot was never led into that famous sales-ring.

That was a pretty hard knock the circuit chasers got when they went to Hanford and had Silver Coin, Gaff Topsail, Nance O'Neill and Chief beaten in the 2:12 pace by a local horse called Cuckoo in straight heats. Best time 2:18½ over a half mile track.

It has been officially announced that the Cleveland Club proposes to offer a cup of equal value, or greater value, to the Challenge Trophy, the conditions governing the competition to be similar to those that governed the contest for the Challenge Trophy.

Peter V. Johnston, Kalamazoo, Mich., who has been very successful this season in the Michigan circuit with Lady Katherine and others, has a colt that is pronounced a great prospect for 1903. The youngster is by Chimes out of the dam of Peter the Great 2:07½.

"What happened to all those fine-spun modern theories about balancing and shoeing a trotter when Lord Derby threw a front shoe and a quarter boot 40 feet in the air at the first quarter pole, and then went on and finished the mile in 2:05½?" asks a New York horse owner.

Dr. J. A. McNaughton, of Fortuna, Cal., who is much interested in horses, was a caller at this office this week. He is looking up the facts in the case of an alleged ringer that performed at a meeting held at the Fortuna track recently, and seems to be pretty close on his trail.

The three broodmares consigned by W. Ford Thomas to the C. A. Spreckels sale are in foal to McKinney 2:11½, Stam B. 2:11½ and Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½. These mares are grand looking individuals and are fit to grace the breeding ranks of any horse breeder in the United States.

Tom James has already booked twenty-five mares to Barondale 2:11½ for 1903. Mr. James had Barondale at the State Fair this year and won the red ribbon with him, while a very large number of people thought he should have had the blue. He is one of the most royally bred stallions in America to-day.

Alta Vela took a mark of 2:11½ Tuesday, at Stockton, defeating Petigru 2:10½ and Vic Schiller 2:11½. He is a great little horse and we hope he can be pointed for a mile below 2:10 this year, and give his sire Electioneer four in that select list. With a good day and track he could doubtless trot a mile in 2:09 or better.

Sandy Smith, who is getting the Aptos Stock Farm horses ready for the auction sale at Occidental Horse Exchange in this city next Friday, says the two by Dexter Prince, one a trotter, the other a pacer, are crackjacks. Sandy says he has not been permitted to work them for speed, but they show that they have it, and of a high order, too.

It is hard to tell nowadays where the line is to be drawn between the harness race horse proper and the road horse. Not many men can differentiate accurately between the two. More and more speed is being required year by year by the men who would like to engage in racing to wagon, and now only the very fastest and steadiest of the best of the trotting and pacing divisions will be chosen by the men who can pay the long prices.

In the Needham closing out sale at Stockton on Saturday, October 11th, there are some very well matched, toppy driving teams as well as some grand looking roadsters. The Morgan and thoroughbred foundation in the blood lines of these finely bred teams gave them style, finish and gameness. The catalogues contain the names of forty-five teams.

High Pointer, the mammoth horse owned by Geers, that stands in the neighborhood of 17 hands, ought to prove himself a great horse next year. He has worked miles close to 2:11, but it was thought advisable by Geers to send him to Village Farm to hold him over until next year, when he will be taken up again and entered in all of the big pacing stakes.

The French bookmakers have concocted a scheme which throws in the shade anything ever attempted on this side of the water. According to the New York Herald, a wealthy bookmaker, Paul Blain, placed a green board studded with nails on the track. When arrested he stated that his purpose was to puncture the pneumatics of the sulkies and spoil the chances of heavily backed trotters and thus win money.

Louis Schaffer, the well known Alameda county auctioneer, will sell at the ranch of E. B. & A. L. Stone at Elmhurst on Saturday, October 11th, 175 head of horses and mules, comprising draft animals weighing from 1100 to 1800 pounds, also business horses and gentlemen's driving horses. Besides there will be sold a large number of wagons, scrapers and other vehicles, 75 sets of chain harness, carriage and buggy harness, etc. The Haywards electric cars and the broad gauge local from San Francisco pass the ranch.

The proposed cowboy race from Deadwood, S. D., to Omaha was abandoned when the promoters became aware that President Roosevelt disapproved of it. Additional protests were received from several humane societies. Following is the telegram received from the President's secretary: "Capt. Seth Bullock, Deadwood, S. D.—Referring to the proposed horse race from Deadwood to Omaha, the President would not be willing to have it take place unless it were possible to exercise supervision over the condition in which the horses would come in, and, as this would be impossible, he asks you to say in his name that he requests the race not to take place. George B. Cortelyou, Secretary."

Declaring off the free-for-all pace at the State Fair on the last day, when three such side-wheelers as Miss Logan, Kelly Briggs and El Diablo were ready to risk the bad track and race for the money, not only disappointed hundreds of people, but looked very bad, especially as a special pace was put on, besides two running races, at nearly the cost of the purse offered for the free-for-all. A gentleman who went to Sacramento that day from Rocklin says "at least a hundred people went from that sparsely settled community to the State Fair that day especially to see that race," while it is stated the Yolo delegation, that went for no other reason than to see Kelly Briggs and Miss Logan meet again, numbered at least twice as many.

Anzella did not win the $10,000 purse for 2:07 trotters at Redville last Wednesday, but she got the first heat, lowered her record to 2:06½, and secured second money. Lord Derby was the winner. He just escaped the distance flag in the first heat, but took the next three in rather hardy fashion. Chain Shot and Onward Sil er were the only other starters. Lord Derby's time in the three heats was 2:07½, 2:08½ and 2:09. The latest picture of Anzella that appeared in an Eastern paper shows that she is pretty thin and in an interview Millard Sanders states that he has been compelled to work her pretty hard to keep her steady. She has raced more than any other trotter in her class on the circuit, and it need not be wondered at if she is getting a little stale. She has won about $15,000 to date.

Anna A., the mare by Dictatus that took a record of 2:18 at Sacramento last week, is quite a trotter for a green one, and had not been heard of in this part of the country until she made her debut at Sacramento. She is out of a Director mare, it is said, and she looks like a good one in her class for next year. Rosalind, the filly by Stam B. 2:11½, that secured second money in the race where Anna A. took her record, is another very promising trotter. She was sold during the State Fair by her owners and breeders, Tuttle Bros. of Rocklin, to a Los Angeles gentleman, who has placed her in Walter Mahen's care and she will probably be raced in the Los Angeles matinees this winter. Rosalind has a nice way of going that leads one to think she has 2:10 speed or better, and C. A. Durfee says she worked a quarter in 32½ seconds right along side Cuate one morning when he was working out.

The gray stallion Independence, that died in Connecticut recently, was bred by C. F. Taylor, South Vassalboro, Me., and foaled in 1871. His sire was Gen. Knox 2:31½ and his dam, Skip, was by Gideon, son of Hambletonian. Skip also produced Glenarm 2:23½. He was sold to William Rockefeller, of New York City, about 1880 for $1200, and took a record of 2:21½ to harness at Fleetwood Park, where he beat Hambletonian Mambrino, Von Arnim and Indianapolis in straight heats. In 1883 Clara and Independence lowered the world's double team trotting record to 2:16½, and it was reported that an offer of $30,000 was made for Independence shortly after that event. For the past ten or twelve years the horse has been owned by a Mr. Reilly of Connecticut. He was the sire of two trotters with records in standard time, viz.: Wonderful 2:21½ and Agnes Morrill 2:22. One of his sons, Kennebec, is the sire of one 2:30 trotter, and his daughters have produced two in the list.

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR.

Last Three Days at Sacramento.

The largest attendance of the State Fair was brought out on Thursday of the second week, which was called Governor's Day. Governor Gage was the guest of the Agricultural Society and an invitation had been extended to the Republican and Democratic candidates for his position to be present. The invitation was accepted by Mr. Lane, the Democratic banner bearer, but Dr. Pardee sent his regrets. There were probably five thousand people at the park when the racing program began in the afternoon. In addition to the Governor and his brilliantly decorated staff of colonels and majors, there was the big stallion stake worth nearly seven thousand dollars, down for decision, with seven handsome two year olds to compete for it. Then there was the Governor's Stake, specially arranged for this day, besides several other running events and a trot and pace.

The first event on the card was the 2:35 trot with Cicero, Getaway, Anna A., Tom Smith, Faust, Rosalind and Donnybrook as starters. The betting was 10 on Cicero, 20 on Rosalind and 5 on the field.

Cicero got off slightly ahead and Anna A. was close to him, with Rosalind next. Cicero led up the back stretch, with Anna A. two lengths behind. Near the turn Rosalind collared Anna A. and Cicero went up in the air. There was a pretty struggle to the head of the stretch and down it, Rosalind passing Anna A., but almost at the wire Maben made a splendid drive and Anna A. passed Rosalind, beating her by a length, with Getaway third and Donnybrook distanced. Time, 2:23½.

In the second heat Anna A. went to the front, followed by Rosalind and Cicero around the back stretch. On the turn Rosalind collared Anna A., the others far in the rear. Down the stretch Rosalind broke and Anna A. won by ten lengths, Rosalind about the same distance ahead of Cicero, Tom Smith fourth and Getaway distanced. Time, 2:18.

For the third heat Durfee was put on to drive Cicero and the betting changed to 15 on Anna A. and 7 on the field. Cicero went off with a slight start, but Anna A. led around the lower turn, when Rosalind came up to her and went nearly even down the back stretch, with Cicero third. Rosalind pulled up on the turn and Cicero collared Anna A., and came down the stretch slightly behind her, but broke fifty yards from the wire and passed her on a run, Rosalind ten lengths behind. The judges gave the heat and race to Anna A. Time, 2:18½.

The 2:24 pace followed the trot. The starters were Alford C., Polka Dot, Alice Lee, Athene and Enoch. The betting was 5 on Enoch, 10 on Alford C. and 3 on the field.

Athene got off in the lead, but Alice Lee went to the front around the lower turn and Athene went into the air, but soon steadied down. Enoch passed him. Down the stretch the order was Alice Lee, Athene and Enoch, but Enoch came with a rush and beat them out ten lengths. Alice Lee broke and Athene beat her for second place. Time, 2:18½.

In the second heat Athene had the lead, Enoch next. They went together down the back stretch and Alford C. came up on the turn. Athene led down the stretch Alford collared Athene, but Enoch passed them both and won by three lengths, Athene beating Alford by a neck. Time, 2:15.

In the third heat the order was Athene, Alford C. and Enoch around the lower turn and the back stretch. At the seven-eighths post Enoch challenged and took the lead. Almost at the wire Polka Dot came with a rush and passed Alford C. and Athene. Enoch beat her by a length and Alford C. was a length behind her. Time, 2:16.

Among the runs the big stallion stake was the feature. It was worth $6750 and the starters were the following two year olds: Gaviota (Collis), Polonius (Walker), The Major (Bozeman), St. Winnifride (Kelly), Maxnie (Ransch), Organdie (Lee) and Nervator (Sullivan).

The opening betting was Gaviota 3, The Major 10, St. Winnifride 10, Polonius and Maxnie coupled at 7 to 10, Organdie 3 and Nervator 2½.

St. Winnifride got off a length in the lead, but Maxnie challenged and passed her at the five-eighths post. He did not retain the lead long, however, for St. Winnifride passed him again and went around the turn three lengths ahead, with the others well up and Polonius last. St. Winnifride led by four lengths down the stretch, with Gaviota next. Ransch came with a rush on Maxnie, twenty yards from the wire, passed St. Winnifride and won by a length, Gaviota third, two lengths behind. The winner is owned by Burns & Waterhouse and was bred by them. He is by their stallion Altamax and his dam is Picnic by imp Mr. Pickwick. The summaries of the day's races follow:

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19.

The first race was the 2:18 class pace. Nance O'Neil, Penrose, N. L. B. and Alford C. being the starters. The betting was 10 on Alford C. and four on the field.

N. L. B. was first at the quarter, with Alford C. second and Penrose third. Penrose challenged and took the lead down the back stretch. N. L. B. broke near the paddock and Alford C. beat him by a head for second place, Penrose winning by a length. Time, 2:21.

For the second heat Penrose was two lengths ahead of Alford C. at the quarter, N. L. B. third. They came down the stretch in the same order and around the turn without change. Penrose was never headed and won by a length and a half, Alford C. six lengths ahead of N. L. B., Nance O'Neil distanced. Time, 2:20.

For the third heat Penrose had a length start of Alford C. and he a length ahead of N. L. B. They went in that order around the back stretch, but on the turn N. L. B. collared Alford C. and went on even terms with him to the stretch. Penrose was never headed and won handily by a length from N. L. B., who beat Alford C. almost at the wire by a half length. Time, 2:19.

The second race, the 2:11 trot, the starters were Cozad, Alta Vela and Vic Schiller. The betting was 10 on Cozad and 4 on the field. Petigru was scratched, disturbing the odds. Vic Schiller got a little the best of the send-off. Alta Vela led at the quarter, with Vic Schiller next. They came down the back stretch in the same order, but on the turn Cozad collared Vic Schiller. Down the stretch Cozad passed Vic Schiller and won by a length and a half, Alta Vela ten lengths behind. Time, 2:17.

They had an even start for the second heat and Cozad was never headed. On the back stretch Schiller broke and Alta Vela passed him. Cozad won by three lengths from Alta Vela, Schiller ten lengths behind. Time, 2:18.

Cozad finished by winning the third heat, never being headed. Alta Vela challenged him on the back stretch, but could not pass him. Coming down the home stretch Schiller passed Alta Vela and Cozad won by six lengths from Schiller, which was eight lengths in front of Alta Vela. Time, 2:15½.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20.

Hundreds of people from Yolo county and other nearby territory were at the track on the last day to see the free-for-all pace in which Miss Logan, Kelly Briggs and El Diablo were expected to have a battle royal. The Directors declared the race off, however, and the crowd and the owners were the most disappointed lot of people ever seen on a race track.

The first race was the 2:17 trot, mile heats, three in five, with six starters. These were Puerto Rico, Lijero, Shelby, McKenna, Lady Fair and Forrest W. The betting was 10 on Forrest W., 4 on Lijero and 10 on the field.

Forrest W. led all the way in the first heat and won easily. Lady Fair broke on the back stretch and Puerto Rico passed to second place. Down the stretch it was neck and neck between Forrest W., Lady Fair and Shelby. Forrest W. won by a length and a half and Lady Fair beat Shelby half a length in the finish for second place. Time, 2:18½.

On the second heat there was a very ragged start, Forrest W. getting off in front. On the turn he was six lengths ahead of Lijero, with Puerto Rico ten lengths behind. They kept the same order around the upper turn. Forrest W. was never headed and came in one and a half lengths ahead of Lijero, with Lady Fair fifteen lengths behind for third place. Time, 2:15½.

Forrest W., Lady Fair and Lijero were the only starters in the third heat. Lijero led to the back stretch, when Forrest W. came up and collared him, and they trotted like a double team to the top of the turn, where Lijero drew away. Down the stretch they were at even terms at first, but Forrest W. jogged in an easy winner by six lengths, Lady Fair ten lengths ahead of Lijero. Time, 2:16.

The second race was a special, Sacramento Driving Club, mile heats, three in five. Baby Button (C. W. Paine), Monroe B. (F. J. Rubstaller), Polka Dot (C. Silva), Dave Ryan (McCollum), and Margaretta (F. E. Wright) were the starters.

Monroe B. got a length start, but at the lower turn Margaretta took the lead and was never in danger. Monroe B. was second up the back stretch, but Dave Ryan collared and passed him. Baby Button broke and lost badly. Down the stretch it was a hollow procession, Margaretta winning by ten lengths, with Dave Ryan ten lengths before Monroe B. Time, 2:22.

In the second heat Margaretta and Monroe B. were the only centers of interest. Margaretta led around the back stretch, but at the five-eighths pole Monroe B. challenged her and passed her, and they had a stubborn race to the close, Monroe B. winning by a length and a half, and Baby Button, Polka Dot and Dave Ryan distanced. Time, 2:15½.

For the third heat Monroe B. broke on the turn and fell behind, but pulled up on the back stretch and collared Margaretta on the turn, and they paced around like a double team. She outfooted him down the stretch, however, and won handily by six lengths. Time, 2:20½.

For the fourth heat they had an even start, but Margaretta went to the front and was never headed, winning by three lengths in 2:21.

Seven running races completed a program of two weeks racing that was of a very ordinary sort except in a few instances. Summaries:

Denver will probably have no race meeting next year. Edwin Gaylord, who pushed the meetings through for the past two years, says positively that he has had enough of the game and nobody has turned up yet who is willing to take the proposition off his hands. Mr. Gaylord's lease on the Overland track is good for another year, but he is willing to turn it over to anybody desirous of holding a race meeting. If there is any meeting to be held at all it will probably be managed by some professional sportsmen with running horses only.—Denver Field and Farm.

Additional Entries for Los Angeles.

The entries for the additional harness races offered by the Los Angeles race meeting, and which closed September 18th, have been received. It will be remembered by our readers that the list of stakes for trotters and pacers first advertised by the Los Angeles association filled with a big list of entries and that the directors then opened ten additional purses all for $500 each, to close in September. Of these five have filled. Those that did not fill were the green class trot, 2:21 class pace, 2:15 class pace, and the two novelty races, one for trotters that started and did not win a heat in 2:20 or better in 1901 and 1902, the other for pacers that started in both those years and failed to secure a heat in 2:16 or better. The races that filled are as follows and should furnish excellent races as the horses are evenly matched:

How Rythmic Came to be Bred.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a sensational performer to flash down the Grand Circuit without putting into circulation a number of stories as to accidents which placed him in the owner's hands or which almost prevented him from ever seeing a race course. And this is the story of how Jesse Turney of Paris, Ky., got the blind wonder Rythmic in exchange for a mule and a debt.

Turney is not a horseman in the ordinary sense of the word, his business being dealing in mules on a large scale. He had a friend named Redmond who owed him $500. Redmond was unable to pay and one day said to Turney:

"Don't know when I am going to be able to give you the money I owe. I have a good Strathmore mare over here, and I will send her over to your place and we will call the debt square."

Turney demurred at first, but as an accommodation accepted the mare. Turney had an elephant on his hands in the mare, and at length determined to ask Warren Stoner to permit him to breed her to Oakland Baron.

"I know you are not standing this horse," said Turney, "but as an accommodation to me let me send over this mare, and if the mare proves in foal you can come over to my place and pick out the best mule you see."

The colt which is now Rythmic was scrawny and ill-looking, and Stoner claimed the mule somewhat shamefacedly.

"A trade is a trade with me," said Turney. "You can walk into that bunch of 175 mules and pick out the one you like." So Stoner got a mule worth in the neighborhood of $200 for the season to Oakland Baron, so that the blind trotter cost Mr. Turney something like $700 the day he was foaled. No one will say, however, that the investment has been a bad one.

A GOOD MAN offered up his life for his country and for the men who are fighting its battles in the Philippines, when Father McKinnon died at Manila September 24th. The news of his death published in the telegrams of last Thursday came as a sad message to thousands in California. Rev. William McKinnon was a Catholic clergyman who endeared himself to every person he met by reason of his noble character and tender, sympathetic nature. It was years ago, when in charge of the Catholic Orphan Asylum for boys near San Rafael, in this State, that he stocked the pasture lands of the big farm there with standard bred horses and founded the Asylum Stock Farm. The dispersal of this stock by auction in 1893 was greatly regretted by Father McKinnon, who had laid the foundation for a high class breeding farm, and it is worthy of note that the stallion Alta Vela that made a record of 2:11½ last Tuesday at Stockton, the day of Father McKinnon's death, was one of the then young stallions selected by him with which to mate the mares upon this farm. When the Spanish war broke out, Father McKinnon was among the first to enlist and was appointed chaplain of the First California Volunteers, serving with that regiment in the Philippines until its return to California. He returned to the Philippines, however, feeling there was much work to do there and he was not one to shirk it. He was not of robust physique and after devoting several years to the building up of schools and other work, contracted the dreaded dysentery so prevalent in that vile climate and died. Pages could be filled with the stories that are related of his bravery, his daring and his tender ministrations to the American soldiers. In the history of the American occupation of the Philippines the name of Father McKinnon occupies a very important and conspicuous part and he was identified with every measure that was intended to improve the mental, moral or physical conditions of the people. Father McKinnon's death will be a severe loss to his country which he loved with devotion. He was as brave as a lion and as gentle as a woman. "There was, there is, no kindlier, manlier man."

SYNDICATE BOOK BETTING can be depended upon to lower the class of racing on any track where it is permitted and it is time the State and District Agricultural Directors came to a realization of this fact. There is plenty of evidence to prove this assertion. It is not necessary for any Board to look farther than its own meeting for enough to make out a very strong case. It would be a very popular and very wise move on the part of the Legislature at its session next winter to pass a law which would prohibit bookmaking at any fair which drew aid from the State. The old style of auction and pari mutuel pools will furnish all the opportunity to wager money on racing results that is necessary. It was tried at one district fair in California this year with complete success. The Board of Supervisors of the county in which this fair was held, when asked to appropriate a sum of money to aid the exhibition, had the good sense to make a generous appropriation with the proviso that no bookmaking be permitted. The result showed the wisdom of their action. The best fair in the history of the association was given, it drew the largest attendance ever seen at the track and improved the moral of the meeting in a marked degree. We hope some enterprising assemblyman or senator in the next California Legislature, who is interested in having the district and State Fairs improved and come nearer the standard that was intended when they were founded, will introduce and secure the passage of a bill prohibiting bookmaking at any race meeting conducted by an association that draws State aid. It would have the support of every breeder and trainer of horses in California.

NEXT WEEK AT FRESNO the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association will hold its annual meeting. The Fresno Fair Association will give a fair and stock exhibit during the same week, and with these combined attractions the Raisin City should be a very lively place during the time. The Breeders have a good list of entries for an excellent program of racing and as the track is in fine shape good time and close contests should be the rule during the week. The largest stakes to be decided during the meeting are The California, for 2:24 class trotters, which has a value of $2000, and The Raisin City, for 2:20 class pacers, value $1000. The latter is down for decision on Tuesday next, the opening day of the meeting, and will undoubtedly result in a fierce contest. Among those eligible to start are Alone 2:09½, Eagletta 2:11½, Yukon 2:13½, Robert I. 2:10 and Harry J. 2:13, all of which have made their records since the stake was closed. There are sixteen entries to this race.

DAN PATCH did the trick at Readville last Wednesday and equalled Star Pointer's record of 1:59½ made five years ago. It is within reason, now that this six-year old, sound-and-all-right stallion has accomplished this great feat at an age two years younger than that of the illustrious Pointer horse when he did it, to predict that he will before his retirement, set the pacing record still further inside the 2:00 figures. He is young and sound, and a few fractions may yet be knocked by him from the championship record which he now shares with the former great rival of his honored dad. May he find the power as well as the time and place and opportunity to do it will be the earnest wish of every horseman in the country.

Bidding for the State Fair.

The State Fair association is in debt about $58,000 and is trying to find some way to pay it off. The last Legislature appropriated $45,000 to pay the Society's debts on condition that the fair grounds at Sacramento be deeded to the State. As this procedure would leave $13,000 for the directors to pay out of their own pockets to clear the debt, it has not met their approval, especially as the property is worth more than that amount. The Sacramento Record-Union of last Tuesday, contained the following in this connection:

"At the meeting of the Board of Trustees of the city of Sacramento last night W. E. Gerber, Fred Cox and C. W. Paine appeared on behalf of the State Agricultural Society, and Mr. Gerber stated that the society was in debt. The last session of the Legislature appropriated $45,000, which it was thought would pay all debts, on condition that the society would deed to the State the race track. It is found that the society owed $13,000 more. Its buildings have deteriorated and need replacing, and if the State insists on the provision for deeding the track to the State it cannot pay its debts. He thought that if half of the track was deeded to the State it would accept it. If the city would buy the property east of the track, which is occupied largely by asparagus fields, a good track could be made with the remainder of the park. He had bonded all the property in order to secure it. Mr. Speckels had assured him that he had received three offers from other cities to donate ground and buildings for the State Fair, but it is desired to retain it here. He asked if the board would submit to the people of the city the question of raising $75,000 to $100,000 with which to buy the ground. He did not want to see the State Fair moved from this city.

"Mr. Cox said he had been for several years fighting for the fair. He thought it would be a good business proposition for the city. The society has run badly in debt without any fault of its own. He did not know what the legal powers of the board are, but if it can do so, he thought it ought to do as it is asked. The society will meet on the 30th instant to close up its affairs and would like to know what can be done.

"Director Grove L. Johnson said that he had been on the Board of Directors for three years and the debt had not accumulated during that time. It was an old debt. The question is whether the people of the city desire to retain the State Fair here and are willing to purchase the property and lease it at a nominal rent to the society, the city to retain title to the property. The horsemen who stay in this city from July to November disburse from $500 to $700 a day for the maintenance of their horses, etc., and the presence of the fair brings in various ways a large amount of money that is left here. He favored the proposition, as he favored anything that would help Sacramento. He favored raising the amount by direct taxation, but others favored bonds. He thought the people would vote for it, and that it would be a good investment. He hoped the board would see its way clear to appoint a committee and consider the matter with the society.

"Devine favored selling part of the track, say nine blocks, and a direct tax to raise $60,000 to supply the remainder needed to purchase the ground, but was opposed to bonds.

"Beard moved that the matter be referred to the Judiciary Committee to report a resolution in favor of submitting the proposition to the people next Monday night.

"Tebbets said the city could not afford to take a step backward or to lose the fair. He thought it would be a great benefit to the city. Probably in no other county is there so noted a place for raising horses. The Haggin stable is known all over the country, and he thought it the most important proposition that has been presented for years. Sacramento citizens have done far more to forward the interests of the fair than all the rest of the State, and he thought they would still stand by it.

"Mr. Gerber said the society did not mean to say that the whole amount asked for was necessary to buy the ground. It would provide a surplus for buildings and other purposes.

"D. E. Merry opposed the proposition to buy the ground. He favored going outside of the city as other places have done. He was opposed to bonding. There will always be opposition in the Legislature to keeping the fair in this city, and it will always be necessary to fight the same people every session.

'Beard's motion was carried unanimously.'

Answers to Correspondents.

Mr. E. D. Carr, editor of the Ferndale Enterprise, who has recently been honored with the election of President of the Ferndale Agricultural Fair Association and acted as presiding judge at the recent fair races there, writes to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to inquire if stuffing a horse's ears with cotton while in a race, is contrary to the rules of the National Trotting Association. It seems a protest was filed with the Ferndale judges against a mare that paced with cotton in her ears and although the mare did not win President Carr desires to know if there were any grounds for the protest.

Stuffing a horse's ears with cotton violates no rule of the National or American Trotting Associations. It is a common practice and there is hardly a meeting on the Grand Circuit or elsewhere but some nervous horse starts with cotton in his ears. Rhythmic 2:08½, the celebrated blind trotter that has won so many races on the Grand Circuit this year, is driven with his ears plugged with cotton.

"There have been many criticisms on the harness racing at the State Fair this year, and the newspapers have given all sorts of reasons why it was so poor," said an old time horseman as he sat down in the B. & S. sanctum sanctorum last Monday, "but none of them have given the main and principal reason yet. The condition of the track was the thing that did it. For the first time in the history of the Occident Stake, worth over three thousand dollars this year, the track was cut up for the runners on the opening day before the Occident could be trotted. Now, what do you think of that? Wouldn't that jar you? The Sacramento track is a poor one at best—sort of worn out and cuppy—and there was not an excuse in the world for running the heavy harrows over it before the Occident was trotted, when the runners would not have been inconvenienced had this been delayed until the three year old trotting stake was finished. The track was deeply harrowed at least twenty-five feet from the pole all around, and as it is a narrow track anyway, one can see how much chance a colt had that got off badly. It was 'take to the plowed ground or stay back,' as all those in the lead had possession of the full width of the good footing. It looked funny, didn't it, that not one of the trotting classes except the 2:11 and the 2:17 classes beat the time made by the three year olds on the first day? And these races were trotted on the last two days of the meeting when the track had become packed somewhat by the several hundred trotters being worked on it, and in spite of the constant use of the deep cutting harrow. Whenever the State Agricultural Society provides as good a track for the trotters as they get at Woodland, Stockton and other places, they will have good harness racing, but as long as the sulkies have to be drawn through a plowed road, there will be no high class trotting or pacing."

Successful Producing Blood Lines.

It has been stated recently that an eminent Southern gentleman, who loves good horses and is now proprietor of a trotting breeding establishment, believes that when mares whose pedigrees show a certain combination of blood lines are mated with stallions whose pedigrees show a certain combination of blood lines the produce must be fast if trained. Other breeders have held similar opinions in the past, have experimented along those lines, and have been forced to the conclusion that may is a much more appropriate word to use in that connection than must.

A careful study of the pedigrees of the most noted trotters, whose blood lines were known, from Dexter 2:17½ to Cresceus 2:02½, will show that there is an apparent affinity between certain lines or strains of blood. It will show that the pedigrees of all the most noted trotters produced in this country, whose ancestors were known on both sides for at least five generations, possess at least two well-known strains, viz., Messenger and Diomed, both imported and both bred from racing stock. An analysis of the pedigrees of Messenger and Diomed will also show that these two famous stallions, which did so much to improve the horse stock of this country and whose blood blended so successfully, each possessed three strains that was found in the other, viz., the Darley Arabian, the Godolphin Arabian and the Byerly Turk.

It has been stated upon apparently good authority that all of the most noted race winners which have been produced in England during the past 250 years were direct descendants of either the Darley Arabian, the Godolphin Arabian or the Byerly Turk, and the pedigrees of most of them show the names of at least two of these noted sires, while many contain the names of all three of them. Horses had been raced in England for more than 700 years before either of these three noted horses appeared there.

Intelligent men had no doubt carefully studied the subject of breeding, speed and all other racing qualities for centuries before either of the above-named horses were foaled. Men of intelligence and wealth have been studying and experimenting carefully ever since the introduction of those horses, and yet only a small proportion of the horses raised there that are known as thoroughbreds are first class race winners. A large proportion of them are somewhat defective, either in speed, stamina or gameness.

The Americans are a progressive people, but it would be strange, indeed, if they could make more progress toward breeding first-class race-winning trotters with certainty in seventy five years than the English have made in 1,000 years in breeding first-class running race winners.

The time may come when a man will be able to breed 2:20 or 2:15 and possibly 2:10 trotters with certainty. But in order to do so we believe that he must have a stallion and a mare, each of which is backed by at least seven generations of ancestors, every one of which possessed 2:20 or 2:15 or 2:10 speed ability. It will be a long time yet before either a stallion or a mare of that kind is produced. One of the oldest trotting horse breeders living, and by far the most successful breeder of extreme light-harness speed that ever lived, C. J. Hamlin, remarked not long since that the "trotting breeding industry is in its infancy."

A careful study of the Year Books and Register will show what combinations of blood lines can be depended upon to produce speed with the greatest uniformity. It requires sound judgment, however, to select the best animals that are bred in those lines, and the ones that are best suited for mating with each other to produce the desired result. A man may be an excellent judge of pedigree, but not a first class judge of conformation, character, temperament and gait. A man must possess all of these qualities combined in order to become successful, and continue so, as a breeder of first class light harness horses.

The man, however, who sticks most closely to the best and most successful producing lines will be pretty sure to win in the long run. A study of pedigrees will show that many horses of but little account, so far as speed is concerned, were bred in lines very similar, and in some cases like those of the most successful one. This is a mystery to most men if they have not made the subject of heredity as treated by the most eminent modern authors a special study. This tendency to throw back to some ancestor, and possibly a remote one, is what upsets the calculations of breeders, and causes them to sometimes think that breeding for speed is a lottery. It is undoubtedly true, however, that "like produces like or the likeness of some ancestor."—American Horse Breeder.

Boston Cup Presented to Mr. Devereux.

[American Sportsman, Cleveland.]

The forty members of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Cleveland that attended the dinner given at the Roadside Club, last Saturday evening after the matinee, will always recall the occasion as one of the most pleasant and enjoyable gatherings in the history of that organization. Under the deed of gift governing the contest for the Boston Challenge Cup the same became the property of the club that won it three times. As an expression of its appreciation for his untiring efforts in the interests of matinee racing and the Cleveland Club, and his truly sportsmanlike manner in devoting John A. McKerron for three years to the sole purpose of winning the Boston cup, the Gentlemen's Driving Club decided to present Mr. H. K. Devereux with the trophy, and the sincere and hearty enthusiasm which followed the clever presentation speech made by Toastmaster C. A. Otis, Jr., was a fitting tribute paid President Devereux by his fellow members, each and every one of whom have taken such a deep personal interest in the contest ever since McKerron first won the cup at Boston, in 1900.

Mr. Devereux responded in a feeling manner that evidenced his appreciation of the sentiment that prompted the club's action and the conclusion of his remarks was the signal for another outburst of enthusiastic applause. After drinking to the health of Mr. Devereux, and then to that of his great trotter, the Boston cup was filed with oats for McKerron. The following verses composed by a member of the entertainment committee of the club, and referring to McKerron's victory, were sung amid the hearty cheers of the assemblage:

Oh! bring McKerron back, Harry.
Why did you drive inside,
I only opened up that place
To make The Monk go wide.
Oh! bring McKerron back, Harry.
The Derby's made a break,
I fear in sizing up this race,
I've made a great mistake.

Oh! bring McKerron back, Harry.
The Monk's begun to tire,
If you keep this pace I fear he'll die
Before you reach the wire.
Oh! bring McKerron back, Harry,
Till I get this horse to you,
Fred Gerken said I could not lose
And I thought he ought to know.

It was decided that the Cleveland Club will present a handsome gold cup to be competed for under conditions to be announced later, the first contest to take place in 1903.

Great Country for Horses.

Siberia is a good country for horses, says the English author J. Foster Fraser, in his recently published book, "The Real Siberia." They are sturdy workers, and as hardy as you can find. In central Siberia there are 85 horses to every 100 in population. In the United States the proportion of 22 to the hundred, and in France seven to the hundred. The Siberian proportion, indeed, is only excelled by the Argentine Republic, where the rate is 112 horses to every hundred inhabitants. In the region of the Trans-Siberian Railway from Cheybalinsk to Irkutsk it is estimated that there are something like three million horses. The average peasant's horse is worth from five to six dollars. The horses used for the post, and which have enormous powers of speed and endurance, cost from ten to twelve dollars. The finest horses, which would fetch about $300 in England, are to be got from $30 to $35.

Pacific Coast Salmon.

The salmon of the Pacific embrace no less than five species. The salmon of the north Atlantic (Salmo salar) consists of but one variety. In the "Check List of North American Fishes" compiled by Professor David Starr Jordan, president of the Leland Stanford Jr. University, and Barton Warren Evermann of the United States Fish Commission, which was published by the Fish Commission in 1896, the Pacific salmon will be found classified in the genus Oncorhynchus Suckley. Four species are noted in the sub-genus of the same name, in another sub-genus is mentioned a fifth. These classifications are the following:

Oncorhynchus gorbuscha (Walbaum)—Humpback salmon; haddo; holia; gorbuscha; dog salmon of Alaska. Habitat, Pacific Coast and rivers of North America from Oregon northward, and of Asia.

Oncorhynchus keta (Walbaum)—Dog salmon; hay-ko; Le Kai salmon. Habitat, San Francisco to Kamchatka.

Oncorhynchus tshawytscha (Walbaum)—Quinnat salmon; Chinook salmon; tshawytsche; king salmon; Columbia salmon; Sacramento salmon; tyee salmon; sawkey; chouicha or tshawytscha. Habitat, Alaska, Oregon and California, southward to Ventura River and to Northern China.

Oncorhynchus kisutch (Walbaum)—Silver salmon; kisutch; skowitz; hoopid salmon; coho salmon; bialaya ryba; quisutch. Habitat, from San Francisco northward, especially in Puget Sound and the Alaskan fjords; south on the Asiatic coast to Japan.

Subgenus Hypisifario Gill: Oncorhynchus nerka (Walbaum)—Blueback salmon; redfish; Fraser River salmon; saw-qui, sock-eye, or sauk-eye salmon; krasnaya ryba. Habitat, Klamath River and Rogue River to Northern Alaska, Kamchatka and Japan.

It is interesting to note, in each classification given by these eminent authorities in ichthyology, the fact is recorded that all these varieties of salmon were observed in Kamchatka, by Walbaum, as early as 1792. Further, it may be said, that, whereas Dr. Suckley enumerated twenty-two anadromous species in his list of the salmon of the Pacific Coast, sixteen of which may be called marine species, the later classification in the "Check List of North American Fishes" reduces the list to five species. Also, that the steelhead, Salmo gairdneri Richardson, according to Jordan and Evermann, and classified by them as "salmon trout," was named Salmo gairdneri by Dr. Suckley and classified as a salmon Gairdner's salmon.

The Pacific Coast fish known as the quinnat, king or Chinook salmon probably may be accepted as a type of the various species upon that coast, for it is one of the most abundant and grows to a large size, often reaching the weight of 100 pounds, it is claimed. The Chinook is a heavier fish for its length than its congener of the Atlantic, being more stockily formed and having slight differences in the shape of the various fins, in color and markings. The lateral line appears more prominently, while the head is larger and forms a greater proportion of the length of the Chinook. Richardson described the general appearance of the Chinook salmon as follows:

"General tint of back bluish-gray, changing after a few hours' removal from the water to mountain green; sides ash-gray, with silvery luster; belly, white; back above lateral line studded with irregular rhomboidal or star-like spots, some of them ocellated, resembling an eye; dorsal fin and gill cover slightly reddish; tips of the anal and pectorals, blackish-gray; the dorsal and caudal thickly studded with round and rhomboidal spots; back of the head sparingly marked with the same; whole body below the lateral line, together with the under fins, destitute of spots."

Professors Jordan and Gilbert more recently described the Chinook or quinnat salmon, and from their description is excerpted the following:

"Color dusky above, often tinged with olivaceous or bluish, sides and below silvery; head dark slaty, usually darker than the body, and little spotted; back dorsal fin and tail usually profusely covered with round black spots—these are sometimes few, but very rarely altogether wanting; sides of head and caudal fin with a peculiar metallic tin-colored luster; male, about the spawning season (October), blackish, more or less tinged or blotched with dull red; head conic, rather pointed in the females and spring males. Maxillary rather slender, the small eye behind its middle. Teeth small, larger on sides of lower jaw than in front; vomerine teeth very few and weak, disappearing in the males. In the males, in late summer and fall, the jaws become elongated and distorted, and the anterior teeth much enlarged, as in the related species. The body then becomes deeper, more compressed, and arched at the shoulders, and the color nearly black. Preopercle and opercle strongly convex. Body comparatively robust, its depth greatest near its middle. Caudal—unusual in this species—strongly forked on a rather slender caudal peduncle. Flesh red and rich in spring, becoming paler in the fall as spawning season approaches.

The Chinook or king salmon and the silver salmon are the most valued as food by residents on the Pacific Coast, but hundreds of thousands of pounds of other varieties also are packed in tins at the canneries, and it is stated that probably one-half of the amount of canned salmon exported to Europe is the flesh of the Oncorhynchus nerka—the blueback salmon or redfish. The claim of the canners is, that cans filled with deeply colored fish meat are more salable than if the cans contained the more delicate but less highly colored flesh of the better species—say, of the silver salmon.

In the matter of sport to the angler, the Chinook or king salmon take the spoonhook well in salt water, or the hook, baited with salmon roe, in fresh water. The silver salmon, although smaller, large specimens reaching only about one-fifth the weight of the largest king salmon, also affords fine sport to anglers and is a favorite with them. It strikes freely at the spoon and fights viciously when hooked. But to the fly-caster the salmon of the Pacific are comparatively valueless, so far as sport is concerned. Although they are taken by trolling and the use of bait at many points—in California, Oregon, Washington and northward—these salmon rise to the fly seldom and in few localities. In this respect they cannot (unless their nature changes most decidedly) ever rank with the gamy Atlantic salmon, in the opinion of the exponents of the most scientific type of angling—fly-casting. The veteran angler, Charles Hallock, once stated:

"There are exceptional rivers, notably the Clackamas, in Oregon, where fly-fishing may be practiced at certain favorable times in special localities, the fluvial conditions being more like those of Atlantic rivers. The shorter the rivers the greater the possibilities for sport. Fourteen salmon are reported as having been taken from a Clackamas pool in one day by a single rod. The favorite fly is of a reddish cast, though black hackle, coachman, professor, red ibis and a wine body with brown speckled wings were all killing flies. June, July and August were found to be the best months for fly-fishing."

However, the trollers and bait fishers of the Pacific Coast capture many salmon by these methods; fishes of goodly size and which are so gamy as to afford fine sport; although, as a rule, they are not to be lured by the more scientific tackle and methods employed by the angler who goes forth to pit his skill in the use of the rod and reel against the wariness and acrobatic agility of the lordly Salmo salar.

The run of salmon to the spawning grounds of the upper reaches of the Sacramento and its tributaries and in the San Joaquin was so plentiful before the open season closed (from September 10th to October 16th) and so many fish taken by the boats that the canneries, several days before the 10th inst., refused to take any more fish from the net fishermen. The phenomenal run this year is accounted for, by many, on the ground that the work of the government and State hatcheries in taking eggs and hatching them is now bearing fruit; this is more than theory and it is to be hoped the further proof of the hatcheries' importance will be convincing next season.

A Sportsman's Paradise is Lower California.

The California peninsula is one of the few hunting grounds on the North American continent which remains comparatively unvisited by sportsmen. Yet in many sections it is a veritable hunter's paradise, and although the variety of game is limited, its abundance is something almost beyond belief. One sees more quail in Lower California than birds of all other varieties combined. Covey after covey rise in whirling flight as the traveler drives through the brush covered mountain valleys. The birds find in the country a hospitable environment. They are remarkably prolific and each old pair, at this season, is accompanied by from ten to fifteen chicks. Wherever you find water in the mountains you will find hundreds and hundreds of quail. The quail range a long distance from water and as they are found in every brushy portion of the mountains, thousands of hidden springs must afford them their daily drinking. Scarcely any locality can be named in preference to another; for this is a virgin country without a mile of railroad, scantily habited and seldom hunted.

In addition to quail the peninsula affords splendid deer shooting, while down near the San Pedro Martir mountains the vigilant hunter may secure the biggest mountain sheep on record. On the plains along the southern portion of the gulf side there are great herds of antelope who have never been disturbed by the crack of a repeating rifle. Way up near timber line in the rough wooded country about Mt. San Pedro Martir there are some big cinnamon and grizzly bears; while throughout the peninsula there is an abundance of such minor game as rabbits and doves. In the winter when the lagoons are filled with water it is said that the ducks float upon the surface by the thousands. Predatory animals, such as mountain lions, cougar, puma (all of which are Felis concolor under a different name), wild cats, lynx and coyotes, are very numerous.

Last week, says Hamilton Wright in the Los Angeles Herald, I visited the big Guadalupe rancho, forty-five miles south of Tia Juana, Baja California. Morris Flower, John D. Norton, Jr., and myself went out for a little lion hunt before dawn. We had a mongrel hound, a cross between a foxhound and a shepherd dog, who was said to be a "jim dandy after lions." The ranch is located in a fertile river bottom, but we rode up into a steep and precipitous mountain canyon, since mountain lions and wild cats are oftenest found about the gloomy recesses of rocky crevasses and in thick undergrowth of mountain mahogany, greasewood, arrowwood, etc. We had hardly reached the canyon before the old dog struck a trail and in less than ten minutes' time had a big cat up in a tree. A little slight-of-hand work with a Colt's revolver put him on the ground, and by 6 o'clock we had returned to the main ranch house.

The lynx was an exceptionally large specimen, a record breaker in point of size. Indeed it weighed over eighty pounds, and as it crouched in a mountain cedar, its tufted ears drawn back close to its head, its yellow-green eyes with fixed and malignant stare, and with its ugly yellow fangs protruding from its bearded lip, it formed a picture long to be remembered. The wild background of the mountain side and the chilly, stimulating air of the early dawn were in perfect harmony with the picturesque death of this great lynx whose very blood bounded in antithesis to the constraints of civilization.

Mountain sheep are remarkably plentiful in Lower California, especially on the unusually rugged heights of the San Pedro Martir mountains. Although these animals are by instinct very shy and even in localities where they have never been hunted and where perhaps a Papago or Yaqui Indian has never trod, it requires patient work to bag one. Yet everyone who goes into the country returns with a number of fine heads.

The deer in Lower California are small, being apparently a diminutive variety of the Columbia blacktail deer. Sixty or seventy pounds is a fair average weight, but the animals are not at all wary, and the sportsman can always secure a fair bag.

The Shrike or Butcher Bird.

The shrike family is represented by several varieties in this State. These birds are an interesting study despite their reputations as feathered murderers and marauders. In walks afield we are apt to meet him and a little ordinary caution will repay the watching and time spent with an interesting outdoor study. The chances are that, when we see him, he will be perched on the top of a tree, apparently doing nothing, really watching most keenly for any small creature on which he can make a meal. If we look at him through our field glasses, we shall see a bird about the size of a robin, but with a hooked, hawk-like bill, which gives him a somewhat sinister expression. His upper parts are gray, his wings and tail are black, and there is white on the base of his primaries, and on the tips of his secondaries and outer tail feathers. His forehead is whitish; lores and ear covers black, and his under parts white, as a rule finely barred with black.

If we continue to watch him we may possibly hear him imitate the cries of a sparrow or some other small bird, repeating the sound from time to time. All the while he keeps a bright lookout, and presently, when his cries have attracted an audience, perhaps of song sparrows, he pitches down with closed wings, alights upon some little victim and quickly kills it with the sharp curved bill, often tearing open the skull.

The shrike has several other names, such as "murdering pie," "butcher bird" and "nine kill," all of which have reference to his habit of killing and hanging up his victims upon thorns, barbed wire and other convenient spikes until he is ready to eat them. The last name was given him by the Germans, and arose from a vulgar belief that the bird caught and hung up nine victims before he would eat any of them. As a matter of fact, there is no rule about the number of victims a shrike will impale; he probably catches all the prey he can and hangs up what is not required for immediate use.

The butcher bird preys chiefly upon insects, small birds and small mammals, also grasshoppers, mice and sparrows are often found among the contents of a shrike's larder. Sometimes the victims are dead when impaled; at other times they are alive, and the finding of insects and other creatures squirming on a thorn bush or on a barbed wire fence gave rise to the belief that cruelty was the motive for this strange habit.

Of course this theory is absurd, and no better proof of its absurdity is required than the fact that in captivity the bird will impale a piece of raw beef as readily as a live sparrow or beetle. This bird has also an unsavory reputation for its habit of raiding other birds' nests, taking away and destroying the eggs, the empty shells of which are often seen decorating a thorn bush or stuck on a barbed wire fence. His peculiar habit of selecting a plough, which has been left afield in the furrow, as a coign of vantage from which to indulge his incessant watch for small birds or insects whilst perching on one of the handles, is a habit that has not enrolled the ploughman among the few friends he possesses.

There are probably two reasons why the shrike impales his victims. One is the uncertainty of the chase. Some days the hunting is good and he captures twice as much game as he can eat, while other days yield nothing. So, in time of plenty he prepares for a time of need. Another reason is that while in many respects he is hawk-like, his feet are comparatively weak and he requires something to hold his food before he can tear it with his hooked bill.

A captive shrike which has been given a piece of raw meat was observed to search all over the room for something to hang it on. He was not satisfied until some one held out to him a fork, on prongs of which he quickly hitched his meat and then proceeded to dine. Caged shrikes have also been known to hang their food on pointed nails, sharpened sticks, and even between the bars of the cage.

Like crows and jays, they often forget where they hide things, and their prey is sometimes found dried up on the thorns where it hung long ago.

The nest of the northern shrike is made chiefly of twigs and grasses, in a low tree or bush. The eggs, usually six in number, are about an inch long, and white, thickly marked with brown and lavender.

In the days of falconry the shrike was used by those engaged in snaring hawks, as a sentinel to advise them of the approach of the birds they wished to capture.

The Maltese Terrier.

Sometimes this charming little dog is called a terrier, on other occasions a spaniel, whilst in many quarters it has been known as the Lion Dog of Malta. Sir Edward Landseer painted it as the latter about 1838 from a specimen stated to be the last of the race. This picture does not appear to be very well known, but as representing a typical Maltese of the present day it must be noticed here. The Maltese Lion Dog is reclining on a table, upon which a hound is resting its head, the latter, no doubt, introduced by the great artist to show the diminutiveness of the principal object in the picture, which it undoubtedly does most satisfactorily. The original painting was, I believe, the property of the late Duchess of Kent.

Whatever doubt there may be as to whether the Maltese dog is a terrier or spaniel (I do not consider it either), there is no question whatever as to its being by far the oldest of our toy dogs, as it is the rarest at the present time, and, Landseer notwithstanding, the day of the last of the race has not yet been reached. Two thousand years ago and more the dainty creature was nestled in the laps of the ladies of Greece and Rome, where he was said to divide attention with the dainties and bucks of that day, or, as they were then called, "puppies," a name which still clings to them as occasion requires. Doubtless it was a Maltese dog of which Lucian tells, at the expense of a philosopher friend of his, who had been persuaded to be a "gentleman help of the period" to a certain noble and his lady. On one occasion the family was on a journey to their country residence, when the philosopher, who was in a carriage by himself, was besought by the lady as a great favor to take her poor, dear little dog Myrrhina in his lap, as she was unwell, and slaves were so careless and neglectful that they were not fit to be trusted with so dainty a creature. After hesitating a moment, Lucian's friend consented, and forthwith Myrrhina was transferred to his knee, where, in a very short time, she gave birth to a litter of puppies.

Many early writers have mentioned these little dogs of Malta. Aristotle did, and he died 322 B. C., whilst the elder Callimachus, who was almost his contemporary, likewise alludes to them, and has something to say as to hounds and dogs generally in his poem to Diana. No doubt those Canes Melitaei were pretty much identical with the long-haired, white little dog which is the Maltese of the present day, and that he was of an ancient race even then is evident from the fact that there appears to be some confusion as to from whence he came. There are two islands bearing the name of Melita, from either of which this dog may have been originally introduced.

The one island was Melita in the Adriatic, near Dalmatia; the other Melita in the Mediterranean, near Sicily, and the Malta of to-day. Callimachus, already alluded to, who was undoubtedly an authority on dogs in his day, says the little animal originally came from the Melita in the Adriatic, and the learned Bochart, in his "Hierozoicon," quotes him as likely to be right in his statement. Others have said the dog first came from Melita in the Mediterranean, which island is at the present time generally acknowledged, though I believe wrongly, to be the native country of the Maltese toy dog.

However, the most complete record of the early history of the Maltese dog is to be found in the Natural History of Ulysses Aldrovandus, who died in 1607. His great work, written in Latin, was published after his death. He says there are two varieties of this Maltese dog, one of which was comparatively short in its coat, the other long; and as he was unable to say which was correct, he gave us illustrations of each. Both are identical, excepting so far as the coat is concerned, that with the longer jacket being pretty much the same dog as we find to-day. The second is the smaller of the two, and, although by no means short-coated, is not so long in the jacket as the other. Aldrovandus quotes pretty freely from other writers, especially as to the origin of this little dog, Blondus ascribing it to Spain and Gesner to Lyons. However, we must be contented that it came from Malta. In the seventeenth century, we are told, the best colors were white and red (?—fawn), but some were black and white. The smaller they were the better and more valuable they became, although they bore the reputation of being ferocious and ill-natured. The Italians sometimes called them botoli because, though small, they were ferocious and bad-tempered, botolo being an old Italian word meaning a quarrelsome little cur or worthless, degenerate little dog.

The value of a good specimen of this animal was such that Aldrovandus says he had seen one sold for £400. This was probably at Bologna during our Elizabethan period. But the value of money at that time and in that place is no criterion as to its value in English money at that date or now.

The same author also furnishes us with some interesting little pieces of information as to the breeding and rearing of these diminutive creatures, giving an insight into the arts of the dog fancier of that day, which appeared to be plied with as much care and skill as is the custom at the present time, our Kennel Club notwithstanding.

In the first place, it is said, owing to the smallness of the best Maltese dogs they could with difficulty be induced to breed, and when such was the case they were fed on hot foods. Then the bitches often died during pupping, and care was taken in breeding that only the tiniest males were used to bigger animals of the opposite sex. A quaint idea was in vogue that when the bitch, in whelp, was allowed to sleep upon and have her bed of a sheepskin or fleece of wool, the puppies were born with longer coats and manes more lion-like than would have been the case if the bitch's bed was of straw or shavings—filios jubatos instar leonis. Thus we have at once the origin of the name, the "Lion Dog of Malta."

Some time after being born, no doubt, when commencing to walk or crawl about, they were given as little exercise as possible, being confined in tin canisters or boxes in order to keep them small in size, as the fancier required them to be, the best specimens being said to be no bigger in body than a rat or a weasel. Then the dietary was carefully guarded, they eating little, and that of a particular quality. The favorite food was "liver or lights, dried and sprinkled with the pared fresh bark of the wild fig tree," the drying operation taking place in a warm room provided for the purpose. And it was said that queens fed the dainty little creatures with the choicest cuts from the breasts of fowls, which were served out of golden vases.

Here is another dainty bit for our modern dog fanciers: Old writers say that when the Maltese puppies were born it was the custom to twist the "rostrum" (the upper nose) with the fingers, "in order that they may seem more elegant in the sight of men." Surely, after this operation—which, for anything we know to the contrary, may have been performed before the Christian era—who can say there is anything new under the sun? And the Bulldog men who manipulate the noses and muzzles of their "beauties" are only following on the lines of their brother fanciers who preceded them in more barbarous times. I think I have written enough to prove that the Maltese dog was a valued canine commodity and companion long before England was a great nation. Since she has become so this dog may have improved somewhat, though at the present time I should scarcely know where to place my hand on a perfect specimen. We must have them immaculately white, a fawn mark being a great blemish, and a black mark, I fancy, has not been observed for a long time. Thirty years ago there were more of the variety to be found than is the case to-day. They were difficult to breed three hundred years since unless special trouble was taken, and this seems to have been in the form of confinement in tin boxes and feeding on unnatural foods. No wonder then that the variety has failed to survive in its pristine excellence, and that to-day the pure Maltese is the rarest of all our pet dogs, and actually on the high road towards total extinction.—Modern Dogs.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

Entries for the Los Angeles show will close on Tuesday, October 7th, at 10 P. M. Entries can be made at the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, where premium lists and entry blanks can be had, or the entry can be forwarded to John Bradshaw, superintendent, 226 So Spring St., Los Angeles.

Coronado Lithia, S. Christensen's young Boston bitch, has fully recovered from a recent attack, one of the results of which was temporary blindness. Lithia is out of Meg by Consul and was bred by Mr. Graham E. Babcock.

Endcliffe Pleasure is about the best Bull bitch here at present, she won first winners this year in the S. F. K. C. show. She was served by Endcliffe Forces this week.

We note a breeding in Kennel Registry in another column wherein is mentioned as sire the old dog Orion who figured as a bench and field trial winner some years ago.

Champion Queen N. is no more. She was owned by George Neale of Sacramento, and was a good Pointer that made a creditable record on the bench. She was bred by F. B. Adams, was by Donald out of Lady Spec. She was known formerly as Queen and has whelped a number of good ones.

Superintendent John Bradshaw left for Los Angeles on Thursday. He will stay south until after the dog show.

One satisfactory feature of the Los Angeles show is the fact that the management has secured Spratts benching again, having given the contract for feeding, etc., to Thomas Banks, Spratts Coast representative. This argues safety, comfort and cleanliness for the animals benched and four days wholesome and healthy food, which means a great deal for the dogs.

Mr. George Raper was mentioned as a desirable judge for the proposed fall show in this city or Oakland in November or December. A dispatch received by a prominent local fancier this week states Mr. Raper can not attend.

The premium list for the Los Angeles show is out. The classification is a large and liberal one. The prizes are in most classes $5 to first, $2 to second, medals and diplomas to third. The classification is on nearly the same lines as last year, with only a few minor changes.

Specials and cups will be announced in the catalogue. The question of selecting the judges has not yet been determined up to our going to press. Eligible material is fairly plentiful and we are hopeful of announcing later a list of judges that will be satisfactory.

In a comparatively small show like the Southern show will be, where it is hardly probable more than 300 dogs will be benched, it is unfair to expect the club to burden itself with the handicap on its treasury that a judge or judges from the East or Middle West would entail.

Individual opinions generally agree when brought together on the points of a good dog, there is no reason why, for most breeds, local judges should be objected to.

Prizes and medals are awaiting those entitled to them at Mr. N. H. Hickman's office, corner of Sixth and Channel streets in this city, where all communications to the secretary-treasurer of the San Francisco Kennel Club should be addressed.

Mrs. Thomas Murphy, owner of the Gabilan Kennels, called in the office this week. She proposes to sell off, in fact has already done so, everything from her kennels, including the English Setters, to which breed she will devote her attention in future.

Phil C. Meyer told us during the week that he "is out of it." Glenwood Kennels has been stripped of everything but a few pets. We are sorry to see Mr. Meyer desert the ranks after having devoted so much time and enthusiasm, as well as a deal of money in the establishment of his kennels.

We heard the other day a story of the "bad luck" of a fancier who lost all but two puppies out of over two dozen whelped in his kennels. That is not bad luck—it's worse, ignorance. It is an easy thing to buy this, that, or the other crack when you have the money, it is also pleasant and agreeable to win with them, the seller wears an unctuous smile and rubs his hands gleefully, but this is not breeding dogs nor breeding good ones or winners, which latter is the acme of the breeder's desires and the sportsman's enjoyment. Buying these dogs and mating them is easy—so is dreaming about the ribbon winners that will grow up. But the growing up, there's the rub. It requires experience and, well, some brains, to bring the youngsters on. Brains, experience and a long purse is a rare combination, it wins when you bring them together; if you don't, then—remember the fellow rubbing his hands and smiling, why he has more dogs which he sells you, good ones, too, always winners in his hands; but they don't, as a rule, continue to win with the new owner. But come to think of it, the gent we alluded to, why there you are, experience, brains and money, too.

Have you met him yet? The fellow who knows where your lost dog is—maybe he is two, for some say he is a tall, thin cadaverous looking guy. Others describe him as a short, thick-set bloke. At all events, he is onto his job and likewise into the pockets of those he honors, professionally, do you mind, with a visit. His modus operandi supposedly and actually is about as follows:

A diligent perusal of the "lost" columns in the morning dailies informs the "dog finder" in regard to "wot is doin'" in his own selected line each day and particularly on Sunday.

Sometime during the day, early or late as will be dictated by the shrewdness of the finder of lost dogs, your friend appears. What strikes you favorably is that he almost invariably has a pat description of your dog. You overlook the fact, that by dint of inquiry about your neighborhood, among your friends and the nearby tradesmen, this is rather an easy way to get good information and accurate enough for his purposes. He is a plausible, honest speaking chap, reeling off many catchy doggy platitudes, a lover of dogs and is actuated by sympathy or a sort of mild babyish honesty, when he tells you an ingenious story, about your dog being picked up by the driver of a milk wagon. He saw it, of course he knows the driver and where the dairy is—miles out in the country, beyond the San Mateo county line. The dog is always located a long distance off, the people where your pet is, are away in the daytime or rather difficult to get at, etc. You are in a pleased dilemma, pulling yourself together the dog finder is appealed to. Why, of course, he could go direct to the spot and get the dog without any trouble at all. But he don't, you incidentally find out he has not time, carfare, nor anything else, save a diabolical desire to get you worked up a bit. When his iron is hot enough he strikes, its generally for a piece of money, anything from twenty-five cents up to a ten dollar bill, according to circumstances. He leaves you with the firm conviction in your mind that your dog will be back again, because he goes straightaway after the dog—but he don't and you never, never see him again, not if he sees you first.

A Boston Terrier fancier lost a bitch the other day, one that he had just purchased. He advertised. The short, thick-set bloke appeared at the Palace Hotel early in the forenoon. He described the dog to a brindle streak and received a $2 bill to go to Butcher-town and come back with the runaway. Five minutes after he had gone away, a telephone message came from the previous owner telling the temporary loser that his bitch had called at her former home and was safe, and ready to be sent back. And they say that doggy affairs are serious and that there is not a whit of comedy in the game. Jeremy Diddler overlooked a good thing in his time.

Nairod Kennels has some good specials this week in the classified advertisements on page 15. There has been recently in this city a good general demand for Cocker puppies, at present the supply seems to be unequal to the demand. Nairod Kennels has been cleaned out of Cocker puppies by purchasers, another litter is due in about a month. As for St. Bernards, Mr. Dorian informs us he has two really good three months old dog puppies by Le King-Zuleika, one of these being perfectly marked. He is not particularly desirous of selling them as he deems them good enough to keep. They have both pulled through distemper and are coming on daily in fine style. Some St. Bernard puppies for sale are expected a little later on.

A handsome English Setter brood bitch and several well bred young puppies can be had at a bargain. See Geo. Feige's "ad" on page 15.

A well broken prize winning English Setter dog can be purchased by any one desiring a good shooting dog this season. Particulars given on application to the kennel editor.

W. A. Burns, A. B. Fately and J. J. Cairns can, by calling at this office, receive checks for their prize money won at the May show.

The Pacific Northwest Field Trials Club held a meeting at Seattle recently, for the purpose of filling vacancies in the offices caused by the resignations of J. A. Peebles and J. W. Considine, as members of the Governing Board. Also that of Frank R. Atkins, secretary, and to take steps for the securing grounds for the fall trials. L. B. Youngs and C. B. Yandell were elected as members of the Governing Board and Frank A. Pontius was the choice for secretary and treasurer. Mr. Pontius was instructed to proceed to Whidby Island and confer with the farmers owning suitable grounds for trial purposes, and was given authority to take any necessary steps to indemnify them against damage to their property. At the last trials on Whidby Island, where between thirty and forty dogs were run, less than half a dozen quail were killed, and those only to test the steadiness of the running animals. It appears that a few farmers have gained the impression that the club's interests were in some manner hostile to them.

The trials will be held on the same grounds as last year, near Coupeville, Whidby Island, Wash. The date of closing entries for the All-Age Stuke has been extended to October 1. The trials will be run October 28, 1902.

Pacific Advisory Board.

Minutes of meeting of the Pacific Advisory Committee of the American Kennel Club, San Francisco, August 19, 1902.

Present: J. E. De Ruyter, Chairman; A. J. Allen, H. H. Carlton, J. P. Norman. Absent: M. C. Allen. Carnochan vs. San Francisco Kennel Club: In re the awarding of the International Trophy at the sixth annual bench show of the S. F. K. C. An appeal from decision of the Bench Show Committee.

It was moved and seconded that, in view of the fact that this Committee is not yet in receipt of the statement of Mr. George S. Thomas, the possession of which would be a material aid in determining the merits of this appeal, and in order to obtain further evidence in this case, further consideration of the same be deferred until the next meeting of this Committee, to be held at the same place on Tuesday, the 2d of September. Carried.

And it was further moved and seconded that the secretary be instructed to obtain from Mr. A. P. Vredenburg, the secretary of the American Kennel Club, and from Mr. L. A. Klein, the honorary secretary and manager of the sixth annual bench show of the San Francisco Kennel Club, severally, their affirmation or denial of the statements made by the appellant as to the various conversations in which they were alleged to have taken part. And that their replies be filed with the secretary on or before the last day of the current month. Carried.

The evidence produced in the foregoing case being the original protest filed with the San Francisco Kennel Club by the appellant, the denial thereof by the Bench Show Committee, as transmitted by the secretary of the club; the appellant's appeal to the American Kennel Club, a copy of the resolution of the Executive Board of the A. K. C., referring the appeal to this committee, and copies of letters and their replies passing between the secretary of this committee and officials of the San Francisco Kennel Club, in relation to the obtaining of the appellant's original protest.

McCormick vs. San Francisco Kennel Club: A complaint of non-payment of prize money.

Resolved, That the secretary be instructed to call on the secretary of the San Francisco Kennel Club to show cause why he and the other officials of the sixth annual bench show of the San Francisco Kennel Club should not be suspended for non-payment of prizes, in accordance with paragraph XXII. of the Rules of the American Kennel Club, governing dog shows, the reply to be placed in the hands of this committee on or before the last day of the current month.

Minutes of meeting of Pacific Advisory Committee, San Francisco, September 2, 1902.

Present: J. E. De Ruyter, Chairman; H. H. Carlton, J. P. Norman, A. J. Allen. Absent: M. C. Allen.

In re Carnochan vs. San Francisco Kennel Club. An appeal from ruling of Bench Show Committee.

The secretary read a communication from the secretary of the American Kennel Club, confirming the allegation, that the former owner of the wire haired Fox Terrier, Endcliffe Bristles, winner of the International Trophy at the last San Francisco show acknowledged in the writer's presence that the ownership of the dog had passed to the appellant before the awarding of the said trophy. But the writer did not remember that Mr. Klein had acknowledged in his presence having received from the appellant any notice that the ownership of the dog had so passed.

The secretary also read a communication from Mr. L. A. Klein, the honorary manager of the said show, in which he stated that he received no notice from the appellant that he had purchased the dog, other than possibly a casual mention of the fact. The writer further alleged that the whole transaction was a private matter between the appellant and Mr. Thomas, the vendor of the dog, in which neither the San Francisco Kennel Club nor any of its officials were interested, and that the club in paying the prize to the holder of the identification ticket, according to its printed rules, had ceased to have any interest in the matter.

The secretary informed the committee that he had received no reply to the communication sent to Mr. Thomas, although it was announced in the sporting papers that that gentleman had returned from Europe. After some discussion, it was moved and seconded that appellant's allegation was sustained, that the dog Endcliffe Bristles was actually the property of the appellant at the time of the awarding of the International Trophy, and that G. S. Thomas received the trophy as the appellant's agent, and that the said G. S.

Thomas be and hereby is ordered to place the appellant in possession of the said trophy. Carried unanimously.

It was moved and seconded that, in view of the fact that G. S. Thomas has seen fit to ignore the communications officially sent from this committee, the said G. S. Thomas be, and he hereby is, suspended from all benefits of the American Kennel Club until such time as this committee is satisfied that he has complied with its orders. Carried.

It was further moved and seconded that the chairman be requested to telegraph the gist of this resolution to the secretary of the American Kennel Club. Carried.

After discussion it was moved and seconded that Charles K. Harley be nominated to the American Kennel Club for appointment on this committee in place of M. C. Allen. Carried unanimously.

In re the complaints of McCormick, Tromboni et al vs the San Francisco Kennel Club, for non-payment of prize money within sixty days from close of show.

The secretary read a communication from N. H. Hickman, stating that the late show had resulted in a deficit, that the directors of the club had levied an assessment; that the said Hickman had been unable to collect same, but now had the money, and that he would at once begin to pay off the outstanding claims.

It was moved and seconded that the San Francisco Kennel Club was clearly in contravention of Rule XXII of the Rules of the American Kennel Club governing dog shows, and that the officers of the said club and of the sixth annual bench show should be and hereby are suspended until such time as this committee has information that the San Francisco Kennel Club and its officers have complied with the rules of the American Kennel Club.

The published catalogue of the sixth annual bench show of the San Francisco Kennel Club gives as officers of the club liable to suspension and hereby suspended: A. B. Spreckels, President; John E. De Ruyter, First Vice-President; E. Courtney Ford, Second Vice-President; H. H. Hickman, Secretary-Treasurer; Charles K. Harley, Director; L. A. Klein, Honorary Secretary and Manager of the show.

Mr. De Ruyter then left the chair and tendered his resignation from the committee.

It was moved and seconded that this committee views with regret the loss of Mr. De Ruyter's counsel and services during the period of suspension of the San Francisco Kennel Club, and refuses to accept his resignation. Carried unanimously.

The suspension of Mr. Thomas has been stayed by the A. K. C. until he can make his defense before the Pacific Advisory Board, which is empowered to reopen the case on or before October 1st.

The S. F. K. C. were allowed thirty days, from September 16th, further time in which to settle with prize winners.

The matter of Mr. J. E. De Ruyter's resignation and the appointment of Mr. C. K. Harley now rests with the A. K. C. Executive Committee.

AT THE TRAPS.

Clabrough, Golcher & Co., have laid in a new and select stock of seasonable goods that are in brisk demand at this particular time for duck and quail hunters.

Opposite on page 11 will be found the announcement of the H. E. Skinner Co. which is of importance to sportsmen at this time, so close to the opening of the shooting season.

The local trap shooting season ended last Sunday when the Union Gun Club members turned out in force at the Ingleside trap grounds, the occasion being the final blue rock shoot of the club for this season. George Sylvester having won the club's first class medal four times out of seven monthly shoots, is now the owner of the handsome trophy. Joe Pisani and W. Burns each won the second class medal three times. On a tie shoot-off Burns won the prize, Dr. Hutton won the Thomas L. Lewis emblem shield trophy. Dr. Hutton has shown some phenomenal improvement during this, his first season at the blue rock trap.

A feature of the day was a 100-bird shoot for the Phil B. Pekeart challenge silver cup. This trophy was won twice from M. O. Feudner by A. J. Webb last season. Five shooters entered the race, three of them distanced the crack shooter, Clarence Nauman. M. J. Iverson won the cup, making the excellent score of 93 out of 100, easily beating the two champions, Webb and Nauman—in fact, the latter shooter was only fourth in the race. The scores were: M. J. Iverson 93, A. J. Webb 90, D. Densell 90, C. C. Nauman 89 and G. Sylvester 84. Iverson broke 24 targets out of his last 25.

In the club money race first money was won by C. W. Debenham and W. A. Robertson. Second purse was cut up by shooters Gordon, Kirsch, Eggers, Nauman and R. Finnocchio. H. Hanson and G. Sylvester, Captain Wollam and M. Muller split third money. Al Sylvester won fourth money.

A team shoot between Captain Ed Donohoe's Lobsters (Donohoe, G. Sylvester, Pisani, Burns, Hoyt and Robertson) and Captain Haight's Shrimps (Shields, Haight, R. Finnocchio, Iverson, Hutton and Gordon) was won by the first named squad. The score stood 123 to 117 at 20 birds per man.

In the merchandise prize shoot fourteen prizes were won, the principal ones going in the order named to Joe Pisani, G. Sylvester, M. J. Iverson and Ed Donohoe. R. Finnocchio won a fishing rod in a 16 bird race and Al Sylvester won a dog collar in the prize shoot.

The Millwood Gun Club will close their trap season to-morrow at Manzanita Station.

THIS building is unsurpassed, only three blocks from Market street. This large brick fire proof building fronts on Third street, the busiest thoroughfare in San Francisco. The main building contains 75 horse stalls, 100 stalls in box stalls, 1244 feet in size. Particular attention has been paid to the lighting, ventilation and sanitation of this as well as the adjoining building, which is connected with it by a covered driveway. There are 20 box stalls 12x12 feet, 10 feet in diameter and extending 10 feet into the sales pavilion. The seating capacity of the latter is 1200. The lots on which these buildings are situated and pavilion are built over an area of 25,000 feet, affording ample room for vehicles and horse stock to pass. The building is equipped with the best and when evening sales are held the pavilion presents a striking effect, illuminated as it is by electric lights.

MY AUCTION SALES.

The Occidental Horse Exchange and the able manner in which sales of thoroughbreds and trotting horses are conducted there have made it famous throughout the United States. Since its opening in 1896 over two of the greatest bred California and Nevada trotters, pacers and thoroughbreds besides numerous other horses, have been sold therein, and I intend to continue holding sales in the same way, with this exception, however: I have BETTER ACCOMMODATIONS for caring for a larger number of horses than heretofore. Milk, Why It Is Bad.

What is known as "blue milk" may be epidemic in a herd or confined to a single cow. It arises probably from some unknown source of filth and may be checked by attention to cleanliness and carefully washing the cow's teats with a little weak acetic acid solution. Such milk has been fed to animals that ate it readily and without harm.

The cause of "bitter milk" is not well understood, though several forms of bacteria have been found in it, and lately two new forms were found in bitter cheese and bitter cream. In one case it was traced to the feeding of turnips, which had been washed in foul water. Frothy or soapy milk, which makes cream difficult to churn, has been traced to bacteria on the straw used for bedding, in one case and in another to the same bacteria in the hay.

Rennet and Curdling.—Rennet produces the curdling of milk without having any bacteria in itself, or assisting in their development, although some milk bacteria produce a similar curdling to that from rennet. Others act in such a way as to make the casein soluble again, and therefore rennet should be so used as to act as quickly as possible. Dairy men will find that 95 degrees F. is the most favorable temperature for rapid action.

Cure for Poor Products.—In dairying the cause of all the fermentations, even the common souring lies in the contamination of milk from without, and the remedy lies in the exercise of cleanliness. Poor milk, poor butter and poor cheese are in a majority of cases to be attributed to uncleanness in the barn or dairy. The great source of bacterial contamination of the milk is the cow herself. This does not mean the bacteria from the mammary gland, but those connected with the exterior of the cow. The great secret is to have a healthy cow and keep that cow clean.

Odors and Quality.—Odors and taints from food are at their worst when milk is fresh drawn, while those from bacteria increase afterwards. — N. Y. Farmer.

Only a rich man can afford to keep poor cows, but it is only the poor man who does keep them. The rich man who looks carefully after the dollars pays a high price for an animal and still makes a profit; the poor man buys a poor cow, thereby saving money in the wrong place, and then works double time, feeds more food, gets less returns and comes out a loser at the end of the year. Better buy one good cow than two poor ones for the same amount of money.

QUINN'S OINTMENT FOR HORSES

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Ben Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches it has no equal.

"SAVE-THE-HORSE" TRADE MARK SPAVIN CURE

Can be Applied during the Hottest Weather
NOTE OUR CLAIM—"IT IS INFALLIBLE"

Let there be no mistake or misunderstanding as to this point. It makes no difference how long standing what the condition or if all other known treatment has failed, this remedy will positively effect a cure. This statement will appear absurd to the sceptic, but it is absolute and irrefutable truth, and we put it in no stronger words than facts, actual experience—results—confirm it! Contains the great essential principle to promote the complex process of absorption. It will raise a sear or mild blister, but it is not by blistering a cure is effected. The great potency of "Save-the-Horse" lies in its concentrated penetrating absorbent power. It penetrates to the seat of the injury or disease, produces a physiological change, absorbing all inflammatory exudate or deposit, stimulating and diffusing vitality and strength to the tissues and ligaments, producing a healthy normal condition of the part.

BREEDERS MEETING AT FRESNO.

The first day of the meeting held by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association at Fresno had an auspicious opening. The weather was excellent, the track in fine shape, the racing high class and the attendance good for an opening day.

The Fresno Agricultural Association, the Board of Supervisors and the Fresno Driving Club have all taken a great interest in this meeting and are aiding the Directors of the Breeders association to make it a success in every particular.

The track has been put in such a shape that it is one of the best the trotters and pacers have been driven over this year in California. A large number of new stalls, cattle sheds, etc., were built for the occasion, and are so well constructed that they will remain as permanent improvements.

With the exception of the strings of S. H. Hoy and C. Whitehead, all the horses that raced at Stockton and were entered at Fresno were on hand, besides a large number from Hanford and all points south.

The judges for the first day were A. H. Cohen (who acted as presiding judge and starter), T. C. White and Fulton G. Berry, and their decisions gave perfect satisfaction.

The first race called was the 2:27 trot for a purse of $500. There were six starters, Ama A. selling favorite at $10 to $8 for the field. It was an easy race for the mare by Dictatus and she was nicely handled by Walter Maben, who landed her in front every heat, and reduced her record to 2:16½ in the last heat. Farmer Bunch drove the Welcome gelding, Iloilo, into second position every heat, and Hans Frelson was a length or two behind him every time with the Nutwood Wilkes four year old Verona. Tom Smith, not up to his Stockton form by a good deal, got fourth money, Young Salisbury was fifth, and the bay mare Tempest, driven by Worth Ober, was so unfortunate as to be distanced the first heat.

The second race, Raisin City Stakes, $1000, for 2:20 class pacers, was one of the best races on the circuit this year, every heat being a close contest with driving finishes.

Harry J. did not come down from Stockton with the other horses, but was two days in a freight car before reaching Fresno, consequently he was slightly at a disadvantage, but was made a favorite by the crowd at the beginning of the pool selling, being first choice at $10, Robert I. selling for $8 and the field for $4, but before the word go was given Robert I. and Harry J. were selling at $10 each and the field for $4.

In the first heat Harry J. got a little the worst of the start and rounding the turn made a break that lost him twelve lengths before Hogoboom got him on his feet again. He finished third in the heat which Robert I. took, with Alone second.

The second heat Harry J. captured in a nose and nose driving finish with Robert I. This was one of the prettiest finishes of the season both drivers doing their utmost to reach the wire first. The heat was so close that many of the spectators were under the impression that Robert I. had won.

The next two heats went to Robert I. and in each one Harry J. was so close up that it looked as though he was liable to win until immediately under the wire.

There were but three starters in the third race for the 2:12 class, pacers.

El Diablo was almost a prohibitory favorite in the auctions. However, it proved a better race than was expected and Dictatus made El Diablo stretch his neck in every heat, she taking the first heat in 2:09½ lowering her record nearly three seconds. She goes without hobbles and is one of the sweetest pacing mares on the Coast. Mr. Iverson, her owner, is highly pleased over the result of the race and the fact that he is the breeder of a 2:10 performer.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1.

The second day of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association's race meet was better attended than on the day before. The racing was not, however, quite so interesting. But one record was smashed—the trotting record for members of the Fresno Driving Club. This record was lowered a few weeks ago at a Wednesday matinee by Blue Dick, Joe Weil's horse, who made the mile in 2:28. In all three heats of the race in the same class Wednesday this time was beaten, the final heat going to George, owned by D. L. Bachant, in 2:22½. This, of course, was an amateur race, but it nevertheless was very interesting.

The big event of the day, 2:19 trot, went six heats and then had to be postponed until Thursday. The three heats of the second amateur race were not decisive, either, and a heat went over till Thursday.

The betting was livelier than on the day before. There were more people present and more of them willing to invest in the pools.

The first race was a special for members of the Fresno Driving Club, the entries being A. M. Jones' Bishop, driven by E. Mathewson; M. L. Woy's Cora Dell and H. Rapelje's Sleepy Dick, both driven by their owners. The latter was the favorite in the betting. At the start Cora and Bishop broke and Dick forged well ahead. All the horses were keeping a steady pace at the half mile. Cora Dell in the third quarter gained rapidly on Dick. In the last quarter Dick held his lead of several lengths until within 200 yards of the finish when he broke. Cora Dell went ahead with ease and passed the wire several lengths to the good. The heat ended with Dick second and Bishop distanced. Time, 2:41.

In the second heat Dick again had the lead at the start, holding it until the half mile post had been passed. Then Cora Dell gained on him steadily, until Dick broke again, letting Woy go far ahead. Dick broke repeatedly and could not be steadied again, Cora Dell finishing over a hundred yards ahead. Time, 2:37.

The third heat resulted the same. Both horses held together until past the half mile, when Cora Dell broke, but got quickly into pace again. Dick broke again and Cora Dell went ahead many lengths, passing under the wire an easy first. Time, 2:40½. Cora Dell got first money and Sleepy Dick second.

Special for members of the Fresno Driving Club, mile heats three in five.

Sleepy Dick, b g (Rapelje)	2	2	2
Bishop, br g (Mathewson)	dis

Time—2:41, 2:37, 2:40½

The second event, the 2:19 class trot for $500 stakes, was, of course, the real race of the day. In the betting Zambra was the favorite, selling at 10, Arketa at 8 and the field at 6. There were several attempts at getting away on the first heat, but the start was very good. Puerto Rico broke in the first 100 yards, but steadied down quickly, being, however, in last place. Hopper leading Puerto Rico forged to second place at the half-mile and held the place until the last quarter. Both Hopper and Puerto Rico were well in the lead. The finish was close, Puerto Rico winning by a neck. Arketa being a poor third, Zambra fourth and Prince Howard many lengths behind.

In spite of the outcome of the first heat, Zambra and Arketa continued the favorites in the pool selling at the same prices. The pools were bought up rapidly. In the second heat the horses got away beautifully, but Prince Howard quickly fell far in the rear again. Puerto Rico and Hopper were again in the lead, but in the third quarter Zambra commenced to gain, getting to a close third. The finish was very close. Puerto Rico's driver was whipping furiously, but Hopper came in a good half length ahead. Puerto Rico finished second, Zambra third, Arketa fourth and Prince Howard again far behind. Time, 2:17½.

In the third heat Zambra showed the speed that had warranted the odds placed on him. He took the lead on the start, maintaining it throughout. There was little change in the positions of the horses from the start, the heat finishing with Zambra first, Puerto Rico second, Arketa third, and Hopper fourth, all very close together. Prince Howard was again far behind. Time, 2:19½.

In the fourth heat it looked for a few seconds as though Prince Howard might be able to finish near the other horses. He broke on the start again and dropped to last place. But at the half mile post he was steady again, and gained rapidly on Arketa, going in fourth place. All the horses were bunched in the third quarter, but Prince Howard again broke and dropped far to the rear. Zambra was in the lead. In the last quarter Arketa moved up to second place, but was unable to pass Zambra. The latter, however, broke just as he passed under the wire, and first place was given to Arketa, Zambra second, Hopper third and Puerto Rico fourth. Time, 2:17½.

Zambra again led in the fifth up to the last quarter, Puerto Rico and Hopper going neck and neck, with Arketa close behind them. In the stretch Hopper pulled ahead, hitting the wire perhaps half a length in the lead, and breaking almost at the same instant. There was much question among the spectators as to whether or not Hopper had won the heat, but the judges settled the question in his favor. Zambra was second, Arketa third, and Puerto Rico fourth. Time, 2:18½.

In the sixth heat Hopper broke on the start, or perhaps there would have been no need of another heat Thursday. Zambra led all the way, finishing several lengths ahead, Arketa being second, Hopper third and Puerto Rico fourth. It was almost sundown when this heat was finished, and Announcer Dinue called out the time, 2:19, and added that the race would be finished Thursday.

The third race, a special trotting race for members of the Fresno Driving Club, had been called during the intermission between the heats of the big race. In the betting Chin Wa, entered by T. E. Jones, was the favorite at 10 to 7 for the field. The horse was driven by E. Buchanan. The other starters were George P. McNeil's Baby C., driven by T. C. White; D. L. Bachant's George, driven by himself, and Charles A. Smith's Edith M., also driven by himself. In the first heat Edith M. and Baby C. were distanced. George held a close second until the last quarter, when he broke, allowing Chin Wa to come in well in the lead. Time, 2:26½, a second and a half lower than the club's record, held by Joe Weil's Blue Dick. In the second heat George broke at the first quarter post, but steadied immediately afterward, several lengths in the rear. But at the half-mile post the distance was shortening perceptibly, and at the three-quarters George was not over a length behind. In the last quarter George continued to gain, but was unable to make up the distance. The finish was very exciting, Chin Wa passing under the line probably not more than a nose ahead of George. The record was again lowered, the heat being made in 2:26. In the final heat George had everything his own way. Chin Wa broke twice, George holding a steady pace, and coming down the stretch very prettily, winning out by several lengths. Once more the record took a tumble, George's time being 2:22½. It was too late to try for a decisive heat and the rest of the race had to be postponed.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 2.

Another day of splendid racing and good attendance was recorded Thursday and the Breeders meeting is voted one of the most successful given in the State for years. The first thing on the program was the finish of the 2:19 trot in which six heats had been trotted on Wednesday. Lee Rose's gelding Zambra by McKinney, bred by Mr. A. G. Gurnett at the Sulphur Spring Farm, came out fresh as a daisy and took the deciding heat in 2:16½, a new record for him. There were three McKinneys in this race and they took the first three moneys.

The race for members of the Fresno Driving Club, which was also postponed from the day before, went to Chin Wa, driven by Mr. Buchanan.

The feature of Thursday's races was the free for all trot for a purse of $600 and it resulted in one of the best races seen on the circuit this year. Richmond Chief, the fourteen year old "little blue horse," took the local favorite Cozad into camp, and incidentally Col. Fogarty of Bakersfield and two or three of his friends carried away from the track about all the loose change the Fresnoites had, as Cozad was well backed by the raisin eaters while the visitors from the oil centre took all the tickets on Richmond Chief they could get. The race was fast and demonstrated that Richmond Chief is the best trotter that has appeared in California this year. He was beaten by Cozad at Pleasanton, but has now turned the tables on him in much faster time. Out of four starts he has won three first moneys and been second the other time, and has reduced his record from 2:14½ to 2:11. The race between Richmond Chief and Cozad Thursday was a battle royal and kept the crowd up to a high pitch of enthusiasm throughout.

The 2:30 class pace went to Enoch in straight heats and the son of Sidmore reduced his record to 2:12½. Summaries:

The Hanford Fair.

The Twenty-fourth Agricultural District held its annual fair and race meeting at Hanford, Kings county, last week and it was a great success. The attendance was very large and the live stock and other exhibits most complete. The racing was held on the association's half mile track.

In the 2:12 pace on the opening day, The Cuckoo, a local horse by Strathway, won the purse in straight heats, the time being 2:21, 2:18½ and 2:24. Chief, Nance O'Neil, Silver Coin and Gaff Topsail also started.

Arketa, the McKinney mare from Washington, won the 2:17 trot on the same day, reducing her record to 2:18, a splendid performance for a half mile track. Puerto Rico won the second heat of this race in 2:20.

The second day saw the grand stand and betting ring crowded. The first race was a 2:45 mixed trot and pacing race. The entries were Nance O'Neil, Young Salisbury, Ferndale and Big Jim. Nance O'Neil won the first heat in 2:32, Ferndale the second in 2:29½, Young Salisbury the third in 2:32, and Nance O'Neil the fourth and fifth and the race in 2:38 and 2:40. The next was a half-mile dash and repeat. Doll Conner won both heats and the race in 0:51½ and 0:52.

On Thursday, the third day, another large crowd attended. The first race was a 2:14 pace, in which the following horses were entered: Chief, L. W. and Gaff Topsail. Gaff Topsail won the race in three straight heats in 2:28, 2:24½ and 2:22, L. W. getting second money.

The next race was a five-eighths of a mile dash, in which were the following: Queen May, Ygnacio, Trilby and Puck Laddie. Queen May won in a walk in 1:05.

The last race was a three-quarters dash, in which the following horses were entered: Moano, Birdie, Della Corner and Sir Dan. Sir Dan won in 1:15.

Friday, the fourth day of the meeting, the 2:16 trot was decided. It was won by Arketa in straight heats, the time being 2:24½, 2:22½ and 2:28½. Puerto Rico, Trilby and Prince Howard were the other starters.

The fair closed Saturday and it was a complete success both financially and as an exhibition. Saturday was Tulare county day at the fair, and excursions were run from Visalia and Tulare, bringing a big crowd. A good card was presented to the patrons of the race track and the grand stand was filled.

The first race was a 2:23 mixed trot and pace, best three in five heats. Foxie Mack, Ferndale, Nance O'Neil, Young Salisbury and Big Jim were entered. Foxie Mack took the first heat in 2:28, Ferndale the second in 2:29½, Young Salisbury the third in 2:29 and Ferndale the next two and the race in 2:28 and 2:30.

The next race was a 2:12 pace, in which were entered Cuckoo, Silver Coin, Gaff Topsail, Chief and L. W. Silver Coin took the first heat in 2:18 and Cuckoo the next three and the race in 2:20, 2:19 and 2:22.

A three-eighths of a mile dash and repeat was the next event on the card, with Della Conners, Damfino, Slim Jim and Hazel entered. Damfino took the first heat, Hazel the second and Damfino the third and the race. The last race was a three-quarter of a mile dash. Queen May, Sir Dan, Birdie and Moana were the contestants. Birdie won. This closed the most successful meet of the racing association.

H. Willoughby, president; P. J. Thompson, vice-president; W. R. Porter, treasurer; A. T. Dresser, secretary, and the following directors: R. F. Discoll, P. J. Thompson, O. H. Willoughby, P. Jessen, Dr. L. C. Porter, T. J. Horgan, F. A. Kilburn, H. Struve, L. Struve, J. A. Linscott, J. J. Morey, O. S. Tuttle, E. A. Hall, A. T. Dresser, James Redman, Fred Mann, A. W. Joy, J. I. King, R. P. Quinn, William McGrath, J. H. McEwen, F. M. Hammett, G. F. Rodgers.

It was decided to hold a race meeting in that city on October 16, 17 and 18, with a good program of races, consisting of trotting, pacing, running and other events. The meeting was fixed for a week after the county fair, because the directors did not wish to conflict with the dates of the Hollister meeting.

The following committees were appointed to attend to the details of the race meeting:

Executive committee—O. H. Willoughby, W. R. Porter, P. J. Thompson, J. A. Linscott and H. Struve.

Speed program committee—O. H. Willoughby, F. M. Hammett, W. R. Porter, T. J. Horgan and P. E. Jessen.

Soliciting committee—O. S. Tuttle, H. Struve, P. J. Thompson, R. P. Quinn and L. Struve.

The secretary, A. T. Dresser, will be pleased to give all parties interested any information about the meeting.

Outlook at Los Angeles.

Hidalgo (Capt. Tom Merry) writes entertainingly of the coming meeting at Los Angeles in the Herald of that city, as follows:

"The outlook for a brilliant race meeting at Agricultural Park was never so good as in this year. In addition to an unusually large number of entries to the harness races, there are already over eighty gallopers on the ground, with seventy more due to arrive in the next two days. Among those already on the ground are Eonic and The Fretter, winners of the rich Burns Handicap at Oakland; Tower of Candles, a big winner at Coney Island last year and very successful since her return to this Coast; Flush of Gold, winner of the Los Angeles Derby in 1900 and several other important stake races; Princess Titania, winner of a dozen races in the colors of Caesar Young; Wolhurst, a winner of ten races this year; The Fog, the biggest winner in Montana during the season recently closed; Morinel, a stake winner in each of the past three seasons; Idoyo, a good winner in Montana; Huachuca, the best of all the Santa Anita horses at the East this season; and about two dozen more that belong to the class generally referred to as "useful horses."

From the East we may expect a big lot of cracks, including Rolling Boer, McChesney, Caliban, Father Wether, Schwalbe, Geheimniss, Tayon and Otis, the latter being the winner of the St. Louis Derby. It is almost impossible to find stable room for all of them, but there will be after all. The harness horses will be stabled at the upper end, nearest to the gate, while the gallopers will be at the lower end of the yard. Marcos Foster's horses got in on Friday, minus that good colt, Sid C., who broke down at exercise on September 21 at home. Those of E. J. Baldwin, trained by his nephew, will arrive here next week. Among them are some two year olds that have not yet started, and there are some great stories retailed about their "speed" by the touts. One of these colts called Batador, is said to be a singularly handsome colt and is entered in three stakes, so they must think pretty well of him. Dr. Rowell, the only man who ever won the Burns Handicap twice (with Satsuma and Imperious) is on his way with twelve head including that good colt, Bon Mot, by Fitz James out of Queen's Taste by Rotherhill. The doctor is a singular man and has a fashion of buying up cast-offs from other stables and winning big races with them. At least that is what he did with Satsuma and Imperious in the days that have flown, purchasing the former from C. S. Brownell and the latter from A. B. Spreckels. You never can tell what horses will not do after Dr. Rowell gets hold of them, for he can beat the world in patching up old cripples and winning big races with them. This year he has won considerable money at the Chicago tracks and is liable to spring a surprise on the knowing ones before the season is over. Dr. Rowell's daughter is the wife of the once famous American rider, Lester Reiff, who had the mount on William C. Whitney's Volodyovski when he won last year's Derby in England, and ran second to Doricles in the St. Leger."

The Needham Sale.

There will be an excellent opportunity to buy some perfectly matched driving teams, some exceedingly fast trotters and pacers, some grandly bred broodmares and a stallion by Director 2:17, out of the dam of Steve Whipple 2:12, at the sale which is to take place next Saturday at Avenue Stable Yards, Stockton. Wm. G. Layng will sell these horses to the highest bidder. The catalogues he has issued are full and complete, and as the reputation of the Needham horses for speed, gameness and intelligence is recognized by horsemen as being beyond comparison with those bred by any other horse breeder in California, there should be a large crowd in attendance. The foundation stock of those to be disposed of was the old Vermont Morgan horses that have as good a name to-day as they had forty years ago, notwithstanding the introduction of the thoroughbred and other strains in our fashionable horses of the present time. Mr. Needham's importations to California are quoted as the handsomest and most serviceable that ever crossed the plains. From these hardy animals he had a number of very fast horses, but the hand of Time has not been laid gently upon him and he feels that he must part with all the horses he has, broodmares, colts and fillies. Whoever needs a good horse, or wishes to make a profitable investment, will do well to attend this sale for there are horses here to suit the most fastidious.

Don Nicolas Covarrubias Owns a Trotter.

There is no better or more popular horseman in Southern California than "Nick" Covarrubias, a member of one of the ancient and honorable Spanish families that owned vast estates there long before the discovery of gold or the advent of the "Gringo." Last winter Mr. Covarrubias bought a bunch of horses at Santa Maria, where they had been running in the mountains, and took them to Los Angeles to shape up for sale. They were all fairly well bred and he turned a few of them over to Walter Maben to drive that they might have the benefit of a little education as roadsters. Among them was a bay mare by Dictatus 2:17 out of Stella C. (the dam of Edna R. 2:11½) by Director, grandam by Speculation. Walter began driving this mare in May or June this year and after two or three trips around the Los Angeles track with her, told Mr. Covarrubias that he had a trotter. The latter gave her the name of Ama A. and told Maben to get her ready for the circuit. The mare showed increased speed at the trot every time she was hooked up until one day she struck a pace and Walter drove her a quarter in 30 seconds at that gait. It was determined, however, that she should be trained at the trot and a little shift in the weight of her shoes was all that was needed to make her stick to the diagonal gait. It was so late that there was but little opportunity to enter her in the races, and her first appearance on the circuit was at the State Fair September 18th, where she won the 2:35 class trot in straight heats in 2:23½, 2:18 and 2:18½, fast time for a green one on that track. She appeared in the summaries as Anna A. instead of Ama A. as she was named by her owner, this of course being a typographical error. At Fresno last Tuesday she started again, and repeated her Sacramento performance by winning in straight heats, but the time was better—2:18½, 2:17 and 2:16½. Horsemen who have seen this mare perform say she is a 2:12 trotter sure and that she will doubtless get a record next year close to 2:10 at the trot and whenever her owner decides to shift her to the pace a mark below those figures will be easy for her.

Anent Cuate's Name.

When Miss Jessie 2:14½ foaled twins by McKinney 2:11½ and the larger one died, C. A. Durfee fell in love with the little fellow that was left and picked out a name for him that was very expressive and at the same time (so Mr. Durfee thought) very easy to spell and pronounce. He called him "Cuate" which is Spanish for "twin." Now Durfee can talk the Spanish language pretty nearly as well as the fellow who invented it, and he thought Cuate would be easy for everybody (including race judges, announcers, secretaries and the like) to pronounce. Imagine his discomfiture when he heard it announced from the stand this year that "Ku-ate" had won or come second, and then picked up the daily papers and saw the little trotter dubbed "Cute," and "Curate," and other ridiculous renditions of the Spanish cognomen. Now that Cuate has a record of 2:18 it is time the little fellow should have his name spelled and pronounced properly. Cuate is pronounced as though it were spelled "Kwah-tay," with the accent on the first syllable, and we hope the editors of our eastern exchanges whose eyes fall on this paragraph will cease to harrow up friend Durfee's feelings by calling his favorite colt "Cute—clever, sharp, ingenious, shrewd, cunning," or "Curate—one who is charged with the care of souls." Please remember that the colt's name is "Cuate" pronounced "Kwah-tay" and meaning twin, and that he is the greatest little trotter of his inches in America or any other country.

A Feast for Bargain Hunters.

On Saturday, October 11th, the E. B. & A. L. Stone Co. will offer for sale, at their ranch at Elmhurst, at auction, one hundred and seventy head of the best draft and road horses in Alameda county. On account of the large number to be sold, they will have to be knocked down rapidly. There are, therefore, sure to be many bargains. Fanciers of fine stock cannot afford to miss this chance. The sale will be conducted by the genial Louis Schaffer.

Canadians Appreciate Caustic Balsam.

BERKELEY, ONE, NOV. 26, 1901.

The Lawrence Williams Co. Cleveland, O.
I have been selling Gombault's Caustic Balsam for a number of years and it is giving my customers the best of satisfaction. I have also used it myself on different ailments with the best of results. Too much cannot be said in its favor. W. T. PRICE.

The sale of horses and mules at the W. A. Shippee farm near Nelson last Saturday was very successful. Wm. G. Layng presided and the returns were nearly $5500. Buyers were in attendance from all parts of Northern California.

The Hotel Rosslyn, European plan, with first class restaurant, is the place to stop at in Los Angeles.

Notes and News.

Myrtha Whips has reduced her record to 2:09.

The Roman 2:09½ trotted a workout mile in 2:07½ recently.

Dictatress 2:09½ is the first 2:10 performer for Dictatus 2:17.

Six of the get of Kremlin 2:07½ have entered the list so far this season.

Before the race at the Empire City track $20,000 was refused for Anzella.

Lauretta by Norris won the 2:27 trot at Pekin, Ill., last week, securing a record of 2:19½.

Mack Mack by McKinney reduced his record to 2:17½ at the Salem, Oregon, meeting.

The veteran, Charles Marvin, has recovered from his recent illness and is out to the races once more.

Tim Murnane, the former care-taker of Cresceus, is now in the employ of Judge E. A. Colburn, Denver.

El Diablo has at last paced out of the 2:13 class. He took a record of 2:11 at Fresno the first day of the Breeders meeting.

The $2000 pace at Salem had ten starters. It was won by Sam Bowers after Chester Abbott had taken two heats in fast time.

Only 240 men are now employed at the Pope Bicycle Works, Hartford, that a few years ago furnished employment for over 2000.

That Metallas is steadily improving is indicated by his race at Baltimore. He did not win, but was timed separately in 2:08½, 2:08½, 2:08½.

There is a two year old colt by Direct Hal that is said to be a wonder at the pace. He is out of Ella Brown 2:11½, dam of Lou Vaughn 2:09½.

Foxy Mack took a record of 2:28 at the Hanford half mile track last week, making the eighth new standard performer for McKinney this year.

It is said that Millard Sanders worked Lou Dillon, the mare by Sidney Dillon out of Lou Milton by Milton Medium, a mile in 2:08½ while he was at Baltimore.

Alta McDonald recently worked Major Delmar a mile in 2:07½, last half in 1:03, and repeated him in 2:08. He is a likely candidate for the Transylvania Stake.

The Tulare association will put its fast kite shaped track in condition that horses may be trained over it this winter, and will give a fair and race meeting next year.

The opening day of the Fresno meeting was a good one for the Dictatus family. Dictatress paced into the 2:10 list and Anna A. reduced her record at the trot to 2:16½.

The Hero by Barada reduced his record to 2:10 on the half-mile track at Charleston, Ill., recently, when to win a $300 purse he paced three heats in 2:11½, 2:10 and 2:10½.

The father of W. L. Snow, driver of Faany Dillard 2:05½ and other Grand Circuit campaigners, died suddenly at Hornellsville, N. Y., Wednesday, September 18th.

Tom Smith by McKinney must have been decidedly off at Fresno. He won at Stockton handily in 2:16½, but was badly beaten at the raisin city in 2:18½, 2:17 and 2:16½.

Nanita 2:21½ is a new one for Arion 2:07½. She is out of Parmita by Lone Pine (Paola) 2:18, the brother of Palo Alto 2:08½, grandam famous old Sontag Mohawk, dam of eight 2:30 trotters.

It is said that Rigby Park, Portland, Me., will be reopened next year. The track, in condition, is one of the fastest in the world and it was here that John R. Gentry paced to his record of 2:00½.

Major Delmar is one of the best trotters on the circuit this year, as his time in the $5000 purse for 2:11 trotters at Readville shows. He won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:09½, 2:08½ and 2:08.

Mr. Harry Darlington, ode of Pittsburg's most prominent road riders, has purchased from Mr. A. B. Gwathmey of New York the fast and game little mare Louise Mac 2:09½. The reported price is $5000.

Mr. C. K. G. Billings may sell a few of his horses this fall. It is a constant worry having about 25 to look after, even with skilled help and a trainer. No one man ever owned as many high class wagon horses.

There will be no fair or race meeting at Concord this year, as it is impossible to get the new fair grounds in shape in time. This is unfortunate, as Concord holds one of the best fairs on the circuit. The new track is about finished, but the fences and buildings are not anywhere near ready.

It is a great Axtell year. His get are winning right and left and two weeks ago he put two in the 2:10 list, the trotter Ozanam 2:09½ and the pacer Ax 2:09½, the former beating the hitherto unbeaten Anzella 2:07½.

Robert I. showed considerable class at Fresno. His three winning heats were in 2:11½, 2:10 and 2:13½. He should be a better horse next year than ever, and ought to win money in the 2:10 class here or over East.

There is considerable talk over at Cleveland about the stallion Kinney Lou that Budd Doble has there. It is said that this son of McKinney and Mary Lou can show a 2:10 gait any time Doble takes him on the track.

Henry Titer says that he likes the two year old colt Lord Roberts by Bingen 2:06½ out of Nancy Hanks 2:04 better than any colt which he has trained since he had Nico 2:08. The youngster will not be started this year.

Le Roi, the pacer that reduced his record to 2:10½ at the Oregon Fair, is by Altamont out of the dam of Klamath 2:07½. Give Le Roi a good day and truck and he will pace in 2:10 or better and give old Altamont eight in the 2:10 list.

W. J. Andrews, who drove John R. Gentry 2:00½, and Mascot 2:04 to their records, says he agrees with Jack Curry that road work on the New York speedway is the best preparation a trotter can have in winter for campaigning in the following summer.

C. A. Durfee, who was in San Jose this week looking after a number of young McKinneys he has there, reports that Cuate 2:18 has entirely recovered from his lameness and is looking fine. This little fellow is one of the greatest three-year-olds of America to-day.

Bob Carnathan says he is going to Lexington and "I am going to enter Harold H. I know they won't let the hoppers go, but I will add a couple of ounces in toe weight and adjust the breeching so that it will have the same effect and believe he will perform all right."

Just two of the produce of daughters of McKinney 2:11½ have started in races. Silver Coin, son of Jenny Mac 2:09 has paced to a record of 2:11½ and Eagletta also out of a daughter of McKinney has a pacing record of 2:11½. Both records were made at Woodland this year.

Norval 2:14½ is the leading son of Electioneer as a sire of trotters. He now has sixty-two trotters to his credit with records of 2:20 or better. Sphinx 2:20½ comes next with fifty-seven and Chimes next with forty-six. Norval was foaled in 1882, Sphinx in 1883 and Chimes in 1884.

Dan Patch's time by quarters when he equalled Star Pointer's record of 1:59½ was as follows: 0:30½, 0:29½, 0:29½, 0:30. It will be seen that he paced the middle half in 0:59 seconds and then had enough left to come the last quarter at a two-minute clip. It requires class in a horse to do that.

There was a five-mile pacing race, September 14th, at Royal Park, Montreal, which was won by Burr Patch in 12:33, Little Fred second and Ansonia Prince third. The time was two and a quarter seconds slower than the world's record by the trotter Bishop Hero, made over the old Oakland track in 1893.

It is announced that Dave McClary lately paid John Meneeley of Meadville, Pa., $3000 for the pacer Morning Star by Star Pointer 1:59½. The latter is now credited with nine that have taken standard records, three of which are in the 2:10 list, viz.: Sidney Pointer 2:07½, Joe Pointer 2:08½ and Schley Pointer 2:08½.

A. P. McDonald, the clever Albany trainer, has won $25,000 racing a stable of seven horses since July 12th, and has won most of the amount with three horses. Connor 2:03½ and Darrel 2:05½, two supposed to be badly outclassed, have earned fair money for him, and as a team they paced in 2:08½ twice last week at Readville, Mass.

The trouble with Zephyr 2:11 is said to be "bucked shins," something common among thoroughbreds, but very rare on the harness turf. It is a severe irritation of the delicate membrane, just beneath the skin, and while not an unsoundness, is very painful. It is said that Zephyr may not start again this season, but be reserved for next.

The race at Readville in which Anzella took the first heat in 2:06½ and Lord Derby the next three in 2:07½, 2:08½ and 2:09, is the fastest four heat race ever trotted. The record was previously held by the race won by Fantasy in 1896, when she took the first, second and fourth heats in 2:09, 2:08½ and 2:08. Kentucky Union winning the third in 2:07½.

John Dickerson, acting for Brayton Ives, a well-known wealthy road driver of New York City, has purchased from Millard Sanders the mare Nora McKinney 2:12½, bred and owned by David Young of Stockton. The price paid is given at $5000. Mr. Ives will use the mare principally for matinee purposes and speedway driving and may race her next season.

John W. Martin, of Woodville, Tulare county, has recently purchased from James B. McDonald of Fresno the McKinney stallion Fresno Mc 36100, better known as McKinley. When Mr. McDonald came to register the horse he found that the name he had borne for six years had been taken, so he called him Fresno Mc. This horse has never been trained more than three months on a race track but is very fast and has trotted quarters in 33 seconds. Mr. Martin will have him trained next year and given a record.

John A. McKerron trotted an exhibition mile at Cleveland last Saturday under unfavorable conditions. The track was exceedingly hard and there was a stiff breeze blowing at the time, so that the mile in 2:06½ was a surprise to both the owner and the public. This mile was a quarter of a second faster than his matinee record, made a year ago, and the fractional time was: 0:30½, 1:02½, 1:34½, 2:06½.

Ozanam, the black mare that defeated Anzella last week, is six years old and is by Axtell out of Ozama by Director. She was raised at L. V. Harkness' Walnut Hall Farm, near Lexington, Ky., and was brought out as a four year old, gaining a record of 2:15½, which she lowered to 2:11½ last year. She had not won a race on the Grand Circuit up to the Empire City meeting, while Anzella had not lost one.

The great financier, Russell Sage, who is healthy at eighty-five, is one of New York's oldest road riders, and this kind of recreation has helped to keep him young. When Fleetwood Park was at its best, during the presidency of Mr. David Bonner, Mr. Sage was one of the notable figures in early morning groups on the clubhouse piazza. Now he goes through the park and out upon the speedway. His favorite mare, Nellie, which he drives double with Boom, is his favorite driving horse.

Charley Mac, Edwin Gaylord's McKinney trotter, and several other members of the Gaylord string, including Lee Crawford, Frank Dale, Darkway and Confianza, now being campaigned in the East, are to go in the sale ring in New York the coming winter. Mr. Gaylord is not going to retire from the racing business but will devote his attention in the future principally to developing and racing young horses. He will keep Ladysign, one of his recent acquisitions, as well as Agnes Lee May for a road mare.

The only horse that has ever yet got more than one stallion that has sired as many as one hundred performers with records of 2:30 or better was George Wilkes, and seven of his sons have gained that distinction. Five of these seven successful sires were from dams of Mambrino Chief descent. Two of them, Red Wilkes, sire of 170, and Onward, sire of 166, were from daughters of Mambrino Chief. Three of them, Alcantara 2:23, Baron Wilkes 2:18 and Simmons, were from daughters of Herr's Mambrino Patchen, the best son of Mambrino Chief.

Turfmen are loud in their praises of Mr. Smathers' splendid handling of Lord Derby, and not a few consider that some day when all is to his liking the horse will take a record of 2:04 or faster. "See what Mr. Smathers has accomplished this season," remarked a veteran turfman in New York the other day. "He drove Derby faster than either Ed Geers or George Spear ever has to sulky; he drove Ida Highwood in 2:09½, four seconds almost ahead of her race record; he drove Alice Barnes up to her fastest mark and Gold Brick in 2:09½."

Quite a crowd was at the Hollister track on Tuesday of last week to see J. M. Ferguson's pacer Inferno show a mile in 2:15 or better. A bet of $100 a side had been made that he could do it, Bert Ellsworth, of San Jose, and Peter Jessen, of Watsonville, being the parties to the bet, the latter backing the horse. The first heat was made in 2:20 and the second in 2:19. While as many trials were permitted as were necessary, the backers of the horse concluded after the second trial that it was not his day and ordered the money paid over to Ellsworth.

A late report from the United States commercial agent at Limoges, France, states that American horses are in great demand in that country. This is somewhat significant for the reason that America during the last quarter of a century has imported thousands of coach and draft horses from France. Now France is looking to America for her supply, all of which goes to show the importance of this country's international commerce in live stock. England wants the American horse, France wants the American horse, and the domestic demand is constantly increasing.

One of the well bred sons of McKinney that will be in the stud next year is Willeroo 28021, owned by Frank H. Burke of this city. The horse will be at his ranch, La Siesta, near San Jose. Willeroo showed quarters in 33 seconds as a two year old, but met with an accident and was never trained. His dam is Junonia by Junius, son of Dictator, second dam Lady Duroc 2:22½, by Iowa Duroc, third dam by Green's Bashaw and fourth dam by Vermont Morgan. He is what would be expected from this breeding, handsome, stylish and of good size. Mr. Burke will probably, now that McKinney has gone from the State, breed his great mare Wanda 2:14½, dam of The Roman 2:09½, to Willeroo next spring.

Dr. Boucher took Miss Logan 2:06½ to San Jose this week and expects to go East with her next year as he believes she will be entirely recovered from her lameness and will be a good mare in her class. Her mile in 2:05 at Stockton, while a losing performance, shows that she has all her old time speed. Dr. Boucher drove her a little too fast (29½ seconds) in the second quarter of this mile, and as she had to face a strong wind in the last quarter, the mile in 2:05 was a great performance. The reason Miss Logan was not started to beat her record, was because her owner does not want a faster record for her now, and so she was started to beat 2:03½ so that she would not be penalized if the mile was a shade or so better than 2:06. Dr. Boucher thinks she has never yet shown all the speed she is capable of and expects to win pretty well with her next season if he can get her to to the Grand Circuit in good shape.

When in Los Angeles, stop at the Hotel Rosslyn.

Close of Stockton Fair.

The fair and race meeting of the Stockton Driving Club came to a sad ending last Sunday night when the big pavilion owned by the San Joaquin County Agricultural Association, situated in the business section of that thriving city, was totally consumed by fire. There was destroyed in the conflagration about six blocks of buildings and the loss is over a half million dollars. The exhibit in the pavilion was one of the finest and most complete ever made at a Stockton Fair and was valued at fully fifty thousand dollars. The pavilion, while a wooden structure, was of handsome architecture, having been erected several years ago at a cost of $45,000. It has been the custom of the Stockton Driving Club to keep the pavilion open for a week after the close of the week's racing program and from the receipts to make the club even on the fair. The loss to the club therefore is very heavy, and the individual loss to the members will be very severe.

The largest crowd of the week turned out Friday, which was Stockton Day, to witness the races. The harness events were both won in straight heats the 2:19 trot going to Cozad and the 2:25 pace to Eggleta, 2:14½ being the best time in each race. Cozad had the easiest kind of a race and was pulled up at the end of each heat.

The feature of the running races was the win of Bill Young, a local horse that was heavily played by the Stocktonians. The summary of the day's races follow:

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27.

In a wind that retarded her speed considerably Miss Logan 2:06½ paced a mile in 2:05 over the Stockton track on Saturday, which is the fastest mile ever made on the track by a harness horse, but she acquired no record, as the mile was made in an effort to beat 2:03½, the State record, made by John R. Gentry at Los Angeles, October 27, 1897. Miss Logan's mile was made as follows: First quarter 0:32½, second quarter 0:29½, making the half in 1:02, third quarter 0:31½ seconds, reaching the three-quarter in 1:33½ and the last quarter, which was against the wind, in 0:31½, thus completing the mile in 2:05, a remarkable performance for any horse under the conditions. She was paced by Ferdinand, the old thoroughbred that made the pace so often for Flying Jib 2:04 and was hitched with him when he made his memorable mile in 1:58½ with a running mate, a record that stands until this day.

The 2:15 class pace at Stockton on Saturday was one of the best races seen on the circuit this year and is the fastest four heat race this season on the Pacific Coast. There were four starters, Harry J., who is a greatly improved horse under Hi Hogoboom's guidance; Robert I., Midnight and Yukon. The first heat went to Robert I., in 2:11½, but Harry J. resumed good behavior thereafter and marched home in the lead three times, taking the second heat in 2:09½, the second horse to pace below 2:10 in California this year. The third heat was in 2:11 flat and the fourth in 2:11½, which was a very fast race when the wind is taken into consideration.

The judges created quite a sensation after the time in the first running event had been hung up by announcing that Jake Jones, the jockey, had been fined $100 and that George Childs, the owner of Royal F. had been fined $250. Both were suspended till the fines are paid. They are charged with pulling the horse on Tuesday and Friday, when he was beaten in slow time. Saturday Jones was taken off the horse and Bennett substituted. He galloped home in front of a good field, though he got away badly and had to run around five horses to get into first place. The books shortened the odds when the new boy was put up, but they paid out quite a sum on him. The summaries:

Nail Wounds in Horses' Feet.

The following is a simple yet effective remedy for nail wounds in a horse's foot: When the nail has been removed follow the puncture through the sole or frog to the soft tissues, then fill the cavity with a solution made of equal parts of gum camphor and carbolic acid and pack with cotton. This treatment should be repeated daily until recovery is complete. Where this treatment is promptly and properly carried out nail wounds in the foot of the horse rarely result in abscess and suppuration. Where abscess of the foot has occurred remove all loose horn and dress with the solution given. The cotton should be held in place by a bandage around the foot.

Mr. W. F. Young: VICKSBURG, MISS., Nov. 1, 1898.
Dear Sir—Please send me another bottle of your Absorbine. It worked wonders on my horse and I would not do without it.
Yours truly,
JULIUS LEFOLDT.

Los Angeles Items.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: The racing season on the California Circuit is drawing to a close; followers of the circuit have enjoyed the sport from Ventura to San Jose, on the coast line, and now are enjoying themselves in the valley of the San Joaquin, and will soon reach Los Angeles—the Readville of California racing towns—and from appearances around the race track, Manager Brooks and his able assistants, Messrs. Merry and Eaton, a big time is expected, and it is evident that Mr. Brooks is going to have every detail put in first-class order, and to give the followers of the California Circuit the best arranged meeting ever held in the Southern California metropolis.

The people of Los Angeles have taken quite a liking to Mr. Brooks, and it is evident that his ability and integrity as a racing magnate has preceded him, and his friends in Los Angeles, among the best people, are already legion and still more to follow.

Every citizen is looking forward to first-class racing events, both in running and harness. It has been rumored here that such stars as Bonnie Direct, Ray Direct, Miss Logan, El Diablo and Kelly Briggs are going to race here. Everyone hopes that this is a fact. It is a foregone conclusion that these star pacers would pack the grounds, and not only add more glory to California light harness horses but add shekels to Mr. Brooks' and his associates' bank accounts, and the same to the owners of these pacers, and such a race would do a lot to stimulate interest in the light harness horse.

Great things are expected from Petigru, the grand stallion that our own Willie Durfee is campaigning. When Petigru and Cozad meet on this first-class track at Los Angeles, it is safe betting that the trotting race record of California will be lowered.

Mr. Durfee is a favorite here; Mr. Clark and Cozad have hosts of admirers also, and these friends will be sure of a good contest.

It is to be hoped that every racehorse man in California will be in Los Angeles. Each one can be assured of good treatment, both from the track officials and the people of Los Angeles.

Hoping that the Los Angeles meeting will close in a blaze of glory, I remain yours truly,

C. A. HARRISON.

P. S.—Mr. Brooks has announced a 2:10 pacing race, entries to close during first week of meeting.

To Prevent Colic.

An able writer on that dangerous disease, colic, says: "In most cases of colic two kinds of causes, predisposing and exciting causes, can be distinguished and the disease is produced if both kinds of causes are present and acting in concert. Consequently these cases of colic, as well as many other diseases, are prevented if either one of these kind of causes is warded off or not allowed to act. As to colic, it will on the whole be easier to ward off, or to prevent, the exciting than the predisposing cause. A prevention of the principal and most frequent exciting causes will be effected if the horse is always regularly fed; if the food is sound, wholesome and digestible; if feeding a heavy meal immediately before, and immediately after severe exercise is avoided; if no food which has a tendency to ferment, or that is rich in alkalies, is given; if the feeding of new grain and of new hay which has not yet passed through the 'sweating process' is avoided; or where that can not be done, if such new hay and new grain are fed in small quantities and then with a small pinch of salt added to each meal; if no icy food, or food covered with hoarfrost is allowed to be eaten; if no ice cold water is given to drink, and never when the horse is perspiring or has an empty stomach; if meal or bran is never given until thoroughly moistened."

McKerron to Go for a Low Record.

Since Harry Devereux, of Cleveland, drove his great stallion, John A. McKerron, a mile to wagon in 2:06½ at Cleveland, on September 20th, this year, he has decided to take the horse to the Memphis meeting and in the meantime prepare him to reduce his record still further. His mile at Cleveland was made when the track was not at its best, and it is a well known fact that the Cleveland track is not as fast as it was last year. The Cleveland Driving Club will coat it with several inches of clay this fall, and expect it to be as fast or faster than ever in 1903. Recognizing the fact that the course at Memphis is now probably the best in the United States, Mr. Devereux proposes to utilize it to give McKerron the opportunity to trot to a record below 2:06½ and will have him prepared to attempt the feat during the Memphis meeting.

INGLESIDE, the most complete and picturesque racing plant in America, will doubtless be opened again to the public this year. By a vote of eleven to five the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco at its last meeting passed to print an ordinance which will permit betting on races in this county, when made within the limits of the property on which the races are held. There was a grand array of preachers and others at the meeting of the Board to protest against the passage of the ordinance, but in spite of their opposition, the ordinance permitting racing for forty days in each year was passed by the vote given above. The ordinance prohibiting racing (which this ordinance repeals) was not passed in good faith in the first place. It was put through a former Board as a matter of spite, and the backing of the clergy which it had at the time was obtained by an appeal to prejudice. The powers that secured the passage of the former prohibitory ordinance were not in evidence last week when the repeal came up, and without them the clergy cut a sorry figure. There is a lot of gush and nonsense published about the closing and opening of Ingleside. The track was not closed in response to any public demand, nor has the new ordinance proposing its opening been passed to print on a similar claim. A "pull" closed Ingleside and a "pull" will open it. That is all there is to it. It is a matter of congratulation to all fair-minded people, however, that it is to open. If the question were submitted to the people of San Francisco they would probably vote two to one to permit racing to be conducted there.

THE HORSEMEN OF MASSACHUSETTS have arrived at the conclusion that it is about time to assert their rights. There has been a law on the statutes of that State for some time which prohibits betting on races, but it has been a dead letter and at the meetings of the New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association, and other racing organizations, betting has prevailed and no attempt has been made to stop it. A few weeks ago however, the State officials who are of the "unco guid" stripe, notified the associations that betting would not be permitted hereafter, and as a result the New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association was compelled to declare off everything but the stake events at its September meeting and harness racing in Massachusetts is at an end unless the obnoxious law is repealed. It is a pleasure to know that the horse breeders and owners of Massachusetts have resolved to stand for their rights in the future and that no person will be supported by them for public office who is opposed to the holding of race meetings. The horse breeding interests of Massachusetts are of very large proportions. Such men as Thos. Lawson, Malcolm Forbes and others have invested millions of dollars in horse breeding establishments, and if they are to have this property made valueless by the actions of the puritanical law makers of the old Bay State, who can see nothing but evil in any amusement, the sooner they know it the better. The action of the New England Trotting Horse Breeders Association in declaring off all races but stakes is commendable. The directors are law-abiding citizens and if they cannot conduct a meeting within the law they do not propose to conduct it at all. But the issue has been made, and the farmers and stock breeders have resolved to organize and oppose any man for office who is not in favor of permitting race meetings to be held. This is the proper way to go about it, and the only way in which the horse breeders can ascertain whether Massachusetts is a fit place for a free man to live. It is not probable that when the question is thus put directly to the people that a majority of narrow-minded bigots will be found to prevail in that or any other community.

NO FAIR WILL BE HELD by the Contra Costa Agricultural Association at Concord this year. The association purchased a piece of land a few months ago, and started to build a track and erect buildings, but it has been found impossible to get the latter completed in time to hold the fair this year. While the declaring off of this fair and race meeting will be a great disappointment to many, it is unavoidable under the circumstances. The Directors of the association have done everything in their power to push the work to completion, but circumstances were against them and they have been compelled to reluctantly declare the meeting off. Next year, however, Concord will be again in line and will inaugurate the new grounds and race track with the best fair and race meeting ever held in the district. Their new property will be one of the best appointed fair grounds on the Pacific Coast.

PALO ALTO STOCK FARM will hold a sale of colts, fillies and broodmares at the farm on Saturday, October 18th. It will be remembered that just prior to the shipment East to the Blue Ribbon sale last spring, a number of the two year olds were attacked with distemper and had to be left at home. These are now fully recovered and will be sold at this sale at the farm. The catalogue will be issued in a few days and we will have an opportunity to particularize more next week. In the meantime we will say to our readers do not let any opportunity pass to secure some of the Palo Alto Farm stock. It will not be long until all are sold and the farm turned to other uses; but the colts and fillies now there will march on to victory in the races of the next few years, and the stallions and mares will continue to be among the great producers of winners.

UKIAH'S FAIR will be a good one this year. The stalls at the new fair grounds are rapidly filling and room will be at a premium by the time the fair opens, which is Tuesday next. The racing will be the best ever held in Mendocino county.

New Racing Circuit for Montana.

There is a movement on foot to organize a Western racing circuit for the purpose of holding racing during the summer at Colorado Springs, Denver, Butte and Anaconda. It is understood that Charles Clark, son of the multi-millionaire senator from Montana, is to be one of the leading spirits in the project, which has every prospect of going through. Running races are to be given exclusively and syndicate book betting will not be permitted. The idea is to begin about the first of June and race for three months.

Answers to Correspondents.

H. L. B. Smith asks: Please give me the pedigree, several generations back, of Robert McGregor, sire of Cresceus 2:02½.

Robert McGregor was sired by Major Edsall, he by Abdallah 15, he by Hambletonian 10. The dam of Major Edsall was a daughter of Hambletonian 2, he by Bishop's Hambletonian. The grandam of Major Edsall was a mare of untraced breeding.

Robert McGregor's dam was Nancy Whitman by American Star 14, his second dam was Nance by Young Messenger Duroc and his dam a mare of untraced lineage.

F. N. F., Red Bluff—Please answer through your valuable paper if that stallion stake is a go, or if there were not enough entries to make it an assured thing, and oblige one of your subscribers.

Answer—The Harness Stallion Stake offered by the California State Agricultural Society closed May 1st this year with 38 stallions nominated. There was paid in the sum of $1140, to which the society will add $1000, making the present value of the stake $2140. This race is for foals of 1902, the get of the stallions nominated and is to be trotted in 1905 by then three year olds. Entrance fee for these colts and fillies is $50, payable in installments, the first payment, $5, to be made June 1st, 1903, when the foal is a yearling. The stake is a go and promises to be the richest one ever inaugurated in California, although it is a pity there were not more stallions nominated.

PHIL C. BYRNE, Grass Valley—(1) Please give the breeding of Stromboli, a bay filly, four years old, by imp. Stromboli; first dam Ynez by Prince of Norfolk. (2) W. says Hal Pointer's record is 2:04; B. says it is 2:04½. Which is correct?

(3) T. says that at one time Ed Geers worked Dan Patch 1:59½; B. says he never drove him. Which is correct?

(4) In report of Colusa races you give Director Jr. as the sire of Lochinvar 2:20, winner of the 2:20 trot at that place. The sire of Lochinvar is Director H. 2:27½.

Answer—1. By imp Stromboli, dam Inez Norfolk by Prince of Norfolk, second dam Irene Harding by Jack Malone, third dam Macaria by Avalanche, fourth dam Eureka by imp. Glencoe, fifth dam imp. Heads or Tails by Lottery. 2. Neither is correct; Hal Pointer's record is 2:04½. 3. We do not know whether Ed Geers ever worked or drove Dan Patch. Myron McHenry had him last year and this. Dan Patch was bred by D. A. Messner, Jr., of Oxford, Indiana. Dan Patch was never in Geer's stable, but he may have driven him. 4. Your statement that Lochinvar 2:20 is by Director H. 2:27½ is correct.

A Famous Old Trotter.

When Millard Sanders was East last year with Dolly Dillon and Janice, he attended the Charter Oak meeting at Hartford, and saw the famous old trotter Guy 2:09½ by Kentucky Prince, then and now owned by Secretary W. H. Gocher, the efficient secretary of the National Trotting Association. Millard had many recollections of the grand old trotter and whilom record breaker and told Mr. Gocher he would not leave Hartford until he had a picture of the old hero to carry away as a souvenir. So Mr. Gocher engaged a photographer and the picture was secured, Mr. Sanders holding the old fellow while the snap was made. Guy was 21 years of age at the time. He is now 22 and is still driven regularly on the road by Mr. Gocher, getting from five to ten miles per day. Guy is the fastest trotter ever bred at Stony Ford, the birthplace of the mighty Electioneer. In his day he reduced the world's record to wagon, trotting, to 2:13 and the world's record for trotting geldings to 2:09½. He was sired by Kentucky Prince, sire of the great Dexter Prince, and his dam was Flora Gardiner by American Star 14. He is a remarkably well preserved horse of his age, and but few horses can brush with him on the road. Mr. Gocher gives him a life of ease and luxury and will never permit him to suffer for anything as long as he lives.

Mr. J. B. Iverson of Salinas had the misfortune to lose his fine four year old mare Rubie by Altamont out of Ruby by Irvington Chief the other day. The mare got out of the pasture by some means, and when crossing the railroad track caught her foot in the frog at a switch. She was discovered in this predicament and two men were trying to extricate her when a train came dashing along and killed her. Mr. Iverson valued her at $500.

"Tried Lots and Nothing Better."

Mr. Thomas McFarland, a prominent horseman of Burlington, N. J., writes: "Have used Quinn's Ointment for years and there is nothing better on the market. I have tried lots, and it is the best remedy in my experience." For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all enlargements, Quinn's Ointment has no equal. Price one dollar per bottle delivered. A Blue Ribbon Winner.

Among the winners of the coveted blue ribbon at the Pleasanton Fair was the gray stallion here pictured, owned by Mr. H. P. Goecken, a prominent hay and grain dealer of this city and the owner of a splendid farm of 400 acres near Livermore, Alameda county. While Mr. Goecken places this stallion and several others he owns in the stud every spring, he is one of those practical men who believe that work is good for man and beast, and consequently Chief of Kneiphusen knows what it is to earn his oats, as he is driven in a team that delivers hay and grain to Mr. Goecken's many customers during the fall and winter months. This treatment seems to agree with the horse, as he is one of the most certain foal-getters in the State, and while he does not carry a "mountain" of flesh, he weighs 1850 as he stands to-day and is one of the most active heavy horses in the country. No draft stallion has better bone or more perfect feet than this fellow, and while he is still a young horse the colts from his first year's service show that he will be one of the best foal-getters that has ever stood for service in California. He is by imported Raglan, and his first, second and third dams were by Percheron stallions imported from France. He was foaled in 1897, and took the first prize in his class at the San Francisco and Tanforan horse shows. Last year he stood for service at Vallejo, in charge of Thomas Shouse, and he will probably be sent there again this year, as his services are in demand there.

The Breeding of Breadwinners.

There have always been, and probably always will be, a variety of theories as to how breadwinning trotters and pacers should be bred, says the Western Horseman. It is also true that some facts can be produced to bear out any and all pet theories. Yet, in harness speed breeding, as in most everything else, there are predominating facts, both in theory and in practice. The rational and logical theory in breeding harness speed clearly is that "blood tells," and that to produce the highest degree of perfection in a horse family of any distinct class is to use the most condensed blood of that particular class of horses. This rule, or law, holds good in characteristic, or specific, quality production in all other lines of live stock breed improvements, and hence all laws of heredity teach that it will hold good in breeding harness speed.

Theoretically, then, trotting and pacing horses may best be produced by using, in our breeding operations, the most approved, tried and found not wanting in results, trotting and pacing blood. Theory undoubtedly teaches this, and results, we maintain, fully and unequivocally prove it. Trotting blood and pacing blood are so related, so much alike in product and so intermixed in our harness speed horses, that they are for all practical purposes identical and inseparable, and classification is not only impossible, but impractical. Trotting blood, therefore, for all practical purposes, includes both, and in speaking of harness speed blood only the words "trotting blood" need be used.

Occasionally a harness racehorse whose greatness as such it is difficult to account for on blood lines appears on the trotting turf, but such instances are rare, and there is almost always a reasonable probability that such a horse is well bred in harness speed lines. But prodigies sometimes appear in the human family, and why might they not occur in the equine family? Occasionally, also, but very rarely indeed, prodigious faculties or qualities are transmitted by human prodigies, and this also may occur in harness horse speed breeding. This kind of transmissibility, however, is too fickle and uncertain to be relied on, for only blood inheritance is reliably transmissible. The trotting instinct—so called for the lack of a better term—is at the present stage of speed breeding, a characteristic of all trotting-bred horses, but, of course, is more intensified in some families than in others, for the simple reason that some are better trotting bred than others, a well-defined trotting tendency having been intensified by the continuous inbreeding of animals of much the same blood and known to possess an unusual degree of trotting instinct, inbreeding, both in kinship, blood and kinship characteristics, being the only way in which type or family characteristics are intensified and perfected.

Some people fancy that they do not believe in inbreeding, but it is well nigh impossible to single out a trotter that is not sharply inbred. Hambletonian 10 himself was closely inbred, as was also Mambrino Chief, and though the families of the two are most often thought of as outcrosses for each other, these two great harness speed progenitors were in fact closely related. The more one examines the tabulated pedigrees of great performers, great speed sires, speed producers and speed progenitors through remote crosses, the more he will realize that not only are they practically all intensely inbred, but that the only logical course to pursue in breeding harness speed is to stick closely to orthodox trotting blood.

James R. Keene Deprecates Plunging Owners.

Mr. James R. Keene, of New York, who laid the foundation of his immense fortune here in San Francisco, and who is now one of the leading breeders and racers of thoroughbreds in America, is quoted in a recent interview as follows:

"I am sorry to see the sordid desire to triumph in the betting ring overcome the ambition to excel on the course. We have too many men in racing as a business. When a man acquires a strong stable for betting purposes he does not begin to taste of the sweets of racing. A cheap selling race has to him the same significance as the winning of one of the great classics, with its wealth of lore and tradition. There will always be the poor third-rate horseman willing to catch outside moneys and live to exist, as it were. He is an integral part of the turf system, but as little is heard of his devious ways, no harm to the sport is done.

"He is there for the money there is in it. When a man, supported by a high class stable and a ready bank account sets out to make a business of his racing, and when he sums up his summer's diversions in proportion to the total of his profit and loss account, then it becomes a serious matter. The plunger owner is exploited, and his fame falsely reflects the spirit of the sport. This unwholesome tendency among owners is what leads to unpleasant results. They become prone to the habit of running to get weight off, with a view to insure a good price and a lighter allotment for a future race and prospective coup. Some of them might go further. The turf cannot thrive as a commercial venture. Every man should breed his own horses, too. We want men who are content to race for the purses and the gratification of seeing their horses win. We want owners who are willing to incur big forfeits, and pay them out of stakes and purses their horses may win, if possible, or out of their pockets without demurring, if necessary.

"It is not correct for a thorough sportsman to indulge in betting. It is an English observance, founded on good principle. It may be all right for an owner to back his nomination for a moderate amount in a big race, but will he stop there? We should leave the gambling exclusively to the gamblers. I do not believe in apeing the English, but there are many owners on the other side who never make a bet. They might be emulated here. It would ennoble the sport. It ought to be that a horse representing the stable of a gentleman may be backed by all sections of the public without questions as to its fitness arising. The mere fact that the horse is to start should be a sufficient guaranty that he is fit and has a chance. No owner should keep in his possession an animal of inconsistent racing habits. It is the predominance of these principles in English racing which has made the turf much more of a national institution in England than America. Let the public wager its few dollars, but away with the plunger owner. The world should be made to know that the race track is a place where one can meet broad-minded, generous-hearted sportsmen and gentlemen, with lots of bright sunshine and fresh air thrown in, and not a public mart for the promotion of commercialism."

The Well Bred Horse.

A horseman referring to the well bred horse, in one of our exchanges, among other good things says: "An amiable disposition can be cultivated in a horse, but it is more desirable that the animal should inherit it. It is easier to breed an intelligent and cheerful disposition in an animal than to spend the necessary time and patience to cultivate it. A pig-headed, narrow-brained, long coarse-eared and thick-skinned stallion should never be used for breeding purposes. The animal kingdom is like clay in the hands of the potter; it can be fashioned into desirable form and disposition by observing the methodical principles of breeding. The horse with a small brain can be taught to do a few performances well, but its ability as a general purpose animal is restricted as contrasted with a horse of ample brain capacity. If ancestors perform the service that is expected of their progeny, their offspring will in a degree inherit the disposition to fill the sphere of their parents. It is now conceded that developed qualities are transmitted, and foals will learn more easily to perform services if they are descendants of developed ancestors. Parental impressions are impressed on the disposition of the offspring."

Retired For the Season.

Dick Benson has concluded he can do better with The Roman 2:09½ by retiring him for the season, and has shipped him home to Kansas City. According to Will Logan Jr. of the Horse Review, "Mr. Benson gives as his reason for retiring The Roman that he has raced so successfully this summer down the Grand Circuit that he believes that it will be more profitable to keep him over for the 2:10 class next season, and in view of his trial mile at Baltimore in 2:07½, timed by a number of horsemen, the son of McKinney 2:11½ and Wanda 2:14½ should be one of the most formidable candidates for the class. The Roman has two-minute speed, as he could step a quarter in 30 seconds most any time, but could not get away from the score as fast as a number of horses, which proved quite a handicap in big fields. However, he improved in this respect decidedly as the season progressed. Benson, who is conceded to be one of the best conditioners and trainers that we have, will put in some of his time this fall in educating The Roman to step away from the score, and next year it will be 'come on, boys!' with him."

Palo Alto Sale.

There were a number of two year olds shipped East last spring but on account of colds were not offered for sale by the Palo Alto Stock Farm. Since their return they have entirely recovered and it has been decided to sell them together with some choice broodmares, on Saturday, October 18th, on the celebrated farm. Wm. G. Layng, the well-known auctioneer informs us that catalogues will be ready for distribution on Tuesday next and as this sale will probably be the last at which colts and fillies of this age will be offered this year, there should be a large crowd in attendance. All that are catalogued are well broken, single and double. The broodmares are in foal to Monbelle 2:23½, the son of Mendocino 2:19½ and Beautiful Bells. This is a sale our readers should not miss.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

Teal---Sprigtail.

The gay-hued green-wing and the blue-wing teal!
Brilliant in plumage each in gold and green;
No lovelier denizen of earth or air
'Mid the fair feather tribes is seen
Swift in their flight, they baffle with their speed
The smoking weapon and the fatal lead.
Swifter than Indian shaft they cleave the air—
Swift as electric flash their flight is sped.

Swift-flying pilgrims of the realms of air!
Few of duck tribe may rival ye in speed;
Perched on some grassy tussock of the stream,
Ye seem the champion, all bird-flights to lead.
With admiration deep we watch ye swim
By musk-rat house, or drift-wood's tangled pile,
Calling so softly with melodious note
To your mates hovering in the air the while,
Greedy for larvæ, buds and floating seed,
Your luscious banquet, your luxurious feed

The Duck and Quail Season Is On.

On Wednesday, the eagerly awaited first day of October, the sportsmen of this State duly honored the opening of the season on ducks, quail and the various feathered game with a general turnout afield with gun and dog, on the marshes in the duck blinds, or on the waterways seated in a duck boat. For ducks and the snipe family neither the season nor the bag limit has been curtailed in any respect. With the exception of several counties noted later on no changes have been made in the quail season.

The importance of this particular day, not only in its local respect, but throughout the State, can readily be understood when it is known that there are over 3000 sportsmen in this city alone who go out shooting more or less during the open hunting season. Last year the different railroad companies provided hunter's trains, particularly on Saturday nights, so that the shooters could conveniently reach their hunting grounds. Ten carloads of sportsmen have frequently invaded the Alameda marshes alone on a Sunday during the open season. Starting from the Alameda narrow gauge wharf on Saturday evening, cars were dropped and sidetracked at various points until the "Bridges" near Alviso were reached where the last two or three coaches were sidetracked. In these cars the hunters waited until the early hours of the morning, when they would set forth each for his chosen destination in quest of a day's sport. At Newark, Mt. Eden, Alvarado, San Leandro, and other points many hunters have availed themselves for seasons past of limited hotel accommodations. Other sportsmen resort to the many arks, shacks and club houses located on and about the immense stretches—nearly forty miles in an air line—of the marsh hunting grounds.

The Alameda marshes are more accessible to the individual shooter than almost any other hunting grounds within easy reach of this city. On the east side of the bay the San Bruno marshes afford now but a limited amount of shooting, this section was a notable duck hunting resort two decades ago. Further south the San Mateo, Belmont and Redwood marshes, while affording a certain amount of open shooting, the best portions thereof are now preserved and much of the marsh also reclaimed.

In Marin, Sonoma and Napa counties fringing the shores of San Francisco and San Pablo bays and the reaches of Salt marsh adjacent to Napa, Sonoma and Petaluma creeks and their tributary sloughs, there are thousands of acres of good hunting ground. Much of this ground is taken up by gun clubs but there is plenty of territory left for the independent shooter. Success for the latter depends greatly upon his topographical knowledge of the selected shooting district. Along the bay shores and about the creeks and sloughs there is abundant opportunity for good boat shooting, dependent of course upon favorable weather conditions. In this immense hunting domain will also be found the shacks and arks of many city shooters as well as market hunters.

Vallejo is also a starting point from which good hunting ground can be reached, the Napa and Sonoma creek marshes being the most available spots selected.

On the east side of our bay to the north of Oakland, there is more or less shooting to be found along the bay shores. The best hunting ground however, the marshes to the north and east of San Pablo, has been preserved. Last season these shores from Oakland railroad wharf up to the Selby smelting works were dotted with innumerable brush blinds—the structure and appearance of which led one with but little stretch of the imagination to picture the island villages built on piling over the water in some of the Philippines. This locality is good for canvasback later in the season. South of Oakland and Alameda and between San Leandro the marshes and bay shores are still good for a limited amount of duck, snipe and curlew shooting. This country was noted last season and for previous years as being the rendezvous of numerous night hawks, whose nefarious practices were made evident by an all night bombardment of ducks. This style of game slaughter is now happily tabooed for the statute prohibits shooting wild game a half hour after sunset or half an hour before sunrise the day following.

The outlook for sport with both ducks and quail is most encouraging. Ducks are reported very plentiful already. Quail in almost every section of the State have had a most favorable season; they have bred and multiplied extensively. In some districts the quail have raised two and three broods; these are now grown large enough for the hunter's bag.

In the ponds, sloughs and on the various club preserves there have been a larger number of birds bred this season than in many years, owing to the fact that there has been no scarcity of water in the ponds and among the tules. In fact, the entire year has been a favorable one for the propagation of game of all kinds.

Those who have visited the open country and foothills report that there are more quail to be seen than has been known during the past ten years, but this is the same old tune that is caroled every succeeding fall. Credit, for which auspicious outlook, will as usual, be loudly claimed by the trinity of "game protection apostles." During the close season these wary and intelligent birds are to be seen anywhere in the open, and they treat the ordinary mortal with supreme contempt but when the first gun begins cracking on the first of October it is different. The flocks that formerly dusted and sunned themselves in the roadway, lazily moving away to one side for passing vehicles, all disappear, and the multiplicity of quail that have been so much heralded before the open season vanish like the mist, and no man can tell where they have gone to.

Just prior to the present time the birds, careless of danger, owing to their long immunity from the gun, were scattered all over the plains, gathering strength and flesh from the nutritious seeds of the late grasses and the scattered grain in the stubble fields, and in consequence everyone concluded that they were more numerous than ever before known. When the open season begins, one day's hunting serves as a warning and they take to the brush, and it is a fortunate sportsman who returns from a day's outing with gun and dog and brings in the limit. Still, the outlook for fall shooting is excellent.

The open season for quail in Marin county commences on October 15th and closes January 15th. In San Mateo county the season begins November 1st and closes on December 1st. In Santa Clara county the quail season opens November 1st and prevails until February 1st. The market sale of feathered game in that county is prohibited.

The individual bag limit on quail for one day is twenty-five. Their sale is prohibited by State law. This is the principal good feature of the game law at present in force. This clause will result in the stoppage of certain abuses that bid fair to make practically extinct our valley quail, one of the grandest game birds in the world.

The ducks now here are mostly home-bred birds. Sprig or pintails, mallard and the greenwing teal breed principally in the Suisun marshes, the Sacramento basin, the tule morasses of the San Joaquin, the Big Meadows district, Sierra valley, the vicinity of Los Banos and in the Alameda marshes. The Suisun and adjacent marshes, the Alameda marshes and along the Sacramento from Rio Vista up above Knight's Landing are literally covered with ducks. In the latter section, particularly the Yolo basin, broken levees have caused large tracts to become inundated and covered with fresh water. These conditions have made the most favorable feeding grounds for big flocks of wild ducks. Around and about Rio Vista, Roberts island, etc., feed is plenty and ducks are there in countless thousands. A few geese are also in evidence, heralds of the musical army soon to arrive from the confines of the frozen north, where most of them have spent the short summer on the northern breeding grounds and later, fattening on Arctic berries.

Shore birds, so-called, including the curlews, marlins, avocets, willets, plovers, bead-head snipe and other varieties, are also arriving daily. The coming of these wild fowl is usual at this time, and does not by any means presage an early winter.

The first ducks from the north, those coming in now, are mostly from the Klamath lakes and other Oregon wild fowl resorts. The birds are principally sprig and teal. These ducks have been hunted in that State since the first of last month. In Oregon, the sportsmen get wood-ducks principally during the first days of their open season. Wild game is wary—it does not take but little disturbance to cause them to get away from a dangerous locality. The speed of the different varieties of ducks is such that it requires but a very short time for the birds to reach a far-off haven where the breech-loader does not greet them at every pitch into a pond or waterway. The teal is credited with covering over 100 miles an hour; the canvasback can do a good trick in flying also. For a short distance the sprig can cut out a good pace too.

The vanguard of the northern flight of ducks will put in its appearance usually about November 1st, in easy stages as the ponds in different latitudes are frozen over. The birds are generally sprig and teal, accompanied by a few widgeon and spoonbills. The main flight of the widgeon will take place later in November. These birds will be closely followed by the royal canvasbacks and the handsomely plumaged blue-bills. These latter are deep water ducks and stay about the tide waters. San Pablo, Richardson's bay and the lower reaches of San Francisco bay were frequented last year and late this spring by countless thousands of these ducks, attended by campfollowers of coots and divers in big flocks. Few canvasback breed here. Some cripples, however, that escape the hunter and recover stay in the marshes and breed. The mating of these ducks is very often a case of Hobson's choice, some peculiar and interesting hybrids being the resulting progeny. The mating of the wild mallard and the tame Rouen duck, nevertheless, results favorably.

The mallard duck just now can be seen in large flocks flying up and down the coast. Why they do so before settling down to winter quarters is unknown. This succulent table bird breeds in this State and also in the far north, Vancouver's sound, the Alaskan waters and the many favorable spots found in British Columbia are great breeding grounds. Mallards have been seen in flocks of thousands as late as August in the marshy ponds and lakes of the faraway and bleak Kurile islands. The dainty cinnamon teal breeds in the Suisun, Sacramento and San Joaquin marshes, but they get away south when the cold weather sets in. The Mexican tree duck and the beautifully plumaged woodduck are also rare visitors to the up river tule regions. The northern birds can easily be picked from the home-bred ones, as their plumage is in better condition. When the sprig come in from the frozen north they are almost pure white. One infallible test of the northern visitor is in the appearance of the intestines. These are literally covered with nearly transparent fat. Such ducks are always in the very best condition.

When conditions in this vicinity, comparatively speaking, are unfavorable, bad weather, scarcity of feed or too much hunting, the birds gradually work south, taking in the marshes and waters of Fresno and Kern counties, etc., and from thence finally visiting the Colorado delta, a vast district within somewhat easy reach of the sportsman and of which it can be truthfully said, it is second to none on the Coast for duck shooting. Within convenient reach can also be found quail shooting that will delight in the extreme and at the same time is a supreme test for the utmost skill of the sportsman.

Some few years ago, when the preserve system was inaugurated by several of the wealthy sportsmen's clubs, which had their hunting lodges located on the Suisun marshes, it was feared that the first day of the shooting season would be made notorious by pitched battles between the clubmen and their keepers and the individual shooters, whose sole grievance was that the hunting grounds they had been shooting unmolested over for years were to be closed against them for good. Common sense and a recognition of legal rights prevailed, except in a very few instances, one or two serious in results, and gradually nearly all of the best available hunting localities within a radius of 100 miles of this city have been leased to gun clubs or individuals, who now solely enjoy the shooting conditions.

The sportsmen's clubhouses, shacks and arks are in most cases very comfortably fitted up. Many of them having excellent kitchens, fully appointed snug sleeping quarters and elegant dining-rooms. Other up to date accessories including hot and cold baths and showers are not wanting. Boathouses and storage buildings as well as warm kennels for the dogs are not missing either.

On the Suisun marshes will be found the palaces of the duck hunting fraternity. The most completely fitted up lodge is the handsome and substantial cottage of Mr. Herman Oelrichs at Oluta station. This establishment is finer in its clever appointments than many city residences. A windmill that pumps water from the artesian well alone cost enough to buy a city lot. The sportsmen here can walk dryshod to the ponds and sit in the blinds arrayed in dress suits, so conveniently arranged is everything for the shooter. Nearby on the other side of the railroad track is the well built shack of the Canvasback Club. This establishment contains a large sleeping dormitory fitted up with a dozen bunks, a commodious kitchen and a large and pleasant dining-room, with other outer rooms and appurtenances in keeping. The club has the lease of several excellent shooting ponds, the whole outfit being in charge of a keeper. The house is about 100 yards from the railroad station. The members of this club are Clarence A. Haight, James Maynard Jr., Ed Schultz, J. Suich, Joseph J. Sweeney, E. A. Wands, Herbert Kullman and Jacob Kullman.

Further north are located the Teal, Ibis and Cordelia Gun Clubs. The Cordelia ponds, before the present bag limit was imposed, were noted for the big bags of ducks shot there. All of the ponds on these particular club grounds are noted shooting ponds, in fact some of the best on the marsh. They are kept in good order and baited lavishly. This taken with other favorable conditions has enabled the fortunate lessees for several years past to have bagged thousands of ducks.

In this marsh and far up one of its sloughs was last year moored the Lucero, the late Charles L. Fair's steam yacht. The boat was used as a shooting headquarters for Mr. Fair, Joe Harvey and their friends. Further away, near Cordelia, is the comfortable cottage of the Field and Tule Gun Club, which leases a large tract containing thirteen splendid duck ponds. The club house is perfectly fitted up in every respect and located at the head of Cordelia slough. The members of this club are: Fred H. Bushnell, John D. Coleman, Dr. A. T. Derby, Al M. Cumming, George W. Emmons, Lee W. Harpham, Cal. C. McMahon, J. J. Wirtner, F. V. Bell, A. Hopke, F. T. Hayes, Louis Titus, A. M. Shields, A. D. Harrison, J. Homer Fritch, A. Roos, W. Bay and M. H. Unger. The Green Valley Gun Club preserve is near by.

The Pringle ponds on the Suisun are noted for their canvasback shooting. To achieve results in bagging "cans" in this string of ponds requires a knowledge of the peculiar ways and habits of the birds, to be a good "caller" is also another necessary essential. These ponds are full of fresh water and the ducks frequenting them are always in the best of condition.

The shooting privilege this year has been leased by Len D. Owens, Edgar F. Preston, A. Buckley, John Bourdette and several other sportsmen.

The principal clubs on the Sonoma marshes are those of the Alameda Sportsmen's Club and the Schellville Gun Club. The first named club members have a number of leveed fresh water ponds to shoot over. They had a most prosperous season last year. Nearby is McNeil's Island, where good duck shooting can be had. There is some open ground in that vicinity.

Nearer the city are the leveed sloughs on Tubbs' island, which are grand canvasback shooting resorts. The birds finding plenty of wild celery there. This ground is forbidden the shooters at large. At Sears Point, on Midshipman, and other sloughs shooting is found to a limited extent. This district, opposite Tubbs' island, is not preserved, and is visited frequently by many individual hunters. To those who know this locality good shooting has been found for years past, although at present it is noted that the shooting is growing poorer year by year. At Sears Point station is located the Basio Club, which has a comfortable little shack with accommodations for ten sportsmen, there is also a boathouse adjoining. The members enjoy some splendid striped bass fishing in the large slough at their door. This stream is many miles long and is the main waterway for sportsmen in that section. Nearby is the cottage frequented by the "Sons of Rest," hunters and fishermen. Further south along the railroad are located a number of shacks and arks, the largest of the latter being the resort of the Honker Club.

Reclamation district was a once favorite hunting ground. Last year the Sunday hunters who visited the district found but poor hunting. Two city shooters, who had an ark located there, made it a practice to shoot over all the favorite duck feeding grounds, generally from Wednesday until Saturday. One of these individuals, who poses as a sportsman, has the reputation of selling his birds to the marketmen. The ducks in search of quiet feeding grounds were consequently driven away. Much of this section has recently been leveled in for future cultivation. This has also driven the ducks away to other quarters.

Just After the First Ready for the Train.

On the Petaluma marsh the best shooting ground is controlled by the Mira Monte and the Petaluma Gun Clubs. The former mentioned club has one of the most pleasing locations for a well built and large two story club house that we know of. The building is located on the summit of a regular shaped round knoll covered with oak trees. A well kept road leads from the railroad station up to the club house. Nearby are the outbuildings, kennels, and boathouses at the landing on San Antonio slough. The club has two power launches and a number of boats. In the creek just below the club landing are anchored Fred H. Bushnell's ark Cuckoo and a sloop or two. These vessels are used as headquarters for a number of sportsmen who were attracted by the splendid striped bass fishing to be had in San Antonio slough. The presence of the fishermen and the location of their craft in the slough, which is a navigable stream, is a very unwelcome situation, not only to the Mira Monte Club, but also to the Petaluma Gun Club, members of both organizations doing much to discourage the presence of the anglers near their strongholds.

It has been claimed that the main objection to the presence of the ark Cuckoo in the slough is, that, the Mira Monte sportsmen are great entertainers, hardly a week passing but one or more parties, in couples, quartettes or a larger company, have an outing at the club house, which is appointed as comfortably as a hotel. Clubmen naturally believe that their own particular affairs at the club house concern nobody but themselves. They look on the neighboring ark, etc., as so many possibilities for gossip and tea table talk.

Right south of the Mira Monte club grounds is the Taylor tract, leased now by several sportsmen. This tract has a number of good ponds and sloughs upon it and is an excellent shooting ground. Some open marshland can be found roundabout here, the stopping place is Burdell's station. The Petaluma Gun Club have their house situated several miles to the north-west and control a number of good ponds.

To the south at the mouth of Petaluma creek, the Kennel Gun Club have their club house located near the railroad bridge over the creek at Black Point. The members are D. Fagothey, "Trot" Allen, "Jack" McGovern, "Daggie" Smith, George Herron and Oscar Fleischer.

The Empire Gun Club grounds, about a mile south of the station, have been turned into wheat fields, the marsh having been leveled. Bay shore shooting down to Corte Madera creek can be had at different points. Later in the season many hunters have excellent sport shooting from blinds, along the Sonoma and Marin bay shores. The numerous coves and sloughs here found afford very good shooting from boats.

The Los Banos Gun Club is composed largely of Oakland sportsmen. Among the members are: M. J. Iverson, George H. T. Jackson, Judge Ogden, Geo. Adams, J. Manning, J. Wallace Scott, Mr. Hanford Jr., Senator Leavell, M. Ohlander, L. Leckie, George Gray, John Latgen, Nick Rehneke and others. Their shooting privileges give the members a choice of the ponds and innumerable sloughs found on the Miller and Lux tract, at Los Banos, extending over some 11,000 acres. The water on this tract is controlled by floodgates and sluices, thus ensuring a plentiful supply of fresh water and a quantity of feed that brings the ducks to the hunters' domain in immense numbers. The slaughtering operations of the so-called "bull brigade" on the lands of the company are now prohibited and ducks are no longer killed by the market hunters, who use a four-bore gun and stalk the birds concealed behind a trained steer. These fellows often get as many as 100 teal at a single discharge, in fact, their custom was only to shoot when they could make a big haul of ducks. The club members have a number of boats and horses and carts to aid them in going to and from their shooting boxes. Good English snipe shooting can be had at this point at times.

Along the San Joaquin, good mallard shooting can be had near Jersey Landing, Byron, Union, Staten, Jersey and Bouldin islands. Near Brentwood, levee building recently has spoiled some excellent duck shooting grounds. The grounds just mentioned cover an immense distance and a local knowledge or the hiring of a guide is necessary to get to the hunting grounds. Opposite Antioch on Sherman island were some splendid ponds up to last season. The Black Jack Gun Club had their headquarters at this place up to last year. The members can congratulate themselves on having had the best duck shooting in that vicinity for years. The club now consists of three shooting members, jolly President "Jack" Lemmer, "Bert" Wyman and "Hardmouth" Swain. The Black Jacks have leased grounds near Collinsville for this season's shooting.

The principal shooting clubs on the Alameda marsh are the Willow Lodge, Spoonbill, Yuemsee, Zindo and Swan Gun Clubs, located between Mt. Eden and Alvarado. The Spoonbill members are Phil Bekart, Lee Larzalere, Harvey McMurchy, R. G. Guyatt, J. E. Broder, G. E. Morse, Dr. E. N. Short and W. K. Whitehead. The clubhouse was burned down recently, immediately following which a high tide floated away their stock of decoys and everything else, save the wreck of the kitchen range. Pretty hard luck just prior to the opening day of the season. Notwithstanding this bad streak a new clubhouse and everything requisite for a shoot on Wednesday was ready for the club members. The members of the Willow Lodge Club are Chas. H. Shaw, E. L. Hoag, R. C. Baird and Geo. F. Lynn. The club has leased a section of over 1000 acres, including the Briggs and Patterson tracts, and have a large comfortable mark and good shooting ponds in the tanked up sloughs. Poachers this year will be prosecuted by the club.

George Franzen, Bob Liddle and George Banks have their ark located at Alvarado, and have leased a tract of 1000 acres over which to shoot. Near Mt. Eden, Alvarado and about Mowry's numerous shooters have secured the privilege of shooting on private grounds. Most of these hunters construct their blinds by sinking and anchoring securely a barrel or hog-head at a good shooting point. The lid is fastened with hinges and a padlock—the barrel being used for storing the decoys during the hunter's absence.

The members comprising the Swan Gun Club are George G. Gauld, Dr. Cranz, George Hicks, T. W. Williams, Gus Nauert and Mr. Weatherly. The Mayhew Gun Club have secured land near Mowry's; among the members are James P. Sweeney, J. B. Hauer, B. M. Birdsall and Wm. Bond. Further south at Russell's, north of the bridges, the Yumsee Gun Club is located in a comfortable house that will accommodate ten hunters. The members are E. E. Drake, W. S. Wattles, C. D. Laing, Mr. Cooper and A. S. Jones.

The members of the Empire Gun Club have secured the shooting privileges over 6000 acres of land about Elkhorn slough, Monterey county. This section is good for a variety of sport—deer, duck, quail and snipe shooting, together with striped bass and salmon fishing. The club will erect a house capable of accommodating forty people at one time. The shooting ground is located three and a half hours from the city.

Some shooting is still to be had in and about Richardson's bay. At the head of the east arm of the bay the Marin Gun Club have their club house. Shooting from blinds along shore and in the adjacent salt marsh was very good last season. The best shooting place, however, was in a "cut off" through the long point of land putting into the bay. Here the morning and evening flight of canvasbacks as they took a short path and flew over the point from one arm of the bay to the other gave numerous opportunities for limit bags last season. In some portions of the wheat field, empty shells were thicker than stubble. In December and January Richardson's bay affords excellent canvasback shooting from boats, either by sculling or sailing. Hunters in sailboats can generally get within range oftener than those in boats propelled by single or double oars, the ducks seemingly are not as wary of sailing as they are of other craft. Hunting from a power launch has been proved excellent—for other hunters located in line of flight of the birds scared up by the launch.

On the Belmont marsh in San Mateo county the Nolo Gun Club have their club house near the bay shore. In two fresh water ponds and on the shore the club shooters had good shooting last year. Among the members are Hip Justins, C. W. McClellan, A. D. McClellan, F. L. McClellan, Fred Morgan, E. G. Galt, Guy T. Wayman, W. J. McLain and J. Willigrod. Further south in the salt marsh off Redwood City, is located a big shooting preserve leased to a club composed of a large number of Redwood and San Mateo sportsmen. The San Jose sportsmen get most of their duck shooting in the vicinity of Alviso and the bridges.

Aside from shooting over decoys from the blinds, much shooting is enjoyed by "sculling." In this manner a hunter can have his choice for a day's sport in a thousand and one places. Sneak boats and sink boxes are used to a limited extent and before the custom has a chance to grow and be generally practiced these methods of hunting should be stopped by statute. Market hunters will generally confine their operations to districts close to the cities this season, the fifty-bag limit on ducks making it necessary to locate nearer the market for their game.

DOINGS IN DOGDOM.

EPITAPH.

Here repose the remains of True Blue

My days with dogdom were few.

A bud that flowered on the golden stair—

Whelped at "cuckoo" kennels, sired by "Hot Air."

Not worth a dam—and nobody gave one—

Nay, not for me, my race was quickly run.

'Tis sad. For little True Blue—

Prosperous breezes never blew true.

For 'twas early in the mornin'—

Ach Gott! I died a bornin'!

So soon was I done for—

What in ——— was I begun for?

Los Angeles entries close at 10 P. M. next Tuesday, the 7th inst.

Mr. Bradford S. Turpin, of Roxbury, Mass., and Mr. George B. Appleby, of Oxford, Mass., have accepted the invitation to act as judges in the thirteenth annual trials of the National Beagle Club of America, which will commence on November 3, 1902, at Mineola, Long Island.

The judges selected for the Los Angeles show are: S. Tyler, of Pasadena, for St. Bernards, Mastiffs, Great Danes and all large breeds. George L. Waring, of Santa Monica, Fox Terriers. J. Lambe, of Los Angeles, Greyhounds. J. X. De Witt, Kennel Editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, Pointers, Setters and Hounds. Superintendent John Bradshaw, of San Francisco, will pass on all other breeds.

The thirteenth annual field trials of the National Beagle Club of America will take place at Westbury grounds, on November 13th, Long Island. Club headquarters, John's Hotel, Mineola, Long Island. Charles R. Stevens, Secretary, 106 Market street, Camden, New Jersey.

Mrs. Bradley-Dyne of Sydney, P. O. British Columbia, has now in her kennels some most desirable young Irish and Scotch Terrier stock. Her dogs have taken the ribbons over everything they came against in almost all our Coast shows for several years past.

The epitaph may be premature, but then a case of protracted parturition is generally followed by early dissolution.

An opportunity to exchange a Cocker Spaniel brood bitch for a handsome Maltese Terrier dog is open for negotiation. Particulars can be had from the Kennel Editor.

Mrs. Bradley-Dyne writes us that the recent Nanaimo show, P. K. L. rules, went off smoothly without a hitch and in brilliant weather. Thomas Dyke of Vancouver, B. C., a new exhibitor of Cocker Spaniels was very successful and took special for best brace. The Royal Pastime Cocker Kennels of Victoria won special for best team.

Mr. Craig, of Nanaimo, exhibited a very promising Great Dane bitch of tender years, months rather, his Kruger was victorious over Mr. Moxon's Modoc, the judge hesitated awhile between them before passing out the ribbon. Modoc distinguished himself by slipping his collar on the second morning of the show and going for a trip into the country, causing no end of commotion amongst those responsible for him. He returned at his leisure, to everyone's relief, very thirsty and exhausted. Mr. Forshaw, the judge, at this his first appearance on the Coast, gave general satisfaction, by the careful and painstaking way in which he gave his awards, particularly so in the decision between the bitch Reminiscence and the dog Dusky Crack in smooth Fox Terriers. The bitch finally carried off the blue in all her classes and she certainly is a very high class little lady, of whom we shall see a good deal anon. She is the pick of Mr. Bostock's, of Victoria, new kennel importations, although Dusky Crack, another, is also a warm customer. Mr. McConnell, of Victoria, is to be congratulated on his new acquisition in the English Setter bitch Albert's Rosalind, an exceedingly beautiful bitch. Though Lady Howard managed to come out on the top on this occasion, it is doubtful if she can ever do so again, as her years are beginning to tell on her. Another veteran, Saanich Mixit, won in Irish Terriers, though thickening all over with the weight of years, his indomitable spirit and intense Irish character carried him through; his son, Luokpenny Peter, a better dog, having to take second place because he is a hot shower. Mixit is a dog well known here, he won in this city and in Oakland.

Mr. W. C. Ralston will enter the Cockers Hampton Promise, Little Dorrit, and possibly one or two others for the southern show.

Mr. James Hervey Jones will send the Cocker, Black Silk II., and possibly his red bitch Mignon.

The Cocker Club members are showing an enterprising spirit in their support of the Los Angeles show. We believe more general entries from this city than were contemplated will be made. A note from Mr. J. H. Dorian gives the following pleasing information:

"We are sending out the card below to California Cocker members; and, while I do not know yet how general the club's support will be, the entries will be good, as Bradshaw seems to be a popular choice."

California Cocker Club Members:—Your Executive Committee takes very genuine pleasure in announcing that Mr. John Bradshaw has been selected to judge Cockers at the Los Angeles Bench Show (October 15th to 18th). Mr. Bradshaw is conceded to be one of the best judges of a Cocker that we have, and demonstrated in his judging at Oakland that he has the courage to place a dog where it belongs in awarding prizes, regardless of who owns or displays it. The usual California Cocker Club medals will be competed for, and our members are very earnestly urged to give Mr. Bradshaw their hearty support. Entries close October 7th and members are urged to get their entries in at once. Premium lists and entry blanks can be had, in the temporary absence of the Secretary, of J. H. Dorian, 125 Geary street; and arrangements will be made to ship and care for members' dogs at a minimum of cost if desired. Kindly communicate with Mr. Dorian at once if there is even a possibility of your exhibiting.

W. C. RALSTON, Pres.,
J. H. DORIAN,
J. H. JONES,
E. C. PLUME,
P. C. MEYER,

Executive Committee.

"We are offering four club medals (competition by members only) for best black Cocker dog, best black Cocker bitch, best 'other than black' dog and best 'other than black' bitch. Also one club medal for competition by members and non-members for best Cocker of either sex and any color."

Plumeria Cocker Kennels' good one Plumeria Fancy (Ch. Viscount-Omo Girl) died of stomach and bowel trouble Saturday evening last. Plumeria Fancy was one of the best red Cockers in the country. Her loss will be very severely felt by her owner, who is absent in the North on a business trip. She was a full litter sister of Plumeria Surprise, the phenomenal winner on the recent Northern Circuit and at San Francisco, and only needed one or two points more to make her a champion. A letter received from Mr. Plume on the 1st states that he intended benching her at Los Angeles. He will send Ch. Hampton Goldie, and probably one or two others anyhow.

Nairod Kennels will send to Los Angeles in care of Handler T. J. Blight their crack St. Bernard, Grand Master II. (Ch. Grand Master-Bonnie Doone), who is now in magnificent show condition, fit to make the showing of his life. They will also send their recent Eastern purchase, the St. Bernard bitch Gypsy Lee II. (Alta Leopold-Jim Blaine Jr.'s Beauty), a young dog of very great promise and good size, with a head as massive as a dog's. Gypsy is expected to figure prominently in the future St. Bernard history of the Coast. She has never before been shown. Cocker entries from Nairod Kennels will include their prize winning red dog, Plumeria Beau II., the black bitch Imp (winner at San Francisco and Sacramento) and their new black and white parti-color bitch Lorita (Woodland Duke Jr.-Brentwood Nieta), recently bred to Plumeria Tweedlepuuch.

A letter from J. W. Flynn to a friend in this city dated at Carman, Man., the evening before the champion stake was run, states:

"I have been here since the opening of the trials. The Derby brought out some very high class dogs, the winner Ceylon quite a good puppy, there were quite a lot of very high class puppies but they lacked bird work. The All-Age was finished yesterday (September 7th), it proved very disappointing as to bird work. The conditions were far from favorable, rain and a very high wind. Lorillard's Geneva was first, Percival Jingo second, Senator P. third, Mohawk fourth. I feel very highly pleased over the win as the very cream of field trial dogs contested. Old Senator is a greatly improved dog and I look for him to do some good work before the season is over. Thirty-one dogs started in the All-Age, fourteen in the Derby. The champion stake is on for to-morrow, there are twelve entries. I hope to see Senator make a good showing." He won first in sensational style against a company of well known high class dogs.

Every dog has his day and so had Champion Dan Maloney who was, it might be said, literally murdered on the 1st inst. Mr. Williams early this year sold Dan, who was about in his prime, to a man who follows the dual vocation of bee keeper in summer and market hunter in winter. Dan's new home was near one of the San Joaquin marshes about twenty-five miles from Stockton. On the first of the month, a day scorching hot, 105 degrees in the shade, Dan, who was heavily coated, suffered intensely from the heat, so much so that he showed his temper and charged his new master growling and teeth showing. He became entangled in some rose bushes and before he could extricate himself, his master had gotten into the house, secured his gun and coming out, lodged the contents of both barrels into the dog because he was mad, had rabies of course! Such was the reason given for killing one of the few good Irish Water Spaniels we have on the Coast. If the jackass who last owned Dan had taken the simple precaution of shading off his close, thick coat the poor dog would have been comfortable to some extent during the hot weather on the San Joaquin marshes, at least enough so to have gone through the heated days without the necessity of being shot by an ignorant fool who did not know rabies from last year's bird's nest.

The prowess and skill of our sportsmen is not confined to local waters. Advice from Port Arthur, Tex., give an account of Frank Ireland's catching the prize tarpon of the present season near that city. The fish was six feet in length and weighed 143 pounds. After landing his catch Ireland said that he understood why it was that fishermen never tried to take more than one tarpon at a time. As he stood trembling and unstrung with excitement and fatigue he further said: "My knees ache, my legs ache, my back aches, my arms are sore and tired, and my head aches." Surely this was enough for one day's fishing glory.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

Show Draft Horses at Draft Pace.

The fast fixed American idea for speed is partly responsible for a most ridiculous feature of our show rings for draft horses—the exhibition of ton-weight horses at the greatest pace possible. Another idea doubtless enters sometimes—that of endeavoring to “bamboozle” the judge by a show of stimulated action.

The shoemaker should stick to his last. The trotting or coach horse is expected to do his work at the trot, but the draft horse bears about the burdens of the world's commerce at the walk. Speed is an essential in the roadster, high action in the carriage horse, and freedom and accuracy of action in the draft horse. This fact is not ordinarily made clear by an observation of the methods of exhibitors at our leading fairs. Draft horses are generally shown to an accompaniment of the cracking of whips, the rattling of sticks, the rustling of papers and the shouting of grooms. It is a wholly needless flurry; it is objectionable in that it sometimes serves to cover up the real character of a horse, and it is also objectionable in that it frequently spoils the performance of a horse when just at his best. No matter how well a draft horse may be laying it off under all this artificial stimulus, his overzealous owner or groom feels called on to try to make him do a little better with the result that the horse goes off his feet and makes a bad bobble of it. And then the exhibitor is grieved if the judge does not give him another, or a half dozen other, chances to make an acceptable performance. In this way the judging is frequently considerably delayed.

The walk is the gait of the draft horse. If he can walk well it is a fair inference that he can trot well, but sometimes inaccuracies of action not apparent at the walk are developed at a slow trot, and it is right enough to call on a horse for a trot such as a draft horse takes with an empty truck. More than this is useless; it is not only useless but sheer folly to call on a draft horse to show the pace or action of a coach horse. Judges and buyers may depend on it that when undue stimulation of draft horses is attempted the exhibitor or seller generally seeks to cover up or disguise some defect. Some years ago a heavy investor in horses on his return to a prominent importing establishment for further purchases, said to the proprietor, with some degree of earnestness and a use of expletives that are not here quoted: “Please show me for once a horse in his natural condition!”

This protest against the stirring up of draft horses at fairs is particularly pertinent in view of the fact that in the arena of the stock judging pavilion at the Iowa State Fair, one importer nearly met his death from a kick over the heart by a colt which he was endeavoring to scare into greater pace and action. The only wonder is that many men have not been killed in their efforts to “wake ‘em up.” Now that these judging pavilions have brought into one arena the cattle and horses it is especially incumbent on superintendents to compel exhibitors to refrain from exciting these big horses into a pace which threatens to carry their grooms off their feet and which places in jeopardy the lives of the other men in the arena.

The walk and the slow trot may be called for, and further than that it is useless to go. If the horse shows a square “heel-and-toe” walk, flexing his joints freely and carrying every leg in line, and if he shows an easy slow trot, free from “paddling” in front and rolling behind, further test of his action is needless. A draft horse that holds his hocks well together and flashes the iron in your face at every step at the walk meets all the requirements as to action. A horse that stubs the tan bark with his toes and drags his hocks at the walk can sometimes be stimulated into a passable trot when frightened and forced, but it is wholly artificial and unnatural and will deceive the unwary judge or buyer.

Jackson's Napa Soda untangles the feet

Successful cattle feeders like Mr. Sotham, who have for years tested methods of feeding, generally have ideas of their own. He says emphatically: “I can take three calves and make them increase two pounds daily on the same feed needed to make one mature steer gain two pounds. This is six pounds gain on the calves against one on the steer. Double the money can be made in feeding calves that can be made on two year olds. If a man feeds stock with good blood he will not be in financial trouble. Let him buy calves and develop them. It is a far better system than putting two or three year olds into the feed lot.”

An old German who is a very successful dairyman, says: “You must not dink dat effery mon can learn alike. It been just der same mit men as mit cows. Some is made der right way and some is not. Ven a cow or a man is made der wrong way, den you must gif up.”

The milker should avoid handling the cow more than is necessary, and he should make it a rule to do his work quickly and thoroughly. He should never go from a sick to a well cow without first cleansing his hands. The habit of wetting the hands with milk is filthy in the extreme and should never be practiced. Some people think it is necessary, but this is a mistake. The hands should be kept dry. If they are not, it is impossible to prevent drops of milk from constantly falling from them into the pail.

In selecting a boar for breeding purposes we should try to get one from a prolific sow, and, if possible, an old sow that has made a good record for large litters and good thrifty pigs. This will usually produce more and better pigs than a boar from a young sow or one of a small litter, though the latter may be the better looking animal, owing to its getting more milk when young.

Keep your fowls in good laying condition and they will lay. When they do lay, keep the eggs nice and clean. And pack your eggs so that all of one size and one color, as near as possible, may be in in the same case. Mixed eggs or soiled eggs are not. All fresh table eggs; and a few bad ones will condemn the whole lot.

Horse Hints.

Success in keeping and breeding horses is largely dependent upon the knowledge of the animal, its needs and habits, and judicious feeding. Regularity and common sense must be used in the amount and kind of food given. Always water before feeding; then feed the hay and bulky food leaving the grain and concentrated food until last. It is better to water half hour before or not until one hour after feeding. The horse secretes about four quarts of saliva while eating his feed of oats and corn, and if you add water at once to this amount it will often cause indigestion. If watered half hour before or one hour after feeding the water will not interfere with digestion. Too much water at the time of feeding will force down some of the grain out of the stomach and into the bowels before it is ready to pass from the stomach. Give pure fresh water, never ice water, and in winter heat it slightly.

The natural food of the horse is grass but on account of confinement and work the horse requires a more nutritious and strength-giving food. The secret in feeding properly is to give a mixed diet that combines nutriment with bulk enough to make it digestible. Feed to supply heat and muscle, and not an abundance of fat. The more work done by the horse, the greater the amount of food to be given. The general foods are hay, grass, corn, oats, barley, rye, bran, carrots, turnips, and apples. Oats is the best grain food, then comes corn. Both are improved if crushed. The former is a muscle building and blood making food puts nerve and endurance in the animal and nothing can take its place. It is far from being a cheap feed and farm horses may be wintered largely on other grain but when we drop oats, the hay should be rather rich in protein. Corn and timothy are heating and hard on the digestion, causing the animals to sweat freely. If the first is freely used as grain some bran with stover, or some well cured pea vine hay or clover with corn, helps to balance up the ration and keep digestive organs healthy.

Green food must be fed with care. A ten minute run every night in a good pasture is very beneficial. Feed 12 to 18 pounds of hay, according to the size and work of the horse. Give cut feed mixed with bran daily. Feed three times; between 5 and 6 in the morning, at 12, and between 6 and 7 at night. Let the night meal be the heaviest. Don't feed cooked food, it is unnatural and will cause trouble. Never feed a tired or heated horse; let him cool first and you will prevent colic and indigestion. Oat meal mixed with water is excellent for tired or exhausted horses. Coarse fodder chopped to one inch lengths with bran or meal scattered over it and the whole sprinkled with water and thoroughly mixed is very palatable. When the grain is mixed with the coarse fodder digestion will be more perfect.

In feeding horses the principal value of hay is to distend the stomach. For this reason lean horses and those just off the pasture or coarse feed require more than those which are regularly stabled and groomed. The change to grain must not be too sudden. Once a horse is used to grain, if oats are used, with corn meal and bran, he may get along daily with 6 or 8 pounds a day.

Whatever the work to be done, bran should always be kept, since a horse being off his feed or slightly ailing from any cause not indicative of violent disease, bran, mashes, with good nursing, will bring him out all right in nine cases out of ten. So in winter, when horses are confined to hard food, a bran mash once a week should be given. A peck of carrots, turnips or mangels daily are excellent at the noonday or evening meal. Have a piece of rock salt always within reach.

At an auction sale of range horses held in South Omaha the highest price paid was $64 per head for a lot of mares and geldings that averaged 1350 pounds.

Preserving Eggs.

The Rhode Island Station has been making some experiments in the preservation of eggs. For this purpose various sample lots of fertile eggs were placed in preparations of water glass, dry table salt, lime water and salt brine, vaseline, ashes, gypsum, powdered sulphur and sulphur fumes, permanganate of potash, salicylic acid and salt brine. The Station says:

Of the different methods tested in this series of experiments the old way of using slaked lime and salt brine proved to be very effectual, and has the advantage of being inexpensive. It is also not difficult to practice. For a period of a few weeks only, smearing the eggs with vaseline may prove an effectual method of preservation. In the place of vaseline almost any clean, greasy substance may be used. For a period of a few months only, packing in dry table salt is worthy of recommendation.

Of all the substances experimented with the water glass solution proved most worthy of commendation. The experiments showed that the water glass solution could be reduced to 3 per cent and still retain its preserving quality. It can be obtained at most druggists' at from 40 to 60 cents a gallon, is easily manipulated and the eggs may be completely immersed in the solution, and if any eggs float an inner cover which will sink them below the surface of the liquid should be used. In several tests where the eggs were placed in stone jars inverted saucers were used for this purpose. The expense for the water glass at even 60 cents a gallon would amount to about two-thirds of a cent for a dozen of eggs. Of course, this does not include the expense of the jar or other receptacles, which may be of stoneware, glass or even wood.

A great mistake that injures the classification of horses is the commingling of breeds. The oily-tongued stallioner persuades the owner of a trotting bred mare to stint her with a draft stallion with the prediction that the foal will make a high class coach horse. The result is an animal that develops into neither a coacher nor drafter. It is too coarse and inactive for a roadster and too light for a draft horse. The offspring of this cross is a no-grade animal that is a poor seller in any market. The husbandman should breed in family lines, crossing draft mares with draft sires and roadster mares with coach or trotting bred stallions. A mongrel is usually an inferior animal to its ancestors, without conformation, size or characteristics of either breed. It were better for the industry to strive to improve the breeds by mating mares to the best sires of their own blood. The progeny of such crosses approximate the best types of a distinct breed. To improve our domestic equines, operations should be conducted in the lines of pure breeds, the grades gradually grading up to the pure bred animals.

Fowls suffer as much from heat in the summer as they do from cold in the winter; therefore, it is just as necessary to provide a shady spot during the summer months as it is to build warm houses for winter. It would be a surprise to most farmers to know of the large number that have shadeless poultry yards. We have visited dozens of farms that were up-to-date in every respect except in the poultry yard. It is positively cruel to permit the faithful biddies to scorch and swelter in the summer sun.

Corn is the cheapest of all foods for the formation of fat, but fat is not what is wanted if the best results are expected in egg production. Oats is a better food for the production of eggs. Oats contain more protein than corn, but less starch; protein is especially valuable in the formation of the elements that make the egg. Neither corn nor oats, however, should be fed exclusively. One part corn and two parts oats mixed and ground makes a good ration, especially if it is varied with a little green stuff, such as cut clover or cabbage.

Trough for the Hogs.

A good "recipe" for the construction of a hog trough is offered by G. H. Moore of Kansas City, who writes as follows:

Take a board one inch thick, eighteen or twenty inches wide, bevel the edges an angle of fifty degrees, and side pieces on bevel edged should be six inches wide, allowing one inch to project below lower edge of board that forms bottom of trough. Place a board twelve inches wide in center, raising the board two inches from bottom and every eight inches put in a partition, nailing secure to board in center and side pieces of the trough. This makes a trough the hogs cannot get into and every hog must eat in his own department. On the top or board in center you can build a hopper where shelled corn can be put, leaving the space below large enough for the corn to pass through to the trough below. If a cover is placed on this hopper it will keep out all kinds of stock from eating the feed in the hopper, also storm and dirt. This trough has many advantages over any others I have seen or known, and I will mention a few of these. Being made of inch lumber, it is light and convenient and a sixteen foot trough weighs only about forty or fifty pounds, and forty-eight hogs can all feed at the same time at this kind of a trough. As the hog cannot get his feet in this trough little or no mud or filth is carried into the feed, and the partitions keep the hog in his own department. This is the ideal hog trough for the farmer, as it is a money saver and certainly an agreeable surprise to the hog.

A very good sheep mark can be made in this way: To one gallon of linseed oil mix in enough lamp black to make it the consistency of thick paint, then add half a pint of turpentine and the mixture is ready for use. It can be applied with a No. 10 wire bent to form any desired letter or character. A more expeditious plan, however, is to cut a die on the squared end of a 4-inch block of wood with enough of the stick left to form a handle. Turn some of the mixture into a shallow pan, dip the brand into it and apply on the side or neck of the sheep. This amount of mixture should be sufficient for several hundred head and under ordinary conditions the mark should remain for six months or more. It does not injure the wool and scours out readily. Lambs should be branded very soon after they are dropped.

Hens that are expected to produce eggs must be fed foods that will assist in the work expected of them as producers. The working hen should have a variety of foods; she will not thrive on a ration of whole corn any more than a working man will on corn bread and bacon. An excess of either the nitrogenous or carbonaceous food is a waste. Every farmer who is feeding poultry for the money there is in it should read some of the many good books on poultry feeding.

THE ONLY PLACE.

Occidental
Horse Exchange

246 Third St. San Francisco

Its location is unsurpassed; only three blocks from Market street. This large brick fire-proof building fronts on Third street, the busiest thoroughfare in San Francisco. The main building contains 75 large single stalls, besides 10 box stalls, 12x14 feet in size. Particular attention has been paid to the lighting, ventilation and sanitation of this, as well as the adjoining driveway, which is connected with it by a covered drive-way. There are 20 box stalls 12x12 feet, facing the court, in which is an oblong show ring 40 feet in diameter and extending 150 feet into the sales pavilion. The seating capacity of the latter is 1200. The lots on which these buildings (the stable and pavilion) are built cover an area of 210x250 feet, affording ample room for vehicles and horse show purposes. The ring is covered with tanbark, and, when evening sales are held, the pavilion presents a dazzling effect, illuminated as it is by electric lights.

MY AUCTION SALES.

The Occidental Horse Exchange and the able manner in which sales of thoroughbreds and trotting horses are conducted there have made it famous throughout the United States. Since its opening in 1890, over 1000 of the grandest bred California and Nevada trotters, pacers and thoroughbreds, besides innumerable other horses, have been sold therein, and I intend to continue holding sales in the same way, with this exception, however: I have BETTER ACCOMMODATIONS for caring for a larger number of horses than heretofore. I have held sales for the following, to whom I take pleasure in referring all who contemplate buying or selling horses, either at public or private sale: A. B. Spreckels, W. O. B. The Ram.

The ram should not be allowed to run with a flock of ewes. He should be trained to be handled so that they will be quiet. It is better to keep him by himself where you can give him extra feed and care. During the breeding season allow him with the ewes for a half-hour morning and evening.

To maintain him in a thrifty and vigorous condition implies wholesome food and exercise. During the winter the object should be to maintain the weight if the ram is mature, and if a shearling or young ram to make continuous improvement; oats are probably the best grain food, though the addition of bran is advisable. A mature ram will need from 1/2 to 1 pound of grain daily to keep him in proper condition. The fodders should be chosen so as to give as much variety as possible. Some succulent food should also be fed, such as turnips or silage.

During the summer he should be kept on pasture, as the results in breeding will be much better than if housed. The breeding season is a severe strain on the vitality of the ram, which has to be met by liberal feeding of grain and other foods in as great variety as possible. At this season linseed meal should be added and the grain ration should reach one pound daily with as much green food as the ram will eat.

The only business that can stand the test of time and circumstance is the ownership of a free and clear farm. A man may work at a manufacturing business half his lifetime and suddenly a better invention may shut up his works. A man may spend his life as a merchant in a city, and local misfortunes beyond his control may put him through the bankruptcy court. A man may work as an employee of a business half a lifetime and be a competent, faithful servant to his employer, and suddenly he is fired, because his company has consolidated with another. The owner of a free and clear farm is unassailable. He may not have all the luxuries of life; but he is dead sure to obtain the necessities, and he cannot be discharged or ruined.

The production of wool for the United States increased 67.4 per cent in the last decade. The increase was confined almost entirely to the western states. Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, New Mexico, Texas, Utah, Idaho and Oregon. The annual wool product as reported in the last census was 276,991,812 pounds, valued at $45,723,739.

"SAVE-THE-HORSE"

TRADE MARK

SPAVIN CURE

NEVER IN THE HISTORY of any horse being cured of spavin and joint disease by the use of "Save-the-Horse" Spavin Cure.

In the treatment of spavin and joint disease, at first considered an improbable and expensive experiment, no preparation ever made so successful as "Save-the-Horse" Spavin Cure.

The fire iron is uncertain at the best and invariably only aggravates the disease or injury; blistering is less effective than the fire iron and both methods are dangerous to the horse. "Save-the-Horse" Spavin Cure, however, produces irreparable injury.

"Save-the-Horse" eliminates all these factors.

It can be applied at any time, anywhere, any place and in all conditions and extremes of weather—hot or cold. And no matter what the age, condition or development of the case or previous failures in treating, the concentrated penetrating action of "Save-the-Horse" is unfailing and no case can withstand the force of its action, whether a Bone and Bog Spavin, Ringbone, Curb, Thoroughpin, Splint, Capped Hock, Shoe Boli, Wind Puff, Weak and Sprained Tendons and all Lameness caused by such injuries.

It cures without scar, blemish or loss of hair.

$5.00 PER BOTTLE.

Written guarantee with every bottle, constructed solely to convince, satisfy and protect you fully. We know positively "Save-the-Horse" will absolutely and permanently cure, and for that reason guarantee is made all your way.

Need of second bottle is almost improbable except in rare cases. Guarantee covers effectiveness of one bottle.

IF YOU ARE IN DOUBT WRITE US.

As we do not put the preparation out on speculation, we will advise you frankly as to the possibility of the remedy effecting a cure. Give explicit particulars: do not go altogether by the veterinarian's diagnosis unless you know he is competent—inform us fully as to the age, development, location of swellings, lameness, action and previous treatment.

Copy of Guarantee sent upon application. $5 a bottle. At all druggists and dealers, or sent prepaid.

Veterinary Pixine

Apply it. Rub it in on bare spots, inflammatory swellings, old sores, scratches, grease heel or skin disease. It penetrates and soothes, and the horse grows well as he toils throughout the day.

SCRATCHES, GREASE HEEL, MUD FEVER, HOOF ROT AND SPEED CRACKS.

Cases where ulcerations extend with transverse cracks which open at every step and often bleed, no matter how complex, aggravated, deep seated or chronic, if treated according to directions as given on circular with every box, positively cured with Veterinary Pixine.

After Blistering

Veterinary Pixine is the very best application that could be indicated. It absorbs all inflammatory exudate and hastens the reparatory process. Will heal the most severe cases without scar and prevents loss of hair.

As a Preventive.

If a light application of Veterinary Pixine be used before speeding, driving in wet, muddy or slushy weather, your horse will never have speed cracks, scratches or grease heel.

For Hoofs.

It will keep the hoofs healthy, soft and in perfect form.

This penetrating, stimulating, soothing, absorbing, anti-septic, healing ointment heals from beneath the surface by disinfecting the parts, subduing inflammation, and stimulating healthy granulation, not by drying and scabbing.

INGLESIDE.

This beautiful and picturesque Race Course, owned by the New California Jockey Club, will be the scene of racing again this winter, the San Francisco Supervisors having passed an ordinance permitting racing here.

The Santa Rosa Horses.

There is only one California horse breeding establishment represented on the Eastern circuit this year and that is the famous Santa Rosa Stock Farm. Millard F. Sanders, the well known trainer and driver, selected a few to take East in July, and he will return with more winnings to the credit of the few he brought than any trainer has since the days of John A. Goldsmith or Monroe Salisbury. The mare Anzella, which was purchased from Mr. Geo. A. Kelly, scored another great victory for her owner last Tuesday by winning the Ohio $10,000 purse at the Oakley track, Cincinnati, defeating ten of the greatest horses in her class in the country, namely: Major Delmar, Rythmic, The King, Ozanam, Susie J., Baron de Shay, Monte Carlo and Nutbearer, the cream of all the stock farms in the East.

The first heat, as well as the third were won by Major Delmar, the second by Rythmic, then Anzella came in and won the fourth, fifth and sixth heats and the race, on as heavy a track as was ever trotted over on the Circuit, it having been raining for nearly a week. In fact, this race was postponed for several days on this account.

Anzella has shown herself to be one of the greatest racing mares ever foaled, having been on the grand circuit from Detroit to Cincinnati, winning at Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, Brighton Beach, Hartford, 2nd at Readville, 1st at Pimlico, 2nd at Readville and 1st in Cincinnati. She goes in another race at Lexington this week and then to Memphis, Tenn. Whether she wins or not at these two last named places, she has achieved honors enough to place her at the head of all trotting mares for the season of 1902.

She has an iron constitution and will "eat a bale of hay and a sack of oats a day," is the comment of a well known horseman from Oakland who saw her at Readville. She shows none of the effects of her hard races and every horseman who has read the summaries must acknowledge they have been "hard." She is one of but five mares that have beaten 2:07 in a race.

The good, game mare Dolly Dillon 2:07 started in the 2:07 class four times and got second or third moneys in each race. She had to meet Lord Derby and The Monk, horses as fast as she was, and they did their best to beat her. Dolly was and is a sufferer from corns, the same ailment that affected Azote 2:04½ so long. Mr. Sanders says she is getting better and will be a great money winner next season.

B. S. Dillon, a pacer, has gone miles in 2:10 easily but not being entered in any stakes he was started only a few times, but he will show that his sire, Sidney Dillon, will rank among the greatest sires of extreme speed in the turf world.

Lou Dillon is another daughter that was exercised at Baltimore and although she has no record, the way she trotted around the track there in 2:08½ with Millard Sanders driving down the stretch with one hand surprised the horsemen who witnessed the performance and they have not ceased talking about her yet. Several horsemen who have seen her claim that she is the fastest mare of her age in the world. What a series of victories she will have to her credit next season if no accidents befall her. Messrs. Henry and Ira Pierce have ten more youngsters by Sidney Dillon at Santa Rosa they will prepare this winter for the east, and it is hard to choose which is the best among them.

The other member of the string was the famous unbeaten Diablo pacer Sir Albert S. 2:08½. Shortly after his arrival in Cleveland he injured one of his legs and nothing was done with him in the way of preparation for the large stakes he was entered in. He is rounding to and will be ready next year when the bell in the judges stand rings. He was entered in over $35,000 worth of stakes. Mr. Pierce says he has every reason to believe this gelding will more than sustain the good reputation he won during the season of 1901 in California.

Thoroughbred Sales.

All of the late Chas. Fair's thoroughbreds will be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city the early part of December. The list includes St. Avonius, the grandest bred and best looking St. Simon ever brought to California. The broodmares include imp. Janet N., Callatine, Shimoga (sister to Sain), I Declare, Sally Sensible, Centella, Glen Ellen, Pow Wow (dam of Potente), etc., all in foal to this great stallion.

Chas. Kerr's annual sale of thoroughbreds will take place, November 25th, at Wm. G. Layng's Occidental Horse Exchange. There will be handsome yearlings by St. Andrew, Basselaw, Maxio, Herald, Montana, etc., out of his choice band of mares.

A. B. Spreckels has decided to sell all of the yearlings on the Napa Stock Farm at the Occidental Horse Exchange, about November 29th. Some visitors claim that there never was a finer looking lot on this celebrated farm and Mr. Berry has them in fine shape.

Los Angeles Driving Club Meeting.

[Herald, October 7]

As was generally expected, last night's meeting of the Los Angeles Driving Club selected J. H. Shankland president for the coming year. An able and efficient directorate was chosen, consisting of this gentleman and the other officers elected last night, namely, vice-president, William Garland; secretary, Ralph Hagan, and treasurer, Byron Erkenbrecher; Willard Stimson, the retiring president; Dr. M. L. Moore, William Dodge, J. H. Edmonds, A. W. Bruner and W. M. Budinger. The services of Mrs. Chandler as assistant secretary were retained and in consideration of the lady's good work of the past year a vote of thanks and an increased salary was tendered her.

The report of the out-going secretary, John G. Mott, showed a highly satisfactory state of affairs, and the financial part of the club's existence was never better, there being $2062.16 in the treasury.

At the meeting of the new directors, immediately after the general session, it was decided to hold the next meeting Thanksgiving day and Mrs. Chandler will begin work upon it very soon. Quite a discussion was caused by the proposition to re-open the clubhouse, which quit some $600 loser on the year. It is argued by some that a more careful supervision might enable the cafe to be run more economically, and at a future meeting of the directors the point will probably be settled.

Speed, track and membership committees are appointed by the president and Mr. Shankland was not present last night. Owing to changes in the management of Agricultural Park it will be necessary in future to deal with J. W. Brooks, but that gentleman during his stay here has met several of the Driving Club members and is more than friendly to the organization, which, coupled with Willard Stimson's interest in both, he will probably arrange negotiations satisfactorily to all concerned.

Retiring Secretary John G. Mott was elected a director, but he withdrew in favor of Mr. Garland.

The membership of the Driving Club is now 211, and only about $200 of this year's dues are unpaid, which speaks volumes for the business ability of the secretary's "right hand man," Mrs. Chandler.

All the outgoing officers were tendered a vote of thanks and after the meeting refreshments were served by Levy, in whose parlors the session took place.

Racing at Bakersfield.

The Kern County Fair opened at Bakersfield on Wednesday last with a large attendance, at least fifteen hundred people being at the races during the afternoon. The track is a very poor one and fast time is an impossibility over it.

Cozad, the crack Fresno horse, won the 2:15 trot in three straight heats, defeating T. H. Fogarty's Richmond Chief, who took his measure at the Raisin City meeting last week. Richmond Chief had a boot torn off in the first heat, practically putting him out of the race. A large amount of Bakersfield money was lost.

Summary:

Trotting, 2:15 class, best three in five, purse $600—Cozad won in straight heats. Time—2:22½, 2:15 and 2:16½; Richmond Chief second, Vic Schiller third.

Pace, 2:19 class, best three in five, purse $600—Robert I. won in straight heats. Time—2:19½, 2:23 and 2:19; Alfred C. second, Polka Dot third.

Running, three furlongs—Queen May won, Hercules second.

Running, six furlongs—Miss Culver won. Alvero second.

Governor Gage was a guest of the Fair Association Thursday, and a very large crowd was present. The races resulted as follows:

Mixed race for Kern county horses, best three heats in five—Robin won second, third and fourth heats. Time—2:26, 2:23½, 2:24. May Hogan won the first heat in 2:23. Ferndale secured third money.

Zambra, won the 2:17 trot in straight heats. Time—2:24, 2:22½, 2:21½. Princess second, Lady Rowena third and Foxy Mac fourth.

Miss Culver won the five furlong dash, with Della Conner second. Time—1:03.

Disturber won the seven furlongs contest, Wieland second. Time—1:30.

Admiral Robley D. Evans recently took a spin in a hired automobile, and as he sped along the thought came to him that he might as well own a machine. So he began chatting with the chauffeur, giving his opinion of the gasoline, the air, the electric and other forms of "auto" and wound up by saying: "And now, my man, you ought to be a judge. What kind of a machine would you select?" "Well, sir," replied the chauffeur, "I've often thought it over, and came to the conclusion that if I wanted to buy one I'd save up my money and get a good horse."

Goldress by Dexter Prince out of Carrie C. 2:24 is a two year old and is entered in $46,000 worth of stakes. Get her at Palo Alto next Saturday and you may win the Kentucky Futurity with her next year.

The Los Angeles association offers $500 for a 2:10 class pace, entries to close to-day. The race is to come off next Saturday. This race should fill well as there are enough horses in California eligible to this class to make a good contest in which it will be a hard job to pick the winner.

Ed Lafferty, the well known reinsman and trainer of harness horses, is now located at the corner of Geary street and Central avenue, San Francisco, where he has opened a boarding and training stable.

Agitato 2:09 was a starter at the Chatham, New York, county fair in the free-for-all pace. He was third the first heat in 2:20½ and distanced the second heat in 2:16½. Agitato must be a back number.

How does this breeding strike you? Brown colt by McKinney 2:11½, dam Expressive 2:12½ by Electioneer. He is two years old and they call him Alta Vista. He will be sold at the Palo Alto sale next Saturday at the farm.

The Maplewood Farm's unmarked sister of Klatawah (3) 2:05½, Katrinka G., trotted a close second three heats in 2:12½, 2:11½, 2:12½, last week. She looks like a fine prospect for next season. She was recently sold for $5000.

Mart Demarest has decided to give Eleata, 2:08½, a let-up and she will not be raced again until 1903. As a racing machine she did not come up to expectations this year, although her preparation commenced early in the spring.

El Milagro by McKinney reduced his record to 2:13 in the third heat of the 2:13 class at Lexington last Wednesday. He is out of Adeline Patti, dam of Margaret Worth 2:15, and is now five years old. His former record was 2:14½.

Athene, a filly two years old, by Dexter Prince out of Athena 2:15½ by Electioneer, ought to be worth a lot of money. You can set your own price on her next Saturday down at Palo Alto Stock Farm and get her, providing no one bids more.

Mack Mack, the bay gelding by McKinney that took a record at Everett, Washington, last year, has been winning well on the Oregon-Washington circuit this season and week before last reduced his record to 2:15½ in a winning race at North Yakima.

Here in California it is getting so that a horse owner who does not keep a bottle of Vita Oil in his stable, to use on his horse when the latter becomes lame or sore, is considered a back number. Vita Oil takes out soreness and cures lameness, and is an absolute necessity in the stable.

Laura C. is by Electioneer out of Fannie Lewis, a thoroughbred mare by imp. Buckden. Laura C. is the dam of Laurel 2:13½ and Langton 2:21½. She was bred to Monbells 2:23½, son of Beautiful Bells, this year. Here is an opportunity to get a world beater for a little money.

William G. Layng, the live stock auctioneer, will sell the Needham horses at Stockton to-day. There are forty-five head to be sold, the majority having several strains of the famous Black Hawk and Morgan blood in their veins, and trace to mares that Mr. Needham's father bred in the State of Vermont fifty years ago.

No trainer uses a cart as much as does Hudson or gives all of his horses as much work day after day. The blind Rythmic on race days gets six miles in the morning on the road and track to cart, then two or three slow miles to sulky, and is the first to show when the starter's bell is sounded.

Belle, owned by Mr. J. B. Iverson of Salinas, is now in the great broodmare list. She is the dam of Prince Gift 2:12 and of Princess 2:15½, the latter getting her record at Fresno last week. Belle is by Kentucky Prince, and is out of Belle of Richmond, dam of Bergen 2:26½ and grandam of six in 2:30. Belle is also the grandam of Stambell 2:29½.

Geo. T. Beckers left Salem, Oregon, last Wednesday for his home in Los Angeles, taking his great stallion Zombro 2:11 with him. Zombro has been mated with 110 mares this season between February 1st and October 1st. About one-third of these were sent to him during the early spring at Los Angeles, the rest at Portland and Salem, Oregon.

Mr. E. Stewart, proprietor of Stewart's Horse Market at 721 Howard street, this city, is meeting with great success as a horse auctioneer. He has been called upon lately to manage several sales in the country and has invariably succeeded in getting good prices for the owners. Mr. Stewart is a practical horseman and a thorough business man.

The good Denver mare Lottie Smart won two heats of the 2:07 pace at Baltimore in a hard six-heat race in 2:07½, 2:07½. These were the second and fourth heats. The mare beat that other good Western performer, Riley B., for place in that event, since she earned second money, while Riley B. had to be content with third after winning the opening heat in 2:06½.

George H. Ketcham holds two world's records: one with Cresceus 2:02½ and the other we will let him tell in his own language: "I hold one world's record on the trotting track that I feel satisfied will never be equaled. My family physician, when he told me to seek an outdoor life, also informed me that I might as well have a good time, as my stay here was limited, as I had consumption. Seven years afterward that same physician told me I had the gout. I claim that from consumption to gout in seven years is a world's record."—American Sportsman.

Cresceus is not showing as good form as last year. His chances of beating his record do not look to be good.

The four year old filly, Halgretta, by Red Heart, 2:19, that won a four-heat race at Freeport, Ill., and took a record of 2:23½, is out of the famous brood mare, Pique, by Kentucky Wilkes, 2:21½, also dam of Chalm Shot, 2:06½ and Brash, 2:14½.

A reader of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN desires to lease a Clyde or Percheron stallion for a fall and spring season. If any of our subscribers who own stallions of these breeds desire to lease them we will place them in communication with the party.

During Cresceus' recent stay at Belmont Park, Philadelphia, preparing for his exhibition there, Pearl Kennard, the eight year old daughter of the lessee of the track, drove the world's champion a mile in 2:39, his trainer, Eddie Mitchell, riding alongside to guard against accident.

There is general regret among horsemen that the meeting at Concord, Contra Costa county, was declared off. None of the district fairs in California are more thoroughly enjoyed than the one at Concord. Work on the new track and buildings there is being pushed and will be finished by the last of November, but this is too late for a fair as the rainy season will have set in.

Lady Grannard 2:23, the McKinney mare owned by P. Foley of Alameda county that was taken East by J. M. Nelson, was sent home by the latter recently. She reached here pretty thin in flesh but is otherwise all right. Mr. Nelson wrote that he would be back with his string in fall or early winter. He has had very bad luck with his horses on his trip through the Mississippi valley this summer.

Dan Patch was sent against the world's pacing record at Cincinnati last Monday, but the exhibition was more to fulfill a contract than an effort to lower the record, as the track was in no shape for two minute speed, owing to rain and bad weather during nearly all of the previous week. McHenry drove Dan Patch in 2:03 which was considered a wonderful performance by the horsemen.

Mr. Gaylord's four-year old green pacer Darkway by Steinway that he purchased at Oakwood Park Stock Farm last spring started for the first time at Indianapolis three weeks ago, and finished 2-2-2 in 2:11½, 2:10½, 2:12½. Darkway is no doubt a coming sensation. Charlie Mac, Mr. Gaylord's good trotter, started the same afternoon in the 2:11 trot and finished 3-2-2 in 2:10½, 2:10½, 2:10½, thus winning second money.

Thomas Ronan of Dayton, Wash., has been in the city this week and went up to Pleasanton to see his friend, George A. Kelley, who purchased from him the great mare Anzella 2:06½ and campaigned her two years before selling her to the Santa Rosa Stock Farm. Mr. Ronan says he believes he has one or two more Anzellas on his farm at Dayton, and Mr. Kelley thinks he has one at Pleasanton that is much like her. Mr. Ronan leaves for his home to-night.

Perhaps the one really sensational performance in the Great Western Circuit meeting at Freeport, Ill., was that of the little black filly Simmassie in the 2:35 pace. Previous to that event she had never started in a race, but she behaved like an experienced race mare, and paced her field to a standstill, winning three heats off the reel in 2:11½, 2:13½, 2:14. The mare is not quite 15 hands high, clean gaited, and wears nothing but a light pair of quarter boots. She is owned by T. H. Johnson of Chicago, and was trained by Swansbrough.

Scott Hudson says in regard to Rythmic's great race at Empire City, where he stepped his miles in 2:08, 2:08½ and 2:08½, that a change in feeding was responsible for the improvement shown over his form at Providence in the Roger Williams Stake. "The blind horse is a veritable glutton," said Scott, "and nothing eatable escapes his maw. He has been very fat all season and that alone caused him to blow up at Providence. Now I am giving him a lighter ration and a little more work." Rythmic is noticeably thinner now and a great deal more racy looking.

If anyone desires to secure a good prospect for next year's trotting events, he should correspond with D. D., in care of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. He offers for sale a four year old black gelding by McKinney 2:11½, first dam Brownie H. (the dam of Alda H. 2:20) by Priam 1798 second dam by Skenandoah 926, third dam Lucy, the dam of Lottie M. 2:24 by Chief-tain 721. This is excellent breeding and the four year old's appearance fully sustains it. He is 16 hands high, handsome and perfectly broken. Being naturally very speedy, he should take a low record if trained. The price is right. See advertisement.

Speaking of the challenge recently issued by Mr. E. E. Smathers, of New York, to trot Lord Derby against any horse in the world for $25,000 or a blue ribbon, John A. McKerron preferred, but Cresceus not barred. Mr. Ketcham, the owner of Cresceus recently said: "I have not been training Cresceus for a race, and I will not race him against any horse this season. His time is all filled, and I would not consider any proposition for a match race. In fact, I could not do so if I wanted to without having to cancel several profitable engagements, and it would be a foolish proposition for me to do that. Whether or not I would consider a proposition to race him in a match next year remains to be seen. Cresceus is engaged to go against his record at the Memphis meeting, and it has all along been considered by expert horsemen that he will have a better chance to make a new record there than at any other place in the country."

Close of Breeders Meeting.

Friday, the fourth day of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders meeting at Fresno last week, was Fresno Day, and as The California, the $2000 stake for 2:24 class trotters, was down for decision there was a larger attendance than on any previous day, although the racing did not prove as interesting as was expected. Of the twenty-two original nominations in this stake but four came to the post and W. G. Durfee's stallion Petigru had an easy job to win first money, as he was on his good behavior and acted as though he could trot in 2:10 or better. He did not have to go faster than 2:16 to win, however, and was not driven out in any heat. At Sacramento Petigru was not started owing to the bad track, and while there Mr. Durfee had him re-shod, as the old shoes which he wore at Woodland were worn at the toes so much that they were rounded. At Stockton Petigru did not seem able to show his former speed. After getting him beaten twice at Stockton, the last time in the 2:19 class, won by Cozad in straight heats, Durfee concluded the new shoes did not suit his horse. He had been 2-4-3 in the Cozad race in 2:14½, 2:15½ and 2:15½ and at no time was Durfee able to get the usual burst of speed out of him. After the race he put the old shoes back and worked him a heat in 2:12 very easily. At Fresno Petigru was good, proving that the toe worn shoes just suited him.

The first event Friday was the special for members of the Fresno Driving Club, owners driving their own horses. It turned out to be the most exciting race of the day and there are those who think that Mr. White, had he not met with an accident in the third heat, would have won the race. In the first event the chestnut pacing mare, Pinkey H, certainly won with ease, in the fast time of 2:17½, but in the second Newport, always the favorite at 10 to 7 for the field, beat Pinkey by a nose, in 2:19.

In the third heat Pinkey H and El Rayo collided. The accident cost Mr. White the race, as his wheel was crushed and he had to pull up, and the judges strictly construing the rules had to shut him out. Newport's frequent breaks cost him the fourth heat, but the next he captured easily. Pinkey, with 2:17½, now holds the Driving club record. She is only four years old and until two months ago was never on a track. Pinkey H is by Dexterwood, dam by Soudan, second dam by Steinway.

Midnight was the only horse to show up in the free for all pace, and he walked over for the entrance money to be paid in. There were four original entries, Kelly Briggs, Toppy, El Diablo and Midnight, but the first two were not at the meeting and El Diablo was shipped to Bakersfield the day before.

There was not a semblance of a contest in The California $2000 stake. The starters were Petigru, Forrest W., Verona and Vi Direct, and their positions in the final summary of the race were as here given. In the first pools sold Petigru brought $10 to $4 for the field.

The last race of the day was the 2:17 pace, which was a gift to Alford C., and he won in straight heats in slow time.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4.

The closing day's racing of the Breeders meeting brought out a good attendance. The meeting was a most successful one from a racing standpoint and words of commendation were heard on all sides. The fact that the electric railway from Fresno to the fair grounds was not completed in time to run cars during the meeting undoubtedly effected the attendance, but there was a fair crowd present every day in spite of the poor transportation facilities, and better racing has seldom been seen at any harness meeting in this State.

There were several incidents during the day, one of a serious nature. The handsome McKinney gelding Lijero, after winning the first heat of the 2:40 class trot, broke his leg in the second heat and had to be destroyed the next day. Lijero was owned by Mr. Schumacher of Los Angeles, who came to Fresno Sunday in response to a telegram, and after consultation with a veterinary ordered the horse shot. The accident happened about two hundred yards from the wire on the homestretch. Lijero had been wavering in the heat and suddenly one of his legs gave way and the game horse tried to continue on three. Young Durfee pulled him up, called to his grooms to take charge of him, and got away where he could not see one of his favorite horses suffer. Lijero was unhooked from his sulky and with great difficulty taken to his stall. The large metatarsal bone of his left hind leg was fractured just below the hock. Mr. Durfee gave instructions to have the horse slung and the fracture reduced, but Lijero suffered so much pain during the night that he was put out of his misery the next day by means of a friendly bullet. He was a very handsome gelding, and took a record of 2:14½ at the Woodland meeting in the second heat of the 2:30 trot, which race he won. He took a pacing record of 2:22 last year.

The first race of the day was the 2:23 class trot, which had four starters. Nick Covarrubias' mare, Ama A., took the first heat in 2:17½, with Arketa, the favorite, fourth. The next heat Arketa went to the front and won rather handily. The time hung out was 2:17½, but the judges and others were holding watches and as Arketa had trotted the mile in 2:14½, the figures on the blackboard were changed and correctly given. This makes the fourth of McKinney's get to enter the 2:15 list this year. Arketa won the next two heats handily in 2:17½ and 2:16.

The second race was the 2:40 trot. The first heat was won by Lijero, who won the first heat and met with the accident in the second. The race went to Mr. J. B. Iverson's good bay mare Princess, by his stallion Eugeneer. She trotted the second heat in 2:15½, a reduced record for her. Princess is out of Belle (the dam of Prince Gift 2:12) by Kentucky Prince 2470. She is headed for a record of 2:12 or better next year.

The last race of the meeting was the 2:30 pace, in which Harry J., Alone and Athaio were the starters. Alone won the first and second heats and Harry J. captured the next two. The sun set before the fifth heat could be called and under the rules the race had to be declared finished and the money awarded according to summary at the end of the fourth heat. This gave first money to Alone and second to Harry J.

This closed a very successful meeting, at which the racing was clean, the contests generally close and the people satisfied. There was no betting except by means of the auctions and mutuels and the play was not heavy, but what money was wagered was left with the public instead of being carried away by the book-makers. The summaries:

Judge Colburn May Buy Denver Track.

A dispatch from Denver says: Since the close of the last June meeting at the Overland Park race track, in Denver, rumors have been afloat, encouraged by positive statements from the gentleman himself, that Edwin Gaylord would not conduct another race meeting in Denver. Colorado has no racing law, and there are no means for the giver of a race meeting to protect himself from the hordes of professional grafters who regularly besiege the management. Last summer Mr. Gaylord was made an especial prey to their ravages, which so thoroughly angered him that he concluded not to again attempt the conduct of a meeting. Judge A. E. Colburn, who has campaigned down the Grand Circuit with Kate Medium, George C. and other good horses, has opened negotiations for the land surrounding the track and the track itself. The property is at present owned by Henry R. Wolcott, for many years a prominent feature in Colorado politics and business life, who is now trying to close out his property interests here. He values the Overland plant at $150,000, which price, it is understood, Judge Colburn is willing to pay. If the Judge purchases the property Mr. Gaylord will turn over to him the racing lease, leaving the Judge in full possession. Tim Murnen, formerly trainer of the champion Cresceus, has been engaged by Judge Colburn, and will soon be quartered at the Overland track.

The Dam of Petigru.

The American Horse Breeder of September 30th contains the following in regard to Lemonade, the now famous broodmare that is the dam of W. G. Durfee's trotting stallion Petigru 2:10½, winner of The California $2000 stake at Fresno last week and several other good races on the California Circuit this year:

"The great broodmare Lemonade (trotting record 2:27½) is by Kentucky Prince Jr., instead of Kentucky Prince, as some of the daily papers have recently stated. Kentucky Prince was a successful broodmare sire, but no one of his daughters has yet produced four trotters whose records will average as low as the following produced by Lemonade, viz.: Bessie Wilton 2:09½, Petigru 2:10½, Lady Wilton 2:11½ and Lemcnee 2:18½.

Some of the get of Kentucky Prince were pretty highly seasoned, most too much so for being reliable trotters in closely contested races, a fact that has been attributed to the warm blood that he inherited through his dam. Kentucky Prince Jr. inherits from his dam, Patchie, a much stronger infusion of running blood than his sire, Kentucky Prince, inherited from his dam, Kentucky Queen.

Patchie, the dam of Kentucky Prince Jr., was by Herr's Mambrino Patchen. The dam of Patchie was by Clay Trustee, a thoroughbred son of imported Trustee. As the dam of Mambrino Patchen, sire of Patchie, was by Gano, a thoroughbred son of American Eclipse, it gives Patchie a large proportion of the running element, and of first-class quality, too. The second dam of Patchie was by Southern Eclipse, a registered thoroughbred. Her third dam was by Gallatin, another thoroughbred, and all beyond that, so far as known, was thoroughbred.

But Lemonade 2:27½ gets still other quite close thoroughbred crosses through her dam, Susie Melbourne, for the sire of Susie Melbourne was Melbourne Jr., a thoroughbred son of imported Knight of St. George. Lemonade 2:27½ inherits more of the running elements than many writers and some breeders think it advisable to have in a trotting broodmare, but when mated with a stallion so strong in trotting lines as Wilton 2:19½, an inbred Hambletonian, she has produced extreme trotting speed with greater uniformity than has any daughter of Kentucky Prince, which got Kentucky Prince Jr., sire of Lemonade, or any other daughter of Kentucky Prince Jr.

Whether the fact that this highly bred mare, so strong in running speed lines, has proved more successful than other mares that were descendants of Kentucky Prince, and which inherited much more of the trotting and consequently much less of the running element, was due to the influence of the speed-imparting thoroughbred element, will, of course, be questioned by those who pin their faith solely to trotting instinct. The assertion that it cannot and does not account for her success will not change two important facts: first, that she did have such an inheritance; and second, that she has proved more successful than others which did not have such an inheritance."

Harness Racing at Portland, Or.

Four days' racing were given at the Irvington track, Portland, Oregon, on the 24th, 25th, 26th and 27th of September. The meeting was not a success. The greater portion of the program was devoted to the running horses, fourteen running races being on the program. But three harness races were given, the summaries being as follows:

Mr. P. W. Bellingall, who recently purchased the stallion Secretary from Mr. D. Fraser, had him out on the five-eighths track at Sixth Street station, Oakland, last Sunday morning brushing with the road drivers who were working their horses out there. Secretary is looking like a colt and has great speed for a horse that has been in the stud so long and never trained since he was a colt, although when he was a two year old Monroe Salisbury said he was the fastest son of Director ever foaled. Mr. Bellingall will place Secretary in charge of Elias Williams at Alameda during the stud season of 1903 and he will doubtless be well patronized as his get are attracting more and more attention every year.

Aptos Stock Farm Sale.

The sale of nine head of mares and geldings bred by Mr. A. B. Spreckels at the Aptos Stock Farm, which was held at the Occidental Horse Exchange on Friday of last week, was a success in every way. Sandy Smith brought them up from the farm in good shape, and while none had been trained for the track or been given any speed lessons, all were well broken, single and double, and accustomed to the steam cars, bicycles, etc., and were bid on promptly by the buyers present. The prices obtained were as follows:

Chestnut gelding, 1897, by Aptos Wilkes—Sunrise II by Gossiper Jr., F. Dutton, $175.

Black gelding, 1898, by Aptos Wilkes—Princess McCarty by Dexter Prince, D. R. McNeil, $165.

Bay filly, 1898, by Aptos Wilkes—Corcoran mare by Speculation, Dr. Kerr, $200.

Gray mare, 1898, by Aptos Wilkes—dam by St. Clair, Dr. Kerr, $200.

Bay gelding, 1899, by Cupid 2:18—Fanny Ford by Abbottsford, Mr. McKenzie, $165.

Black filly, 1899, by Dexter Prince—Susie Wilkes by Aptos Wilkes, Jas. Smith, $260.

Bay gelding, 1899, by Dexter Prince—Ashcat II, by Speculation, E. Aigeltinger, $180.

Bay filly, 1899, by Dexter Prince—Erosine, by Eros, W. Hill, $205.

Chestnut gelding, 1899, by Dexter Prince—Sunrise II, H. Dunlap, $275.

Total for nine head, $2025

Average, $202.50.

In addition to these Sandy has sold within the last three months at private sale at the Aptos Farm several single horses and two teams, one to Mayor Clark of Sacramento and the other to Mr. J. E. Terry of the same city.

The Aptos Farm consignments taken east by Sandy in May last and sold at the Blue Ribbon sale brought $10,055 for 23 head, an average of $437. There has been sold from the Aptos Farm since last April nearly fifteen thousand worth of horses, which is a pretty good showing.

After the Spreckels horses were sold, Capt. W. Ford Thomas of this city disposed of five head. Auctioneer William G. Layng getting fair prices for them as follows:

Russett, gray mare, 1887, by Rustic—Emma by Whippleton, H. Busing, $195.

W. Ford, gray gelding, 1898, by Secretary—Russett by Rustic, John Buck, $210.

Captain Matson, gray gelding, 1899, full brother to W. Ford, M. Bernhard, $235.

Sallie, bay mare, 1894, by Pleasanton—dam by Gen. McClellan, Jr., D. McCarty, $165.

Rose, chestnut mare, 1886, by McPherson—dam by Gen. McClellan, Jr., Canalyo & Co., $95.

Speedway Races To-day.

There should be some good sport on the speedway in Golden Gate Park this afternoon. The Golden Gate Park Driving Association will resume its matinee racing there and two events are down for decision. Both will be half-mile heats, best two in three, and the horses named to start are as follows:

First race—G. L. Swett's Steve S., J. W. Bonney's Echora Wilkes, E. Stewart's Dolly Grey, S. Sprague's Clara L.

Second race—M. M. Donnolly's Young Salisbury, A. Jacob's Bum, F. Gommert's Nancy W., E. Stewart's Jasper, Dr. I. B. Dalziel's Fleet.

The prize in these races will be a handsome silver trophy, and in addition President Aigeltinger will attach blue, red and white ribbons to the brow bands of the horses that finish first, second and third respectively.

Dan Lieginger has been selected to start the horses and the judges will be President Aigeltinger, J. Holland and H. Schottler.

The races will be started at the half-mile post and the finish made at the sheds. There are some very fast horses among the entries. If the weather is good a very pleasant afternoon can be spent at the speedway to-day.

Anzella in Winning Form Again.

Anzella added another $5000 to the Santa Rosa Stock Farm's credit by winning the Ohio ten thousand dollar purse for 2:11 trotters at Cincinnati last Monday. There were six heats in the race, Major Delmar getting the first and third in 2:10 and 2:11, Rhythmic the second in 2:09 and Anzella the remaining three in 2:13, 2:12½ and 2:13½. The track was very heavy and rough, which accounts for the slow time. Behind the three heat winners were such trotters as The King, Ozanam, Susie J., Baron de Shay, Monte Carlo and Nutbearer.

Sober up on Jackson's Napa Soda.

Forrest W. Sold.

While at Fresno last week Arthur Brown of Napa sold his handsome big gelding, Forrest W. 2:14½, to W. Mendenhall of Livermore, who is supposed to be acting for an Eastern party. The price paid was not made public, but is probably in the neighborhood of $2000, as we understand Mr. Brown had a previous offer of $1500, which he declined.

Forrest W. is one of the most stylish trotters that has been seen on the circuit this year. Mr. Brown purchased him last spring for $250, and when Al McDonald went to the Napa track to train in June Forrest W. was turned over to him. The horse soon attracted attention by his wonderful speed around the first turn, and McDonald's efforts were directed to teaching him to go slower and be rated, a very difficult task, as the horse was very anxious and ambitious.

Up in Humboldt county, where Forrest W. was foaled, he had won a heat in 2:25 or thereabouts, but had no official record, as the racing results on those tracks are seldom reported to the authorities of the American Trotting Register Association. Mr. Brown was pleased with the way the horse acted under McDonald's tuition and entered him in the 2:24 and some faster classes throughout the circuit. Forrest W. won his first start at Vallejo in straight heats, taking a record of 2:20½. At Napa he won second money in the 2:24 trot taken by Petigru, and at Pleasanton was second to Coronado in the same class. He won the third heat of this race in 2:21.

When the horses moved to the fast Woodland track Forrest W. started in the 2:19 class with such horses as Petigru, Cozad and others. He won the first heat of this race in 2:14½, his present record, but only got third money, Petigru and Cozad fighting a memorable battle for first money, the former winning and getting his record of 2:10½, while the latter got two heats and a mark of 2:13½.

On the last day of the State Fair meeting at Sacramento Forrest W. won the 2:17 trot in straight heats, the time being 2:18½, 2:15½ and 2:16½. At Stockton he won second money in the 2:19 trot, Petigru being behind him. He also won second money in The California $2000 stake at Fresno last Friday. His total winnings up to this week are $1615, which added to the price received for the horse makes him quite a profitable investment for Mr. Brown. Forrest W. is by Wayland W. 2:12½, and his dam is by Poscora Hayward.

Of Greater Force Than Ever.

There is no gainsaying that an evolution of improved breeds is now of greater force than at any period of development of live stock husbandry. Not only increased consumption, incident to growth of population but the increased demand for a better grade of stock, features all the wholesale markets. It is not only a question of quantity that affects the profits of the producer. The trend of public taste is in the direction of higher forms of equine conformation. There is no question but what the improved types of modern breeds are capable of performing more efficient service, possessing greater endurance and durability, than inferior grades of the same breeds. With consumers it is not so much a question of esthetics as commercial economy that is intensifying the demand for better horses of all classes.

The improved types of the different breeds approximate nearer to physical perfection in the true balance of all parts of anatomical and muscular conformation. A machine that is perfectly adjusted will perform more work on same expenditure of power than a machine of the same class that is compelled to overcome a large percentage of friction. The bone, contour and action of the improved type of horses must be equitably adjusted and properly balanced to give the greatest strength in the several parts and obviate friction. An unbalanced physical organization generates friction and deteriorates from the general efficiency of the animals.

Farmers are now in positions to control the horse production of America, and with nearly all the non-descripts disposed of, that were raised during the period of inflation of the industry, they can easily elevate the standard of the different breeds. This can be accomplished by boycotting all unsound and mediocre mares and breeding to the choicest sires. It is time that the farmers grasp the forecast of the situation and commence to breed horses to supply the demand. "Coming events cast their shadows before," and the husbandman who raises good horses of any of the standard breeds will find a ready demand for them at remunerative prices.—Road and Track.

It is current gossip that Harry Hamlin, when asked for a price on Direct Hal a few days ago, it is said, by James Butler, named one of $50,000.

Filling Horses' Teeth.

A woman of Elizabeth, N. J., has a poodle with a diamond set in one of its front teeth, and all over the country there are dogs and cats whose open mouths reveal bridge work, gold crowns and other examples of good dentistry. But the filling of the teeth of horses is comparatively new. Yet, new as it is, already a number of thoroughbreds have undergone it, and in the finer stables of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago many horses can show glittering gold teeth.

It is said that a horse in W. C. Whitney's stables was the first in the world to have a tooth filled. That was five years ago. And yet dentistry was not generally applied to horses until two years ago. Then a Philadelphia man took it up, and his success soon demonstrated to the veterinary surgeons of the country that something new had been added to their profession.

An operation in horse dentistry is interesting to witness. A slim bay mare, a trotter, worth $3,000, was sent from New York to the Philadelphia man's shop to have a front tooth filled last month. She had broken the tooth against her manger. Its jagged edge cut her mouth, and she could not eat for pain. The filling, without any suffering on her part, was accomplished in less than an hour, and in the afternoon the little mare, with the tooth restored, boarded her private box car and went home.

On her arrival in Philadelphia she was put in a box stall, and in the passageway outside her door two grooms placed a table laden with dental instruments.

Then a young surgeon, in a white coat, appeared. He took up one of the instruments. It had an ebony handle and it had four bars of nickel, working on a ratchet, which crossed one another so as to form a hollow square that grew, by the turning of a screw, little or big.

"This is a speculum," the surgeon said, and he set it to the proper size. It fitted upon the mare's teeth, and held her mouth wide open, affording a good view of all that lay within. A groom took hold of the speculum's handle with one hand and of the mare's tongue with the other, and the surgeon examined the broken tooth.

"A splinter must come off here," he said, and he took up an instrument two feet long, scissors shaped, and with cutting edges that were sawlike. This was a cutter, and on being applied to the tooth it snapped off the splinter as though it had been chalk.

Among the dental instruments on the table an electric battery buzzed. The surgeon fixed to one of its wires a drill and instantly a burr of steel upon the end of the drill began to revolve as fast as a circular saw. He applied the drill to the tooth. With a humming sound it dug its way through the torn enamel, making it smooth in a moment.

The surgeon cleansed the tooth thoroughly with hot air blown from a syringe. Then he took up in a forceps a morsel of dental gold. This malleable metal he pounded tight into the cavity, and added more and more to it, moulding the gold as it grew, till finally the tooth had regained its proper size and shape. It was then filed smooth and polished and the operation was over. It had lasted less than an hour. The groom removed the speculum and the mare, who had suffered no pain, whinnied a little and took a deep drink of water. Afterward she ate, for the first time since the accident, a hearty meal.

The filling and crowning of the teeth of horses is done with aluminum and amalgam as well as with gold. The operation varies in cost from $5 up into the hundreds, for to fill a back, or molar, equine tooth requires sometimes a great deal of gold, since these teeth are an inch broad and three inches long.—New York Tribune.

Hudson's Sulky Prong.

Many who watched the races at Brighton Beach and at the Empire City track noticed that Scott Hudson uses a sulky having a prong-like extension over the tire of the wheel, supposedly to keep the sulky from running under should the horse rear or plunge, as horses do at times. Hudson, was asked as to whether the prong-like extension would hold were Rhythmic to act meanly. He said: "Why, I don't have them on for that purpose at all, as he never has reared with me. I put it on to keep horses from stepping on the tire and smashing my wheel down. It is useful for that, I can tell you, as many time this season in big fields of starters I've had my sulky smashed about on the turns. I never did think about the rearing part, yet I do expect they would keep a sulky from running under the horse."

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonade and be refreshed.

San Francisco, Saturday, October 11, 1902.

THE SEASON of harness racing for 1902 in California is nearly over and shows a great improvement and increased interest over last year. At the district fairs the attendance has been better and the interest taken in harness racing much more manifest. Where the tracks have been in good condition, fast time has been made and there is a general improvement to be recorded all along the line. When the fact is considered that there are no large breeding farms in California engaged in racing, as was the case a few years ago, the showing made by harness horses at the fairs here this season is an excellent one. A condition of things exists here that is peculiar to this State alone. There is but one circuit of harness racing, and a very limited number of horses to draw entries from. Almost the entire number of horses entered at the district and State fairs start in at the first meeting on the circuit and there is no outside supply to draw from as the horses lessen in numbers from sickness, lameness and the many ills to which horseflesh is heir. The result is that fields get smaller and smaller as the circuit progresses, until along toward the close of the season many purses are declared off for lack of starters. The biggest stake offered for aged trotters on this Coast this year was The California, a $2000 stake for trotters of the 2:24 class, which was given by the Trotting Horse Breeders Association at its Fresno meeting. There were no less than 22 original entries to this race, which gave every promise of being a splendid contest, but when the 3d of October arrived, the day set for the event, but four horses started and one so far outclassed the others that he won without an effort in time five or six seconds slower than his record. Had this race been trotted the first week in August there would have been at least a dozen horses lined up in the first heat. One feature that is a source of satisfaction to every horse owner and breeder is that the two best meetings of the year were at places where no bookmaking was permitted but all the wagering done through the medium of auction and mutual pools. Both associations suffered financially from the change, but the racing was cleaner and better in every way. Neither of these associations received more than $700 as its percentage from the betting privilege, whereas a bookmaker would have given them from $1500 to $2000 each for the right to make books, but the directors have the satisfaction of knowing that of the money wagered on the races at their meetings all but five per cent remained in the hands of the public, whereas had books been permitted the conditions would have been reversed. In one thing California associations are particularly generous but are often accused of being niggardly and that is in the amount of money offered in purses. The population of the towns on the circuit where the principal meetings were given this year are about as follows: Pleasanton 1200, Vallejo 4000, Napa 3500, Woodland 3000, Sacramento (State Fair) 25,000, Stockton 20,000, Fresno 15,000, Bakersfield 3000 and Los Angeles 100,000. Now Pleasanton, Vallejo, Napa, Woodland and Bakersfield are very small places compared with the other towns, yet they give as large and in some cases larger purses than the others. All through the circuit $500 purses were given and from that up to $2000, the $600, $750, and $1000 being quite numerous. While these purses do not seem large to horsemen who are familiar with the big purses and stakes hung up over east on the Grand Circuit, they are very large and generous when the population of the towns where meetings are held, and the number of entries received are considered. California has done very well in harness racing this year and will do better next year. The sport is on the up grade and there is no cause for pessimism on the part of anybody.

THE LOS ANGELES MEETING, which opened to-day, should be the most successful one ever held in the southern metropolis unless all signs fail. Manager J. W. Brooks has been wiring horsemen for the past week that there was stall room for no more horses as over four hundred head were on the grounds and every stall occupied. The telegrams seem to do no good, however, as every train from the north this week has been bringing in more horses and every available barn and shed within blocks of the track is being brought into requisition. Mr. Brooks stated to the press representatives this week that if the two weeks' meeting proves the success that he anticipates it will run on indefinitely. This means that there is an effort to be made to make Los Angeles a winter racing town. During the two weeks of racing already announced there are to be two harness and four or more running events each day. Several bookmakers will post odds during the meeting and it is expected that at least ten thousand people will be in attendance when the first race is called this afternoon.

ACCORDING TO THE CENSUS of 1900 the percentage of colts and fillies under one year old in California that year was but five per cent of the whole number of horses in this State, while the percentage of those under two years old and over was but six per cent. This being the case, it is no wonder there is a great shortage of two and three year olds at the present time and dealers are wondering where the supply of horses is to come from during the next two or three years.

ST. BLAISE, the noted thoroughbred stallion, is now 22 years of age, yet he brought $5500 last Monday at the auction sale of Charles Reed's horses by the Fasig-Tipton Company at New York. The veteran breeder, J. B. Haggin was the purchaser. Mr. Reed paid $100,000 for St. Blaise eleven years ago, which, until Mr. W. O'B. Macdonough paid $150,000 for Ormonde, was the highest price ever paid by an American breeder for a thoroughbred.

SACRAMENTO wants to keep the State Fair and the city trustees propose submitting to the people of that corporation the question whether they will issue bonds of from $75,000 to $100,000 for the purchase of land east of the present fair grounds which will be used in enlarging the same. The idea is for the city to purchase this land and lease the same to the State Agucultural Society.

Fast Time Expected.

A race has been arranged for to-day at Los Angeles in which it is thought the Coast record for six furlongs will be broken. The horses that will start are Caesar Young's Meehanus, Hughay Jones' Headwater, Owen Brothers' Flush of Gold, George Howson's fleet mare February, and F. J. Rourke's The Fretter. The track is in better condition than has been seen in the last five years, and is likely to be better in fact than when Marplot's famous performances occurred there about that length of time ago. Meehanus held the track record at Sheepshead Bay two years at the same distance as this race—three-quarters of a mile—the time being 1:13. Headwater holds the California record for the distance, 1:12½. The Fretter won the Burns Handicap and is good for a mile in 1:39½ quite regularly. February has won twenty races in fast time and Flush of Gold is very fast. There will probably not be a better race brought off in California this winter than the one contemplated. Gus Holmes of The Angelus has offered a handsome cup, and in consideration of his action the stake will be named after that hotel.

Meehanus will carry 112 pounds and there will be 109 on each of the others. Jerry Ransch will have the mount for Caesar Young all the coming meeting and will have the leg up on Meehanus in the Angelus event. Sheehan has been retained by Jones and will ride Headwater. Rutherford will have the mount on the Owen horses and will pilot Flush of Gold. The race will probably be the fourth event of the day.

Direct Hal heads the list of money-winning pacers in the Grand Circuit this season with more than twice as much to his credit as any other pacer, and probably more than any other trotter or pacer has ever won in any previous year.

Rhythmic 2:08 has won several thousand dollars more money in purses in the Grand Circuit this year than any other trotter, and now holds a faster record than any other trotter that began the season without a record.

Anzella has won over $20,000 in purses since she left California, and deducting all entrance money she has over $15,000 to her credit this year.

El Banecia, a 14 year old son of Alcyone, recently reduced his record to 2:17½. His previous record was 2:20½, made in 1893.

The Palo Alto Sale.

For the first time in years it has been decided to hold a sale of trotting stock at the famous Palo Alto Stock Farm. There will be only twenty-five to sell but they are goods ones. Among them is a sister to Eleata 2:08½, a half sister to Bernal 2:17, a sister to Lucrativa 2:13½, a half sister to Othello 2:25, a half brother to Mount Rose 2:18, besides sons and daughters of the great McKinney 2:11½, Mendocino 2:19½, Dexter Prince 1:1363, Wildnut 13472, Azmon 2:20, Nazote 2:28½, etc., out of such mares as Expressive 2:12½, Athena 2:15½, Rebecca (dam of 5), Elden 2:19½, Lucyneer 2:27, Loraneer 2:26½, Linnet 2:29½, Carrie C. 2:24. Many of these have been entered in the large eastern stakes. Besides these a number of famous broodmares will also be sold to the highest bidder, viz: Edith by Geo. Wilkes, Carrie C. 2:24, Laura C. (dam of 2), Rebecca (dam of 5), Mano (dam of 2), Flower Girl, Wilfan, Idlemay and Floweret. These mares are stunted to Monbells 2:23½ and Mendocino 2:19½. Horsemen should attend this sale. It will be an opportunity to get high-class standard trotting bred youngsters and broodmares they may never have again and as the sale commences at 11:30, W. G. Layng the auctioneer says he will have carriages at all the early trains to convey passengers to the race track where these are to be sold.

Kentucky Futurity Won by Nella Jay.

The roan filly Nella Jay won the great $20,000 Kentucky Futurity for three year olds at Lexington last Tuesday, the opening day of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association, trotting her three winning heats, the third, fourth and fifth, in 2:14½, 2:14½ and 2:15, fast time for a three year old in such a long drawn out race. Second money went to Gail Hamilton by Oakland Baron, who won the first and second heats in 2:14½. Third money was won by John Mac, son of Rex Americus, and fourth by Anak, son of Milroi. The Rajah, winner of several good races this year, and backed heavily for a winner, acted badly, broke three times in the first heat and was distanced. For driving Nella Jay to victory F. McKay received $1000 and half the winnings in the betting ring, which must have been large. Nella Jay is by Jay Hawker, dam Paronella by Parkville, son of Electioneer and Aurora 2:27 by John Nelson. That Electioneer blood cannot be kept back, but gets to the front at every meeting.

The first money in the Futurity this year was $10,000, second money $2000, third $1000 and fourth $500. Nella Jay proved herself one of the gamest trotters that ever started in this great race.

To the Horse Buying Public.

NEW YORK, September 29, 1902.

We have been so much engaged the last week in corresponding with our many consignors to the Old Glory auction in Madison Square Garden next November, and in classifying, arranging and digesting the entries that have been pouring in upon us, that we are unable, in preparing our advertisements to more than merely outline the many sensational features and attractions of this coming sale. A thousand horses or more will be offered for sale, and all of them represent the highest class of the American light harness breed. Within the limits of that breed there will be horses suitable to the tastes and requirements of every possible buyer. Sensational winners of the past season will be offered, stars for the matinee, and fast flyers for the speedway and road. The racing enthusiast will have a glorious array of fast young horses, bred in lines of extreme speed and with well accredited trials, from which to select money and futurity winners for next season's campaign; and they will be the best prospects in the country. Breeders will be enabled to notably strengthen their studs, and beginners will have the opportunity of commencing at the top—where the leaders are leaving off. High actors, blue ribbon winners, and horses after which you will feel safe in taking your family out for a drive, will also be in evidence. We expect also to offer a few driving teams of the highest class—so hard to mate up and so desirable to own. Sticklers for pedigrees will find stallions, mares and geldings, young and aged, bred to suit them, and with individuality, gait and speed to match their royal breeding. The sale is yet eight weeks off, and future issues of this paper will contain details and precise information of the many good things the Old Glory has in store for you. Watch our ads. from now on.

To any intending consignor that may happen to read these lines we need hardly urge the advisability of at once completing his entries, otherwise he runs a strong chance of being "left at the post." Address us Madison Square Garden, New York.

Prize Winners in Australia.

From the issue of Sept. 11th, 1902, of the Geelong Times, published at Victoria, Australia, we take the following:

"At the Geelong and Western District Agricultural and Horticultural Society's shows, the exhibit of trotters and buggy sorts were especially good. Mr. A. Robertson of the 'The Ranch' Glenroy, took first and second for trotting or roadster stallions with Gov. Tracy and Digitalis respectively.

Dixie Alto, which was shown for the first time yesterday, was awarded first prize in the section for colts two or three years old. Dixie Alto, which was greatly admired by the public, is a bay, with black points. He was imported from America by Mr. B. W. Viers for the Ranch. * * * Without doubt Dixie Alto is destined to become the champion trotting stallion of Australia."

Dixie Alto is the young stallion sold to Mr. Viers by Palo Alto Stock Farm as a yearling. He then bore the name of Marolino, which Mr. Viers had changed and he is now registered as Dixie Alto. He is by Mendocino, sire of Idolita 2:09½ and this year's sensation over East Monte Carlo 2:09½ that has won nearly every race in which he has started. The dam of Dixie Alto is Aerolite, half sister to Arion 2:07½ being by Palo Alto 2:08½ out of Manette, by Nutwood. The colt was purchased by Mr. Viers solely on his breeding and the recommendation of Superintendent Covey and was kept at the farm at Palo Alto until he was two years old when he was shipped to Mr. Viers. Here is the letter Mr. Covey wrote to Mr. Viers at the time

PALO ALTO, March 29, 1902.

"As per my letter of January 27, 1902, and also my answer to question No. 10, in yours of December 20, 1901, Palo Alto Stock Farm is going to keep its agreement and sell to you a colt that in my opinion is to-day worth at least $5000, and before fall will appreciate a great deal in value. He is the best two year old I ever saw for time of development. He is sound as a dollar. Has the action of Arion, is just such a dispositioned colt, and I can see in him a phenomenal colt trotter if properly handled. Were he mine I would like to see him fill his engagements. He will ship well, is a good feeder, a good feeder, and has the determination of a high class performer. He is Arion all over, except that he carries his head a little higher. I say to you in all candor, I never saw a better prospect. He is engaged in stakes that amount to $52,000, and I look on him as a stake winner. Accept my congratulations on your having secured a colt that carries the blood lines of the greatest raised at Palo Alto, embodying the theory that Gov. Stanford firmly believed and proved, that the crossing of the right kind of the thoroughbred with the trotter would produce extreme speed and the ability to carry it over a distance of ground.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) F. W. COVEY."

It is pleasing to know that the California horses are showing so well in Australia, and the showing of Gov. Tracy, Digitalis and Dixie Alto will lead to other orders from there. Mr. C. A. Durfee recently received an inquiry from a wealthy Australian breeder asking the price on a young stallion by the great McKinney and on the last steamer sent the tabulated pedigrees, discriptions and prices on three young sons of that horse. The Australian and New Zealand trotting horse breeders are showing much enterprise at the shows and trotting meetings there, and the latter are growing greatly in popularity. With such young stallions as Dixie Alto they cannot help but breed high class stock if they use good mares. Owyhee 2:11 was another recent export to the antipodes that is a high class horse.

Sam Bowers, the Oregon Pacer.

The $2000 Greater Salem Stake for 2:18 class pacers, given this year at the Oregon State Fair, was won by Sam Bowers, who took a record of 2:11 in the race and whose breeding has been given as by Hambletonian Mambrino. This is not correct, although he is inbred to that horse. His breeder, Van B. D'Lashmutt, writes as follows to the Rural Spirit:

"No doubt some of your readers will be interested in knowing the correct breeding of Sam Bowers, which is as follows:

"He was foaled on Witch Hazel Stock Farm, near Portland, May 10, 1893. His sire is Joe Simpson by Hambletonian Mambrino 5241. His dam is Maggie Thayer by Hambletonian Mambrino, and her dam was a thoroughbred mare raised by Judge Andrew Thayer of Corvallis, and now owned, if alive, by Claude Thayer of Tillamook.

"I shipped Sam Bowers and his mother to Eastern Washington on April 30, 1894, and branded him 44 under the mane in order to identify him, as I numbered all horses I shipped up there. I do not know who owns Joe Simpson. The last I knew of him he was in Tillamook county. I do not know where Maggie Thayer is. She is numbered and has marks of identification so she can be easily recognized if alive. In my register Sam Bowers' name was Coquelicot, and is recorded on page 75. Very truly yours, VAN B. D'LASHMUTT."

Big Sale of Thoroughbreds.

The Fasig-Tipton Company held a most successful sale of the entire racing stables and stud of Messrs. A. H. and D. H. Morris at Sheephead Bay October 1st.

The top price paid was $17,100 for the famous brood mare Reckon, who was sold to S. S. Brown, the Pittsburg millionaire turfman. The bidding started at $2000 and was rapidly raised a thousand a crack by Charles McMeekin, owner of the Oakwood stud, Lucien Appleby, Jack Joyner and Capt. Brown. Appleby and Brown fought it out to the end and when the great mare was knocked down to the latter he was warmly congratulated.

Correction, famous as the dam of Yankee, and a full sister to Domino, who won thirty-nine races on the turf and $47,350 in stakes, was also run up quickly, Madden stopping at $12,100. Appleby finally got the mare for $15,000. The three-year-old colt, Compute, who broke down last spring in the Belmont Stakes at Morris Park and for whom the Messrs. Morris refused $30,000 at the time went to R. W. Walden, who trained the colt, for $10,500. Walden was very well satisfied with his purchase, for he has always prized this animal highly and would have gone much higher in the bidding if he had been compelled to do so.

Madden, Joyner and Walden were the leading bidders for the stallion Bowling Brook until McMeekin took a hand and got him for $8100. J. J. McCafferty bought the celebrated Filigrane for $6300, but was acting for somebody else whose identity he refused to disclose. Capt. Brown outbid Madden for the mare La Misere and took her away for $6000. J. H. McCormick, representing L. V. Bell, secured the three year old filly, Hanover Queen, for $6000.

Walden went as high as $5300 for the mare Prestidigitatrice and she was knocked down to him. He also bought the mares Metempsychosis and Summer Sea for $3400 and $2600, respectively. For Queen Elizabeth, a two year old filly, who is a full sister to Old England, Walden paid $1500.

In addition to buying Correction, Appleby, who, it was said, represented an English owner, reported to be Lord Clonwell, purchased the mare Vacation for $4400. Madden bid $2500 and got the noted imported stallion Galore. He also bought the mare Discretion for $1700, a yearly filly by Filigrane-L'Intriguante for $2000, the three year old filly The Hayden for $1100, and a yearling colt by Mars-Correction, a half brother to Yankee, last year's Futurity winner, for $500.

Capt. Brown got the stallion, The Friar, for $2500, while Milton Young, the well known breeder, took the mares Lizzie Baker for $2000, Rosethorn for $1500, Sulphide for $1300, Ambulance for $1100, Holiday for $300 and Active for $100. The three year old colt Dolce Far Niente was purchased for $1000 by Walden for his six year old grand-daughter, Thelma Walden Littlefield, the daughter of Fred Littlefield. The little girl already has a broodmare and a yearling and is the youngest owner in America.

Thirty-seven head were sold for a total of $110,750, an average of $2993 per head.

Director Joe, by Director, 2:17, out of the dam of Joe Patchen, 2:01½, is showing very fast for Mart Demarest, and recently stepped a quarter in 32 seconds, with the last eighth in 15½ seconds.

Doings of the Duck and Quail Hunters.

For most local sportsmen the opening day of the season was a fairly enjoyable day. The Alameda marshes were visited by a large number of shooters, many of whom had good shooting. Ducks were plentiful in that district and the morning flight was a good one. On the Suisun at the Cordelia, Teal, Field and Tule Club preserves some excellent sport was had.

The Petaluma and Sonoma marshes also yielded a number of bags of ducks.

Last Sunday, the day when the main army of hunters were afield, was hot and sultry, with the result that very few ducks were found frequenting their wonted resorts.

A rain will be very beneficial to the quail hunters. The birds do not lay well yet and during this warm weather are very niggardly in scent and also develop sprinting qualities that are exasperating in the extreme.

A line on shooting territory and the doings of sportsmen in different localities throughout the state may be gathered from the following notes:

The exodus of Los Angeles sportsmen last Sunday is described by the Herald in the following notes:

To rent a gun in Los Angeles last night was a rather hard task, notwithstanding the extra large supply of firearms for transients laid in by most of the gun stores. Every available piece was taken or engaged in most of the houses, and a record breaking sale of ammunition has been going on.

All evening parties of one or two wheelmen with blankets and occasional teams were hying themselves to the San Fernando valley and other points of supposed quail abundance. The din that will break forth with the dawn will not be confined entirely to the quail, however, for the clubmen turned out in full force last night and everything points to a big killing of early ducks today.

G. G. Gauld's Bag of Wood Ducks.

Ed Tufts and a party left for the Pacific Gun Club and a big bunch of Carritos and Alamitos Club members got away on the late afternoon train, a few more departing at midnight.

John Hauerwaas, General Last and several other Green Wing shooters will get the limit at that place today, and the Recreation will be well patronized.

Quite a number of the Tufts-Lyon force are going out after quail this morning. One party will be composed of Guy Lovelace and Phil Lyon. They will shoot on a private ranch near Fernando.

Terry Mays, Jim Menasco and a few others will be at Sam Alexander's, near the same town.

Jack Jenkins, Oscar Freytag, Will Hatton, E. L. Hedderly and another will shoot near Hollywood.

Bill Tufts has been trying to find a friend somewhere having similar designs on the feathered tribe.

Louis Breer and wife will drive through the valley after quail.

Jimmy Farrell and his partner have arranged to shoot in the San Fernando.

Ed Dieter and H. E. Maxson will take theirs in the middle of the week, having a place fenced in near Fernando with several quail traps and a squaw to shoot the birds.

Christ Krempel has had enough for a while, thank you.

Harry Slotterbeck and his brother with one or two others expect to shoot in the wash near Azusa. Ernest Beuchel has planned to kill a few birds in the same place.

Will Wright and a party expect some sport from their day's outing toward the east.

The opening of the hunting season, October 1st,

Wednesday morning, was marked by a hot north wind blowing, but notwithstanding the unfavorable weather for duck shooting, fine sport was enjoyed and good bags made by Suisun, city and other hunters who shot in that vicinity.

At the Suisun Gun Club's quarters on the Tomasini place, the season's festivities were opened Tuesday night by a big supper and genealogical time. The election of officers resulted in Jack Wilson being chosen president and manager and J. C. Murphy secretary.

Fifteen members occupied the blinds Wednesday morning and something over 150 ducks were secured, Herman Perkins heading the list with 50 (the limit) to his credit. The others who enjoyed the morning shoot were A. Chickering, Robert Goodfellow, Mr. Richards and Thos. Pollard, of San Francisco; Hon. Alden Anderson, L. A. Hillborn, J. C. Murphy, T. L. Emigh, Will Robbins, Dr. W. G. Downing, Jas. A. Keys, William Pierce, Dr. A. G. Bailey and Jack Wilson.

At the Danielson ponds, near Denver, Jos. Danielson, Jr., and Raymond Nabour killed 93.

J. Peter Siebe, W. H. Bryan and Meyer Dinkelspiel occupied positions on the "Clint Kirby" ponds on Glenn Hutchinson's ranch and got 33 ducks.

Gene Losh and Fred Rush placed 41 to their credit at the Carpenter ponds, east of Suisun.

Stewart ponds at Denver furnished fine sport for Ed L. Stewart, Frank Stewart and Walter Cooper. Their strings numbered 40, 45 and 43, respectively. They were mostly mallards.

Geo. K. Harding and Ed Whitby scored 20 each at Boynton ponds. Leonard Prior and John Coghlan were also there and each secured a large number.

The San Franciscans who have leased the Peyton ponds each secured almost the limit, but we were unable to secure their names.

The new game preserve of the Empire Gun Club on Elkhorn slough, Monterey county, attracted many of the members last Sunday. Among those in attendance were President J. P. Sweeney, Secretary J. B. Hauer, Lewis Allen, Con Roman, F. S. Judah, Dr. George Gere, Dr. Clyde Payne, J. Peltier, L. Aubert, J. Brownell, F. B. Surrhyne and C. A. Bennett. All fared nicely and returned with well filled game bags. Messrs. Sweeney, Hauer, Surrhyne, Brownell, Aubert and Gere went in quest of quail. The best joint bag was that of Messrs. Sweeney and Hauer, who secured forty-five birds.

Tons of bait will be shipped down at once and distributed about the ponds to attract the canvasbacks, some of which have already been seen on the preserve. Contractor Marshall promises to have the club house fit for habitation in two weeks.

The quail and duck hunting season opened at San Diego with the hills and the marshes of that section covered by hunters, most of whom were successful. Mrs. Frank Fleming bagged 25 quail in Rose Canyon.

On the 1st inst. the gunners at Fort Rosecrans were testing a new 5-inch rapid fire gun, recently mounted at the fort, the range being on the water. By some mistake (?) in cutting the fuse, the shell exploded prematurely, about 100 yards from the gun and just over the place where a flock of wild ducks were swimming peacefully. Fourteen of them were killed by pieces of the shell. The soldiers went out in a boat and picked them up, and they were served to the company for dinner next day. Shooting wild ducks with a cannon is a new one.

At the last meeting of the Board of Supervisors of San Mateo county the ordinance on quail, making the opening day on the birds in that county November 1st, which law prevailed last year, was revoked, and greatly to the delight of hundreds of sportsmen the season on quail is now open in that county.

The fact that the state law opens the quail season on October 1st has caused a large number of hunters to visit Marin county on the 1st.

A county ordinance fostered by the game association, however, has made the opening of the season in Marin county October 15th. The result is that those who hunted on that day unwittingly violated the law. To uphold the law, Sheriff Taylor has appointed twenty-five deputy sheriffs and numerous arrests are probable. The sheriff has sent word to every town, however, to warn the hunters and is making every effort to prevent arrests resulting from a misunderstanding.

Clarence A. Haight, and Joseph J. Sweeney recently enjoyed a quail hunt in the vicinity of Salinas with "Pop" Carr of Monterey. Birds were plentiful on the Salinas hunting ground.

Forest fires in the vicinity of Glen Ellen, have besides doing an immense amount of damage to grain and pasture land, consuming tons of hay, grain, etc., have also burned out many good quail hunting districts.

C. Chapman of San Francisco, Gus and Perry Purvine, Carl and Guy Beggs, and Frank Burns left Petaluma early on the morning of the 1st for a quail hunt in the foothills near Two Rock. They had a fine time and bagged 150 quail. Carl Beggs and C. Chapman boarded the late train for San Francisco and took a string of birds with them.

Meyer Phillips and James Pitts got their share, bagging quite a number of the birds below Lakeville.

Returns, in the shape of stories of great shots, plenty of game, the full limit, etc., are coming in from Stockton hunters who, on the opening day of the season, went after the wild duck in its lair, says the artist on the Mail.

The Tule Gun Club had a large representation in the field and the count is still in progress. Judge Washington makes affidavit that he shot eleven ducks. Henry Longers swears to seven. Frank Cadle fourteen, John Edwards nine, Arthur Edwards ten, Ed Peyton three, Al Musto five, Henry Hickinbotham two, while Dr. Fred Clark, to avoid legal complications, refused to tell the number he got.

Doc wore something in the shape of a grass suit that fitted him beautifully. The suits are made entirely of long grass woven together, and, when on a petite figure like the Doctor's, makes the wearer look like a Hawaiian hula dancer, or a large bunch of grass. There is one drawback to the suits, however: While they may deceive ducks they don't fool cattle, and the Doctor had a narrow escape from being eaten by a cow.

Bert Lyons, Norv Harrison, Pinkie Wright, Dutch Folger and Dr. Fitzgerald do their shooting at Head Reach. They have a fine cabin there, which they reach by water, traveling on the Kitty B. These gentlemen get fine shooting, but are a little chary about giving the number of birds killed, owing to the inconvenient law in regard to such matters. They report large numbers of ducks for this time of the year.

There was shown in a picture of the Kitty B. just 49 ducks, which is one less than the limit. Of course, though, the other side of the boat cannot be seen in the photograph.

Charlie Doan and Bert Fisher used several thousand shells on the Tredway place, but they are both non-committal and the result will always remain in obscurity.

On the McDade place W. H. Chestnutwood, Dr. J. D. Young, J. A. Patterson and Bee Hart did fearful execution, and they may be justly classed as law-breakers, though there is no proof in evidence.

A great many hunters left for the tules last Friday afternoon and the evening following. The sale of ammunition has been enormous. It was expected that the bombardment would bring down rain, if nothing else.

Beet pulp is being used in great quantities for baiting ponds. It has proved a great success in the ponds near Suisun. The members of the Petaluma Sportsmen's Club have taken a couple of sacks down to their preserves and have been pleased with the result.

Reports from the field in the vicinity of San Jose, since the opening of the season indicate an abundance of quail and excellent shooting in all the foothill and mountain sections of Santa Clara county. Of course shooting in the main valley itself is extremely limited, but by going back anywhere from ten to twenty miles from San Jose one may find plenty of birds in almost any direction. Their increase in numbers during the last two years is due to the admirable supervision of the field and enforcement of the game laws by the local game protective association, the County Fish and Game Warden and the State deputies.

Not only quail, but deer also have been increasing largely in numbers, and the deer season, recently closed, was the most satisfactory experienced by sportsmen in Santa Clara county for many years past.

A few days before the opening of the quail season Game Warden Foster switched off from the western side of the valley, which he had been patrolling, to the Mount Hamilton country. There was no shooting in the vicinity of Smith creek, even on the first day of the open season, although quail are numerous there. Several miles from there, however, in the Santa Ysabel country, some shooting was being done, the result of which was the arrest by Mr. Foster of Charles Smith for shooting quail out of season—on the 30th day of September. Mr. Smith was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Wallace. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25, which he paid. The Game Warden had been shadowing certain hunting parties during the day preceding the opening of the season, and Mr. Smith made the costly mistake of shooting a day too soon. Infractions of the law have been few and far between during the past year, partly for the reason that the great majority of the public have come to see the wisdom of the game laws and the desirability of game protection, and partly because the very few who have no respect for the laws are not apt to take the chances of being detected by the warden or a State deputy, of paying a fine, and of being subjected to a publicity that is not at all creditable to them.

The Woodland, Yolo county, duck hunters who went afield on the first report an abundance of birds, but very little water in the ponds and lakes, and in consequence the ducks were hard to get a shot at.

Local sportsmen, while they are enjoying most excellent shooting opportunities at their own doors, so to speak, are not the only fortunate ones who go afield with gun and dog. The opening of the season in Oregon commenced on September 1st. It was the good luck of a well known local shotgun expert, Mr. G. G. Gauld, to enjoy the hospitality three weeks ago of Deer Island Shooting Club, an organization of Portland sportsmen, whose preserve, covering 3700 acres, is located in an enchanting shooting district fifty-eight miles down the Columbia river, where is established a splendid club house and every needed accessory to enable the club members to have a good shoot and a comfortable outing. Mr. Gauld and Waltmon Tietz, a veteran Oregon sportsman, in one day's shooting bagged the fifty limit each; the birds were principally the iridescent plumaged wood duck, with a few mallard and teal intermixed. In the afternoon the hunters enjoyed a snipe hunt. During the day they counted fifty-two Mongolian pheasants which they flushed. The season on the "Chinamen" in Oregon opened on the 1st inst.

A notable shoot on Wednesday, the 1st, was enjoyed by W. S. Wattles, of this city, who shot in a pond near Collinsville. Three guns bagged the limit by 9:30 a. m. This spot has been leased by E. E. Drake, George H. Lent, W. J. Golcher and Mr. Wattles. It is regarded as one of the best duck-shooting resorts in that locality. Near Collinsville is located the new shooting grounds of the Black Jack Gun Club. Bert Wyman and Wm. Swain shot there Sunday.

The Marin Gun Club composed of the following sportsmen, Thos. Deffenback, J. Johnson, W. Messerole, Carl Upham and Bert Patrick, opened their season on the first in the shooting blinds on the preserve situated at the head of Richardson's bay. A turkey dinner terminated the day's sport. The combined bag of ducks was a very good one for the beginning of the season.

Reports from San Jose early this week state that quail hunting is even better than anticipated, and hunters who have returned state that it has not been so good in years. Coveys of quail can be found almost everywhere as soon as the foothills are reached. Both in the foothills to the east and to the west of the valley they are to be found and from reports which have come in to Chris Homrich, the local sporting goods dealer, there is no place in the mountains or the foothills where the hunter cannot secure good bags.

Charles Coons, Joe Lazior and Bud Jackson hunted on the King ranch, near Almaden, and bagged 70 quail on the opening day.

W. T. Reese and son Tom secured the limit of 25 birds each in the vicinity of Long Bridge, Saratoga.

The largest bag reported so far was secured by John and Dick Christian and R. and Hiram Corey. They hunted in the Calaveras valley and bagged 85 quail.

A. W. Lewis returned from the vicinity of the Silver Creek mine, where he secured the limit in about two hours. Mr. Lewis is an expert wing shot and took each bird singly.

John B. Enright and William F. Taaffe got the limit of quail in the vicinity of Azule Springs.
